[28][‡]When the news came to Joab—for Joab [b] had supported Adonijah although [c] he had not supported Absalom—Joab fled to the tent of the LORD and caught hold of the [d] horns of the altar. [29]And when it was told King Solomon, "Joab has fled to the tent of the LORD, and behold, he is beside the altar," Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, "Go, strike him down." [30]So Benaiah came to the tent of the LORD and said to him, "The king commands, 'Come out.'" But he said, "No, I will die here." Then Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, "Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me." [31]The king replied to him, [e] "Do as he has said, strike him down and bury him, [f] and thus take away from me and from my father's house the guilt for the blood that Joab shed without cause. [32]The LORD will [g]bring back his bloody deeds on his own head, because, without the knowledge of my father David, he attacked and killed with the sword two men [h]more righteous and better than himself, [i]Abner the son of Ner, commander of the army of Israel, and [j]Amasa the son of Jether, commander of the army of Judah. [33][g]So shall their blood come back on the head of Joab and on the head of his descendants forever. But for David and for his descendants and for his house and for his throne there shall be peace from the LORD forevermore.” [34]Then Benaiah the son of Jehoiada went up and struck him down and put him to death. And he was buried in his own house in the wilderness. [35][k]The king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada over the army in place of Joab, and the king put [l]Zadok the priest [m]in the place of Abiathar.

[36][†]Then the king sent and summoned [n]Shimei and said to him, “Build yourself a house in Jerusalem and dwell there, and do not go out from there to any place whatever. [37]For on the day you go out and cross [o]the brook Kidron, know for certain that you shall die. [p]Your blood shall be on your own head.” [38]And Shimei said to the king, “What you say is good; as my lord the king has said, so will your servant do.” So Shimei lived in Jerusalem many days.

[39]But it happened at the end of three years that two of Shimei’s servants ran away to [q]Achish, son of Maacah, king of Gath. And when it was told Shimei, “Behold, your servants are in Gath,” [40]Shimei arose and saddled a donkey and went to Gath to Achish to seek his servants. Shimei went and brought his servants from Gath. [41]And when Solomon was told that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and returned, [42]the king sent and summoned Shimei and said to him, “Did I not make you swear by the LORD and solemnly warn you, saying, ‘Know for certain that on the day you go out and go to any place whatever, you shall die’? And you said to me, ‘What you say is good; I will obey.’ [43]Why then have you not kept your oath to the LORD and the commandment with which I commanded you?” [44]The king also said to Shimei, “You know in your own heart [r]all the harm that you did to David my father. So the LORD will [s]bring back your harm on your own head. [45]But King Solomon shall be blessed, [t]and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD forever.” [46]Then the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and he went out and struck him down, and he died.

[u] So the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

Solomon’s Prayer for Wisdom

1 KINGS 3 [‡] [v] Solomon made a marriage alliance with Pharaoh king of Egypt. He took Pharaoh’s daughter and brought her into [w] the city of David until he had finished [x] building his own house [y] and the house of the LORD [z] and the wall around Jerusalem. [2][‡] [a] The people were sacrificing at the high places, however, because no house had yet been built for the name of the LORD.

[3]Solomon [b] loved the LORD, [c] walking in the statutes of David his father, only he sacrificed and made offerings at the high places. [4]And the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there, [d] for that was the great high place. Solomon used to offer a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. [5] [e] At Gibeon [f] the LORD appeared to Solomon [g] in a dream by night, and God said, “Ask what I shall give you.” [6]And Solomon said, “You have shown great and steadfast love to your servant David my father, because [h] he walked before you in faithfulness, in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart toward you. And you have kept for him this great and steadfast love and [i] have given him a son to sit on his throne this day. [7][‡]And now, O LORD my God, [j] you have made your servant king in place of David my father, [k] although I am but a little child. I do not know [l] how to go out or come in. [8] [m] And your servant is in the midst of your people whom you have chosen, a great people, [n] too many to be numbered or counted for multitude. [9][^] [o] Give your servant therefore an understanding mind [p] to govern your people, that I may [q] discern between good and evil, for who is able to govern this your great people?”

[10]It pleased the Lord that Solomon had asked this. [11][‡]And God said to him, “Because you have asked this, and have not asked for yourself long life or riches or the life of your enemies, but have asked for yourself understanding to discern what is right, [12]behold, [r] I now do according to your word. Behold, [s] I give you a wise and discerning mind, so that none like you has been before you and none like you shall arise after you. [13] [t] I give you also what you have not asked, [u]both riches and honor, so that no other king shall compare with you, all your days. [14]And if you will walk in my ways, keeping my statutes and my commandments, [v]as your father David walked, then [w]I will lengthen your days."

[15]And Solomon [x]awoke, and behold, it was a dream. Then he came to Jerusalem and stood before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and offered up burnt offerings and peace offerings, and made a feast for all his servants.

Solomon's Wisdom

[16][†]Then two prostitutes came to the king [y]and stood before him. [17]The one woman said, "Oh, my lord, this woman and I live in the same house, and I gave birth to a child while she was in the house. [18]Then on the third day after I gave birth, this woman also gave birth. And we were alone. There was no one else with us in the house; only we two were in the house. [19]And this woman's son died in the night, because she lay on him. [20]And she arose at midnight and took my son from beside me, while your servant slept, and laid him at her breast, and laid her dead son at my breast. [21]When I rose in the morning to nurse my child, behold, he was dead. But when I looked at him closely in the morning, behold, he was not the child that I had borne." [22]But the other woman said, "No, the living child is mine, and the dead child is yours." The first said, "No, the dead child is yours, and the living child is mine." Thus they spoke before the king.

[23]Then the king said, "The one says, 'This is my son that is alive, and your son is dead'; and the other says, 'No; but your son is dead, and my son is the living one.'" [24][†]And the king said, "Bring me a sword." So a sword was brought before the king. [25]And the king said, "Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other." [26]Then the woman whose son was alive said to the king, because [z]her heart yearned for her son, "Oh, my lord, give her the living child, and by no means put him to death." But the other said, "He shall be neither mine nor yours; divide him." [27][†]Then the king answered and said, "Give the living child to the first woman, and by no means put him to death; she is his mother." [28]And all Israel heard of the judgment that the king had rendered, and they stood in awe of the king, because they perceived that [a]the wisdom of God was in him to do justice.

Solomon’s Officials

1 KINGS 4 [†]King Solomon was king over all Israel, [2][†]and these were his high officials: Azariah the son of Zadok was [b]the priest; [3][†]Elihoreph and Ahijah the sons of Shisha were secretaries; [c]Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder; [4][d]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was in command of the army; [e]Zadok and Abiathar were priests; [5][†]Azariah the son of Nathan was over [f]the officers; Zabud the son of Nathan was priest and [g]king’s friend; [6][†]Ahishar was in charge of the palace; and [h]Adoniram the son of Abda was in charge of [i]the forced labor.

[7][†]Solomon had twelve officers over all Israel, who provided food for the king and his household. Each man had to make provision for one month in the year. [8]These were their names: Ben-hur, in [j]the hill country of Ephraim; [9][†]Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elonbeth-hanan; [10]Ben-hesed, in Arubboth (to him belonged Socoh and all the land of Hepher); [11]Ben-abinadab, in all [k]Naphath-dor (he had Taphath the daughter of Solomon as his wife); [12][†]Baana the son of Ahilud, in [l]Taanach, Megiddo, and all [l]Beth-shean that is beside Zarethan below Jezreel, and from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah, as far as the other side of Jokmeam; [13]Ben-geber, [m]in Ramoth-gilead (he had [n]the villages of Jair the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead, and he had [o]the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars); [14]Ahinadab the son of Iddo, in Mahanaim; [15]Ahimaaz, in Naphtali (he had taken Basemath the daughter of Solomon as his wife); [16]Baana the son of Hushai, in Asher and Bealoth; [17]Jehoshaphat the son of Paruah, in Issachar; [18][p]Shimei the son of Ela, in Benjamin; [19]Geber the son of Uri, in the land of Gilead, [q]the country of Sihon king of the Amorites and of Og king of Bashan. And there was one governor who was over the land.

Solomon’s Wealth and Wisdom

[20][†]Judah and Israel were as many [r]as the sand by the sea. They ate and drank and were happy. [21][†] [1] [s]Solomon ruled over all the kingdoms from the [t]Euphrates [2] to the land of the Philistines and to the border of Egypt.
[u]They brought tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life.

[22]Solomon’s provision for one day was thirty cors [3] of fine flour and sixty cors of meal, [23]ten fat oxen, and twenty pasture-fed cattle, a hundred sheep, besides deer, gazelles, roebucks, and fattened fowl. [24]For he had dominion over all the region west of the Euphrates [4] from Tiphsah to [v]Gaza, over all the kings west of the Euphrates. [w]And he had peace on all sides around him. [25][†]And Judah and Israel [x]lived in safety, [y]from Dan even to Beersheba, [z]every man under his vine and under his fig tree, all the days of Solomon. [26][†] [a]Solomon also had 40,000 [5] stalls of horses for his chariots, and 12,000 horsemen. [27]And those officers supplied provisions for King Solomon, and for all who came to King Solomon’s table, each one in his month. They let nothing be lacking. [28][†]Barley also and straw for the horses and [b]swift steeds they brought to the place where it was required, each according to his duty.

[29] [c]And God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding beyond measure, and breadth of mind [d]like the sand on the seashore, [30][†]so that Solomon’s wisdom surpassed the wisdom of all [e]the people of the east [f]and all the wisdom of Egypt. [31]For he was [c]wiser than all other men, wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Calcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol, and his fame was in all the surrounding nations. [32] [g]He also spoke 3,000 proverbs, [h]and his songs were 1,005. [33][†]He spoke of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon to the hyssop that grows out of the wall. He spoke also of beasts, and of birds, and of reptiles, and of fish. [34][^]And people of all nations came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and from [i]all the kings of the earth, who had heard of his wisdom.

Preparations for Building the Temple

1 KINGS 5 [†] [1] Now [j]Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon when he heard that they had anointed him king in place of his father, [k]for

Hiram always loved David. [2]And Solomon sent word to Hiram, [3][†] [l]“You know that David my father could not build a house for the name of the LORD his God [m]because of the warfare with which his enemies surrounded him, until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet. [4] [n]But now the LORD my God has given me rest on every side. There is neither adversary nor misfortune. [5][^][†]And so I intend to build a house for the name of the LORD my God, [o]as the LORD said to David my father, ‘Your son, whom I will set on your throne in your place, shall build the house for my name.’ [6][†]Now therefore command that cedars of Lebanon be cut for me. And my servants will join your servants, and I will pay you for your servants such wages as you set, for you know that there is no one among us who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians.”

[7][†]As soon as Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly and said, “Blessed be the LORD this day, who has given to David a wise son to be over this great people.” [8][^]And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, “I have heard the message that you have sent to me. I am ready to do all you desire in the matter of cedar and cypress timber. [9][†]My servants shall bring it down to the sea from Lebanon, and I will make it into rafts to go by sea to the place you direct. And I will have them broken up there, and you shall receive it. And you shall meet my wishes [p]by providing food for my household.” [10]So Hiram supplied Solomon with all the timber of cedar and cypress that he desired, [11]while Solomon gave Hiram 20,000 cors [2] of wheat as food for his household, and 20,000 [3] cors of beaten oil. Solomon gave this to Hiram year by year. [12]And the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, [q]as he promised him. And there was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and the two of them made a treaty.

[13][†]King Solomon drafted [r]forced labor out of all Israel, and the draft numbered 30,000 men. [14][†]And he sent them to Lebanon, 10,000 a month in shifts. They would be a month in Lebanon and two months at home. [s]Adoniram was in charge of the draft. [15]Solomon also [t]had 70,000 burden-bearers and 80,000 stonecutters in the hill country, [16]besides Solomon’s 3,300 [u]chief officers who were over the work, [v]who had charge of the people who carried on the work. [17][†]At the king’s command [w]they quarried out great, costly stones in order to lay the foundation of the house with dressed stones. [18][†]So Solomon’s builders and Hiram’s builders and [x] the men of Gebal did the cutting and prepared the timber and the stone to build the house.

Solomon Builds the Temple

1 KINGS 6 [†] [y] In the four hundred and eightieth year after the people of Israel came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is the second month, [z] he began to build the house of the LORD. 2[^] [a] The house that King Solomon built for the LORD was sixty cubits [1] long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high. 3The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits long, equal to the width of the house, and ten cubits deep in front of the house. 4And [b] he made for the house windows with recessed frames. [2] 5 [c] He also built a structure [3] against the wall of the house, running around the walls of the house, both the nave and [d] the inner sanctuary. And he made [e] side chambers all around. 6The lowest story [4] was five cubits broad, the middle one was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad. For around the outside of the house he made offsets on the wall in order that the supporting beams should not be inserted into the walls of the house.

8The entrance for the lowest [5] story was on the south side of the house, and one went up by stairs to the middle story, and from the middle story to the third. 9 [g] So he built the house and finished it, and he made the ceiling of the house of beams and planks of cedar. 10He built the structure against the whole house, five cubits high, and it was joined to the house with timbers of cedar.

11Now the word of the LORD came to Solomon, 12[†]"Concerning this house that you are building, [h] if you will walk in my statutes and obey my rules and keep all my commandments and walk in them, then I will establish my word with you, [i] which I spoke to David your father. 13And [j] I will dwell among the children of Israel [k] and will not forsake my people Israel."

14[†] [l] So Solomon built the house and finished it. 15He lined the walls of the house on the inside with boards of cedar. From the floor of the house to the walls of the ceiling, he covered them on the inside with wood, [m] and he covered the floor of the house with boards of cypress. 16 [n] He built twenty cubits of the rear of the house with boards of cedar from the floor to the walls, and he built this within as an inner sanctuary, as [o] the Most Holy Place. 17The house, that is, the nave in front of the inner sanctuary, was forty cubits long. 18The cedar within the house was carved in the form of [p] gourds and open flowers. All was cedar; no stone was seen. 19The inner sanctuary he prepared in the innermost part of the house, to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD. 20The inner sanctuary [6] was twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and twenty cubits high, and he overlaid it with pure gold. He also overlaid [7] an altar of cedar. 21And Solomon overlaid the inside of the house with pure gold, and he drew chains of gold across, in front of the inner sanctuary, and overlaid it with gold. 22And he overlaid the whole house with gold, until all the house was finished. [q] Also the whole altar that belonged to the inner sanctuary he overlaid with gold.

23 [r] In the inner sanctuary [s] he made two cherubim of olivewood, each ten cubits high. 24Five cubits was the length of one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the length of the other wing of the cherub; it was ten cubits from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other. 25The other cherub also measured ten cubits; both cherubim had the same measure and the same form. 26The height of one cherub was ten cubits, and so was that of the other cherub. 27He put the cherubim in the innermost part of the house. [t] And the wings of the cherubim were spread out so that a wing of one touched the one wall, and a wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; their other wings touched each other in the middle of the house. 28And he overlaid the cherubim with gold.

29Around all the walls of the house he carved engraved figures of cherubim and palm trees and open flowers, in the inner and outer rooms. 30The floor of the house he overlaid with gold in the inner and outer rooms.

[33]So also he made for the entrance to the nave doorposts of olivewood, in the form of a square, [34]and two doors of cypress wood. [u]The two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding. [35]On them he carved cherubim and palm trees and open flowers, and he overlaid them with gold evenly applied on the carved work. [36][†] [v]He built the inner court with three courses of cut stone and one course of cedar beams.

[37] [w]In the fourth year the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid, in the month of Ziv. [38][†]And in the eleventh year, in the month of Bul, which is the eighth month, the house was finished in all its parts, and according to all its specifications. He was seven years in building it.

Solomon Builds His Palace

1 KINGS 7 [†]Solomon was [x]building his own house thirteen years, and he finished his entire house.

[2][†]He built [y]the House of the Forest of Lebanon. Its length was a hundred cubits [1] and its breadth fifty cubits and its height thirty cubits, and it was built on four [2] rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams on the pillars. [3]And it was covered with cedar above the chambers that were on the forty-five pillars, fifteen in each row. [4]There were window frames in three rows, and window opposite window in three tiers. [5]All the doorways and windows [3] had square frames, and window was opposite window in three tiers.

[6][†]And he made [z]the Hall of Pillars; its length was fifty cubits, and its breadth thirty cubits. There was a porch in front with pillars, and [a]a canopy in front of them.

[7]And he made the Hall of the Throne where he was to pronounce judgment, even the Hall of Judgment. [b]It was finished with cedar from floor to rafters. [4]

[8]His own house where he was to dwell, in the other court back of the hall, was of like workmanship. Solomon also made a house like this hall for Pharaoh’s daughter [c]whom he had taken in marriage.

[9]All these were made of costly stones, cut according to measure, sawed with saws, back and front, even from the foundation to the coping, and from the outside to the great court. [10]The foundation was of costly stones, huge stones, stones of eight and ten cubits. [11]And above were costly stones, cut according to measurement, and cedar. [12] [d]The great court had three courses of cut stone all around, and a course of cedar beams; so had the inner court of the house of the LORD and [e]the vestibule of the house.

The Temple Furnishings

[13][†]And King Solomon sent and brought [f]Hiram from Tyre. [14][^]He was the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in bronze. And [g]he was full of wisdom, understanding, and skill for making any work in bronze. He came to King Solomon and did all his work.

[15][†] [h]He cast [i]two pillars of bronze. [j]Eighteen cubits was the height of one pillar, and a line of twelve cubits measured its circumference. It was hollow, and its thickness was four fingers. The second pillar was the same. [5] [16]He also made two capitals of cast bronze to set on the tops of the pillars. The height of the one capital was five cubits, and [j]the height of the other capital was five cubits. [17]There were lattices of checker work with wreaths of chain work for the capitals on the tops of the pillars, a lattice [6] for the one capital and a lattice for the other capital. [18]Likewise he made pomegranates [7] in two rows around the one latticework to cover the capital that was on the top of the pillar, and he did the same with the other capital. [19]Now the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars in the vestibule were of lily-work, four cubits. [20]The capitals were on the two pillars and also above the rounded projection which was beside the latticework. There were [k]two hundred pomegranates in two rows all around, and so with the other capital. [21] [l]He set up the pillars at the vestibule of the temple. He set up the pillar on the south and called its name Jachin, and he set up the pillar on the north and called its name Boaz. [22]And on the tops of the pillars was lily-work. Thus the work of the pillars was finished.

[23][^][†] [m]Then he made [n]the sea of cast metal. It was round, ten cubits from brim to brim, and five cubits high, and a line of thirty cubits measured its circumference. [24]Under its brim were [o] gourds, for ten cubits, compassing the sea all around. The gourds were in two rows, cast with it when it was cast. [25][‡]It stood on [p] twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The sea was set on them, and all their rear parts were inward. [26]Its thickness was a handbreadth, [8] and its brim was made like the brim of a cup, like the flower of a lily. It held two thousand baths. [9]

[27][^]He also made the [q] ten stands of bronze. Each stand was four cubits long, four cubits wide, and three cubits high. [28]This was the construction of the stands: they had panels, and the panels were set in the frames, [29]and on the panels that were set in the frames were lions, oxen, and cherubim. On the frames, both above and below the lions and oxen, there were wreaths of beveled work. [30]Moreover, each stand had four bronze wheels and axles of bronze, and at the four corners were supports for a basin. The supports were cast with wreaths at the side of each. [31]Its opening was within a crown that projected upward one cubit. Its opening was round, as a pedestal is made, a cubit and a half deep. At its opening there were carvings, and its panels were square, not round. [32]And the four wheels were underneath the panels. The axles of the wheels were of one piece with the stands, and the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half. [33]The wheels were made like a chariot wheel; their axles, their rims, their spokes, and their hubs were all cast. [34]There were four supports at the four corners of each stand. The supports were of one piece with the stands. [35]And on the top of the stand there was a round band half a cubit high; and on the top of the stand its stays and its panels were of one piece with it. [36]And on the surfaces of its stays and on its panels, he carved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, according to the space of each, with wreaths all around. [37]After this manner he made [q] the ten stands. All of them were cast alike, of the same measure and the same form.

[38]And he made [r] ten basins of bronze. Each basin held forty baths, each basin measured four cubits, and there was a basin for each of the ten stands. [39]And he set the stands, five on the south side of the house, and five on the north side of the house. And he set the sea at the southeast corner of the house.

[40] [s] Hiram also made [t] the pots, the shovels, and the basins. So Hiram finished all the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of the LORD: [41]the two pillars, the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars, and the two [u]latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars; [42]and the [v]four hundred pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars; [43]the ten stands, and the ten basins on the stands; [44]and [w]the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath the sea.

[48][†]So Solomon made all the vessels that were in the house of the LORD: [b]the golden altar, [c]the golden table for [d]the bread of the Presence, [49] [e]the lampstands of pure gold, five on the south side and five on the north, before the inner sanctuary; [f]the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of gold; [50]the cups, snuffers, basins, dishes for incense, and [g]fire pans, of pure gold; and the sockets of gold, for the doors of the innermost part of the house, [h]the Most Holy Place, and for the doors of the nave of the temple.

[51]Thus all the work that King Solomon did on the house of the LORD was finished. And Solomon brought in [i]the things that David his father had dedicated, the silver, the gold, and the vessels, and stored them in the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

The Ark Brought into the Temple

1 KINGS 8 [†][j]Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, [k]the leaders of the fathers' houses of the people of Israel, before King Solomon in Jerusalem, [l]to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of [m]the city of David, which is Zion. [2][†]And all the men of Israel assembled to King Solomon at [n]the feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month. [3][†]And all the elders of Israel came, and [o]the priests took up the ark. [4]And they brought up the ark of the LORD, [p]the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. [5]And King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were with him before the ark, [q]sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be counted or numbered. [6][r]Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD [s]to its place in [t]the inner sanctuary of the house, in the Most Holy Place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. [7]For the cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim overshadowed the ark and its poles. [8][†][u]And the poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen from the Holy Place before [t]the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside. And they are there to this day. [9][†]There was nothing in the ark except [v]the two tablets of stone that Moses put there at Horeb, where [w]the LORD made a covenant with the people of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. [10][†]And when the priests came out of the Holy Place, [x]a cloud filled the house of the LORD, [11][^][†]so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud, for the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD.

Solomon Blesses the LORD

[12][†][y]Then Solomon said, “The LORD [1] has said that he would dwell [z]in thick darkness. [13][a]I have indeed built you an exalted house, [b]a place for you to dwell in forever.” [14]Then the king turned around and [c]blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood. [15]And he said, [d]“Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled [e]what he promised with his mouth to David my father, saying, [16][f]‘Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, [g]that my name might be there. [h]But I chose David to be over my people Israel.’ [17][†][i]Now it was in the heart of David my father to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. [18]But the LORD said to David my father, ‘Whereas it was in your heart to build a house for my name, you did well that it was in your heart. [19][j]Nevertheless, you shall not build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.’ [20]Now the LORD has fulfilled his promise that he made. For I have risen in the place of David my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, [k]as the LORD promised, and I have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. [21]And there I have provided a place for the ark, [l]in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt."

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

[22][†]Then Solomon [m]stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the assembly of Israel and [n]spread out his hands toward heaven, [23]and said, "O LORD, God of Israel, [o]there is no God like you, in heaven above or on earth beneath, [p]keeping covenant and showing steadfast love to your servants who walk before you with all their heart; [24][^][†]you have kept with your servant David my father what you declared to him. [e]You spoke with your mouth, and with your hand have fulfilled it this day. [25]Now therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, keep for your servant David my father what you have promised him, saying, [q]'You shall not lack a man to sit before me on the throne of Israel, if only your sons pay close attention to their way, to walk before me as you have walked before me.' [26] [r]Now therefore, O God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you have spoken to your servant David my father.

[27][†]"But will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, [s]heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you; how much less this house that I have built! [28]Yet have regard to the prayer of your servant and to his plea, O LORD my God, listening to the cry and to the prayer that your servant prays before you this day, [29] [t]that your eyes may be open night and day toward this house, the place of which you have said, [u]'My name shall be there,' that you may listen to the prayer that your servant offers toward this place. [30][^]And listen to the plea of your servant and of your people Israel, when they pray toward this place. And listen in heaven your dwelling place, and when you hear, forgive.

[31][†]"If a man sins against his neighbor and is made to take [v]an oath and comes and swears his oath before your altar in this house, [32]then hear in heaven and act and judge your servants, [w]condemning the guilty by bringing his conduct on his own head, and vindicating the righteous by rewarding him according to his righteousness.

33[‡] [x]“When your people Israel are defeated before the enemy because they have sinned against you, and [y]if they turn again to you and acknowledge your name and pray and plead with you in this house, 34then hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your people Israel and bring them again to the land that you gave to their fathers.

35 [z]“When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, if they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sin, when you afflict them, 36then hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when [a]you teach them [b]the good way in which they should walk, and grant rain upon your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

37 [c]“If there is famine in the land, if there is pestilence or blight or mildew or locust or caterpillar, if their enemy besieges them in the land at their gates,[2] whatever plague, whatever sickness there is, 38whatever prayer, whatever plea is made by any man or by all your people Israel, each knowing the affliction of his own heart and stretching out his hands toward this house, 39then hear in heaven your dwelling place and forgive and act and render to each whose heart you know, according to all his ways ([d]for you, you only, know the hearts of all the children of mankind), 40that they may fear you [e]all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our fathers.

41[‡]“Likewise, when a foreigner, who is not of your people Israel, comes from a far country for your name’s sake 42(for they shall hear of your great name [f]and your mighty hand, and of your outstretched arm), when he comes and prays toward this house, 43hear in heaven your dwelling place and do according to all for which the foreigner calls to you, in order [g]that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and [h]fear you, as do your people Israel, and that they may know that this house that I have built is called by your name.

44[‡]“If your people go out to battle against their enemy, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to the LORD [i]toward the city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, 45then hear in heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

[46][†]“If they sin against you—[j] for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive [k] to the land of the enemy, far off or near, [47]yet [l] if they turn their heart in the land to which they have been carried captive, and repent and plead with you in the land of their captors, saying, [m] ‘We have sinned and have acted perversely and wickedly,’ [48] [n] if they repent with all their mind and with all their heart in the land of their enemies, who carried them captive, and pray to you [o] toward their land, which you gave to their fathers, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name, [49]then hear in heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause [50]and forgive your people who have sinned against you, and all their transgressions that they have committed against you, and [p] grant them compassion in the sight of those who carried them captive, that they may have compassion on them [51]([q] for they are your people, and your heritage, which you brought out of Egypt, [r] from the midst of the iron furnace). [52] [s] Let your eyes be open to the plea of your servant and to the plea of your people Israel, giving ear to them whenever they call to you. [53]For you separated them from among all the peoples of the earth to be your heritage, [t] as you declared through Moses your servant, when you brought our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord GOD.”

Solomon’s Benediction

[54][†] [u] Now as Solomon finished offering all this prayer and plea to the LORD, he arose from before the altar of the LORD, where he had [v] knelt with hands outstretched toward heaven. [55]And he stood and [w] blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice, saying, [56]“Blessed be the LORD who has given rest to his people Israel, according to all that he promised. [x] Not one word has failed of all his good promise, which he spoke by Moses his servant. [57]The LORD our God be with us, as he was with our fathers. [y] May he not leave us or forsake us, [58]that he may [z] incline our hearts to him, to walk in all his ways and to keep his commandments, his statutes, and his rules, which he commanded our fathers. [59]Let these words of mine, with which I have pleaded before the LORD, be near to the LORD our God day and night, and may he maintain the cause of his servant and the cause of his people Israel, as each day requires, [60]that [a] all the peoples of the earth may know that [b] the LORD is God; there is no other. [61] [c] Let your heart therefore be wholly true to the LORD our God, walking in his statutes and keeping his commandments, as at this day.”

Solomon’s Sacrifices

[62][‡] [d] Then [e] the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the LORD. [63]Solomon offered as peace offerings to the LORD 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep. So the king and all the people of Israel dedicated the house of the LORD. [64]The same day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD, for there he offered the burnt offering and the grain offering and the fat pieces of the peace offerings, because [f] the bronze altar that was before the LORD was too small to receive the burnt offering and the grain offering and the fat pieces of the peace offerings.

[65][‡]So Solomon held [g] the feast at that time, and all Israel with him, a great assembly, from [h] Lebo-hamath to [i] the Brook of Egypt, before the LORD our God, seven days. [3] [66]On the eighth day he sent the people away, and they blessed the king and went to their homes joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the LORD had shown to David his servant and to Israel his people.

The LORD Appears to Solomon

1 KINGS 9 [j] As soon as Solomon had finished building the house of the LORD [k] and the king’s house and [l] all that Solomon desired to build, [2][‡] [m] the LORD appeared to Solomon a second time, as he had appeared to him at Gibeon. [3]And the LORD said to him, “I have heard your prayer and your plea, which you have made before me. I have consecrated this house that you have built, [n] by putting my name there forever. [o] My eyes and my heart will be there for all time. [4][‡]And as for you, if you will [p] walk before me, [q] as David your father walked, with integrity of heart and uprightness, doing according to all that I have commanded you, and keeping my statutes and my rules, [5] [r] then I will establish your royal throne over Israel forever, as I promised David your father, saying, ‘You shall not lack a man on the throne of Israel.’ 6[‡] [s] But if you turn aside from following me, you or your children, and do not keep my commandments and my statutes that I have set before you, but go and serve other gods and worship them, 7[‡] [t] then I will cut off Israel from the land that I have given them, [u] and the house that I have consecrated for my name I will cast out of my sight, [v] and Israel will become a proverb and a byword among all peoples. 8[^]And this house will become a heap of ruins. [1] Everyone passing by it will be astonished and will hiss, and they will say, [w] ‘Why has the LORD done thus to this land and to this house?’ 9Then they will say, ‘Because [x] they abandoned the LORD their God who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt and laid hold on other gods and worshiped them and served them. Therefore the LORD has brought all this disaster on them.’”

Solomon’s Other Acts

10[‡] [y] At the end of [z] twenty years, in which Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD and the king’s house, 11[‡]and Hiram king of Tyre had supplied Solomon with cedar and cypress timber and gold, as much as he desired, King Solomon gave to Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. 12But when Hiram came from Tyre to see the cities that Solomon had given him, they did not please him. 13[‡]Therefore he said, “What kind of cities are these that you have given me, my brother?” So they are called the land of [a] Cabul to this day. 14[‡]Hiram had sent to the king 120 talents [2] of gold.

15[‡]And this is the account of [b] the forced labor that King Solomon drafted to build the house of the LORD and his own house and [c] the Millo and the wall of Jerusalem and [d] Hazor and [e] Megiddo and Gezer 16(Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and captured Gezer and burned it with fire, and had killed [f] the Canaanites who lived in the city, and had given it as dowry to [g] his daughter, Solomon’s wife; 17[‡]so Solomon rebuilt Gezer) and [h] Lower Beth-horon 18and Baalath and Tamar in the wilderness, in the land of Judah, [3] 19and all the store cities that Solomon had, and [i] the cities for his chariots, and the cities for [j] his horsemen, and whatever Solomon [k] desired to build in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. 20All the people who were left of the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of the people of Israel— 21 [l] their descendants who were left after them in the land, [m] whom the people of Israel were unable to devote to destruction [4]— [n] these Solomon drafted to be [o] slaves, and so they are to this day. 22But [p] of the people of Israel Solomon made no slaves. They were the soldiers, they were his officials, his commanders, his captains, his chariot commanders and his horsemen.

23These were the chief officers who were over Solomon's work: [q] 550 [r] who had charge of the people who carried on the work.

24But [g] Pharaoh's daughter went up from the city of David to [s] her own house that Solomon had built for her. [t] Then he built [u] the Millo.

25Three times a year Solomon used to offer up burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar that he built to the LORD, making offerings with it [5] before the LORD. So he finished the house.

26[†]King Solomon built a fleet of ships at [v] Ezion-geber, which is near Eloth on the shore of the Red Sea, in the land of Edom. 27And Hiram sent [w] with the fleet his servants, seamen who were familiar with the sea, together with the servants of Solomon. 28And they went to [x] Ophir and brought from there gold, 420 talents, and they brought it to King Solomon.

The Queen of Sheba

1 KINGS 10 [†] [y] Now when [z] the queen of [a] Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the LORD, she came [b] to test him with hard questions. 2She came to Jerusalem with a very great retinue, with camels [c] bearing spices and very much gold and precious stones. And when she came to Solomon, she told him all that was on her mind. 3[†]And Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing hidden from the king that he could not explain to her. 4And when the queen of Sheba had seen all the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, 5the food of his table, the seating of his officials, and the attendance of his servants, their clothing, his cupbearers, and his burnt offerings that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more breath in her.

6And she said to the king, "The report was true that I heard in my own land of your words and of your wisdom, 7but I did not believe the reports until I came and my own eyes had seen it. And behold, the half was not told me. Your wisdom and prosperity surpass the report that I heard. [8][†] [e] Happy are your men! Happy are your servants, who continually stand before you and hear your wisdom! [9] [f] Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on the throne of Israel! [g] Because the LORD loved Israel forever, he has made you king, [h] that you may execute justice and righteousness." [10][†] [i] Then she gave the king 120 talents [1] of gold, and a very great quantity of spices and precious stones. Never again came such an abundance of spices as these that the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

[11]Moreover, [j] the fleet of Hiram, which brought [k] gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir a very great amount of almug wood and precious stones. [12]And the king made of the almug wood supports for the house of the LORD and for the king's house, also lyres and harps for the singers. No such almug wood has come or been seen to this day.

[13]And King Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba all that she desired, whatever she asked besides what was given her by the bounty of King Solomon. So she turned and went back to her own land with her servants.

Solomon's Great Wealth

[14][†] [l] Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was 666 talents of gold, [15]besides that which came from the explorers and from the business of the merchants, and from all the kings of the west and from the governors of the land. [16]King Solomon made 200 large shields of beaten gold; 600 shekels [2] of gold went into each shield. [17]And he made 300 [m] shields of beaten gold; three minas [3] of gold went into each shield. And the king put them in [n] the House of the Forest of Lebanon. [18]The king also made a great ivory throne and overlaid it with the finest gold. [19]The throne had six steps, and the throne had a round top, [4] and on each side of the seat were armrests and two lions standing beside the armrests, [20]while twelve lions stood there, one on each end of a step on the six steps. The like of it was never made in any kingdom. [21]All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of [n] the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold. None were of silver; silver was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon. [22]For the king had [o] a fleet of ships of Tarshish at sea with the fleet of Hiram. Once every three years the fleet of ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. [5]

[23] [p] Thus King Solomon excelled all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom. [24]And the whole earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his mind. [25]Every one of them brought his present, articles of silver and gold, garments, myrrh, spices, horses, and mules, so much year by year.

[26][†] [q] And Solomon gathered together [r] chariots and horsemen. He had 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, whom he stationed in the [s] chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. [27]And the king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stone, and he made cedar as plentiful as [t] the sycamore of the Shephelah. [28]And Solomon's [u] import of horses was from Egypt and Kue, and the king's traders received them from Kue at a price. [29]A chariot could be imported from Egypt for 600 shekels of silver and a horse for 150, and so through the king's traders they were exported to all the kings of [v] the Hittites and the kings of Syria.

Solomon Turns from the Lord

1 KINGS 11 [†]Now [w]King Solomon loved many foreign women, along with the daughter of Pharaoh: Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite women, [2][^]from the nations concerning which the Lord had said to the people of Israel, [x]"You shall not enter into marriage with them, neither shall they with you, for surely they will turn away your heart after their gods." Solomon clung to these in love. [3]He had 700 wives, who were princesses, and 300 concubines. And his wives turned away his heart. [4]For when Solomon was old his wives turned away his heart after other gods, and [y]his heart was not wholly true to the Lord his God, [z]as was the heart of David his father. [5][†]For Solomon went after [a]Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, and after [b]Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. [6][†]So Solomon did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and did not wholly follow the Lord, as David his father had done. [7][†]Then Solomon built a high place for [c]Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for [d]Molech the abomination of the Ammonites, on the mountain east of Jerusalem. [8]And so he did for all his foreign wives, who made offerings and sacrificed to their gods.

The Lord Raises Adversaries

[9][†]And the Lord was angry with Solomon, because [e]his heart had turned away from the Lord, the God of Israel, [f]who had appeared to him twice [10]and [g]had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods. But he did not keep what the Lord commanded. [11]Therefore the Lord said to Solomon, "Since this has been your practice and you have not kept my covenant and my statutes that I have commanded you, [h]I will surely tear the kingdom from you and will give it to your servant. [12]Yet for the sake of David your father I will not do it in your days, but I will tear it out of the hand of your son. [13]However, [i]I will not tear away all the kingdom, but [j]I will give one tribe to your son, for the sake of David my servant and for the sake of Jerusalem [k]that I have chosen."

[14][†]And the LORD raised up an adversary against Solomon, Hadad the Edomite. He was of the royal house in Edom. [15]For [l] when David was in Edom, and Joab the commander of the army went up to bury the slain, he struck down every male in Edom [16](for Joab and all Israel remained there six months, until he had cut off every male in Edom). [17]But Hadad fled to Egypt, together with certain Edomites of his father's servants, Hadad still being a little child. [18]They set out from Midian and came to [m] Paran and took men with them from Paran and came to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, who gave him a house and assigned him an allowance of food and gave him land. [19]And Hadad found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him in marriage the sister of his own wife, the sister of Tahpenes the queen. [20]And the sister of Tahpenes bore him Genubath his son, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house. And Genubath was in Pharaoh's house among the sons of Pharaoh. [21]But when Hadad heard in Egypt [n] that David slept with his fathers and that Joab the commander of the army was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, "Let me depart, that I may go to my own country." [22]But Pharaoh said to him, "What have you lacked with me that you are now seeking to go to your own country?" And he said to him, "Only let me depart."

[23]God also raised up as an adversary to him, Rezon the son of Eliada, who had fled from his master [o] Hadadezer king of Zobah. [24]And he gathered men about him and became leader of a marauding band, [p] after the killing by David. And they went to Damascus and lived there and made him king in Damascus. [25]He was an adversary of Israel all the days of Solomon, doing harm as Hadad did. And he loathed Israel and reigned over Syria.

[26][†] [q] Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [r] an Ephraimite of Zeredah, a servant of Solomon, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow, also [s] lifted up his hand against the king. [27]And this was the reason why he lifted up his hand against the king. [t] Solomon built the Millo, and closed up the breach of the city of David his father. [28]The man Jeroboam was very able, and when Solomon saw that the young man was industrious he gave him charge over all the forced labor of the house of Joseph. [29]And at that time, when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, the prophet [u] Ahijah the Shilonite found him on the road. Now Ahijah had dressed himself in a new garment, and the two of them were alone in the open country. [30]Then Ahijah laid hold of the new garment that was on him, [v] and tore it into twelve pieces. 31 And he said to Jeroboam, “Take for yourself ten pieces, for thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, ‘Behold, [w] I am about to tear the kingdom from the hand of Solomon and will give you ten tribes 32 (but [x] he shall have one tribe, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, [y] the city that I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel), 33 because they have [1] forsaken me [z] and worshiped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of Moab, and Milcom the god of the Ammonites, and they have not walked in my ways, doing what is right in my sight and keeping my statutes and my rules, as David his father did. 34 [†]Nevertheless, I will not take the whole kingdom out of his hand, but I will make him ruler all the days of his life, for the sake of David my servant whom I chose, who kept my commandments and my statutes. 35 [a] But I will take the kingdom out of his son’s hand and will give it to you, ten tribes. 36 Yet to his son [x] I will give one tribe, that David my servant may always have [b] a lamp before me in Jerusalem, [y] the city where I have chosen to put my name. 37 And I will take you, and you shall reign over all that your soul desires, and you shall be king over Israel. 38 And if you will listen to all that I command you, and will walk in my ways, and do what is right in my eyes by keeping my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did, [c] I will be with you and [d] will build you a sure house, as I built for David, and I will give Israel to you. 39 And I will afflict the offspring of David because of this, but not forever.’” 40 Solomon sought therefore to kill Jeroboam. But Jeroboam arose and fled into Egypt, to [e] Shishak king of Egypt, and was in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

41 [f] Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the Book of the Acts of Solomon? 42 And the time that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years. 43 [†]And Solomon [g] slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David his father. And [h] Rehoboam his son reigned in his place.

Rehoboam’s Folly

1 KINGS 12 [†] [i] Rehoboam went to [j] Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. 2 And as soon as [k] Jeroboam the son of Nebat heard of it (for [l]he was still in Egypt, where he had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned from [1] Egypt. [3]And they sent and called him, and Jeroboam and all the assembly of Israel came and said to Rehoboam, [4][†] [m]“Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke on us, and we will serve you.” [5]He said to them, [n]“Go away for three days, then come again to me.” So the people went away.

[12]So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king said, [o]“Come to me again the third day.” [13]And the king answered the people harshly, and forsaking the counsel that the old men had given him, [14][†]he spoke to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying, [m]“My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.” [15][^][†]So the king did not listen to the people, for [p]it was a turn of affairs brought about by the LORD that he might fulfill his word, which [q]the LORD spoke by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

The Kingdom Divided

16[†]And when all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, the people answered the king, "What portion do we have in David? We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse. [r]To your tents, O Israel! Look now to your own house, David." So Israel went to their tents. 17But Rehoboam reigned over [s]the people of Israel who lived in the cities of Judah. 18[†]Then King Rehoboam sent [t]Adoram, who was taskmaster over the forced labor, and all Israel stoned him to death with stones. And King Rehoboam hurried to mount his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. 19 [u]So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day. 20And when all Israel heard that Jeroboam had returned, they sent and called him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel. There was none that followed the house of David but [v]the tribe of Judah only.

21 [w]When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin, 180,000 chosen warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam the son of Solomon. 22But the word of God came to [x]Shemaiah the man of God: 23"Say to Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the [y]rest of the people, 24[†]'Thus says the LORD, You shall not go up or fight against your relatives the people of Israel. Every man return to his home, [z]for this thing is from me.'" So they listened to the word of the LORD and went home again, according to the word of the LORD.

Jeroboam's Golden Calves

25[†]Then Jeroboam [a]built Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim and lived there. And he went out from there and [b]built Penuel. 26And Jeroboam said in his heart, "Now the kingdom will turn back to the house of David. 27[†]If this people [c]go up to offer sacrifices in the temple of the LORD at Jerusalem, then the heart of this people will turn again to their lord, to Rehoboam king of Judah, and they will kill me and return to Rehoboam king of Judah." 28So the king took counsel and [d]made two calves of gold. And he said to the people, "You have gone up to Jerusalem long enough. [e]Behold your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt."

[29][†]And he set one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan. [30]Then [f] this thing became a sin, for the people went as far as Dan to be before one. [2] [31]He also made [g] temples on high places and [h] appointed priests from among all the people, who were not of the Levites. [32]And Jeroboam appointed a feast on the fifteenth day of the eighth month like [i] the feast that was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices on the altar. So he did in Bethel, sacrificing to the calves that he made. And he placed in Bethel [j] the priests of the high places that he had made. [33]He went up to the altar that he had made in Bethel on the fifteenth day in the eighth month, in the month that he had devised from his own heart. And he instituted a feast for the people of Israel and went up to the altar [k] to make offerings.

A Man of God Confronts Jeroboam

1 KINGS 13 [†]And behold, [l] a man of God came out of Judah by the word of the LORD to Bethel. Jeroboam was standing by the altar [m] to make offerings. [2][^][†] [n] And the man cried against the altar by the word of the LORD and said, "O altar, altar, thus says the LORD: 'Behold, a son shall be born to the house of David, [o] Josiah by name, and he shall sacrifice on you the priests of the high places who make offerings on you, and human bones shall be burned on you.'" [3][†]And he gave [p] a sign the same day, saying,
"This is the sign that the LORD has spoken: 'Behold, the altar shall be torn down, and the ashes that are on it shall be poured out.'" [4]And when the king heard the saying of the man of God, which he cried against the altar at Bethel, Jeroboam stretched out his hand from the altar, saying, "Seize him."
And his hand, which he stretched out against him, dried up, so that he could not draw it back to himself. [5]The altar also was torn down, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of the LORD. [6]And the king said to the man of God, [q] "Entreat now the favor of the LORD your God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me." And the man of God entreated the LORD, and the king's hand was restored to him and became as it was before. [7][†]And the king said to the man of God, "Come home with me, and refresh yourself, and [r] I will give you a reward." [8]And the man of God said to the king, [s] "If you give me half your house, [t] I will not go in with you. And I will not eat bread or drink water in this place, 9for so was it commanded me by the word of the LORD, saying, ‘You shall neither eat bread nor drink water nor return by the way that you came.’” 10So he went another way and did not return by the way that he came to Bethel.

The Prophet’s Disobedience

11Now [u] an old prophet lived in Bethel. And his sons [1] came and told him all that the man of God had done that day in Bethel. They also told to their father the words that he had spoken to the king. 12And their father said to them, “Which way did he go?” And his sons showed him the way that the man of God who came from Judah had gone. 13And he said to his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” So they saddled the donkey for him and he mounted it. 14And he went after the man of God and found him sitting under an oak. And he said to him, “Are you the man of God who came from Judah?” And he said, “I am.” 15Then he said to him, “Come home with me and eat bread.” 16And he said, [v] “I may not return with you, or go in with you, neither will I eat bread nor drink water with you in this place, 17for it was said to me [w] by the word of the LORD, ‘You shall neither eat bread nor drink water there, nor return by the way that you came.’” 18And he said to him, “I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD, saying, ‘Bring him back with you into your house that he may eat bread and drink water.’” But he lied to him. 19So he went back with him and ate bread in his house and drank water.

20And as they sat at the table, the word of the LORD came to the prophet who had brought him back. 21And he cried to the man of God who came from Judah, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Because you have disobeyed the word of the LORD and have not kept the command that the LORD your God commanded you, 22but have come back and have eaten bread and drunk water in the place of which he said to you, “Eat no bread and drink no water,” your body shall not come to the tomb of your fathers.’” 23And after he had eaten bread and drunk, he saddled the donkey for the prophet whom he had brought back. 24And as he went away [x] a lion met him on the road and killed him. And his body was thrown in the road, and the donkey stood beside it; the lion also stood beside the body. 25And behold, men passed by and saw the body thrown in the road and the lion standing by the body. And they came and told it in the city where [y] the old prophet lived.

[26]And when the prophet who had brought him back from the way heard of it, he said, "It is the man of God who disobeyed the word of the LORD; therefore the LORD has given him to the lion, which has torn him and killed him, according to the word that the LORD spoke to him." [27]And he said to his sons, "Saddle the donkey for me." And they saddled it. [28]And he went and found his body thrown in the road, and the donkey and the lion standing beside the body. The lion had not eaten the body or torn the donkey. [29]And the prophet took up the body of the man of God and laid it on the donkey and brought it back to the city [2] to mourn and to bury him. [30]And he laid the body in his own grave. And they mourned over him, saying, [z] "Alas, my brother!" [31]And after he had buried him, he said to his sons, "When I die, bury me in the grave in which the man of God is buried; [a] lay my bones beside his bones. [32] [b] For the saying that he called out by the word of the LORD against the altar in Bethel and against [c] all the houses of the high places that are in the cities of [d] Samaria shall surely come to pass."

[33][†]After this thing Jeroboam did not turn from his evil way, but made priests for the high places again from among all the people. Any who would, he ordained to be priests of the high places. [34][^] [e] And this thing became sin to the house of Jeroboam, [f] so as to cut it off and to destroy it from the face of the earth.

Prophecy Against Jeroboam

1 KINGS 14 [†]At that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam fell sick. [2][†]And Jeroboam said to his wife, "Arise, and disguise yourself, that it not be known that you are the wife of Jeroboam, and go to [g] Shiloh. Behold, Ahijah the prophet is there, [h] who said of me that I should be king over this people. [3] [i] Take with you ten loaves, some cakes, and a jar of honey, and go to him. He will tell you what shall happen to the child."

[4]Jeroboam's wife did so. She arose and went to [g] Shiloh and came to the house of [j] Ahijah. Now [j] Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were dim because of his age. [5]And the LORD said to [j] Ahijah, "Behold, the wife of Jeroboam is coming to inquire of you concerning her son, for he is sick.

Thus and thus shall you say to her."
When she came, she pretended to be another woman. [6][†]But when [j] Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, he said,
"Come in, wife of Jeroboam. Why do you pretend to be another? For I am charged with unbearable news for you. [7]Go, tell Jeroboam, 'Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: [k]"Because I exalted you from among the people and made you leader over my people Israel [8]and [l]tore the kingdom away from the house of David and gave it to you, and yet you have not been [m]like my servant David, who kept my commandments and followed me with all his heart, doing only that which was right in my eyes, [9]but you have done evil above all who were before you and have gone and [n]made for yourself other gods and [o]metal images, provoking me to anger, and [p]have cast me behind your back, [10][^][†]therefore behold, I will bring harm upon the house of Jeroboam and [q]will cut off from Jeroboam every male, [r]both bond and free in Israel, and [s]will burn up the house of Jeroboam, as a man burns up dung until it is all gone. [11][†] [t]Anyone belonging to Jeroboam who dies in the city the dogs shall eat, and anyone who dies in the open country the birds of the heavens shall eat, for the LORD has spoken it."' [12]Arise therefore, go to your house. [u]When your feet enter the city, the child shall die. [13]And all Israel shall mourn for him and bury him, for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him [v]there is found something pleasing to the LORD, the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam. [14] [w]Moreover, the LORD will raise up for himself a king over Israel who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam today. And henceforth, [15][†]the LORD will strike Israel as a reed is shaken in the water, and [x]root up Israel out of [y]this good land that he gave to their fathers and scatter them [z]beyond the Euphrates, [1] because they have made their [a]Asherim, provoking the LORD to anger. [16]And he will give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, which he sinned and made Israel to sin."

[17][†]Then Jeroboam's wife arose and departed and came to [b]Tirzah. And [c]as she came to the threshold of the house, the child died. [18]And all Israel buried him and mourned for him, [d]according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant Ahijah the prophet.

The Death of Jeroboam

[19][†]Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, [e]how he warred and how he reigned, behold, they are written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. [20]And the time that Jeroboam reigned was twenty-two years. And he slept with his fathers, and Nadab his son reigned in his place.

Rehoboam Reigns in Judah

[21][†][f]Now Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, [g]the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. [h]His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. [22][^][†][i]And Judah did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and they [j]provoked him to jealousy with their sins that they committed, more than all that their fathers had done. [23][†]For they also built for themselves [k]high places [l]and pillars and [m]Asherim on every high hill and [n]under every green tree, [24][†]and there were also [o]male cult prostitutes in the land. They did according to all the abominations of the nations that the LORD drove out before the people of Israel.

[25][†][p]In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. [26]He took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house. [q]He took away everything. He also took away all the shields of gold [r]that Solomon had made, [27]and King Rehoboam made in their place shields of bronze, and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house. [28]And as often as the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard carried them and brought them back to the guardroom.

[29][†][s]Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [30][t]And there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continually. [31]And Rehoboam slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. [u]His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. And [v]Abijam his son reigned in his place.

Abijam Reigns in Judah

1 KINGS 15 [†] [w] Now in the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam the son of Nebat, Abijam began to reign over Judah. [2][†]He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacah the daughter of Abishalom. [3]And he walked in all the sins that his father did before him, and [x] his heart was not wholly true to the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father. [4][^][†]Nevertheless, for David's sake the LORD his God gave him [y] a lamp in Jerusalem, setting up his son after him, and establishing Jerusalem, [5][†]because [z] David did what was right in the eyes of the LORD and did not turn aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life, [a] except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite. [6][†] [b] Now there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of his life. [7] [c] The rest of the acts of Abijam and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [d] And there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam. [8] [e] And Abijam slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David. And Asa his son reigned in his place.

Asa Reigns in Judah

[9]In the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel, Asa began to reign over Judah, [10][†]and he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacah the daughter of Abishalom. [11] [f] And Asa did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, as David his father had done. [12][†]He put away the [g] male cult prostitutes out of the land and removed [h] all the idols that his fathers had made. [13][†] [i] He also removed Maacah his mother from being queen mother because she had made an abominable image for Asherah. And Asa cut down her image and [j] burned it at the brook Kidron. [14][†] [k] But the high places were not taken away. Nevertheless, [l] the heart of Asa was wholly true to the LORD all his days. [15]And [m] he brought into the house of the LORD the sacred gifts of his father and his own sacred gifts, silver, and gold, and vessels.

[16] [n] And there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days. [17][†] [o] Baasha king of Israel went up against Judah and [p] built Ramah, [q] that he might permit no one to go out or come in to Asa king of Judah. [18][^][†]Then Asa took all the silver and the gold [r] that were left in the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house and gave them into the hands of his servants. [s]And King Asa sent them to Ben-hadad the son of Tabrimmon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, [t]who lived in Damascus, saying, [19]"Let there be [u]a covenant [1] between me and you, as there was between my father and your father. Behold, I am sending to you a present of silver and gold. Go, break your covenant with Baasha king of Israel, that he may withdraw from me." [20]And Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel and conquered [v]Ijon, [w]Dan, [x]Abel-beth-maacah, and all [y]Chinneroth, with all the land of Naphtali. [21]And when Baasha heard of it, [z]he stopped building Ramah, and he lived in [a]Tirzah. [22]Then King Asa made a proclamation to all Judah, none was exempt, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha had been building, and with them King Asa built [b]Geba of Benjamin and [c]Mizpah. [23][†] [d]Now the rest of all the acts of Asa, all his might, and all that he did, and the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? But in his old age he was diseased in his feet. [24]And Asa slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father, and [e]Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his place.

Nadab Reigns in Israel

[25][†] [f]Nadab the son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and he reigned over Israel two years. [26]He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD [g]and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin [h]which he made Israel to sin.

[27] [i]Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him. And Baasha struck him down at [j]Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israel were laying siege to Gibbethon. [28]So Baasha killed him in the third year of Asa king of Judah and reigned in his place. [29][^][†]And as soon as he was king, he killed all the house of Jeroboam. He left to the house of Jeroboam not one that breathed, until he had destroyed it, [k]according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite. [30]It was for the sins of Jeroboam that he sinned and [h] that he made Israel to sin, and because of the anger to which he provoked the LORD, the God of Israel.

[31][‡]Now the rest of the acts of Nadab and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [32] [l] And there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

Baasha Reigns in Israel

[33]In the third year of Asa king of Judah, Baasha the son of Ahijah began to reign over all Israel at Tirzah, and he reigned twenty-four years. [34]He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD [m] and walked in the way of Jeroboam and in his sin which he made Israel to sin.

1 KINGS 16 [‡]And the word of the LORD came to [n] Jehu the son of [o] Hanani against Baasha, saying, [2]“Since I [p] exalted you out of the dust and made you leader over my people Israel, and [q] you have walked in the way of Jeroboam and have made my people Israel to sin, provoking me to anger with their sins, [3][^]behold, I will utterly [r] sweep away [s] Baasha and his house, and I will make your house [t] like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat. [4] [u] Anyone belonging to Baasha who dies in the city the dogs shall eat, and anyone of his who dies in the field the birds of the heavens shall eat.”

[5]Now the rest of the acts of Baasha and what he did, and his might, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [6]And Baasha slept with his fathers and was buried at [v] Tirzah, and Elah his son reigned in his place. [7]Moreover, the word of the LORD came by the prophet [n] Jehu the son of Hanani against Baasha and his house, both because of all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam, and also because [w] he destroyed it.

Elah Reigns in Israel

[8]In the twenty-sixth year of Asa king of Judah, Elah the son of Baasha began to reign over Israel in Tirzah, and he reigned two years. [9]But his servant [x] Zimri, commander of half his chariots, conspired against him.

When he was at Tirzah, drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza, [y]who was over the household in Tirzah, [10]Zimri came in and struck him down and killed him, in the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned in his place.

[11][‡]When he began to reign, as soon as he had seated himself on his throne, he struck down [z]all the house of Baasha. He [a]did not leave him a single male of his relatives or his friends. [12]Thus Zimri destroyed all the house of Baasha, [b]according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke against Baasha by [n]Jehu the prophet, [13]for all the sins of Baasha and the sins of Elah his son, which they sinned and which they made Israel to sin, [c]provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their idols. [14][‡]Now the rest of the acts of Elah and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel?

Zimri Reigns in Israel

[15]In the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, Zimri reigned seven days in Tirzah. Now the troops were encamped against [d]Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines, [16]and the troops who were encamped heard it said, “Zimri has conspired, and he has killed the king.” Therefore all Israel made Omri, the commander of the army, king over Israel that day in the camp. [17][‡]So Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah. [18]And when Zimri saw that the city was taken, he went into the citadel of the king’s house and burned the king’s house over him with fire and died, [19]because of his sins that he committed, doing evil in the sight of the LORD, [e]walking in the way of Jeroboam, and for his sin which he committed, making Israel to sin. [20]Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and the conspiracy that he made, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel?

Omri Reigns in Israel

[21]Then the people of Israel were divided into two parts. Half of the people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri. [22]But the people who followed Omri overcame the people who followed Tibni the son of Ginath. So Tibni died, and Omri became king.

[23]In the thirty-first year of Asa king of Judah, Omri began to reign over Israel, and he reigned for twelve years; six years he reigned in Tirzah.
[24][†]He bought the hill of [f]Samaria from Shemer for two talents [1] of silver, and he fortified the hill and called the name of the city that he built [g]Samaria, after the name of Shemer, the owner of the hill.

[25] [h]Omri did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and did more evil
[i]than all who were before him. [26]For [e]he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in the sins that he made Israel to sin, [j]provoking the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger by their idols. [27]Now the rest of the acts of Omri that he did, and the might that he showed, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [28]And Omri slept with his fathers and was buried in Samaria, and Ahab his son reigned in his place.

Ahab Reigns in Israel

[29]In the thirty-eighth year of Asa king of Judah, Ahab the son of Omri began to reign over Israel, and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. [30]And Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD, [k]more than all who were before him. [31][†]And as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [l]he took for his wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal king of the [m]Sidonians, [n]and went and served Baal and worshiped him. [32]He erected an altar for Baal in [o]the house of Baal, which he built in Samaria. [33]And Ahab made an [p]Asherah. Ahab did more to provoke the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger [k]than all the kings of Israel who were before him. [34][†][q]In his days Hiel of Bethel built [r]Jericho. He laid its foundation at the cost of Abiram his firstborn, and set up its gates at the cost of his youngest son Segub, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by Joshua the son of Nun.

Elijah Predicts a Drought

1 KINGS 17 [†]Now Elijah the Tishbite, of [s]Tishbe [1] in Gilead, said to Ahab, [t]“As the LORD, the God of Israel, lives, [u]before whom I stand, [v]there shall be neither dew nor rain these years, except by my word.” [2]And the word of the LORD came to him: [3]"Depart from here and turn eastward and hide yourself by the brook Cherith, which is east of the Jordan. [4]You shall drink from the brook, and I have commanded the ravens to feed you there." [5][†]So he went and did according to the word of the LORD. He went and lived by the brook Cherith that is east of the Jordan. [6][†]And the ravens brought him bread and meat in the morning, and bread and meat in the evening, and he drank from the brook. [7]And after a while the brook dried up, because there was no rain in the land.

The Widow of Zarephath

[8]Then the word of the LORD came to him, [9][†]"Arise, go to [w] Zarephath, which belongs to Sidon, and dwell there. Behold, I have commanded a widow there to feed you." [10]So he arose and went to [w] Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, a widow was there [x] gathering sticks. And he called to her and said, "Bring me a little water in a vessel, that I may drink." [11]And as she was going to bring it, he called to her and said, "Bring me a morsel of bread in your hand." [12]And she said, [t] "As the LORD your God lives, I have nothing baked, only a handful of flour in a jar and a little oil in a jug. And now I am gathering a couple of sticks that I may go in and prepare it for myself and my son, that we may eat it and die." [13][†]And Elijah said to her, "Do not fear; go and do as you have said. But first make me a little cake of it and bring it to me, and afterward make something for yourself and your son. [14][^]For thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, 'The jar of flour shall not be spent, and the jug of oil shall not be empty, until the day that the LORD sends rain upon the earth.'" [15][†]And she went and did as Elijah said. And she and he and her household ate for many days. [16]The jar of flour was not spent, neither did the jug of oil become empty, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by Elijah.

Elijah Raises the Widow's Son

[17]After this the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, became ill. And his illness was so severe that there was no breath left in him. [18][†]And she said to Elijah, [y] "What have you against me, O [z] man of God? You have come to me to bring my sin to remembrance and to cause the death of my son!” [19]And he said to her, “Give me your son.” And he took him from her arms and carried him up into the upper chamber where he lodged, and laid him on his own bed. [20]And he cried to the LORD, “O LORD my God, have you brought calamity even upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by killing her son?” [21][^][†] [a] Then he stretched himself upon the child three times and cried to the LORD, “O LORD my God, let this child’s life [2] come into him again.” [22]And the LORD listened to the voice of Elijah. And the life of the child came into him again, and [b] he revived. [23]And Elijah took the child and brought him down from the upper chamber into the house and delivered him to his mother. And Elijah said, “See, your son lives.” [24]And the woman said to Elijah, [c] “Now I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in your mouth is truth.”

Elijah Confronts Ahab

1 KINGS 18 [†] [d] After many days the word of the LORD came to Elijah, in the third year, saying, “Go, show yourself to Ahab, and I will send rain upon the earth.” [2]So Elijah went to show himself to Ahab. Now the famine was severe in Samaria. [3]And Ahab called Obadiah, who was [e] over the household. (Now Obadiah feared the LORD greatly, [4]and [f] when Jezebel cut off the prophets of the LORD, Obadiah took a hundred prophets and hid them by fifties in a cave and fed them with bread and water.) [5]And Ahab said to Obadiah, “Go through the land to all the springs of water and to all the valleys. Perhaps we may find grass and save the horses and mules alive, and not lose some of the animals.” [6]So they divided the land between them to pass through it. Ahab went in one direction by himself, and Obadiah went in another direction by himself.

[7]And as Obadiah was on the way, behold, Elijah met him. And Obadiah recognized him and fell on his face and said, “Is it you, my lord Elijah?” [8]And he answered him, “It is I. Go, tell your lord, ‘Behold, Elijah is here.’” [9]And he said, “How have I sinned, that you would give your servant into the hand of Ahab, to kill me? [10] [g] As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my lord has not sent to seek you. And when they would say, ‘He is not here,’ he would take an oath of the kingdom or nation, that they had not found you. [11]And now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord, “Behold, Elijah is here.”’ [12]And as soon as I have gone from you, [h]the Spirit of the LORD will carry you I know not where. And so, when I come and tell Ahab and he cannot find you, he will kill me, although I your servant have feared the LORD from my youth. [13]Has it not been told my lord what I did [i]when Jezebel killed the prophets of the LORD, how I hid a hundred men of the LORD’s prophets by fifties in a cave and fed them with bread and water? [14]And now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord, “Behold, Elijah is here”’; and he will kill me.” [15]And Elijah said, [g]“As the LORD of hosts lives, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself to him today.” [16]So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him. And Ahab went to meet Elijah.

[17][†]When Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, [j]“Is it you, you [k]troubler of Israel?” [18]And he answered, “I have not troubled Israel, but you have, and your father’s house, because you have [l]abandoned the commandments of the LORD and [m]followed the Baals. [19]Now therefore send and gather all Israel to me at Mount [n]Carmel, and the [o]450 prophets of Baal and [p]the 400 prophets of Asherah, [q]who eat at Jezebel’s table.”

The Prophets of Baal Defeated

[20][†]So Ahab sent to all the people of Israel and gathered the prophets together at Mount Carmel. [21][†]And Elijah came near to all the people and said, “How long [r]will you go limping between two different opinions? [s]If the LORD is God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him.” And the people did not answer him a word. [22][†]Then Elijah said to the people, [t]“I, even I only, am left a prophet of the LORD, but Baal’s prophets are [u]450 men.
[23]Let two bulls be given to us, and let them choose one bull for themselves and cut it in pieces and lay it on the wood, but put no fire to it. And I will prepare the other bull and lay it on the wood and put no fire to it. [24][†]And you call upon the name of your god, and I will call upon the name of the LORD, and the God who [v]answers by fire, he is God.” And all the people answered, “It is well spoken.” [25]Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, “Choose for yourselves one bull and prepare it first, for you are many, and call upon the name of your god, but put no fire to it.” [26][†]And they took the bull that was given them, and they prepared it and called upon the name of Baal from morning until noon, saying, “O Baal, answer us!” But there was no voice, and no one answered. And they limped around the altar that they had made. [27][†]And at noon Elijah mocked them, saying, “Cry aloud, for he is a god. Either he is musing, or he is relieving himself, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep and must be awakened.” [28][†]And they cried aloud and [w]cut themselves after their custom with swords and lances, until the blood gushed out upon them. [29]And as midday passed, they raved on until the time of [x]the offering of the oblation, but there was no voice. No one answered; no one paid attention.

[30][†]Then Elijah said to all the people, “Come near to me.” And all the people came near to him. And he repaired the altar of the LORD that had been [y]thrown down. [31]Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD came, saying, [z]“Israel shall be your name,” [32]and with the stones he built an altar in the name of the LORD. And he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two seahs [1] of seed. [33] [a]And he put the wood in order and cut the bull in pieces and laid it on the wood. And he said, “Fill four jars with water and [b]pour it on the burnt offering and on the wood.” [34]And he said, “Do it a second time.” And they did it a second time. And he said, “Do it a third time.” And they did it a third time. [35][†]And the water ran around the altar and filled the trench also with water.

[36][†]And at the time of [c]the offering of the oblation, Elijah the prophet came near and said, “O LORD, [d]God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, let it be known this day that [e]you are God in Israel, and that I am your servant, and that [f]I have done all these things at your word. [37]Answer me, O LORD, answer me, that this people may know that you, O LORD, are God, and that you have turned their hearts back.” [38][†] [g]Then the fire of the LORD fell and consumed the burnt offering and the wood and the stones and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. [39][^]And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces and said, [h]“The LORD, he is God; the LORD, he is God.” [40]And Elijah said to them, “Seize the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape.” And they seized them. And Elijah brought them down to [i]the brook Kishon and [j]slaughtered them there.

The LORD Sends Rain

[41]And Elijah said to Ahab, “Go up, eat and drink, for there is a sound of the rushing of rain.” [42][†]So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. And Elijah went up to the top of Mount Carmel. [k]And he bowed himself down on the earth and put his face between his knees. [43]And he said to his servant, “Go up now, look toward the sea.” And he went up and looked and said, “There is nothing.” And he said, “Go again,” seven times. [44]And at the seventh time he said, “Behold, [l]a little cloud like a man’s hand is rising from the sea.”
And he said, “Go up, say to Ahab, ‘Prepare your chariot and go down, lest the rain stop you.’” [45][†]And in a little while the heavens grew black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode and went to [m]Jezreel. [46][n]And the hand of the LORD was on Elijah, [o]and he gathered up his garment and ran before Ahab to the entrance of [p]Jezreel.

Elijah Flees Jezebel

1 KINGS 19 [†]Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and how [q]he had killed all the prophets with the sword. [2][^]Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, [r]“So may the gods do to me and more also, if I do not make your life as the life of one of them by this time tomorrow.” [3][†]Then he was afraid, and he arose and ran for his life and came to [s]Beersheba, which belongs to Judah, and left his servant there.

[4]But he himself went a day’s journey into the wilderness and came and sat down under a broom tree. [t]And he asked that he might die, saying, “It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life, for I am no better than my fathers.” [5][†]And he lay down and slept under a broom tree. And behold, an angel touched him and said to him, “Arise and eat.” [6]And he looked, and behold, there was at his head a cake baked on hot stones and a jar of water.
And he ate and drank and lay down again. [7][†]And the angel of the LORD came again a second time and touched him and said, “Arise and eat, for the journey is too great for you.” [8][†]And he arose and ate and drank, and went in the strength of that food [u]forty days and forty nights to [v]Horeb, the mount of God.

The LORD Speaks to Elijah

[9]There he came to a cave and lodged in it. And behold, [w]the word of the LORD came to him, and he said to him, “What are you doing here, Elijah?” [10][†]He said, “I have been very [x]jealous for the LORD, the God of hosts. For the people of Israel have forsaken your covenant, [y]thrown down your altars, and [z]killed your prophets with the sword, [a]and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life, to take it away.” [11][†]And he said, “Go out and [b]stand on the mount before the LORD.” And behold, the LORD passed by, and [c]a great and strong wind tore the mountains and broke in pieces the rocks before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind. And after the wind [d]an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake. [12]And after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire the sound of a low whisper. [1] [13][†]And when Elijah heard it, [e]he wrapped his face in his cloak and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. And behold, [f]there came a voice to him and said, “What are you doing here, Elijah?” [14]He said, [x]“I have been very jealous for the LORD, the God of hosts. For the people of Israel have forsaken your covenant, [y]thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword, and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life, to take it away.” [15][†]And the LORD said to him, “Go, return on your way to the wilderness of Damascus. And when you arrive, you shall anoint Hazael to be king over Syria. [16][^][g]And Jehu the son of Nimshi you shall anoint to be king over Israel, and [h]Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abel-meholah you shall anoint to be prophet in your place. [17]And the one who escapes from [i]the sword of Hazael [j]shall Jehu put to death, and the one who escapes from the sword of Jehu [k]shall Elisha put to death. [18][^][l]Yet I will leave seven thousand in Israel, all the knees that have not bowed to Baal, and every mouth that has not [m]kissed him.”

The Call of Elisha

[19][†]So he departed from there and found Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was plowing with twelve yoke of oxen in front of him, and he was with the twelfth. Elijah passed by him and cast [n]his cloak upon him. [20][†]And he left the oxen and ran after Elijah and said, [o]“Let me kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow you.” And he said to him, “Go back again, for what have I done to you?” [21]And he returned from following him and took the yoke of oxen and sacrificed them and boiled their flesh [p] with the yokes of the oxen and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he arose and went after Elijah and assisted him.

Ahab’s Wars with Syria

1 KINGS 20 [†] [q] Ben-hadad the king of Syria gathered all his army together. [r] Thirty-two kings were with him, and horses and chariots. And he went up and closed in on [s] Samaria and fought against it. [2][†]And he sent messengers into the city to Ahab king of Israel and said to him, “Thus says Ben-hadad: [3]‘Your silver and your gold are mine; your best wives and children also are mine.’” [4]And the king of Israel answered, “As you say, my lord, O king, I am yours, and all that I have.” [5]The messengers came again and said, “Thus says Ben-hadad: ‘I sent to you, saying, “Deliver to me your silver and your gold, your wives and your children.” [6]Nevertheless I will send my servants to you tomorrow about this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants and lay hands on whatever pleases you and take it away.’”

[7]Then the king of Israel called all the [t] elders of the land and said, [u] “Mark, now, and see how this man is seeking trouble, for he sent to me for my wives and my children, and for my silver and my gold, and I did not refuse him.” [8]And all the elders and all the people said to him, “Do not listen or consent.” [9]So he said to the messengers of Ben-hadad, “Tell my lord the king, ‘All that you first demanded of your servant I will do, but this thing I cannot do.’” And the messengers departed and brought him word again. [10]Ben-hadad sent to him and said, [v] “The gods do so to me and more also, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people [w] who follow me.” [11][†]And the king of Israel answered, “Tell him, ‘Let not him who straps on his armor boast himself as he who takes it off.’” [12]When Ben-hadad heard this message as [x] he was drinking with the kings in the booths, he said to his men, “Take your positions.” And they took their positions against the city.

Ahab Defeats Ben-hadad

[13]And behold, a prophet came near to Ahab king of Israel and said, “Thus says the LORD, Have you seen all this great multitude? Behold, [y]I will give it into your hand this day, [z]and you shall know that I am the LORD.” [14][†]And Ahab said, “By whom?” He said, “Thus says the LORD, By the servants of the governors of the districts.” Then he said, “Who shall begin the battle?” He answered, “You.” [15]Then he mustered the servants of the governors of the districts, and they were 232. And after them he mustered all the people of Israel, seven thousand.

[16]And they went out at noon, while Ben-hadad [x]was drinking himself drunk in the booths, he and the thirty-two kings who helped him. [17]The servants of the governors of the districts went out first. And Ben-hadad sent out scouts, and they reported to him, “Men are coming out from Samaria.” [18]He said, “If they have come out for peace, take them alive. Or if they have come out for war, take them alive.”

[19]So these went out of the city, the servants of the governors of the districts and the army that followed them. [20]And each struck down his man. The Syrians fled, and Israel pursued them, but Ben-hadad king of Syria escaped on a horse with horsemen. [21]And the king of Israel went out and struck the horses and chariots, and struck the Syrians with a great blow.

[22][†]Then [a]the prophet came near to the king of Israel and said to him, “Come, strengthen yourself, and consider well what you have to do, for [b]in the spring the king of Syria will come up against you.”

[23]And the servants of the king of Syria said to him, “Their gods are gods of the hills, and so they were stronger than we. But let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. [24]And do this: remove the kings, each from his post, and put commanders in their places, [25]and muster an army like the army that you have lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot. Then we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.” And he listened to their voice and did so.

Ahab Defeats Ben-hadad Again

[26][†] [b]In the spring, Ben-hadad mustered the Syrians and went up to [c]Aphek to fight against Israel. [27]And the people of Israel were mustered and were provisioned and went against them. The people of Israel encamped before them like two little flocks of goats, but the Syrians filled the country. 28[^][†]And a [d] man of God came near and said to the king of Israel, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Because the Syrians have said, [e] “The LORD is a god of the hills but he is not a god of the valleys,” therefore [f] I will give all this great multitude into your hand, and you shall know that I am the LORD.’” 29And they encamped opposite one another seven days. Then on the seventh day the battle was joined. And the people of Israel struck down of the Syrians 100,000 foot soldiers in one day. 30And the rest fled into the city of [c] Aphek, and the wall fell upon 27,000 men who were left.

Ben-hadad also fled and entered [g] an inner chamber in the city. 31[†]And his servants said to him, “Behold now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings. Let us [h] put sackcloth around our waists and ropes on our heads and go out to the king of Israel. Perhaps he will spare your life.” 32So they [h] tied sackcloth around their waists and put ropes on their heads and went to the king of Israel and said, “Your servant Ben-hadad says, ‘Please, let me live.’” And he said, “Does he still live? He is my brother.” 33Now the men were watching for a sign, and they quickly took it up from him and said, “Yes, your brother Ben-hadad.” Then he said, “Go and bring him.” Then Ben-hadad came out to him, and he caused him to come up into the chariot. 34[†]And Ben-hadad said to him, [i] “The cities that my father took from your father I will restore, and you may establish bazaars for yourself in [j] Damascus, as my father did in Samaria.” And Ahab said, “I will let you go on these terms.” So he made a covenant with him and let him go.

A Prophet Condemns Ben-hadad’s Release

35[†]And a certain man of [k] the sons of the prophets said to his fellow [l] at the command of the LORD, “Strike me, please.” But the man refused to strike him. 36[†]Then he said to him, “Because you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, behold, as soon as you have gone from me, a lion shall strike you down.” And as soon as he had departed from him, [m] a lion met him and struck him down. 37Then he found another man and said, “Strike me, please.” And the man struck him—struck him and wounded him. 38So the prophet departed and waited for the king by the way, [n] disguising himself with a bandage over his eyes. [39][†]And as the king passed, he cried to the king and said, “Your servant went out into the midst of the battle, and behold, a soldier turned and brought a man to me and said, ‘Guard this man; if by any means he is missing, [o] your life shall be for his life, or else you shall pay a talent [1] of silver.’ [40]And as your servant was busy here and there, he was gone.” The king of Israel said to him, “So shall your judgment be; you yourself have decided it.” [41]Then he hurried to take the bandage away from his eyes, and the king of Israel recognized him as one of the prophets. [42][^]And he said to him, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Because you have let go out of your hand the man whom I had devoted to destruction, [2] therefore [o] your life shall be for his life, and your people for his people.’” [43]And the king of Israel [p] went to his house vexed and sullen and came to Samaria.

Naboth’s Vineyard

1 KINGS 21 [†]Now Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard in [q] Jezreel, beside the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. [2][†]And after this Ahab said to Naboth, [r] “Give me your vineyard, that I may have it for a vegetable garden, because it is near my house, and I will give you a better vineyard for it; or, if it seems good to you, I will give you its value in money.” [3][†]But Naboth said to Ahab, “The LORD forbid [s] that I should give you the inheritance of my fathers.” [4]And Ahab [t] went into his house vexed and sullen because of what Naboth the Jezreelite had said to him, for he had said, “I will not give you the inheritance of my fathers.” And he lay down on his bed and turned away his face and would eat no food.

[5]But Jezebel his wife came to him and said to him, “Why is your spirit so vexed that you eat no food?” [6]And he said to her, “Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite and said to him, ‘Give me your vineyard for money, or else, if it please you, I will give you another vineyard for it.’ And he answered, ‘I will not give you my vineyard.’” [7][†]And Jezebel his wife said to him, “Do you now govern Israel? Arise and eat bread and let your heart be cheerful; I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.”

8[†] [u] So she wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal, and she sent the letters to [v] the elders and the leaders who lived with Naboth in his city. 9And she wrote in the letters, "Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth at the head of the people. 10And set two [w] worthless men opposite him, and let them bring a charge against him, saying, [x] 'You have cursed [1] God and the king.' Then take him out and stone him to death." 11And the men of his city, [v] the elders and the leaders who lived in his city, did as Jezebel had sent word to them. As it was written in the letters that she had sent to them, 12 [y] they proclaimed a fast and set Naboth at the head of the people. 13And the two worthless men came in and sat opposite him. And the worthless men brought a charge against Naboth in the presence of the people, saying, "Naboth cursed God and the king." So they took him outside the city and stoned him to death with stones. 14Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, "Naboth has been stoned; he is dead."

15[†]As soon as Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned and was dead, Jezebel said to Ahab, "Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give you for money, for Naboth is not alive, but dead." 16And as soon as Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, Ahab arose to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

The Lord Condemns Ahab

17 [z] Then the word of the Lord came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, 18"Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, who is in [a] Samaria; behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, where he has gone to take possession. 19[^][†]And you shall say to him, 'Thus says the Lord, "Have you killed and also taken possession?"' And you shall say to him, 'Thus says the Lord: [b] "In the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick your own blood."'"

20Ahab said to Elijah, [c] "Have you found me, O my enemy?" He answered, "I have found you, because [d] you have sold yourself to do what is evil in the sight of the Lord. 21Behold, I will bring disaster upon you. I will utterly burn you up, and [e] will cut off from Ahab every male, bond or free, in Israel. 22And I will make your house like [f] the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like [g] the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah, for the anger to which you have provoked me, and because you [h] have made Israel to sin. [23][†]And of Jezebel the LORD also said, [i] ‘The dogs shall eat Jezebel within [j] the walls of Jezreel.’ [24] [k] Anyone belonging to Ahab who dies in the city the dogs shall eat, and anyone of his who dies in the open country the birds of the heavens shall eat.”

Ahab’s Repentance

[25]([l] There was none who sold himself to do what was evil in the sight of the LORD like Ahab, whom Jezebel his wife incited. [26]He acted very abominably in going after [m] idols, as [n] the Amorites had done, whom the LORD cast out before the people of Israel.)

[27]And when Ahab heard those words, he [o] tore his clothes and [p] put sackcloth on his flesh and [q] fasted and lay in sackcloth and went about dejectedly. [28]And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, [29][†]“Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before me? Because he has humbled himself before me, I will not bring the disaster in his days;
[r] but in his son’s days I will bring the disaster upon his house.”

Ahab and the False Prophets

1 KINGS 22 [†]For three years Syria and Israel continued without war. [2] [s] But in the third year [t] Jehoshaphat the king of Judah came down to the king of Israel. [3]And the king of Israel said to his servants, “Do you know that [u] Ramoth-gilead belongs to us, and we keep quiet and do not take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?” [4]And he said to Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to battle at Ramoth-gilead?” And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, [v] “I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.”

[5]And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, “Inquire first for the word of the LORD.” [6][†]Then the king of Israel [w] gathered the prophets together, about four hundred men, and said to them, “Shall I go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?” And they said, “Go up, for the Lord will give it into the hand of the king.” [7]But [x] Jehoshaphat said, “Is there not here another prophet of the LORD of whom we may inquire?” [8][†]And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is yet one man by whom we may inquire of the LORD, Micaiah the son of Imlah, but I hate him, for he never prophesies good concerning me, but evil.” And Jehoshaphat said, “Let not the king say so.” [9]Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, “Bring quickly Micaiah the son of Imlah.” [10][‡]Now the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes, at the threshing floor [y]at the entrance of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. [11]And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made for himself [z]horns of iron and said, “Thus says the LORD, ‘With these [a]you shall push the Syrians until they are destroyed.’” [12]And all the prophets prophesied so and said, “Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.”

Micaiah Prophesies Against Ahab

[13]And the messenger who went to summon Micaiah said to him, “Behold, the words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king. Let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably.” [14]But Micaiah said, [b]“As the LORD lives, [c]what the LORD says to me, that I will speak.” [15][‡]And when he had come to the king, the king said to him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we refrain?” And he answered him, “Go up and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.” [16]But the king said to him, “How many times shall I make you swear that you speak to me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?” [17]And he said, “I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, [d]as sheep that have no shepherd. And the LORD said, ‘These have no master; let each return to his home in peace.’” [18]And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, [e]“Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but evil?” [19][^]And Micaiah said, “Therefore hear the word of the LORD: [f]I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, [g]and all the host of heaven standing beside him on his right hand and on his left; [20]and the LORD said, ‘Who will entice Ahab, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?’ And one said one thing, and another said another. [21][‡]Then a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, ‘I will entice him.’ [22]And the LORD said to him, ‘By what means?’ And he said, ‘I will go out, and will be [h]a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do so.’ [23][†]Now therefore behold, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets; the LORD has declared disaster for you.”

[24][†]Then Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah came near [i]and struck Micaiah on the cheek and said, “How did the Spirit of the LORD go from me to speak to you?” [25][†]And Micaiah said, “Behold, you shall see on that day when you go [j]into an inner chamber to hide yourself.” [26][†]And the king of Israel said, “Seize Micaiah, and take him back to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king’s son, [27]and say, ‘Thus says the king, [k]“Put this fellow in prison and feed him meager rations of bread and water, [l]until I come in peace.”’” [28]And Micaiah said, “If you return in peace, [m]the LORD has not spoken by me.” And he said, [n]“Hear, all you peoples!”

Ahab Killed in Battle

[29]So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead. [30][†]And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, [o]“I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes.” And the king of Israel disguised himself and went into battle. [31]Now the king of Syria had commanded [p]the thirty-two captains of his chariots, “Fight with neither small nor great, but only with the king of Israel.” [32][†]And when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, “It is surely the king of Israel.” So they turned to fight against him. And Jehoshaphat cried out. [33]And when the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. [34][†]But a certain man drew his bow at random [1] and struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate. Therefore he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn around and carry me out of the battle, [q]for I am wounded.” [35][†]And the battle continued that day, and the king was propped up in his chariot facing the Syrians, until at evening he died. And the blood of the wound flowed into the bottom of the chariot. [36]And about sunset a cry went through the army, “Every man to his city, and every man to his country!”

[37]So the king died, and was brought to Samaria. And they buried the king in Samaria. [38][†]And they washed the chariot by the pool of Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood, and the prostitutes washed themselves in it, [r] according to the word of the LORD that he had spoken. [39][‡]Now the rest of the acts of Ahab and all that he did, and [s] the ivory house that he built and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [40]So Ahab slept with his fathers, and Ahaziah his son reigned in his place.

Jehoshaphat Reigns in Judah

[41][‡] [t] Jehoshaphat the son of [u] Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel. [42]Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi. [43][‡] [v] He walked in all the way of Asa his father. He did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD. Yet [w] the high places were not taken away, and the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places.
[44] [x] Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel.

[45]Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, and his might that he showed, and how he warred, are they not written [y] in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [46]And from the land he exterminated the remnant [z] of the male cult prostitutes who remained in the days of his father Asa.

[47][‡] [a] There was no king in Edom; a deputy was king. [48][‡]Jehoshaphat made [b] ships of Tarshish to go to [c] Ophir for gold, but they did not go, for the ships were wrecked at [d] Ezion-geber. [49][‡]Then Ahaziah the son of Ahab said to Jehoshaphat, "Let my servants go with your servants in the ships," but Jehoshaphat was not willing. [50][‡] [e] And Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father, and Jehoram his son reigned in his place.

Ahaziah Reigns in Israel

[51]Ahaziah the son of Ahab [f] began to reign over Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and he reigned two years over Israel. [52]He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD [g] and walked in the way of his father and in the way of his mother and in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin. [53] [h] He served Baal and worshiped him and provoked the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger [i] in every way that his father had done.

Study Notes for 1 Kings

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:1–11:43 The Reign of King Solomon. The first 11 chapters of 1 Kings are an extensive description of the reign of David's son Solomon, a king who was great when he obeyed God and depended on God for wisdom but whose reign ended in tragedy as he departed from God's ways and worshiped other gods.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:1–2:46 Solomon Becomes King. The beginning of the Solomon story is also the end of the David story, specifically the section of David's story that begins in 2 Samuel 7–12, where Nathan and Bathsheba, who play such important roles in 1 Kings 1–2, are first prominent. Nathan had promised David that God would raise up one of his sons and establish his kingdom forever (2 Sam. 7:12–13). How would this promise be fulfilled, in view of Nathan's later word of judgment to David in 2 Samuel 12 and the awful story that follows in 2 Samuel 13–24? The first two chapters of Kings set out to resolve this question.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:2–4 let her wait on the king and be in his service. … lie in your arms. The Hebrew expression for "wait" appears in Lev. 18:23 (as "give herself"), where it refers to availability for sexual intercourse; "be in his service" leaves the precise nature of the service unstated; and "in your arms" has sexual overtones in Gen. 16:5 ("your embrace"); 2 Sam. 12:8; and Mic. 7:5. This beautiful young woman, Abishag, is no doubt intended to interest David sexually; and his impotence (the king knew her not) is all the encouragement that Adonijah needs to foment rebellion ("I will be king," 1 Kings 1:5).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:5–6 Adonijah was the fourth of David's sons born in Hebron (2 Sam. 3:2–5), and the eldest surviving. The first, Amnon, and third, Absalom, have died by this point in the story (2 Samuel 13–18), and the second, Chileab, is presumably also dead (unmentioned after 2 Samuel 3). exalted himself. This implies that Adonijah is usurping David's (and God's) right to designate a successor (cf. the same term in Num. 16:3); this contrasts with David, who waited patiently for God to raise him to office, even refusing to take Saul's life (1 Samuel 16–31). Here, however, the authors recall Absalom in their reference to chariots and horsemen (or horses) and men (cf. 2 Sam. 15:1); and by their reference to the fact that Adonijah was a very handsome man (cf. 2 Sam. 14:25–26), they already hint that he too is heading for disaster. His father had never asked, "Why have you done thus and so?" Adonijah, like Absalom, was in part the product of parental negligence and indulgence; David never held him accountable for his actions (cf. notes on 2 Sam. 13:21; 14:24; 15:4).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:7–9 The events of chs. 1–2 are to be understood in light of the Judah/Israel tensions already evident in the books of Samuel and soon to reappear in 1 Kings 12 (cf. 2 Sam. 20:1; 1 Kings 12:16). Joab and Abiathar were men with deep roots in David's Judean past (e.g., 1 Sam. 22:20–23; 2 Samuel 2–3). By contrast, only Benaiah and David's mighty men (special guard) in the opposing group had such a long-standing association with David (see 2 Sam. 23:8–39). Note that it was the royal officials of Judah who were invited to Adonijah's feast, not those of Israel. Shimei was an antagonist of David from the house of Saul (2 Sam. 16:5–14), while neither Nathan nor Zadok appear in the narrative before 2 Sam. 7:2 and 8:17, respectively (i.e., after David's move from Hebron to Jerusalem in 2 Sam. 5:6–10). En-rogel. The spring En-rogel was south of Jerusalem, at the juncture of the Hinnom and Kidron Valleys, and provided the city with a source of water additional to the important Gihon Spring (see 1 Kings 1:33) about half a mile to the north.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:13 Did you not … swear? This oath is not mentioned anywhere in 2 Samuel, and Nathan himself does not mention it to David when he confronts him in 1 Kings 1:24–27. Perhaps it was a private assurance from David to Bathsheba that was not public knowledge.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:18 you … do not know it. The play on the idea of "knowing" in ch. 1 underlines the extent of David's loss of power in his old age. He was not able to "know" Abishag sexually (v. 4) as he had once known Bathsheba, and now he does not know about Adonijah, even though he had previously had the reputation of possessing "wisdom like the wisdom of the angel of God to know all things that are on the earth" (2 Sam. 14:20).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:20–21 Bathsheba is concerned that if David does not appoint Solomon as the next monarch prior to his death (sleeps with his fathers), she and her son will be treated as rivals for the throne (counted offenders) and their lives will be at risk.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:22–27 Long live King Adonijah! While Adonijah's attempts to consolidate power and succeed David as king are evident (vv. 5–9), Nathan emphasizes the alarming purpose of the events to motivate David to quickly resolve the problem of royal succession.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:31 May my lord King David live forever! As is clear from the context, Bathsheba uses the conventional form of speech that one would normally use in addressing a king (cf. Dan. 3:9; 6:21). The use of this convention, however, does not imply that Bathsheba is insincere, but that she is reaffirming her loyalty to David.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:33 my own mule. Solomon's ride on David's mule marks him as David's favored son. More than this, the mule itself may also have been regarded as a symbol of kingship (see Zech. 9:9; Matt. 21:1–11).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:38 Cherethites and … Pelethites. These are probably the "servants" of v. 33, apparently David's own personal troops (cf. 2 Sam. 8:18; 15:18; 20:7, 23). They were probably mercenaries drawn from among the non-Israelite population of Canaan, most likely (as the names imply) of Cretan and Philistine origin.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:39 the tent. The most natural assumption might be that this is "the tent of the LORD" that appears also in 2:28–30, i.e., the tabernacle. The Chronicler, however (2 Chron. 1:1–6), differentiates David's tent in Jerusalem (the temporary location of the ark of the covenant) from the tabernacle in Gibeon, so the reference is in fact unclear.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:41–49 guests … heard it. The location of Adonijah's party at En-rogel (v. 9), just south of Jerusalem in the Kidron Valley, prevented direct observation of Solomon's anointing (vv. 38–40), but they could hear the subsequent celebration. Adonijah's guests trembled and rose (v. 49), knowing that alignment with him may mean being designated rebels. Notice how carefully Jonathan the son of Abiathar expresses his personal loyalties to our lord King David (vv. 43, 47).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:50 horns of the altar. Adonijah believes that the altar, as a holy place, protects him from Solomon's vengeance. This reflects a common ancient Near Eastern custom with regard to asylum at shrines (cf. Ex. 21:12–14).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:2–3 Be strong, and show yourself a man. David's parting words to Solomon echo God's words to Joshua upon his "succession" to the leadership of Israel after Moses' death (Josh. 1:6–9). This injunction begins by using the language of warriorship before moving on immediately to define the framework within which this strength must be exercised (obedience to God, in accordance with the Law of Moses). Particularly in view here (as in Joshua) is the law code of Deuteronomy, as the language of 1 Kings 2:3–4 indicates (cf. Deut. 4:29; 6:2; 8:6; 9:5; 11:1; 29:9). "Show yourself a man" seems to be an idiom that refers primarily to conducting oneself bravely (cf. 1 Sam. 4:9; 1 Cor. 16:13), as defined specifically here within the framework of faithful adherence to the Mosaic law; it will take bravery for Solomon to lead the people faithfully.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:4 his word that he spoke concerning me. The reference is apparently to 2 Sam. 7:11b–16, although that passage does not explicitly mention any conditions attached to the promise (If your sons pay close attention to their way). It is in fact plainly stated (2 Sam. 7:14–15) that wrongdoing on the part of David's successors will not lead to the end of the dynasty, and this is reflected also in 1–2 Kings (cf. 1 Kings 11:36; 15:4; 2 Kings 8:19). Kings thus carries a degree of tension as to the precise implications of the Davidic promise, a tension that remains even by the end of 2 Kings 25.

David commanded his son Solomon to build a new temple. This work took seven years, followed by 13 years of building an adjacent royal complex (1 Kings 6:38; 7:1). As this quarter was located outside and north of the original city of David, new city walls must have been built to connect the two areas.

Solomon's temple was Israel's first permanent sanctuary. Built atop Mount Moriah (2 Chron. 3:1), the royal complex, immediately to the south of the temple, (see also Solomon's Temple and Palace Complex.) consisted of Solomon's own palace and a smaller house for his Egyptian wife (1 Kings 7:8), an armory called the "House of the Forest of Lebanon" (vv. 2–5), a Hall of Pillars (v. 6), and a Hall of the Throne (v. 7). A special "Ascent" connected this complex with the temple.

The area between the temple complex and the city of David was called the Ophel.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:5 what Joab the son of Zeruiah did to me. Joab is to be killed so as to clear David's house of "the guilt for the blood" that he "shed without cause" (v. 31). It is curious, however, that David himself had apparently not been sufficiently concerned about this bloodguilt to take action against someone who had been so useful to him (e.g., 2 Sam. 11:15; 14:1–33; 19:1–8). Perhaps beneath David's words is more of a political than a religious concern. Joab is too dangerous to be allowed to live in Solomon's united kingdom once David is gone because he is too much a man of the Judean past (as Shimei is too much a man of the Israelite past, 1 Kings 2:8–9). Between these disruptive elements from Judah and Israel, elements that are hostile to harmony, stands Barzillai (v. 7; cf. 2 Sam. 17:27–29; 19:31–39) from Gilead in Transjordan. He is a model of dutiful service to his king, which is rewarded in peaceful fellowship for his sons around the king's table.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:6 according to your wisdom. Solomon must not act rashly, but must find some clever justification for removing Joab from the scene (see also v. 9 in reference to Shimei) so that he does not die a peaceful and natural death in old age (do not let his gray head go down to Sheol in peace). For "Sheol," see note on 1 Sam. 2:6. Solomon's wisdom (Hb. khokhmah) will be highlighted in the following chapters (1 Kings 3:1–28; 4:29–34; 10:1–13), but it will never again be used to such ruthless effect.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:10 David slept with his fathers. The metaphor of sleep hints at the expectation of awakening sometime in the future, and "with his fathers" hints that previous generations also join in this hope, and that David is somehow now with them. This phrase will be repeated many times in Kings and Chronicles.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:11 David reigned over Israel for forty years, and died in 970 B.C.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:12 his kingdom was firmly established. The Hebrew kun ("established") is strategically positioned at the beginning, in the middle, and at the end of vv. 12–46 (vv. 12, 24, 45–46), recalling 2 Sam. 7:11b–16, where it appears on three occasions (2 Sam. 7:12, 13, 16) in relation to God's action in ensuring for David an everlasting dynasty. God has done for Solomon what he had done earlier for David (2 Sam. 5:12), in accordance with his promise to David (1 Kings 2:24).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:17 give me Abishag the Shunammite as my wife. Second Samuel 16:20–22 suggests that sexual liaison with the king's concubines amounted to a claim to the throne; and although Abishag was not strictly a concubine, she was intimately associated in people's minds with David. Certainly Solomon appears to interpret Adonijah's request as a revival of the conspiracy of 1 Kings 1—as precisely the "wickedness" against which Solomon had warned him in 1:52 (cf. 2:22).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:22 my older brother. It is not clear to what extent the eldest son was normally expected in Israel to succeed his father to the throne, but at least some Israelites would certainly have regarded the eldest as having a particular claim on the throne.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:26 you deserve death. There is no evidence that Abiathar and Joab had anything to do with Adonijah's initiative in regard to Abishag, but both are pronounced guilty by association.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:27 the word of the LORD … in Shiloh. Cf. 1 Sam. 2:27–36. Abiathar is identified as a member of Eli's house in 1 Sam. 22:20, and the "faithful priest" of 1 Sam. 2:35 is now discovered to be Zadok (1 Kings 2:35). The books of Kings are very interested in this idea of prophecy and fulfillment, which is one of the themes that binds the books together and gives them their distinctive atmosphere.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:28–34 Heeding David's instructions (see vv. 5–6 and notes), Solomon moves to have Joab eliminated. horns of the altar. See note on 1:50. Benaiah … struck him down. Joab does not think that Solomon will be as ruthless as Joab had shown himself to be, that is, prepared even to have someone killed in the place of sanctuary. Though this was not strictly in compliance with Ex. 21:12–14 (which states that a murderer is to be taken away from the altar and put to death), taking refuge in the sanctuary applied only to the case of accidental death (Ex. 21:13), not intentional murder; the point of Ex. 21:14 was that the altar provided no protection for a willful murderer. David's view (see note on 1 Kings 2:5) was that Joab deserved death for the murder of both Abner (2 Sam. 3:27) and Amasa (2 Sam. 20:10).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:36–46 Solomon moves next to eliminate Shimei, who had cursed David as he fled from Absalom (see vv. 7–8; cf. 2 Sam. 16:5–13). When Shimei ignores Solomon's order not to go from Jerusalem to any other place (1 Kings 2:36, cf. v. 42), Solomon orders his execution (v. 46). He thus proves himself to be a "wise" king (vv. 6, 9), but it is a dubious kind of wisdom.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:1–28 More on Solomon and Wisdom. Although a kind of wisdom has already guided Solomon in his treatment of those who were a threat to him (2:6, 9), ch. 3 confirms that in fact he still lacks a truly "wise and discerning mind" (v. 12). The new gift of wisdom that he now receives from God allows him to govern more justly, as the story in vv. 16–28 illustrates.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:1 marriage alliance with Pharaoh. This is another dubious act to add to those in ch. 2. Deuteronomy warns against a “return to Egypt” (Deut. 17:16) in terms of too-close relations with that nation. The Hebrew verb (khatan), translated “made a marriage alliance” in 1 Kings 3:1, is translated “intermarry” in Deut. 7:3, where the command not to marry foreigners is explicitly tied to a warning that such marriages will lead the people to serve other gods (Deut. 7:4). This becomes all too real for Solomon (1 Kings 11:3–4). Even though Solomon “loved the LORD” (3:3), he is a king with a divided heart, failing to keep the Law of Moses wholeheartedly as David had instructed (2:1–4).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:2 the high places. This is the standard translation of the Hebrew bamot, but it is not clear that height (whether natural or artificial) was an intrinsic feature of these worship sites. The idea is simply that of publicly accessible structures (including unenclosed altars and temples with altars) within which or on which offerings were made to God or the gods. The continuation and proliferation of these local places of worship (as opposed to the one place of worship described in Deuteronomy 12) is one of the main concerns of the authors of 1–2 Kings (1 Kings 22:43; 2 Kings 12:3; 14:4; 15:4, 35). Solomon begins by tolerating worship of the Lord at these places and ends up being drawn into full-blown apostasy (1 Kings 11:7–8), as also later do Israel and Judah (e.g., 12:28–31; 2 Kings 21:3–9). See also note on 2 Kings 16:1–4.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:7–9 I am but a little child. Solomon feels inadequate in view of the great task that confronts him. Although he has used wisdom before in dealing with affairs of state, now he confesses basic ignorance: I do not know how to go out or come in. He needs an understanding mind to govern your people, that he may discern between good and evil.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:11–14 Since Solomon did not ask for long life or riches or the life of his enemies, God gave him what he did not ask for, both riches and honor, and promised to lengthen his days. Significantly, there is no mention of enemies, confirming that Solomon’s “wisdom” in ch. 2 was of an unenlightened, self-serving kind, which must now be replaced with something higher if he is to rule justly and well over his subjects. It is the fear of the Lord that is the true beginning of wisdom (Job 28:28; Ps. 111:10; Prov. 15:33). I give you a wise and discerning mind. This wisdom is a supernatural gift from God. It is not innate (as it is implicitly in 1 Kings 2:6–9); and it is not acquired by patient hard work, utilizing careful observation and self-discipline (as it is explicitly in much of Proverbs and in 1 Kings 4:29–34). In the possession of such wisdom Solomon was unparalleled in Israelite history (none like you has been before you and none like you shall arise after you), as Hezekiah was unparalleled in trust (2 Kings 18:5) and Josiah in obedience to the Law of Moses (2 Kings 23:25).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:16 two prostitutes. Prostitutes appear in Proverbs 1–9 as one category of women that men do well to avoid. Men should set their hearts instead on a relationship with Lady Wisdom, who will help them see through seductive and misleading words (e.g., Prov. 6:20–29). Solomon, the possessor of wisdom, likewise has no difficulty seeing through the words spoken by the two women here. They stood before him because, in the absence of a second witness to corroborate their testimony (Deut. 19:15), the normal legal procedures could not be followed. The Israelite king represented the highest court of appeal and was the foundation of all administration and justice (cf. 1 Kings 3:28).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:24 Bring me a sword. Solomon's old "wisdom" had led previously to the use of the sword, but only for arguably unjust executions. His new wisdom leads him in more constructive ways: the sword functions in the service not of the ruthless self but of the kingdom as a whole (cf. Ps. 45:2–4).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:27–28 This legal case reveals that the Lord had granted Solomon's prior request for wisdom (vv. 9, 12); through Solomon's understanding of human nature, the identity of the true mother is rightly ascertained, and Israel realizes that the wisdom of God was in him.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:1–20 Solomon's Rule over Israel. The Hebrew text treats vv. 1–20 as a single unit. Verse 1 indicates that the following verses will concern the king's rule over all Israel, and v. 20 provides a fitting climax to this initial description of his reign by telling what the consequences of his organizing abilities were ("Judah and Israel … were happy"). This is the kingdom that results from wise King Solomon's just rule (cf. Psalm 72, a psalm "Of Solomon").

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:2 Among the high officials of the kingdom first described is the (chief) priest, who is surprisingly named not as Zadok (2:35) but as Azariah the son of Zadok. For some undisclosed reason Zadok himself is now in a lesser position, along with an apparently reinstated Abiathar (4:4; cf. 2:26– 27). The new order, designed in God-given wisdom, is different from the old order, in which Zadok had replaced the (unjustly?) banished Abiathar.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:3 The secretaries may have had general managerial responsibilities, or more specific tasks such as recording history or writing letters, while the recorder may in fact have been a herald or even the state prosecutor.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:5 Azariah was in charge of the 12 officers over all Israel mentioned in vv. 7–19, while Zabud held the office of king's friend (i.e., personal adviser; cf. Hushai in 2 Sam. 15:37; 16:16; 17:5–16).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:6 Ahishar was the royal steward (cf. 16:9; 18:3), while Adoniram … was in charge of the forced labor (cf. 5:13–18; 9:15–22).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:7–19 twelve officers. The task of Solomon's representatives in the various regions of Israel was to provide for the king and his household on an annual rotation, each region being responsible for one month in each year. These officers may have been tax supervisors, whose job was to ensure that local government paid its dues to central government. Although the number "twelve" is the traditional number of the Israelite tribes, and some of the regions mentioned in vv. 7–19 may have been based on tribal areas (e.g., Naphtali, Issachar, and Benjamin), what is described here is not strictly a tribal system of support for central government (e.g., the hill country of Ephraim in v. 8 is not to be understood as corresponding to the tribal area "Ephraim"). Solomon's arrangements move beyond the tribal system, while having points of contact with it. The one governor who was over the land was most likely Azariah (v. 5), to whom the 12 district officers were responsible. This system apparently continued after the death of the king. Evidence for it is perhaps to be found at the excavations of Eshtemoa in the hill country of Judah. There five jars have been discovered, filled with over 60 pounds (27 kg) of silver. The pottery dates to the ninth or eighth century B.C. On two of the jars the word "fifth" appears; this probably refers to a tax that would equal 20 percent.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:9 A double-sided board game has been found at the site of Beth-shemesh from the tenth century B.C. Carved into one side of the board is a man's name, "Hanan." That name also appears on an ostracon from Beth-shemesh dating to the twelfth century B.C. and on a tenth-century bowl found at nearby Tel Batash. The Bible lists the site of Elonbeth-hanan immediately after Beth-shemesh as part of Solomon's second economic district.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:20 Judah and Israel … ate … drank … were happy. Solomon's God-given wisdom has produced an economic system which, while it ensures that the royal household has enough to eat and drink, is not oppressive. This is true even though the people are as many as the sand by the sea (cf. Gen. 22:17; and note Solomon's concern in 1 Kings 3:8–9 that he would not be able to govern so many people). This is government by the righteous person under the blessing of God: when their leader thrives, the people rejoice (Prov. 29:2).

Solomon's Administrative Districts

c. 950 B.C.

Solomon reorganized the Israelite territory of his kingdom into 12 districts, each of which was responsible to supply the immense provisions for the king for one month out of the year. It appears that Judah, Solomon's tribe, was exempted from this burden. Solomon also fortified key towns throughout his kingdom and built store cities for his economic enterprises. Among his most significant building projects were the temple and his royal palace in Jerusalem, built largely with cedar supplied by King Hiram of Tyre.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:21–34 Solomon and the Nations. Israel's peace and prosperity is based in part on Solomon's dominion over the surrounding kingdoms (they contribute to the prosperity and represent no threat to the peace, vv. 21–28). Solomon's wisdom is admired throughout the world (vv. 29–34).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:21–24 Solomon exerted a dominating influence over all the kingdoms from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines and to the border of Egypt, an area further defined as extending from Tiphsah (an important city on the Euphrates, about 75 miles [121 km] south of Carchemish on the main trade route connecting Mesopotamia with Syria) to Gaza (on the western coast of Palestine, in the far south of Philistia). It is a large area, corresponding to the ideal extent of Israel's dominion as promised to Abraham in Gen. 15:18.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:25 And Judah and Israel lived in safety … every man under his vine and under his fig tree. The people lived under God's blessing (cf. Joel 2:22; contrast Ps. 105:33; Jer. 5:17), having a degree of economic independence—somewhat akin to living in the kingdom of the "last days" foreseen by the prophet Micah, when swords will be beaten into plowshares and every man will have a stake in the land (Mic. 4:1–4).

The Extent of Solomon's Kingdom

c. 971–931 B.C.

Solomon's reign marked the zenith of Israel's power and wealth in biblical times. His father, David, had bestowed upon him a kingdom that included Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Solomon would later bring the kingdom of Hamath under his dominion as well, and his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter sealed an alliance with Egypt. His expansive kingdom controlled important trade routes between several major world powers, including Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia (Asia Minor).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:26 40,000 stalls of horses. Based on the available OT source documents, the number of stalls is uncertain. Although most Hebrew manuscripts place the number at 40,000, a Greek Septuagint manuscript and one Hebrew manuscript place the number at 4,000, which is also the number indicated in 2 Chron. 9:25; hence the number here could possibly be a copying error. See esv footnote. (Cf. the 1,400 chariots in 1 Kings 10:26, which would suggest fewer than 40,000 horse stalls.) In either case, such a large number of stalls (even 4,000) would violate the prohibition in Deut. 17:16 that the king "must not acquire many horses for himself." Tripartite pillared buildings have been unearthed at numerous Iron Age sites—Megiddo, Hazor, Beth-shemesh, and elsewhere. Each unit has a central hall flanked by two parallel aisles, separated by rows of pillars. These buildings have been identified by numerous scholars as "stalls" or stables (although some argue they are storehouses, army barracks, or bazaars) and, indeed, some of them date to the time of Solomon.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:28 horses and swift steeds. The darker side of Solomon is once again hinted at (see also v. 26), even in the midst of the glories of the early part of his reign. Deuteronomy 17:16 forbids the king from acquiring "many horses for himself" and forbids him further from making the people "return to Egypt in order to acquire many horses" (Deut. 17:16; cf. 1 Kings 10:26–29).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:30–31 the wisdom of all the people of the east … of Egypt. Solomon's wisdom exceeded that of people from places renowned for their wisdom, including "all the people of the east" (cf. Matt. 2:1–12). Egypt specifically provides many examples of wisdom literature (e.g., "The Wisdom of Amen-em-ope," which many OT scholars believe influenced Prov. 22:17–23:12). Solomon's wisdom was also greater than that of the named individuals famous for their wisdom.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:33 He spoke of trees … beasts … birds … reptiles, and of fish. Careful observation of the natural world and how it works is one of the "normal" ways in which people gain wisdom (e.g., Job 38–41; Prov. 30:15–31; Matt. 6:25–34). Solomon was concerned with the natural world, from the largest tree (the proverbially high cedar that is in Lebanon) to the smallest plant (e.g., hyssop), and including all sorts of fauna. Wisdom "from below" (as here) and wisdom "from above" (as received by Solomon in 1 Kings 3) are thus combined in this one person, the wisest of all Israel's kings.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:1–18 Preparations for Building the Temple. In the Hebrew text, these 18 verses form part of the same unit as the material on Solomon's rule over the surrounding kingdoms and his immense wisdom. The preparation for the building of the temple is thus part of the discourse about Solomon and the nations, and Hiram king of Tyre is simply one of those who “served Solomon all the days of his life” (4:21; cf. 9:19, where Lebanon is part of “all the land of his dominion”).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:1–6 At the site of ‘Ain Dara in northern Syria, a temple has been found that dates to the thirteenth to eighth centuries B.C. It closely parallels the date, design, and size of Solomon’s temple built in the tenth century B.C. This find helps corroborate the date of Solomon’s temple in the early first millennium B.C. Cf. note on 7:1–12.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:3–4 could not build a house. Solomon’s response to Hiram’s greeting takes Hiram back to that important moment in David’s life (2 Sam. 7:1–17) when David was addressed by God, not only about the succession (which has just happened) but also about the temple (which has not yet been built). God has given Solomon the rest on every side that he had promised to David (2 Sam. 7:11), so much so that there is neither adversary nor misfortune. This picture reflects God’s intended result when the people of Israel have a wise ruler and they walk in obedience to God’s commandments. Given this situation, the time is right for the temple-building project, divinely ordained as the task for David’s successor (2 Sam. 7:12–13).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:5 build the house for my name. Cf. 2 Sam. 7:13.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:6 Sidonians is a general term for the Phoenicians, famous for their expertise in timber. Sidon, like Tyre, was on the Phoenician coast, south of what is now Beirut. my servants will join your servants … such wages as you set. Solomon suggests to Hiram a cooperative venture and, possibly (although the Hb. is ambiguous), that Hiram should set the wages to be paid to his men.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:7–8 Blessed be the LORD. A Gentile recognizes God’s blessing on his great people, Israel.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:9–12 My servants shall bring it down. Hiram responds with proposals of his own—that his own men alone should deal with cutting the wood and transporting it down the coast to Israel, and that Solomon’s men should be involved only after this has been done. The wages, moreover, are to be paid not to his laborers, but in the form of supplies of food for his royal household. Solomon thus gets what he desires (Hb. khepets, vv. 8, 10), in the materials for the temple, but Hiram, too, has his wishes (Hb. khepets, v. 9) for provisions fulfilled. It is apparently a happy arrangement, sealed by a treaty—an arrangement that is testimony to the wisdom that God has given to Solomon. Yet nothing has been said about Hiram's first counterproposal to Solomon concerning work methods (v. 9); the narrative proceeds as if he had not spoken, as a task force from Israel is dispatched to Lebanon "in shifts" to help with the timber (v. 14). Although he is happy to negotiate with Hiram to a certain extent, Solomon is also prepared to ignore terms that do not suit him. This clearly implies that Solomon has the upper hand in the relationship, something that becomes even more apparent in 9:10–10:29.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:13 Solomon drafted forced labor out of all Israel. First Kings 9:15–23 makes it clear that Solomon did not conscript Israelites to work abroad, but only workers from the Canaanite population of Israel. Two quite distinct groups are intended in 5:13–18 and 9:15–23. The first comprises 30,000 Canaanites and is supervised by 550 officials; the other comprises 150,000 Israelites and is supervised by 3,300 foremen.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:14 at home. The Hebrew bebeto, "in his house," likely refers to Solomon's house or palace, the construction of which will be described in ch. 7. Even at this stage, the authors hint, Solomon is spending twice as much time on his palace ("house") as on the temple (cf. 6:38–7:1), while appearing to press quickly ahead with the temple.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:17–18 Dressed stones probably describes ashlar masonry, a prominent feature of royal Israelite architecture. Fine examples of ashlar masonry may be seen at Megiddo (10th–9th centuries B.C.), Gezer (10th century), Tel Dan, Ramet Rahel, and elsewhere. The actual quarries for ashlar blocks have been found at Megiddo and Samaria.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:18 The men of Gebal are workers from Byblos, a coastal city north of Tyre.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:1–7:51 Solomon Builds the Temple and His Palace. With preparation for the temple building complete, the narrative moves on to a detailed description of the building itself and its furnishings, interrupted in 7:1–12 by a description of the building of the royal palace complex. The authors seem to suggest that Solomon's concern for his own house delayed the completion of the temple.

c. 950 B.C.

Through various building projects Solomon began to transform the small military stronghold of the city of David into a full-scale city that would be the geographical center of Israelite religion. He built the temple of the Lord and the royal palace complex on the hill to the north of the stronghold and encircled it with a wall. Ironically, Solomon also allowed his many foreign wives to establish pagan shrines on the hill to the east of the city, which would later be called the Mount of Corruption.

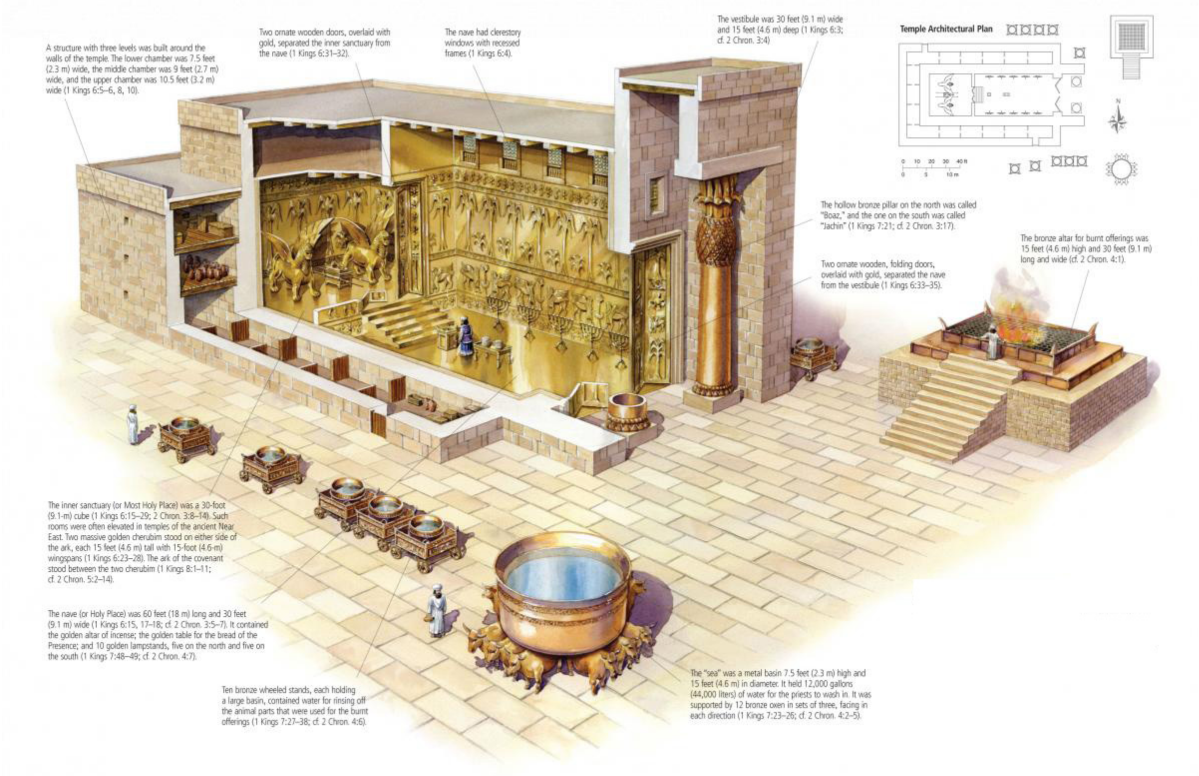
1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:1–10 he began to build the house of the LORD. After a note about the dates involved (v. 1), the description of the temple begins with its external structure. The authors describe its overall proportions and its basic form (vv. 2–3); its windows (v. 4); and the strange structure around it with its side chambers (vv. 5–6, 8, 10). The work was carried out with reverence, avoiding the use of iron tools at the temple site: neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron (see Ex. 20:25 and Deut. 27:5–6 for the prohibitions that appear to be in mind here). The dimensions of the temple in common cubits were 90 feet (27 m) long, 30 feet (9 m) wide, and 45 feet (14 m) high (see illustration).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:1 The four hundred and eightieth year after Israel's release from slavery and the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel was around the year 966 B.C. This text is important in relation to the date of Israel's exodus from Egypt. Taken at face value, the figure of 480 years would support the traditional "early" date for the exodus, c. 1446 B.C. On the other hand, if one allows for some symbolism in understanding the 480-year figure (e.g., supposing it to result from 12 generations, with a generation taken symbolically to be 40 years, although it is actually about 25), one would arrive at a "late" date for the exodus of about 1260 B.C. (which some feel allows for greater agreement with Egyptian history). For further discussion concerning the date of the exodus, see The Date of the Exodus.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:12–13 Concerning this house that you are building. The temple is placed firmly in its proper theological context. God will certainly dwell among his people once the temple is built (v. 13), but this "dwelling" will be on the same basis as before: the people's obedience to the law (cf. Lev. 26:11–12). The temple itself, for all its splendor, does not change anything about the nature of the divine-human relationship. This was something that the Israelites were apt to forget after the temple had been built and had become a centrally important aspect of national life (cf. Jer. 7:1–34). God is not as impressed with structures as he is with obedience, a point made later by Stephen in his speech to the Sanhedrin in Acts 7; and the beauty of temples is never any guarantee that God will not leave them or bring judgment on them (cf. Luke 21:5–6).

Solomon’s Temple

Solomon began to build “the house of the LORD” in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah in the spring of 967 or 966 B.C. (1 Kings 6:1; 2 Chron. 3:1–2) and completed it seven years later, in the fall of 960 or 959 (1 Kings 6:38). The temple itself, not including the surrounding chambers on three sides, was 90 feet (27 m) long, 30 feet (9 m) wide, and 45 feet (14 m) high. It stood in the middle of a court with boundary walls.



A structure with three levels was built around the walls of the temple. The lower chamber was 7.5 feet (2.3 m) wide, the middle chamber was 9 feet (2.7 m) wide, and the upper chamber was 10.5 feet (3.2 m) wide (1 Kings 6:5–6, 8, 10).

Two ornate wooden doors, overlaid with gold, separated the inner sanctuary from the nave (1 Kings 6:31–32).

The nave had clerestory windows with recessed frames (1 Kings 6:4).

The vestibule was 30 feet (9.1 m) wide and 15 feet (4.6 m) deep (1 Kings 6:3; cf. 2 Chron. 3:4)

The hollow bronze pillar on the north was called “Boaz,” and the one on the south was called “Jachin” (1 Kings 7:21; cf. 2 Chron. 3:17).

Two ornate wooden, folding doors, overlaid with gold, separated the nave from the vestibule (1 Kings 6:33–35).

The bronze altar for burnt offerings was 15 feet (4.6 m) high and 30 feet (9.1 m) long and wide (cf. 2 Chron. 4:1).

The inner sanctuary (or Most Holy Place) was a 30-foot (9.1-m) cube (1 Kings 6:15–29; 2 Chron. 3:8–14). Such rooms were often elevated in temples of the ancient Near East. Two massive golden cherubim stood on either side of the ark, each 15 feet (4.6 m) tall with 15-foot (4.6-m) wingspans (1 Kings 6:23–28). The ark of the covenant stood between the two cherubim (1 Kings 8:1–11; cf. 2 Chron. 5:2–14).

The nave (or Holy Place) was 60 feet (18 m) long and 30 feet (9.1 m) wide (1 Kings 6:15, 17–18; cf. 2 Chron. 3:5–7). It contained the golden altar of incense; the golden table for the bread of the Presence; and 10 golden lampstands, five on the north and five on the south (1 Kings 7:48–49; cf. 2 Chron. 4:7).

Ten bronze wheeled stands, each holding a large basin, contained water for rinsing off the animal parts that were used for the burnt offerings (1 Kings 7:27–38; cf. 2 Chron. 4:6).

The “sea” was a metal basin 7.5 feet (2.3 m) high and 15 feet (4.6 m) in diameter. It held 12,000 gallons (44,000 liters) of water for the priests to wash in. It was supported by 12 bronze oxen in sets of three, facing in each direction (1 Kings 7:23–26; cf. 2 Chron. 4:2–5).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:14–35 Solomon built the house and finished it. The repetition of v. 9a in v. 14 indicates a resumption of the main story line of vv. 1–10 after the digression of vv. 11–13, and also a change of focus. Now the inside of the temple is described. Most attention is paid to the inner sanctuary (vv. 16, 19–32), which is not surprising since it was the Most Holy Place (or “Holy of Holies”) where the ark of the covenant was to be placed (v. 19). Compared to this place, the other parts of the temple were less significant, and they receive only the limited attention due them—although there is much interest in the splendor of the decoration. It was within the inner sanctuary that the Lord sat, enthroned on the cherubim (v. 23; see 1 Sam. 4:4; Ps. 80:1; 99:1). These were strange, winged creatures that could take various specific forms, combining features of different known earthly creatures, somewhat akin to the multifaceted beasts of Assyrian art. Cherubim thrones are well attested in Syria-Palestine. These particular Jerusalem cherubim dominated the sanctuary, reaching halfway to its ceiling and all the way across from wall to wall.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:14–22 An inscribed ivory pomegranate has been found that was thought to have come from Solomon's temple in Jerusalem. The inscription reads, "Belonging to the temple of Yahweh, holy to the priests." However, the pomegranate is unprovenanced and first came to the attention of scholars after being found in an antiquities shop in Jerusalem. At the time of writing, scholars are undecided whether or not it is a forgery. The authenticity of the ivory pomegranate is not in doubt, but that of the inscription has yet to be determined.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:36 Having toured the interior of the temple, the reader is again outside in the inner court that stands before it.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:38–7:1 the house was finished. The Hebrew is "he completed [kalah] the temple [bayit]," and it is followed by: "he spent seven years building it [banah]. But his own house [bayit] Solomon spent thirteen years building [banah]; and he completed [kalah] the whole of his house [kol + bayit]." Two "houses" are in view here, and an emphatic contrast is being made between them. Solomon spent much more time building his own house or palace complex than he did building God's house, another indication of his divided heart. The likely emphasis of 7:1 is in fact as follows: "But his own house Solomon spent thirteen years building; and he completed the whole of his house." The temple is not really "complete" until all the work on its interior is complete and it is being worshiped in; and this is not the case until 7:51.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:1–12 The only evidence for Solomon's palace complex (see illustration) comes from the Bible. It appears to have been built according to the plan of a neo-Hittite palace type called a bit hilani (Hb.). This type of palace has been found in northern Syria at the sites of Tell Ta'yinat and Zinjirli. Cf. note on 5:1–6.

Solomon's Temple and Palace Complex

To get to the new quarter that Solomon built from the old city of David, one had to pass through the gate in the northern Davidic city wall. Going in a northerly direction, the new complex consisted of an entrance hall, the so-called Hall of Pillars (1 Kings 7:6); the House of the Forest of Lebanon (7:2– 5); the porch (7:6b); the king’s house (7:8a); and the house of his wife, Pharaoh’s daughter (7:8b).

The House of the Forest of Lebanon, shown here to the west of the Hall of Pillars, served as an armory. The main hall had rows of cedar pillars, and gold shields and targets hung on its walls (10:16–17). To the east of the Hall of Pillars was the porch, or Hall of the Throne, Solomon’s place of judgment. Beyond the Hall of Pillars lay Solomon’s palace. Here is the setting which so impressed the Queen of Sheba on her visit to King Solomon (1 Kings 10).

There are parallels between this palace complex and the contemporary palaces of northern Syria, with the order of the parts of the building in 1 Kings 7 corresponding to the order of the units in these palaces.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:2–5 The House of the Forest of Lebanon, just the first of the several buildings of the palace complex, was much bigger than the temple (cf. 6:2). The temple had quite a bit of cedar of Lebanon in it (6:9–10, 15–16, 18, 20, 36); this building, however, had so much cedar (7:2–3, 7, 11, 12) that it could be named after the forest from which the cedar came—even though it was apparently designed only as a treasury or armory (cf. 10:17, 21; Isa. 22:8). This confirms that the king was much more concerned about his palace than about the Lord's temple.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:6–12 the Hall of Pillars. The remaining buildings that formed part of the complex are described. Besides "the Hall of Pillars," which was almost as large as the temple, there was a throne hall, also called the Hall of Judgment or "Justice," and two palaces, one for Solomon and one for his Egyptian wife.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:13–14 Solomon sent and brought Hiram from Tyre. After the important digression of vv. 1–12, the author returns to the temple to describe how that project was completed. This Hiram who makes the temple furnishings fashioned from bronze is not to be confused with the king of ch. 5. Although he is summoned from Tyre, the authors are in fact most careful to point out that it was only his father, from whom he had learned his trade, who is a native of that city. His mother was an Israelite widow of the tribe of Naphtali in the far north of the country, near the Phoenician coast. Therefore, Hiram, who had one Jewish parent, was not simply a Gentile with no Israelite roots. He is described in a way reminiscent of a famous Israelite with a similar job to do, Bezalel son of Uri, the chief craftsman involved in the construction of the tabernacle (Ex. 31:1–11; 35:30–35). Both men are said to be full of wisdom, understanding, and skill with regard to work in bronze.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:15–21 two pillars of bronze. Two massive pillars, called Jachin and Boaz (v. 21), were positioned at the temple entrance, and along with their capitals stood 27 cubits (40 feet/12 m), almost as high as the temple itself (30 cubits [45 feet/14 m], according to 6:2). They may have been freestanding, though some temples from the ancient world had pillars supporting the roof of the porch. The pillars probably had double capitals: one with latticework, five cubits (7.5 feet/2.3 m) high (7:16; cf. 2 Chron. 3:15; Jer. 52:22), and the other with lily-work, four cubits (6 feet/1.8 m) high (1 Kings 7:19). When the temple was destroyed (2 Kings 25:17), however, there seems to have been only one 3-cubit (4.5-foot/1.4-m) capital of latticework, possibly from the renovations under Jehoash (2 Kings 12:6–16) or Josiah (2 Kings 22:3–7). Cf. note on 2 Chron. 3:15–17.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:23–47 Cf. note on 2 Chron. 4:2–6. The sea of cast metal was a large metal basin designed to contain water, representing the forces of chaos subdued and brought to order by the Lord, who is Creator of the world (cf. Gen. 1:1–2:3; Ps. 74:12–17; 89:5–12; 93:1–5). Associated with the sea are ten stands of bronze (1 Kings 7:27), decorated with lions, oxen, and cherubim (v. 29), each designed to hold a basin smaller than the sea (vv. 30, 38). Five stands with their basins were placed on the south side of the temple along with the sea, and five on the north (v. 39). The basins of v. 40 are not those of vv. 38–39, but different utensils used in cleaning out the altar (cf. Ex. 27:3); the pots and shovels would also have been used for this purpose.

Bronze Basins and Stands

In the temple courtyard there were 10 bronze wheeled stands that held 10 basins filled with water—five on the south side of the temple, five on the north side. They were used to rinse off the animal parts that were used for the burnt offerings (1 Kings 7:27–38; 2 Chron. 4:6). Each stand was 6 feet (1.8 m) long, 6 feet (1.8 m) wide, and 4.5 feet (1.4 m) high. Each basin was 4.5 feet (1.4 m) in diameter and held 240 gallons (909 l) of water.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:23 ten cubits from brim to brim … thirty cubits (in) circumference. The simplest explanation for these figures is that they are given in whole numbers, and are accurate to the degree of detail implied in such numbers. The authors were not trying to give a precise equivalent for pi (which for the ten-cubit diameter would yield a circumference of 31.46 cubits, or less if the diameter were a bit less than 10 cubits).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:25 At Nimrud in Assyria was found a tiny ivory bull used to support a dish or tray on its top. It may have been an object of trade from Syria, and it was manufactured there in the eighth century B.C. It is reminiscent of the “sea of cast metal” that sat on 12 monumental metal oxen at the front of Solomon’s temple.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:48–51 Solomon made all the vessels. Hiram takes responsibility only for the work in bronze, while Solomon has charge of the work in gold. Hiram may himself have been “full of wisdom, understanding, and skill" (v. 14) and a worthy successor, to some extent, to Bezalel; but the authors are eager to portray Solomon as the one who preeminently embodies these qualities (cf. 3:4–15; 4:29).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:1–21 The Ark Brought to the Temple. The ark of the covenant of God, the great symbol of the Lord's presence with his people and the place where the tablets of the law were kept (Ex. 25:10–22; Deut. 10:1–5; Joshua 3–6), had hitherto remained in a tent sanctuary somewhere in the old city of David (2 Sam. 6:16–17; 7:2; 1 Kings 3:15), apart from the brief trip described in 2 Sam. 15:24–29. The temple was now ready to receive it.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:2 the feast in … the seventh month is the Feast of Booths (cf. vv. 65–66; Lev. 23:33–43), during which the Israelites had been instructed to live in temporary shelters as a reminder of the exodus. It was observed in September/October.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:3–4 the priests took up the ark. Not even the elders of Israel are safe in the immediate proximity of the ark (cf. Josh. 3:1–4; 2 Sam. 6:1–7), and only priests could have taken it right into the inner sanctuary (1 Kings 8:6) of the temple. The moving of the ark, along with the tent of meeting (i.e., the tabernacle), symbolized the moving of the "name" of the God of the exodus from a temporary to a more permanent dwelling (cf. 2 Sam. 7:6).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:8 to this day. This phrase appears a number of times in 1–2 Kings when connections are being made between past and present (1 Kings 9:13, 21; 10:12; 12:19; 2 Kings 2:22; 8:22; 14:7; 16:6; 17:23, 34, 41; cf. also 2 Kings 10:27). Since the ark of the covenant had disappeared long before the period in which the books of Kings reached their final form, however, the phrase represents here a survival either from the source documents used when the books were put together or from an earlier (preexilic) version that was later expanded.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:9 Though the ark had once contained the jar of manna and Aaron's rod (Heb. 9:4; see Ex. 16:32–34; Num. 17:10–11), there was now nothing in the ark except the two tablets of stone on which were written the Ten Commandments. "Nothing in the ark" may also anticipate the later observation that nothing on earth can "contain" the Lord (1 Kings 8:27). The ark was simply a witness to God's covenant and a symbol of his real presence; it could not contain him.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:10 A cloud was often associated with God's appearing in the OT (e.g., Ex. 13:21–22; 16:10; 19:9), and a cloud also covered the tabernacle upon its completion in Ex. 40:34–38.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:11 the priests could not stand to minister. The presence of the Lord was so powerful that the priests lost even the strength to stand. Cf. Ex. 40:35; Rev. 15:8.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:12–13 The coming of the ark to the temple and the appearance of the cloud of God's glory are sure signs that the new worship arrangements have the divine blessing (notice the connection to the thick darkness in Ex. 20:21; Deut. 4:11; 5:22). The God of the exodus and Sinai has come to dwell in his temple.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:17 the name of the LORD. In Solomon's speech (vv. 16–20) and also in the prayer that follows (vv. 22–53), the word "name" is used to avoid saying that God himself actually dwells in the temple (cf. also 3:2; 5:3, 5). God's presence in the temple was real (for God's "name" represents all that he is; see note on Acts 10:48), and the people would get his attention by calling his name, but he was not to be thought of as "living" in the temple (as was imagined of the false gods of other nations) in any sense that would detract from the reality of his transcendence.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:22–53 Solomon's Prayer. The ark of the covenant has arrived in the temple (vv. 1–13), and Solomon has addressed the people about the meaning of the event (vv. 14–21). He now turns to address God, reflecting on the nature of God's "dwelling" in the temple and offering a sevenfold petitionary prayer (each section involving a plea that God should "hear from heaven"; vv. 32, 34, 36, 39, 43, 45, 49) for those who will approach him in the temple. The prayer is important for understanding the books of Kings as a whole, for it places both the temple and the law in wider perspective. The temple is an important building, but God is not confined by a building and is certainly not dependent on it. He will survive even its destruction, and will hear his people's prayers when they go into exile. Likewise, obedience to the law is very important, but Solomon holds out hope for restoration, even when the people fail to obey.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:24 In bringing the temple to completion, the Lord has kept the promise he declared to his servant David. Cf. 2 Sam. 7:13.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:27–30 will God indeed dwell on the earth? Though God will dwell in the temple (vv. 10, 13; cf. note on 1 Sam. 4:3–4), it is not to be thought of as the only place where God is, but as a special place where his name is, a place toward which his eyes are open (1 Kings 8:29; cf. Isa. 66:1–3). The hearing of prayer is done in heaven (1 Kings 8:30), which is (if anywhere is) the dwelling place of God. Even then, however, God cannot be limited to any one place; he cannot, strictly speaking, dwell in even the highest heaven (v. 27). He cannot be confined by space.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:31–32 If a man sins against his neighbor. This is the first of seven specific petitions. It concerns a legal case in which difficulties over evidence or witnesses make it impossible to resolve the case in any normal way (cf. 3:16–28). A priestly ritual is involved here (cf. Num. 5:11–31): God himself is invoked as judge to condemn the guilty and clear the righteous individual.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:33–40 When your people Israel are defeated. The second, third, and fourth petitions concern defeat in battle, and subsequent exile from the land (vv. 33–34), drought (vv. 35–36), and assorted perils such as famine, pestilence, and siege (vv. 37–40). In each case the cause of the problem is sin, and the main requirement of the situation is forgiveness, although divine instruction is also requested (v. 36).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:41–43 The fifth petition turns from Israelites to the foreigner who has heard of the Lord’s great name, mighty hand, and outstretched arm (Deut. 4:34; 5:15) and prays toward the temple. Solomon desires that this person, too, would know answered prayer and that all the peoples of the earth should know God’s name and fear him (cf. Isa. 2:1–5; 56:6–8; Luke 7:1–10).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:44–45 If your people go out to battle. The sixth petition, like the second, is concerned with war, but this time the focus is not on defeat as a result of sin but on victory in God’s cause (whatever way you shall send them). The army is envisaged as fighting to bring God’s justice to the earth.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:46–51 carried away captive. The seventh petition returns to the question of defeat and exile, the major concern of the prayer. If exile should take place, and if the people should repent and pray toward land, city, and temple (v. 48; cf. Dan. 6:10 for the practice), then God is asked to regard them once more as his people and maintain their cause (1 Kings 8:49; cf. v. 45). They are the Lord's heritage or inheritance, the people brought out of Egypt (v. 51; cf. Deut. 4:20); Solomon implicitly looks for a "second exodus," from a different land, to match the first one.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:54–9:9 The Temple Narrative Ended. The authors now tell of Solomon's second address to the people (8:54–61), of the conclusion of the festivities associated with the temple's dedication (8:62–66), and of God's second appearance to Solomon, in which he responds to Solomon's prayer with some solemn words about dynasty and temple, people and land (9:1–9).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:54–61 rest to his people Israel. Solomon once again celebrates the fulfillment of God's promises, though this time more broadly than in vv. 15–21. He refers here to the promises given through Moses, alluding in the word "rest" to the establishment of Israel within the land of Canaan. The ultimate purpose of Israel's walking in God's ways is that all the peoples of the earth may know that the LORD is God; there is no other (cf. Deut. 4:35). This idea of Israel's role in the world (cf. 1 Kings 8:41–43) goes all the way back to Gen. 12:1–3 and is found also in passages such as Ex. 19:6, where Israel is to be a "kingdom of priests," mediating from God to his world. Israel's calling is to be a light for the Gentiles (Isa. 49:6), bringing God's salvation to the ends of the earth.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:62–64 offered sacrifice. Chapter 8 closes with an account of the sacrifices offered in the course of the dedication of the temple—so many that the bronze altar outside the temple was not sufficient for the task. Part of the courtyard in front of the temple had to be consecrated for use as well.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:65–66 from Lebo-hamath to the Brook of Egypt. This phrase designates the whole Solomonic empire and is analogous to similar phrases in 4:21, 24 ("from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines and to the border of Egypt"; and "from Tiphsah to Gaza"). Presumably Lebo-hamath ("entrance to Hamath") therefore lay to the north of Hamath itself, which lay in central Syria on the river Orontes. This picture of a happy, unified kingdom stretching from Egypt to the Euphrates (they went to their homes joyful and glad of heart) very much corresponds to the picture in ch. 4.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:2 a second time. The first occasion on which God appeared to Solomon (3:4–15) marked the beginning of his rise to greatness.

This second appearance marks the end point of his upward mobility, and points ahead to disaster.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:4–5 You shall not lack a man on the throne of Israel. Cf. note on 2 Chron. 7:17–18.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:6 if you turn aside from following me, you or your children. Although the place of the temple as a focal point for prayer has been assured by God, as Solomon had asked (v. 3; cf. 8:27–53), and there was also a favorable response to his request about the future of the dynasty (9:4–5; cf. 8:25–26), the future of the temple and the dynasty depends on the obedience of Solomon and of future generations of Israelites. The particular focus here is on the issue of idolatry: the people must not go and serve other gods and worship them.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:7–8 Disobedience will lead to loss of the Promised Land, and the magnificent temple will become a heap of ruins to be scoffed at by those passing by (cf. Deut. 29:22–28; Lam. 1:12; 2:15). Israel will be in fact transformed from a nation proverbial for its wisdom (1 Kings 4:21–34) into a nation that is itself a proverb and a byword. This word pair comes directly from the list of covenant curses in Deuteronomy 28 (v. 37), a chapter that lies behind so much of the prayer of 1 Kings 8:22–53. This prayer has assumed the inevitability of sin (esp. 8:46), making it clear that the "if" in 9:6 cannot be anything other than a "when" in reality (8:46); obedience will inevitably give way to apostasy. A dark cloud now looms over the Solomonic empire.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:10–10:29 Glory under a Cloud. Solomon's rule over the surrounding kingdoms, combined with his status in the world in general (4:21–34), put him in a position to build and dedicate the temple (5:1–8:66). First Kings 9:10–10:29 now considers the glory of this Solomonic empire in the light of 8:22–53 and 9:1–9. Earlier themes are picked up again (Solomon's dealings with Hiram; his use of forced labor; foreigners coming to listen to his great wisdom), but they are repeated in a way that hints not of wisdom but of foolishness. The glory of the Solomonic empire is glory under a cloud, destined to fade away.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:10–13 twenty cities in the land of Galilee. The fortress at Rosh Zayit lay in the border area between Israel and Phoenicia at this time. Excavations there have found that spaces between walls have been filled in with wood from the cedars of Lebanon. The site perhaps represents a fortress built by Israel with Phoenician materials and then given to Hiram of Tyre along with 19 other cities (v. 11).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:10 At the end of twenty years would be c. 946 B.C.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:11 Hiram king of Tyre was first encountered in 5:1–18, where Solomon's wise dealings with him were described. In one sense 9:10–14 simply confirms the impression gained there, that Hiram is the "junior partner" in his relationship with Solomon. The gold mentioned in v. 11 was not referenced in the agreement struck between the two kings in 5:1–18, but Hiram nevertheless supplied Solomon with as much as he desired. Solomon in turn "rewards" him with twenty cities of dubious worth.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:13 land of Cabul. The name probably comes from Hebrew kabal, from which is derived the noun kebel ("fetters") that is found in Ps. 149:8, a psalm that celebrates the supremacy of Israel over the nations. Hiram calls the land "fettered" because this word reflects the nature of his relationship with Solomon, as can be seen in his continuing willingness, even though he is displeased, to send men to sea to bring back more treasures for the Israelite king (1 Kings 9:26–28; 10:11–12, 22).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:14 The references to gold in this Hiram story are only the first of many mentions of this metal in the current section of 1 Kings (cf. v. 28; 10:2, 10–11, 14, 16–18, 21–22, 25). Solomon accumulates gold in extraordinarily large and increasing amounts (120 talents in 9:14; 420 in 9:28; 666 in 10:14; 10:10 is the exception). The gold is indeed collected from more and more exotic places (9:28; 10:22). This emphasis on gold throughout 9:10–10:29 is striking when this section of Kings is compared with the description of Solomon's glory in chs. 4–5. There prosperity is described in terms of food rather than precious metals, and the emphasis lies not on luxury at the royal court but on the way that prosperity was shared with the king's subjects. It is also striking that 9:6–9 has just warned about "turning away from God," and biblical texts associate the accumulation of wealth with apostasy (e.g., Deut. 17:17; Prov. 30:8). God may well have given Solomon riches, but will they lead him astray?

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:15–25 the account of the forced labor. This is another section that refers the reader back to 5:1–18. Here it is clarified that Solomon did not use his task force of 30,000 only for the temple but also for his other building operations, and that it did not include his Israelite subjects (who had other jobs to do), but only Canaanite laborers. The significance of this delayed clarification becomes clear in the authors' associating these Canaanites with Pharaoh's daughter (9:24). She was first introduced (waiting for her palace) in 3:1, using language reminiscent of the Deuteronomic warnings about intermarriage with foreigners (Deut. 7:1–6; precisely those Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites mentioned in 1 Kings 9:20) because of the danger of apostasy. Their appearance here along with Pharaoh's daughter serves to prepare the reader for Solomon's apostasy. He will be seduced by the other gods (11:2), even though he is for the moment an orthodox worshiper in the temple (9:25).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:15 Excavations at Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer have revealed extensive building for fortification and government from the Solomonic period. All three sites include four entry gates that are connected to an outer casemate wall system. Megiddo in particular, with its palaces and stables/storehouses, provides a good picture of a Solomonic royal city. the Millo. See note on 2 Sam. 5:9.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:17–19 A series of fortresses have been discovered in the central Negev, which appear to have been part of a defensive network built during the time of Solomon in the tenth century B.C. Their purpose was to provide a solid line of defense against invasion from the south, particularly from Egypt. The fortresses were occupied for only a short time (50 years at the most).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:26–28 Many scholars have tried to identify Ezion-geber with the modern Tell el-Kheleifeh, but this site was not settled until the eighth century B.C., at least 200 years after Solomon's time.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:1 queen of Sheba. Cf. note on 2 Chron. 9:1–9, 12. It is not only gold that arrives from Arabia ("Ophir" in 1 Kings 9:28) but also a queen who comes to test Solomon with hard questions, another theme picked up from earlier in the narrative (cf. the worldwide fame of Solomon in 4:29–34, which attracts foreigners to his court). The ease with which Solomon deals with her questions, combined with her own observation of his wealth, leaves her breathless (10:5).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:3 there was nothing hidden from the king that he could not explain to her. Solomon's wisdom, given by God, was unprecedented in the entire world, and it amazes this foreign queen (v. 4).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:8 Happy are your men! Happy are your servants. When the authors of 1–2 Kings described the joyful kingdom back in ch. 4, they stressed the benefits of Solomon's wisdom for all his subjects (4:20, 25). The queen of Sheba, however, refers much more specifically to the blessing that Solomon must be to his court officials. While Solomon's wisdom and wealth are still remarkable, and are still evidence of God's abundant blessing, it seems that his great wisdom, wealth, and power have begun to distort his moral judgment in the proper use of these blessings. Chapter 10 as a whole in fact focuses on this benefit that wisdom brings to the royal court, and particularly to Solomon himself, rather than on any benefit that might flow out to the people. The influx of food described in chs. 4–5 has been replaced by an influx of luxury goods (10:2, 10–12, 22, 25).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:10–13 The queen's gift of 120 talents of gold (9,000 pounds/4,080 kg) is a remarkably large amount, yet in context it does not compare with Solomon's wealth. Solomon was already receiving much more gold than this (notice that her gift is exactly the same size as Hiram's first installment in 9:14, now superseded by his second in 9:28), as well as unparalleled amounts of valuable almug wood. Solomon was a vastly wealthier person than the queen, something that is underlined in 10:13. What she gives to him pales in relation to what he gives to her.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:14–25 weight of gold. The accumulation of gold continues; it is mentioned no fewer than 11 times in vv. 14, 16–18, 21–22, 25. Solomon decorates his palace with it (v. 16); overlays the finest throne ever seen with it (vv. 18–20); and makes household items with it (v. 21). It arrives in Israel by various means, including ships of Tarshish (v. 22), ships capable of a journey to such a far-flung western port (see Isa. 66:19; Ezek. 27:12–15; Jonah 1:3). These ships are said to have sailed to lands so distant that it took three years to return with their extraordinary cargo.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:26–29 chariots and horsemen … silver. The accumulation of silver and horses, as well as gold, is forbidden by Deut. 17:16–17 (see note on 1 Kings 4:28). The significant addition to the theme here is the detail that Solomon's import of horses was from Egypt (10:28). All but one of the instructions about kingship in Deut. 17:16–17 have thus far been violated by Solomon. That remaining one (he must not take many wives) will be taken up in 1 Kings 11.

Solomon’s International Ventures

c. 950 B.C.

Solomon’s firm control of important trade routes linking Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia (Asia Minor) provided him with incalculable wealth. Partnering with King Hiram of Tyre, Solomon also launched his own trading expeditions to Ophir to acquire valuable and exotic goods. The queen of Sheba’s visit to Solomon attests to his great fame throughout the ancient world. Solomon further augmented his wealth by buying horses from Kue and chariots from Egypt and selling them to the kings of Syria and the Hittites.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:1–43 Solomon’s Apostasy, Opponents, and Death. Throughout chs. 1–10 the reader has received hints that all is not well with Solomon’s heart: 3:1–3 juxtaposed his love for God with suggestions of divided loyalties revealed in his choice of marriage partner; 4:26 and 4:28 told of his accumulation of horses; 6:38–7:1 pursued the question of building project priorities; and 10:26–29 did the same with regard to horses, in a context in which the topic of Solomon's great wealth was introduced and the marriage question again briefly addressed. Since the prayer of 8:22–53 and God's response to it in 9:1–9 have made clear both the importance of keeping the law and the consequences of disobedience, 9:10–10:29 sounded ominous; and now the authors reveal the inevitable consequences of all that has gone before. Solomon's sins have led him to apostasy.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:1–4 Solomon loved many foreign women … clung to these in love. Solomon loved (Hb. 'ahab, 3:3) the Lord, but he also loved (Hb. 'ahab) the daughter of Pharaoh and many other women, and he clung (Hb. dabaq) to them (11:2). Both verbs appear in Deuteronomy (Deut. 6:5; 10:12, 20; 11:1, 22; 13:4; 30:20), where they speak of unswerving human loyalty to God. Solomon's heart, however, was divided (1 Kings 11:4); and in spite of his pious hope that God would always turn Israelite hearts to himself (8:58), the king's wives, in his old age, turned away his heart in the opposite direction, after other gods.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:5 At ancient Ugarit in Syria the sun was worshiped as Shapash, the moon as Yarikh, and Venus as Astarte. Ashtoreth is the biblical name for Astarte (a deliberate distortion of the original using the vowels of the Hb. word boshet, "shame"). Milcom was a god of the underworld.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:6 Individual kings are characteristically assessed in 1–2 Kings in terms of whether on the whole they "did what was right" or what was evil in the eyes of the Lord (e.g., 1 Kings 15:11, 26, 34); Judean kings are additionally said to be like David or not (e.g., 15:3, 11).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:7–8 The worship of other gods at high places lies at the very heart of the authors' concern in 1–2 Kings (e.g., 1 Kings 12:25–33; 14:23; 16:31–33). Chemosh was the chief god of the Moabites, already known in ancient Ebla in Syria as Kamish and probably to be identified with the Mesopotamian deity Nergal, an underworld god associated with famine, drought, plague, and death. Molech is possibly, but not certainly, to be identified with Milcom in 11:5. The biblical authors associate Molech with child sacrifice, which was a prominent feature of at least some of the polytheistic Canaanite religion practiced in ancient times in Syria-Palestine.

This sacrificing involved the burning of the victim (e.g., Lev. 18:21; 2 Kings 16:3; 21:6; Jer. 32:35).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:9–13 the LORD was angry with Solomon … I will surely tear the kingdom from you. This is what 2:4; 8:25; and 9:4–5 have led the reader to expect. Yet the punishment is unexpectedly mitigated: I will not do it in your days (11:12). … I will not tear away all the kingdom (v. 13). One tribe remains out of grace, for the sake of David my servant and for the sake of Jerusalem that I have chosen.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:14–25 In 5:4, Solomon told Hiram, in the midst of God's blessing, that he had peace on every side (no adversary). Now the blessing has departed and the peace is fractured. Two men who had hitherto not caused Solomon significant problems are now raised up by God to oppose the apostate king in his old age. The first is Hadad, a victim of David's wars (2 Sam. 8:13–14); the second is Rezon, who had apparently either escaped from the battle described in 2 Sam. 8:3–4 or fled from Hadadezer later, unwilling to submit to imperial rule from Jerusalem. Damascus, from ancient times a major site on the main caravan route from Africa to Mesopotamia, now becomes the capital of the Aramean kingdom of Syria, which will rise to become a significant power in the region during the divided monarchy in Israel. Syria will often be in conflict with Israel and Judah but will sometimes ally with them against common foes. The kingdom will ultimately be absorbed into the Assyrian Empire as a result of the campaigns of Tiglath-pileser III in 733–732 B.C. Rezon opposes Solomon from the north, Hadad from the south; and where the king once had peace on all sides, he now finds enemies.

Solomon's Enemies

c. 950 B.C.

Though Solomon held a firm grip on his kingdom throughout his lifetime, there were still those who worked to subvert his rule. Hadad was a member of the royal family of Edom who fled to Egypt to escape David's purge of all Edomite males. He would later return to Edom to oppose Solomon. Rezon was originally an outlaw in Zobah who gathered a bandit army and established himself as king in Damascus. Jeroboam originally oversaw one of Solomon's forced labor units, but Ahijah's prophecy foretelling Jeroboam's eventual rule over 10 Israelite tribes caused Solomon to seek to kill him, so he fled to Egypt.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:26–33 Solomon's most important enemy, Jeroboam the son of Nebat, was to be found right on his doorstep. He was the former superintendent of the forced labor of the house of Joseph, those who had been helping with the construction work in Jerusalem (vv. 27–28). He was approached outside the city by the prophet Ahijah (v. 29) with a prophecy concerning the kingship. The scene is reminiscent of the rejection of Saul in 1 Samuel 15; in both passages an outer garment is torn as a symbol of the fact that God is tearing the kingdom away from the reigning king (cf. 1 Sam. 15:27–28; 1 Kings 11:11). The garment here is divided into 12 pieces, of which ten, symbolizing 10 northern tribes, are given to Jeroboam (vv. 30–31). One tribe is to remain for the sake of David and Jerusalem (i.e., Judah). Benjamin is not included in the math here (cf. 12:21), perhaps because this tribe was regarded simply as Jerusalem's own territory, on the analogy of the Canaanite city-state; this territory came with the city, and needed no special mention.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:34–39 a lamp before me in Jerusalem. The mitigation of vv. 13–14 is repeated, although in a slightly different way. Solomon will lose no tribes during his lifetime; and his son is to have one tribe, so that the Davidic flame will always burn. In fact, although Jeroboam has been promised that he can also have a dynasty like David's if he is obedient (v. 38), this promise already conceals within it the expectation of failure; the division of the kingdom in v. 39 is not forever.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:43 The oft-repeated "he slept with his fathers" (see note on 2:10) reflected the reality that almost all Israelite burials were in multichambered, rock-hewn tombs carved into hillsides. They were probably used as family tombs, so that even in death family ties were underscored.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:1–14:31 The Kingdom Is Divided. The kingdom is now torn away, as threatened in ch. 11. Two kingdoms emerge: Judah and Israel, ruled by Rehoboam and Jeroboam respectively.

*This chart follows the dating method found in both Kings and Chronicles: For Judah, accession to the throne is marked by a year within the reign of a king of Israel. Parentheses—e.g., 39 (40)—indicate non-accession year dating (year of accession is counted in the totals of both the predecessor and the new king). The actual number of years in a reign can be determined by subtracting 1 from the number given (40 – 1 = 39 actual years).

The verses cited in 1–2 Kings do not include the initial mention of a ruler, which occurs in reference to the death of his father (e.g., Abijam in 1 Kings 14:31).

The Kingdom Divides

When Solomon’s son Rehoboam arrived at Shechem for his coronation after his father’s death, he refused to lighten his father’s heavy tax burden on the people, and the 10 northern tribes revolted and set up Jeroboam as their king. The northern kingdom would now be known as Israel and the southern kingdom as Judah. Five years later, Shishak (also called Sheshonq) king of Egypt invaded Judah and Israel and captured a number of towns. Rehoboam avoided Jerusalem’s destruction by paying off Shishak with many of the treasures Solomon had placed in the temple.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:1–33 The Kingdom Torn Away. As Moses once led his people out from slavery under the Egyptian pharaoh, so Jeroboam now leads Israel out from "slavery" under the house of David; but "Jeroboam as Moses" is soon transformed into "Jeroboam as Aaron" as he fashions golden calves for Israel to worship. Such idolatrous worship will eventually result in disaster for Israel.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:1 Shechem is a place of covenant renewal (Josh. 24:1–27), and the place also where kingship first briefly intruded itself into the tribal life of Israel (Judges 9). It is the ideal place for a prospective king to be invited and confronted with the question of how he is going to exercise his kingship.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:4 Your father made our yoke heavy. Solomon's regime in the latter years has been unduly harsh. The Israelites are no longer a people living in freedom in the Promised Land; they have become once more a people under hard service, as they were in Egypt (Ex. 1:14; 2:23). They toil as oxen would under a heavy yoke.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:10–11 My little finger is thicker than my father's thighs. The foolish advice of the younger men to Rehoboam is literally in Hebrew "my little one is thicker than my father's thighs," most likely a reference to his sexual organ rather than a literal finger. Power and sexual potency were very much connected in the ancient Near East (see ch. 1). The equally obscure scorpions (12:11) is probably a reference to a particularly vicious form of whip.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:14 I will add to your yoke. In reacting in this way, Rehoboam is behaving exactly as Pharaoh had behaved before him, responding to the words of Moses by increasing the oppression (cf. Ex. 5:1–21).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:15 a turn of affairs brought about by the LORD. Amid all the human decisions, God's decision is being carried through, as was the case with the hardening of Pharaoh's heart (Ex. 4:21; 7:3–4, 13).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:16 What portion do we have in David? Kingship cannot be imposed on the people but must have their consent, so they take upon their lips a cry that is similar to that of Sheba in 2 Sam. 20:1, and they leave for their tents.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:18 Adoram. It is not clear whether this is the person mentioned in 4:6 and 5:14. He comes not to reimpose conditions of forced labor on Israel (since Israel has not yet been under such conditions; 9:15–23), but to initiate them. If the Israelites think their experience under Solomon was the "hard service" of Egypt, they are to discover now that this was as nothing compared to life under the proposed new regime. This regime will regard them as if they were Canaanites.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:24 they listened to the word of the LORD and went home. At least for now a war is averted, but this peace does not last long. The reader will later learn of continual war between north and south throughout the period after the division of the kingdoms (14:30; 15:6, 16), until the two sides see that they are indeed relatives (12:24; cf. ch. 22, esp. v. 44) and should accept the status quo.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:25–33 A ritual complex from the ninth century B.C. has been discovered at Tell Dan. It consists of a square enclosure with a raised platform inside, perhaps as a base for a temple, and a sacrificial altar. This sacred center is possibly what remains of what Jeroboam erected at the site of Dan.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:25 Jeroboam built Shechem … Penuel. The first task undertaken by Jeroboam was the obvious one of defense. He fortified (built up) two major cities.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:27–28 two calves of gold. Fear that the presence of the temple of the LORD at Jerusalem will lead northern Israel to return to Rehoboam leads Jeroboam to invent his own worship system, central to which are these calves. His words to the people about them—Behold your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt—are almost exactly the words with which the people greeted the construction of the calf by Aaron (Ex. 32:4). These bull icons were unacceptable as representations of the Lord, since Mosaic religion requires a clear distinction between the Creator and the created. The worship of bull icons as representations of other gods was more unacceptable still. It blurs the distinction between the Lord and other gods, a blurring already in evidence in 1 Kings 14:15 (see note). The high god of the Canaanite pantheon, El, is frequently called "the bull" in ancient texts from Ugarit in Syria, and his son Baal-hadad (the biblical Baal) is himself also represented as a bull. The bull is further associated in Sumerian and Akkadian texts with the worship of the moon god Sin, and in Egyptian texts with the high god Amon-Re. A cult site from c. 1200 B.C. has been found on a hill in northern Samaria. Among the remains was a bull figurine with well-defined genitalia, representing fertility and potency. Baal worship was probably occurring at this high place. Judges 6:25 reveals that a rogue Baal cult was in practice among Israelites.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:29–33 Jeroboam builds centers of worship within his own territory to rival Jerusalem—one in the far north (Dan) and one in the far south (Bethel). This represents the proliferation of "high places" about which the authors of 1–2 Kings are so deeply concerned (see 1 Kings 3:2). The sanctuary at Bethel is the more important of the two for these authors, for it is here that Jeroboam invests the major part of his effort to set up his new worship arrangements. He builds a temple at this high place, appoints priests to service it who had not been set apart by God for such service, and invents a central feast to celebrate in it—a version of the Feast of Booths (or Tabernacles), celebrated in Jerusalem in the seventh month (cf. 8:2; Lev. 23:33–43), but now in northern Israel in the eighth month. Aaron, too, having made his golden calf, built an altar and announced a festival on a date devised from his own heart (cf. Ex. 32:5); and on that occasion, too, the Levites were not involved in the celebrations (Ex. 32:26). It is false worship, and Jeroboam's action in leading the people into it will constantly be referred to in the rest of 1–2 Kings (e.g., 1 Kings 15:26, 34; 16:26). This worship is Israel's characteristic sin that eventually leads the people to exile in a foreign land (2 Kings 17:20–23).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:1–34 The Man of God from Judah. Jeroboam stands at the altar of his new temple in Bethel as Solomon had stood at his altar in Jerusalem (8:22), ready to dedicate it to his gods; but since this temple has no legitimacy, he does not get a chance to speak.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:2 The prophetic words about the future king Josiah point forward to a time when all the northern Israelite dynasties have come to an end, and only the house of David remains to take action against Bethel (2 Kings 22:1–23:30).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:3–5 Since Josiah's reign is still a long way off, a sign is also described and then enacted, indicating that the prophecy is true: the altar … was torn down, and the ashes poured out from the altar. This demonstration of God's power strikingly illustrates the truth that God is not under Jeroboam's control just because he has invented a new worship system, any more than God's prophet is under royal control when the king's hand stretches out to capture him, and the king experiences an immediate judgment from God: he could not draw it back to himself.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:7–32 Jeroboam's invitation to the man of God to dine and receive a reward is best understood as an attempt to buy his loyalty, perhaps hoping for the curse on the altar to be reversed. The invitation from the old prophet living in Bethel is best understood in the same way (v. 15), as an attempt to stave off the destruction of Bethel (and the desecration of his own tomb that he knows must follow the Judean's words of v. 2; see v. 32). No doubt concern about the possibility of such a corruption of the man of God lay behind the detailed instructions given to him about his journey (vv. 9, 17)—that he should go directly to Bethel and come directly back, not even stopping to eat and drink; and that he should vary his route so that he could not be easily found and prevented from completing his mission (he should not return by the way that he came). Disobedience leads him to an unfortunate end: a lion meets him on the road and kills him (vv. 23–25)—a lion ordained by God and behaving quite out of character (the lion had not eaten the body or torn the donkey, v. 28). True prophecy will bring forth the judgment it promises. Even prophets cannot escape if they are disobedient. Bethel will indeed be destroyed (v. 32), and by extension all the other houses of the high places in Samaria, for which Bethel provides the focal point. The name "Samaria" is used here by extension for the territory of which the city of Samaria became the capital under Omri, the father of Ahab (16:24).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:33–34 did not turn from his evil way, but made priests … again. The Hebrew is literally "did not return from his evil way, but returned and made priests," playing on the verb shub ("to return") earlier in the story (vv. 16, 18, 19, 20, 22, 23, 26, 29) and particularly on the phrase "return by the way" in vv. 9, 10, 17. The man of God was told not to retrace his steps at any point on his journey, but he did so in order to return to the prophet's house (vv. 19, 22). Because he allowed himself to be brought back alive ("returned") by this prophet (vv. 18, 20, 23, 26), he was eventually brought back dead (v. 29), as God's judgment fell upon him. In spite of this, Jeroboam also "retraces his steps," and this too will bring downfall and destruction (v. 34).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:1–20 The End of Jeroboam. Jeroboam had been promised a dynasty ("house") just like David's (11:38). His desire also to have a temple ("house") just like David's, however, led him into disobedience, and ch. 13 has just revealed what happens to the disobedient. First Kings 14:1–20 now describes what happened as a result of Jeroboam's desire to have the two "houses" he wanted instead of the one he was promised.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:2 disguise yourself. In spite of the events of ch. 13, Jeroboam still thinks he can control his world, using religion to his own advantage. He apparently believes that he can fool the old prophet Ahijah into giving him a positive message about his son. The theme of royal disguise appears in other places in the OT where the point is made that God, not the king, will determine the course of events (e.g., 1 Samuel 28; 1 Kings 20:35–43; 22:29–38; 2 Chron. 35:20–27).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:6 I am charged with unbearable news. Jeroboam's wife has been sent to Ahijah to find out about her sick child; she discovers when she arrives at the prophet's house that he has also been sent to her with a message about the kingship.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:10 Since Jeroboam has failed to be like David (v. 8) and has worshiped other gods as Solomon did (v. 9), his dynasty will come to an end for lack of male descendants. The Hebrew behind "every male" is literally "he who urinates against a wall" (see also 1 Sam. 25:22, 34; 1 Kings 16:11; 21:21; 2 Kings 9:8), and the imagery is thus connected to that of God's judgment (as a man burns up dung or excrement until it is all gone). God is going to clean up Jeroboam's house. The Hebrew behind bond and free appears on four other occasions in the OT (Deut. 32:36; 1 Kings 21:21; 2 Kings 9:8; and, in a slightly different form, 2 Kings 14:26). It is a difficult phrase to interpret, but probably is an idiom for the ability of the males of the royal house to be of strong help to the king; neither those who are important to Jeroboam in this regard nor those who are not will be able to assist him. A contrast with David's dynasty is seen here: David "shall not lack" (lit., "there shall not be cut off for David") a descendant on the throne (1 Kings 2:4; 8:25; 9:5), but Jeroboam's descendants will be cut off.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:11 Jeroboam's dynasty will come to a dishonorable end, since the bodies mentioned will not be buried but will be eaten by dogs and birds (cf. 1 Sam. 31:8–13 for the importance of proper burial in Israel). Only Jeroboam's son Abijah will escape this fate (1 Kings 14:13).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:15 the LORD will strike Israel. Ahijah turns from the immediate situation to what will happen in the distant future. In the absence of a strong dynasty to rule Israel, this nation is destined to know only the instability of a reed … shaken (or “swaying”) in the water. Eventually the Israelites will suffer exile from the good land that he gave to their fathers to a land beyond the Euphrates River. The political instability of which Ahijah speaks is well described in the following account of the northern kingdom; the land beyond the Euphrates, it will turn out, is Assyria (2 Kings 17:1–6, 21–23). The idolatrous worship that lies at the root of Israel’s problem is here summed up in terms of the making of Asherim, or Asherah poles. The goddess Asherah is known from Ugaritic texts under the name Athirat, the wife of the chief god El and the mother of the gods. In syncretistic Israelite circles she inevitably appears as the wife of the Lord. The Asherim were cult symbols connected with the worship of this goddess, probably wooden artifacts representing a tree (cf. Deut. 16:21, which suggests that sometimes an “Asherah” could actually be a tree; Hos. 4:12).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:17 Jeroboam has apparently moved his royal court to Tirzah, although this was not previously mentioned in the narrative.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:19 the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. The authors of Kings specifically claim to have had access to written sources of information about the monarchic period, both for Israel and for Judah (v. 29; 15:7, 23, 31; 16:5, 14, 20, 27; 22:39, 45; 2 Kings 1:18; 8:23; 10:34; 12:19; 13:8, 12; 14:15, 18, 28; 15:6, 11, 15, 21, 26, 31, 36; 16:19; 20:20; 21:17, 25; 23:28; 24:5). The reference here is to Israelite royal annals, preserved in palace archives and temple libraries or archives along with foreign annals and inscriptions of various kinds. No copy of any of these chronicles remains today; they are not found in the Bible, and they are different from the books of 1 and 2 Chronicles. By the end of the second millennium B.C. and the beginning of the first, literacy was widespread in and around Palestine, and writing was being employed in legal, business, literary, and religious texts. In Iron Age Israel itself, from 1200 B.C. all the way to the fall of Judah in 587–586, writing was a pervasive phenomenon.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:21–31 The End of Rehoboam. The story of Rehoboam’s reign, begun in ch. 12, has been delayed as the authors have followed Jeroboam through rebellion to idolatry and judgment, and on to death. They now return to what has been happening in Judah in the meantime.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:22–24 Judah did what was evil. It is a marked feature of 1–2 Kings that each king mentioned is evaluated in terms of his commitment to the Lord, or lack of it, as evidenced by his religious policies (see note on 1 Kings 1 Kings 11:6; and chart). Here, however, the emphasis falls on the nation as a whole rather than simply on the king himself; the whole nation has become involved in idolatrous worship. The text thus looks ahead to the end of Judah, just as was the case with Israel (14:15). God will drive Judah out of the Promised Land just as he "drove out" the various peoples that lived there before because of their abominations.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:23 High places and Asherim (see notes on 3:2; 14:15) as aspects of the idolatrous worship of Judah are mentioned alongside pillars (Hb. matstsebot), which Deut. 12:3 lists among the Canaanite cult objects that the people must destroy upon entry to the land. These pillars were upright standing stones of various sizes, dedicated to particular deities and sometimes bearing the image and inscription of a deity.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:24 male cult prostitutes. One aspect of the syncretistic worship of Judah under Rehoboam was religiously legitimized prostitution within the sanctuary. It is possible that the sexual intercourse envisaged had a specifically ritual character, designed to persuade the gods and goddesses to act in a similar way and deliver, through their intercourse, fertility to the land and to the community (cf. Hos. 4:1–19).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:25–26 Shishak king of Egypt has often been identified with the pharaoh Sheshonq I (945–924 B.C.), founder of the Twenty-second Dynasty in Egypt, whose army apparently passed through Judah on its way to fight in northern Israel. If Shishak is Sheshonq, one must imagine that he did not attack Jerusalem on his way north precisely because Rehoboam bought him off with the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house. This is the first of a series of notices in 1–2 Kings about the loss of treasure from the temple and the palace (1 Kings 15:18; 2 Kings 14:14; 16:8; 18:15–16; 24:13), the culmination of which will come in 2 Kings 25. A monumental relief on the Bubastite Portal of the main temple of Amon at Karnak (near Luxor, in Egypt) catalogs, town by town, Shishak's military incursion into Israel and Judah. The Karnak relief provides striking verification of the biblical account.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:29 the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah. See note on 14:19.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:1–24 Abijam and Asa. The authors continue to tell about the kings of Judah before returning to pick up the threads of the history of Israel with Nadab, son of Jeroboam. Abijam (vv. 1–8) is a characteristically bad Judean king, indulging in the idolatry of Solomon in his later days and of Rehoboam; Asa (vv. 9–24) is a characteristically good Judean king, behaving relatively faithfully like David and the earlier Solomon. These two set the pattern for all the Judean kings who follow, who are measured in terms of whether they have been "like David" or not.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:2–3 If Abishalom (v. 2) is the same as David's son Absalom, one should remember that the Hebrew terms daughter and father (as well as "mother," v. 10) do not necessarily refer to first-generation descent, and can mean "granddaughter" and "forefather" (and "grandmother").

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:4 a lamp in Jerusalem. See note on 11:34–39.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:5 David was basically committed to God, although even he had sinned in the matter of Uriah the Hittite (with Uriah's wife, Bathsheba, 1 Samuel 11).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:6–7 there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam … between Abijam and Jeroboam. This puzzling juxtaposition is presumably designed to emphasize the continuity between the two wars; the feud between the houses of Rehoboam and Jeroboam that began with the events of ch. 12 is still rumbling on. On the Chronicles of the Kings, see note on 14:19.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:10–11 Asa reigned forty-one years, from 910 to 869 B.C. On the generations depicted by mother, daughter, and father, see note on vv. 2–3.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:12 He put away the male cult prostitutes. See note on 14:24.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:13 The queen mother played an important role within the family politics of the court, as an adviser of the king and as teacher of the royal children. abominable image for Asherah. This is another object associated with the worship of the goddess Asherah to go alongside the Asherim mentioned in 14:15, 23. On the brook Kidron, see note on 2 Chron. 15:16.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:14–15 the high places were not taken away. By removing the high places Asa could have focused his reforms upon worship in Jerusalem, but otherwise he was commended for his religious policy; he was faithful enough to bring into the house of the LORD the sacred gifts of his father and his own sacred gifts. When 2 Chron. 14:3 says that Asa removed the high places, this should be taken as meaning some but not all of them (cf. 2 Chron. 15:17).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:17 Baasha king of Israel. Asa's reign in Judah was a long one, and he saw five Israelite kings rise and fall before the infamous Ahab began his rule (16:29). Baasha is the second of these (15:33–16:7), and he finds Asa's military position so precarious that he is able to push into Benjamin and fortify (build up) Ramah, only a few miles north of Jerusalem.

War between Israel and Judah

As Israel and Judah battled each other to determine their permanent border, King Baasha of Israel attempted to restrict access to Judah by moving the border down to Ramah. Rather than fight with Baasha himself, King Asa of Judah bribed Ben-hadad of Syria to attack the northern border of Israel and force Baasha to withdraw from Ramah. Once Baasha withdrew, Asa carried away the building supplies of Ramah and used them to fortify Mizpah (further north) and Geba (near the pass at Michmash).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:18–19 Asa took all the silver and the gold. Asa was forced to send a substantial bribe to Damascus to try to buy a new friend, reviving the treaty between his father Abijah and the previous Syrian king Tabrimmon (cf. note on 2 Chron. 16:2–5). A marker dedicated to the god Baal Melqart has been found at Aleppo in northern Syria. It bears an Aramaic inscription that mentions Barhada, son of Tabrimmon, son of Hezion.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:23 Chronicles of the Kings. See note on 14:19.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:25–16:34 From Nadab to Ahab. The fulfillment of the prophecy against the house of Jeroboam has been delayed until it has been made clear how differently God treats the house of David, whose wicked kings do not bring the downfall of the dynasty "because for David's sake the Lord his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem" (15:4). Now, however, everything turns out as Ahijah had prophesied in ch. 14.

Evaluating Kings of Israel and Judah in 1–2 Kings

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:29 He left to the house of Jeroboam not one that breathed. Baasha fulfills the prophecy of 14:10–11.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:31 Chronicles of the Kings (also 16:5). See note on 14:19.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:1–7 God's judgment would come upon Baasha and his house (v. 3; cf. v. 11) both because of his being like the house of Jeroboam and because he destroyed Jeroboam's house (v. 7; cf. 15:29). The fact that God had ordained that Jeroboam's house be destroyed did not absolve Baasha of moral responsibility for his actions. Similar revulsion to bloodshed is expressed in Hos. 1:4, even though that bloodshed was also God-ordained, according to 1 Kings 21:21–24 (cf. 2 Kings 9:14–10:17).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:11 he struck down all the house of Baasha. Zimri in turn fulfills the word of the prophet Jehu (v. 7), although he then reigns for only seven days (v. 15)—just before the civil war described in vv. 21–22, from which Omri emerges as king.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:14 Chronicles of the Kings (also vv. 20, 27). See note on 14:19.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:17 Omri attacked Zimri at Tirzah. This site is probably to be identified with modern Tell el-Farah that was excavated in the 1940s. The first Iron Age level at the site is covered by an ash layer, which indicates a destruction, perhaps Omri's capture of the city.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:24 The only recorded events of Omri's reign are the purchase of the hill of Samaria and the building of a new northern capital on it. The authors of 1–2 Kings did not consider anything else of any great importance, even though Omri's house held the throne for over 100 years and the northern kingdom in due course became so identified with this dynasty that even after the Omride period it could be referred to in Assyrian records as "the land of Omri." This suggests that Omri was a more substantial international figure than could be deduced simply from 1 Kings. Archaeologists have determined that the city of Samaria was inhabited from the time of Omri (c. 886–875 B.C.) till it was destroyed by the Assyrians in 722.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:31–33 went and served Baal and worshiped him … made an Asherah. The last and worst of the Israelite kings who ruled during the reign of Asa in Judah (see note on 15:17) was Ahab son of Omri. He added to the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat a marriage to a foreign woman, Jezebel, who inevitably led him into the worship of a foreign god, Baal. Baal is not strictly a name but a title (meaning "lord") for the ancient Semitic god Hadad—"Lord Hadad" (Baal-hadad)—first known from the ancient city of Ebla in northwestern Syria and from Egypt, but most thoroughly understood through the Ugaritic texts from Ras Shamra on the Syrian coast. These texts depict Baal (Hadad) as a storm god; the fertility of the land depends on his sending rain. He is son of the high god El and husband of the goddess Anat; his enemies are Yam ("Sea") and Mot ("Death"); his weapons are thunder and lightning; and his symbolic representation is the bull. Baal worship presented an attractive alternative or supplement to the worship of the Lord (Yahweh) for many Israelites throughout their time in Canaan, no doubt partly because that land was so utterly dependent on rain for its fertility. On "Asherah," see note on 14:15.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:34 Hiel … built Jericho. … at the cost of Abiram his firstborn, and … his youngest son Segub. Joshua had pronounced a curse on anyone who might rebuild Jericho (Josh. 6:26), and the authors of 1–2 Kings understand this curse as the prophetic word of the LORD. Although the text does not say specifically how the two sons of Hiel died, it is possible that he offered them in sacrifice, or that they died as a special judgment from God, in fulfillment of Joshua's curse. Child sacrifice was a prominent feature among the polytheistic Canaanite religions of the day. Israel's Scriptures, however, were steadfastly opposed to any such practice. Solomon's altars for Chemosh and Molech (1 Kings 11:7) could have been the point of entry of this pagan abomination into Israel, and the Phoenician Jezebel would have encouraged it. If the sons of Hiel died by sacrifice, this would be evidence of the difference between Israel's past under Joshua and its present under an apostate monarchy; Israelites no longer conquer the Canaanites at Jericho but rather embrace their religion there.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1–22:40 Elijah and Ahab. Before this time no prophet addressed the house of Omri as Israel's earlier royal houses had been addressed (cf. 14:7–13; 16:1–4), but now Elijah is introduced. His announcement of doom on the house of Omri will be delayed, however, until 21:21–24. His first task is to tackle the problem of the Baal worship that Ahab has introduced into Israel in 16:31–32, and to demonstrate beyond all doubt that Baal is no more a god in any real sense than are Jeroboam's bull calves.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1–24 Elijah and the Drought. Chapter 17 provides the context—a divinely ordained drought—in which the climactic demonstration of the truth about God and the "gods" will take place (18:16–40). This passage teaches that it is the Lord, not Baal or any other “god,” who controls both life and death, both fertility and infertility.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1 neither dew nor rain these years, except by my word. In Canaanite religion, Baal had authority over rain and fertility. The absence of rain meant the absence of Baal, who must periodically submit to the god of death Mot (during the dry season), only to be revived at a later date and once again water the earth (during the rainy season). This cyclical and polytheistic view of reality is the focus of Elijah’s challenges. Elijah worships a single God who lives and yet, while living, can deny both dew and rain to the land. The Lord, not Baal, brings fertility; and the Lord’s presence in judgment, not his absence in death, leads to infertility.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:5 east of the Jordan. Elijah hides in an inhospitable area where there is no normal food supply. God is nevertheless able to provide for him, for God controls not just the rain but the whole natural order, including the ravens (v. 6).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:6 bread and meat in the morning … in the evening. As the Israelites had once been the beneficiaries of God’s provision of bread and meat in the wilderness (Exodus 16, esp. vv. 8, 12–13), now Elijah eats even more generous amounts (twice daily) of the same.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:9 Zarephath, which belongs to Sidon. The heartland of Baal worship in Sidon might have been thought by many to be a region over which Israel’s God could have no authority. Yet one discovers as the story unfolds that it is nevertheless an area also badly affected by the drought announced in v. 1 (cf. v. 12). The Lord is God of all lands and can bring drought to all lands. He can even “command” a widow in this northern region to feed Elijah—although since the widow herself shows no awareness of having been directly commanded by God, it may be best to understand the verb here and in v. 4 in a more indirect way (i.e., “I have ordained that …”).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:13 first make me a little cake. Against all parental instinct, the woman is asked to give Elijah something to eat first, before feeding herself and her son. This is to ask for a great step of faith.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:15 she and he and her household ate for many days. God looks after people not only in Israel but also on the Phoenician coast.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:18–20 You have come to me to bring my sin to remembrance and to cause the death of my son! The widow appears to have been convinced of the truth of Elijah's religion by the demonstration of God's power in vv. 8–16. When death does eventually catch up with the family, she knows that it must be the Lord's doing; she blames God's prophet for reminding God of her sin. Elijah concurs with her view about who is the ultimate cause (have you brought calamity … by killing her son?), but in his prayer he makes no comment on whether the widow's sin was the human cause. In a world where there is only one true God, everything must in the end lie in his power.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:21 he stretched himself upon the child three times. The purpose of this action is not made clear. Biblical prophets are often found "acting out" as well as speaking (e.g., Ezekiel 4), and Elijah's actions here appear to be part of his prayer that the child's life should come into him again. This is the final illustration that the Lord is the only true God because it demonstrates that when faced with the "god of death," the Lord, unlike Baal, does not need to submit to him. He can cross the border from Israel to Sidon to bring life out of death. The Lord cannot be barred even from a place such as the underworld (Ps. 139:7–12).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:1–46 Elijah and the Prophets of Baal. In ch. 17 Elijah has lived privately, first in the Transjordanian wilderness and then in a Sidonian home. Now he reappears in public. The drought is to end, but it must become clear beforehand, not only to the widow of Zarephath but also to all Israel, who is God.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:1–16 Even though Elijah has been living only a few miles from Jezebel's hometown (Sidon), he has remained hidden from Ahab. Obadiah, like the widow of Zarephath (17:18), connects the prophet's presence with imminent punishment for his own sin. Yet as genuine as his piety is, Obadiah has misunderstood the situation. Elijah assures him of this with a solemn oath.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:17–18 you troubler of Israel. Ahab sees Elijah, the prophet who has pronounced God's judgment, as the cause of the nation's trouble. But Elijah rightly answers that Ahab, who has turned to other gods, is the true troubler of Israel. The relatively rare Hebrew verb 'akar, "to trouble," is also found in 1 Sam. 14:24–46, where there is also a dispute about who is really the troubler of Israel. Is it Saul, who has bound the people under a foolish oath, as Jonathan claims (1 Sam. 14:29; cf. Judg. 11:29–40), or is it Jonathan himself? On a previous occasion Israel had found and killed a man who was bringing "trouble" on them, and had thus escaped God's curse (Joshua 6–7; esp. notice the use of 'akar in Josh. 6:18 and 7:25). These other stories make it clear that much is at stake in this debate about who has truly troubled Israel. Elijah's claim is that the trouble has religious roots: the abandonment of the commandments of the Lord and the embrace of the Baals (various local manifestations of the god Baal-hadad; see note on 1 Kings 16:31–33). Ahab, not Elijah, is the "Achan" of this particular narrative.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:20 all the people of Israel. The identity of the true "troubler of Israel" in Joshua 7 had been settled in public before all Israel; similarly, all Israel is now gathered on Mount Carmel—a hill situated on a headland by modern Haifa that forms the northwestern end of a range of hills 13 miles (21 km) long, commonly referred to as the Carmel range. As a notable landmark, it is mentioned in early Egyptian and Mesopotamian texts.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:21 limping. The rare Hebrew verb pasakh occurs again in v. 26, where the prophets of Baal "limped around the altar." The irregular steps of their ritual dance portray an inability to move properly. The worship of the people is no better than the worship of these prophets, as they refuse to choose between the Lord and Baal but look to retain both options.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:22 I, even I only, am left. Although other prophets of the Lord still existed in Israel at this time (cf. vv. 4, 13; 20:35–43; 22:1–28), Elijah's emphasis here is on his belief that he is the only one willing to take a public stand against the prophets of Baal. Further, it is part of Elijah's general strategy to underscore the overwhelming odds against his success, as seen in the numerical imbalance (18:25) and in his allowing the Baal prophets first choice of bull and first opportunity at evoking a divine reaction.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:24 the God who answers by fire, he is God. The Lord's association with fire is well attested in the OT (e.g., Lev. 9:24; 10:2; Num. 16:35). Similarly, extrabiblical sources give evidence that Baal was thought of as a god who controls fire and lightning. The question here is, which of these claims about control over fire is true?

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:26 O Baal, answer us! The Hebrew verb "answer" is a key word throughout this story; cf. "No one answered" (v. 29) and "Answer me, O LORD” (v. 37).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:27 musing … relieving himself … on a journey … asleep and must be awakened. After several hours Elijah begins to taunt the prophets of Baal with some disrespectful suggestions as to why they are receiving no answer. A real god would not be limited in such ways.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:28–29 cut themselves. The attempt to manipulate Baal into action involves self-mutilation. The kind of condition in view here as these prophets raved on is also well attested outside Palestine (e.g., in the account of an Egyptian traveler, Wen-Amon, c. 1100 B.C., about a violent prophetic frenzy amid a temple ritual in Byblos, on the Phoenician coast north of Jezebel’s hometown of Sidon).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:30 he repaired the altar of the LORD. The authors of 1–2 Kings are generally opposed to worship at such “high places” (see note on 1 Kings 3:2), but they are even more opposed to idolatry, and they do not criticize Elijah for this action. The Lord himself removes the altar after it has served its purpose (18:38).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:35 the water ran around the altar. The whole area is saturated with water so that there is no possibility of natural combustion. If this offering is consumed in fire, it must be the Lord’s doing.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:36–37 Answer me, O LORD, answer me. Elijah’s public prayer gives evidence of great faith and confidence that God will answer.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:38–39 The fire of the LORD consumes not only the burnt offering and the wood but also the inflammable stones and the saturated dust, as well as the water that was in the trench. This cannot be the result of any natural phenomenon, since even lightning would not consume the stones. As all the people realize, this fire can only be a special work of God.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:42 Elijah bowed himself down on the earth and put his face between his knees. The significance of this prophetic action, like that in 17:21, is not made clear. He could be praying for rain, or he might simply be exhausted.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:45–46 Jezreel. As the rains began, Ahab … went to Jezreel, where he had a palace (21:1) and where Jezebel was staying (19:1–2).

The fact that Elijah also went to Jezreel suggests that he thought his war with Baal worship was over, which turned out to be a misjudgment.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:1–21 Elijah and the Lord. Elijah has won a mighty battle on the mountain, but a still more formidable opponent than Ahab awaits him in the form of Queen Jezebel. Victory now becomes defeat as Elijah retreats, both physically and mentally, and ultimately arrives not at Mount Carmel but at another mountain to confront not Baal but the Lord himself, whom Elijah serves but whose ways he only partly understands and accepts.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:1–2 Jezebel sent a messenger. Jezebel has a consistent track record of disposing of the Lord's prophets (cf. 18:4, 13) and is to be taken seriously when she threatens to take Elijah's life.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:3 he was afraid, and he arose and ran for his life. Elijah has shown himself to be a man of faith and courage who trusts God for miracles and, above all, moves to locations only in response to God's commands (cf. 17:2–5, 8–10; 18:1–2). But the "word of the LORD" is absent in 19:3 and does not reappear until v. 9, when it takes the form of a question, clarifying that Elijah's journey on this occasion was not divinely initiated. The shock of Jezebel's resistance after Mount Carmel has led Elijah to forget to think theologically, so he flees from Jezreel in the north to Beersheba in the far south of the Promised Land—as far away from Jezebel as he can get. The distance from the top of Mount Carmel to Beersheba was about 120 miles (193 km), which would have taken an ordinary single traveler around six days, but less if he ran part of the way.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:5 The broom tree is a bush with many branches and twigs, small leaves, and clusters of flowers. an angel touched him. Elijah has been responding so far only to Jezebel's "messenger" (Hb. mal'ak, v. 2). Now it is God's turn to take the initiative with an "angel" or messenger of his own (also Hb. mal'ak). It is God's first move in leading Elijah back onto the path of faith from which he has strayed.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:7 the journey is too great. Elijah thought his journey was over; he has had "enough" (Hb. rab, v. 4). But now he is to fortify himself for a further journey, which will otherwise be "too great" (also Hb. rab). Food is God's response to Elijah both when he cries "enough" and when he needs "enough."

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:8 he arose … and went … to Horeb, the mount of God. Horeb is another name for Mount Sinai, where God first spoke the Ten Commandments to the people of Israel (Exodus 19–20). The forty days and forty nights of Elijah's travels recall Israel's own wandering in the wilderness (Num. 14:33–34) and Moses' first sojourn on this same mountain (Ex. 24:18; see also Ex. 3:1; 19:3). Will Elijah, like Moses, see God (Ex. 33:12–23); and if so, will it make any difference to his current attitude? This journey from near Beersheba to Mount Horeb was about 250 miles (400 km), unless Elijah went by a more circuitous route. The last part of the journey would have been much longer than the air distance because of rugged terrain.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:10 I, even I only, am left. Elijah seems to have partially forgotten his past: miraculous provision, the raising of a dead child, mighty acts of God on mountaintops. He mentions none of these, but talks only of Israelite apostasy and prophetic casualties. The resistance of one person (Jezebel) has turned massive victory into overwhelming defeat, in Elijah's mind. He is certainly not the only one left, but that is how he feels.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:11–12 not in the wind … not in the earthquake … not in the fire. The emphasis on Mount Carmel had been on God's spectacular ways, particularly his use of fire. The emphasis here is on God's quiet ways. He is not to be found in the spectacular elements of the storm outside the cave but instead in a low whisper. The Hebrew is literally (see esv footnote) "a voice/sound, a thin silence" (qol demamah daqqah), i.e., the same "voice" (Hb. qol) that speaks to Elijah in v. 13. On this occasion (but not always; cf. Isa. 30:27; Nah. 1:3–5) God reveals himself in quietness.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:13–14 What are you doing here, Elijah? The point of the demonstration on the mountain was presumably that Elijah would answer this question differently on the second occasion of its asking (cf. v. 9). His answer is, however, exactly the same as before (I have been very jealous for the Lord; cf. vv. 10, 14); the entire point of the demonstration seems to have passed him by. There is in fact a suggestion in the text that he does not particularly wish to understand what God is saying through these events. He has always claimed to "stand before the Lord" (Hb. 'amad lipne YHWH; 17:1; 18:15); but here on Mount Horeb, in spite of the command of 19:11 ("Go out and stand … before the Lord," Hb. 'amad lipne YHWH), he apparently stays in the cave until the storm is over and he hears the "whisper" (v. 12). When he does go out, it is with his cloak over his face, which makes it difficult for him to "see."

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:15–18 Go, return on your way to the wilderness of Damascus. These words indicate the real point of the "low whisper" (v. 12). God gives Elijah new instructions: whereas he has run south in despair to the desert of Beersheba, he must now return to the very north of Syria-Palestine in obedience and anoint Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha. A new political and religious order is to succeed the old, and this order will bring about the final victory over Baal worship. Total victory will come as a result of an ordinary political process (a "whisper"), as God removes certain kings and sets up others; it will not come only as a result of obviously spectacular demonstrations of divine power (wind, earthquake, and fire) as at Carmel (18:20–40). And it will arrive not as a result of Elijah's efforts but as a result of the efforts of others. Elijah's role is now to prepare the way for these "others," who are only a few of many servants of God who have not bowed to Baal or kissed him. God has ways of working other than the spectacular (though he is always free to work in supernatural ways).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:19 he departed from there and found Elisha. Is Elijah back on track as a result of his trip to Mount Horeb? The closing verses of ch. 19 suggest not. There is no mention here or in the upcoming chapters of Elijah's ever meeting (or trying to meet) Hazael and Jehu (see vv. 15–16). One never reads of Hazael's being anointed, while it falls to Elisha to arrange the anointing of Jehu (2 Kings 9:1–13). Even Elijah's response to God's command about Elisha seems less than wholehearted. There is no mention of his "anointing" of Elisha as his prophetic successor; he merely enlists him as his assistant (1 Kings 19:21). Yet the names of the two prophets indicate the way that God's plan is nevertheless unfolding. Elijah has all but had his day—the day when it was established that "the LORD, he is God" (18:39), which is what the name "Elijah" means. The new era of salvation belongs to Elisha, whose name means "God saves."

c. 875–797 B.C.

Elijah and his successor Elisha figure prominently in 1 and 2 Kings as they prophesied against the wickedness of Ahab and Joram (also called Jehoram) of Israel. Elijah's opposition to pagan worship also put him at odds with Jezebel, Ahab's Phoenician wife, who supported hundreds of prophets of Baal and Asherah. Eventually Elisha sent someone to anoint Jehu, one of Joram's commanders, to be the next king and to execute judgment on the entire family of Ahab.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:20–21 Let me kiss my father and my mother. Elijah's apparent lack of enthusiasm for God's plan stands in sharp contrast to Elisha's reaction. He immediately leaves his normal employment to follow his new mentor, pausing only briefly to cut his ties with his old life. He kisses his parents goodbye and destroys his old means of sustenance (the 12 yoke of oxen and … the yokes of the oxen that control them). The Hebrew verb "to kiss" occurs in 1–2 Kings only here and in 1 Kings 19:18 ("every mouth that has not kissed him"). What the kisses have in common is that they both say something about allegiance. The worshipers of Baal kiss him, symbolizing that they have abandoned (Hb. 'azab in 18:18; 19:10, 14) the Lord. Elisha wants to kiss his parents, symbolizing that he has abandoned home and livelihood for the Lord (cf. Hb. 'azab in v. 20, where Elisha left the oxen).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:1–43 Ahab's War against Syria. After Elijah's recruitment of Elisha, one expects to read of his anointing of Hazael as king over Syria and of Jehu as king over Israel (cf. 19:15–18). Instead, one finds a story in which a different prophet appears and in which a different king of Syria (Ben-hadad) loses a war with Ahab. The message of ch. 19 is thus underlined: Elijah is not the only servant of God left, in spite of what he has claimed (19:10, 14); and the quiet ways of God must take their course for a while before the events spoken of in 19:17 come to pass.

Ahab's Wars with Syria

Ahab's reign was marked by repeated conflict with Ben-hadad of Syria. Ben-hadad's poor military organization accounted for his failed siege of Samaria, and Ahab defeated him again the next spring at Aphek. Ahab lost his life, however, attempting to retake Ramoth-gilead from Ben-hadad at the eastern edge of his kingdom.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:2–9 Your silver and your gold are mine (v. 3). The king of Syria seeks to reduce Israel to vassal status. His terms are at first accepted by Ahab (v. 4), only to be later rejected (vv. 5–9) after a revision in v. 6 that apparently makes them more extensive (whatever pleases you), intrusive (search your house), and immediate (tomorrow).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:11 Let not him who straps on his armor boast himself as he who takes it off. It is unwise to boast about one's exploits before the battle has even begun; there is time enough for boasting when the battle is won.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:14–18 Israel is to fight according to a divine battle plan that does not make much human sense (as in the case of Gideon in Judges 7). The servants (plural of Hb. na'ar) are to initiate the battle—young men unschooled in military matters, like the young and untrained David, who is also called a na'ar in 1 Sam. 17:33 (a "youth," in contrast to the warrior Goliath). The plan benefits from the fact that Ben-hadad is drunk as the Israelites approach (1 Kings 20:12, 16) and seemingly incapable of uttering coherent or sensible instructions (v. 18).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:22–25 strengthen yourself. Both sides prepare for a continuation of warfare in the following spring, a characteristic time for kings to go to war (cf. 2 Sam. 11:1). The Syrian preparations involve a reorganization of the empire (1 Kings 20:24)—the replacement of the vassal kings with commanders directly accountable to Ben-hadad. The royal advisers seek greater military cohesion through a greater degree of political control. The Syrians also raise a new army to replace the one destroyed in v. 21, planning next time to fight the Israelites in the plain (v. 23), where horse and chariot will give them an advantage that is all too easily lost in the hills (cf. Judg. 1:19). But the theological reasoning that underlies their military strategy is faulty. The Lord is the only real God there is, and he is active both in the hills (1 Kings 18) and anywhere else he chooses (ch. 17).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:26 Aphek. The second battle is considerably farther north (see Josh. 19:30; Judg. 1:31) than the first, which took place near Samaria (1 Kings 20:1). In another incident, Ahab and Ben-hadad II conspired together against the Assyrian threat from the east. A text from the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (ruled 858 to 824 B.C.) describes a battle he fought at Qarqar on the Orontes River in 853. A coalition was apparently able to halt any Assyrian advance. According to the text, "Ahab the Israelite" provided "2,000 chariots and 10,000 men" to the coalition, which included Ben-hadad II and others. The authors of Kings have not even mentioned this battle, however, because it is not relevant to their theme.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:28 god of the hills … not a god of the valleys. God intends to refute the Syrians' false notions about him.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:31 Sackcloth signifies penitence (cf. 21:27), and ropes signify submissiveness (prisoners may be led by them).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:34 cities … bazaars. The Israelite cities taken by the Syrians in an earlier period are returned, and Ahab is given trading privileges in Damascus.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:35 sons of the prophets. A reference to members of prophetic communities (see note on 2 Kings 2:3; also 2 Kings 4:1; 6:1).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:36 a lion shall strike you down. The scene is reminiscent of ch. 13, where the same point is made (even prophets must obey the divine word) and the same punishment is pronounced. The implication is also clear in both passages: if disobedient prophets cannot escape God's judgment, then disobedient kings certainly will not.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:39–42 Your servant went out into the midst of the battle. In a scene reminiscent of 2 Sam. 12:1–4, the prophet tricks the king into pronouncing judgment on himself, albeit with a disguise whose purpose is obscure. (Did Ahab know this man, or did prophets have distinctive facial garb?) He tells a story that implies that because he failed in his guard duties, he is liable to pay a fine of a talent of silver (an impossible amount for an ordinary soldier to raise) or suffer death. Ahab agrees on the justice of the death sentence and thus provides the prophet with the opportunity to declare Ahab's life forfeit because Ahab has released an enemy king whom God had devoted to destruction (cf. 1 Sam. 15:17–24). Ahab's death is in fact strangely prefigured in the very manner in which God's word about it comes to him. A prophet has disguised himself as a soldier fresh from fighting the Syrians, in order to catch the king. In 1 Kings 22:29–40 Ahab will disguise himself as a soldier when going out to fight the Syrians, in order to trap a prophet (and his God). His strategy will fail as spectacularly as this prophet's has succeeded.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:1–29 Naboth's Vineyard. An apparently reinvigorated Elijah appears again in Jezreel to denounce a new and heinous crime and to foretell the destruction of Ahab's family for all its sins.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:1 Excavations at Tel Jezreel have unearthed a fortified acropolis from the ninth century B.C. The construction at the site is large and elaborate, with the dressed masonry typical of royal palaces of that era. The archaeologist at this site concluded that it was built by either Omri or Ahab, and that it was the auxiliary residence for the king of Israel.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:2 The Hebrew for vegetable garden occurs elsewhere in the OT only in Deut. 11:10, where a contrast is offered between Egypt (a vegetable garden requiring human care) and the Promised Land (which the Lord cares for). Israel is also sometimes portrayed in the OT as a vine under God's special care (e.g., Isa. 3:13–15). With these wider observations in mind, Ahab's desire to replace a vineyard with a vegetable garden may express (albeit unconsciously) a deeper desire to make Israel "like Egypt"—to blur Israel's special identity as God's people.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:3 the inheritance of my fathers. The land of Israel belonged not to the families who technically "owned" it but to God, who had brought the Israelites into the land in fulfillment of the Abrahamic promise and had, through Joshua, allocated its various parts to the tribes as their inheritance (e.g., Gen. 17:8; Lev. 25:23; Josh. 13:1–7). Individual Israelites could not sell land in perpetuity, and a complex set of laws kept land in the family and prevented its accumulation in the hands of a few (e.g., Deut. 25:5–10). Ahab's offer is therefore evidence of his disregard for Israelite law.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:7 Do you now govern Israel? Jezebel wrongly assumes that a king should use government power for personal gain. As this narrative shows, the real driving force in the kingdom of Israel is Jezebel (cf. 19:1–2), not the passive Ahab, and she is contemptuous of her husband's unwillingness to behave as a despotic king.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:8–10 Proclaim a fast. Jezebel's plan to have Naboth executed on false charges requires a public setting, elders and leaders who take lightly their responsibility to be the guardians of justice (cf. Deut. 19:11–13; 21:1–9), and two worthless men who are prepared to function as the two witnesses required by OT law (cf. Deut. 19:15–21).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:15 take possession of the vineyard. The implication appears to be that the king may confiscate the property of an executed criminal, a custom that is known from non-Israelite texts but for which there is no provision in Israelite law. This serves to emphasize the extent to which Ahab and Jezebel are moving outside the sphere of Israelite law and custom and introducing foreign ideas.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:19 In the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick your own blood. Ahab died in battle and was buried in Samaria (22:34–37), not outside Jezreel "in the place" where Naboth was stoned (21:19; cf. v. 13); and yet, when dogs in Samaria lick up his blood washed from his chariot, the authors declare that to be according to these words (22:38). There are two main ways to explain how the prophecy and its fulfillment are related: (1) the prophecy was fulfilled in stages, first by Ahab's death and then by the death of his son Joram, whose body was in fact thrown into Naboth's vineyard (2 Kings 9:25–26, which also is "according to the word of the LORD"); or (2) the Hebrew words translated "in the place where dogs licked up" could be taken as "in place of dogs licking up," i.e., Ahab will suffer a similar fate to Naboth. Either solution is possible, although the first seems to account better for the way the text draws attention to the prophecy, and for the delay of punishment due to Ahab's repentance (1 Kings 21:29).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:23–24 The dogs shall eat … the birds of the heavens shall eat. It was considered a terrible thing in Israel not to be afforded a proper burial; Deut. 28:25–26 and Jer. 16:4 capture the horror well.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:29 Because he has humbled himself. Ahab was the worst of kings (vv. 25–26), adding to Jeroboam's sin the worship of Baal (16:30–33). But the great sinner demonstrates penitence at this point, and avoids God's judgment on his house in his lifetime.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:1–40 Ahab Killed in Battle. Although the house of Ahab stands under a prophetic curse, the full outworking of God's wrath will be delayed until the reign of Ahab's son (see 21:27–29). Ahab's own death, however, has now been foretold by two different prophets, with apparently no delay in sight (20:41–42; 21:19); the appearance of a third prophet now brings the reader to that event.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:1–5 The peace that followed the battle of Aphek (20:26–34) lasted three years. Even after such a crushing defeat, the king of Syria was able to hold on to the strategically important city of Ramoth-gilead in Transjordan, which was situated on a major trade route running from the Red Sea to Damascus. More about Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, will be revealed shortly (22:41–50), but from these verses two things are already apparent: he is at peace with Ahab (cf. v. 44) after the long war described in 14:30; 15:6–7, 16–22; and he is a devout man (cf. 22:43, 46), happy to go with Ahab to battle at Ramoth-gilead, but first wishing to inquire … for the word of the LORD.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:6–7 gathered the prophets together. The Hebrew expression occurs in the OT only here (with its parallel in 2 Chron. 18:5) and in 1 Kings 18:20, where Ahab had previously gathered prophets together in response to Elijah's demand for the attendance of "the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of Asherah" (18:19) on Mount Carmel. As things turned out, only the 450 prophets of Baal actually turned up on that occasion (18:22, 25), leaving the 400 prophets of Asherah—precisely the number of men mentioned here in 22:6—unaccounted for. It is already implied, therefore, that these prophets are not truly prophets of the Lord, but in fact prophets committed to the religion of Jezebel. This is probably further implied in Jehoshaphat's response to their advice, which indicates his suspicion of these prophets: Is there not here another prophet of the LORD? Jehoshaphat has been seeking "the word of the LORD." Ahab summons just the prophets, and Jehoshaphat then subtly asks whether there is not a (genuine) prophet of the Lord who might now be consulted. (Cf. also note on 2 Chron. 18:4–14.)

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:8 Let not the king say so. A prophet of the Lord should not be marginalized simply because of what has happened in the past (he never prophesies good concerning me).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:10–12 The harvesting of cereal crops in Israel was followed by a threshing (beating) and winnowing process, in which the threshed material was thrown into the air with a fork or a shovel to allow the breeze to separate the grain, the straw, and the chaff. The grain would then be cleaned and stored in jars, grain pits, or storage houses. The location of this activity was the threshing floor, an open area sufficiently large for the task, sometimes situated (as in this case) at the city gate, and useful for large gatherings of people. It is here that all the prophets were prophesying before the kings, and here that Zedekiah acted out his play with horns, a reminder once again of the worship of Baal and Asherah (see notes on 12:27–28; 16:31–33).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:15–16 Go up and triumph. Surprisingly, Micaiah's first words to Ahab are exactly those of the other prophets (cf. vv. 12, 15), but Ahab sees that his words are a mere mocking imitation of these court prophets who tell him only what he wants to hear.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:21 a spirit came forward. The imagery is that of a council of war, with the heavenly king sitting on his throne surrounded by his army, making plans to defeat Ahab in battle.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:23 put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these … prophets. Though God himself does not do evil, he sometimes uses evil agents to accomplish his purposes (see notes on 1 Sam. 16:14; 2 Chron. 18:15–22).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:24 How did the Spirit of the LORD go from me to speak to you? Micaiah's claim in v. 23 was that Zedekiah and his colleagues had a lying spirit. Zedekiah's response is that he himself has been influenced by "the Spirit of the LORD," who cannot have been speaking to both him and Micaiah.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:25 All will become clear, Micaiah claims, when the disaster that he is predicting eventually falls and Zedekiah is forced to hide away in the city inside someone's home (the inner chamber was also Ben-hadad's hiding place after the disaster at Aphek, 20:30).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:26 Amon is evidently one of Ahab's high officials, entrusted with control of city affairs in Samaria, while Joash the king's son is responsible for the confinement of prisoners (see also Jer. 36:26; 38:6). It is not clear whether this office requires that its holder literally be the son of the king.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:30 the king of Israel disguised himself. Ahab's disguise is evidence of unclear thinking, for if Micaiah has truly been lying, there is no danger, and if he has been telling the truth, Ahab will die, whatever he does. The disguise is also a harbinger of disaster; it recalls the actions of both Saul and Jeroboam just before their deaths (cf. 1 Sam. 28:8; 1 Kings 14:1–18). It is foolish to think that a mere disguise will hide someone from the Lord's purposes.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:32–33 Jehoshaphat cried out. And when the captains … saw that it was not the king of Israel. Although Jehoshaphat alone is wearing royal robes, he is saved from death because his Judean shout (either its form or its content) reveals that he is not the man whom Ben-hadad is determined to kill (v. 31).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:34 between the scale armor and the breastplate. The arrow shot at random flies unerringly to one of the few undefended spots on Ahab's body, and thus fulfills what Micaiah had warned of in vv. 20–23.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:35 propped up in his chariot. The king stays on the battlefield all day long, presumably to encourage his troops; but at sunset he dies.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:38 according to the word of the LORD. See 21:19, although that verse does not mention prostitutes, but only dogs. There is already a close association between the two, however, in Deut. 23:17–18, which enjoins the Israelite never to become a cult prostitute (Hb. qedeshah for a woman or qadesh for a man) or to bring into the temple the earnings of a female prostitute (Hb. zonah) or a male prostitute (Hb. keleb, lit., "dog"; see esv footnote on Deut. 23:18). This association reminds the reader of the idolatrous career that has brought Ahab to this ignominious end.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:39 Chronicles of the Kings (also v. 45). See note on 14:19. Archaeologists have uncovered a palace reminiscent of Ahab's ivory house at Samaria. Numerous costly ivory articles were found in the debris of the building.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:41–53 Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah. Both Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah have already entered the narrative of 1 Kings as characters in Ahab's story—comrade-in-arms and successor, respectively (vv. 2–4, 40). Now they are given a place of their own.

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:43–46 He walked in all the way of Asa his father. Jehoshaphat's religious policy is the same as Asa's. He does what is right in the sight of the LORD (cf. 15:11), and he will have nothing to do with cult prostitutes (15:12), even if the high places have still not been taken away (15:14). Jehoshaphat is a good king, and he is even at peace with the king of Israel, which Asa was not (15:16, 32).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:47 There was no king in Edom; a deputy was king. The Hebrew for "deputy" is otherwise used in 1–2 Kings only of Solomon's various officials (1 Kings 4:5, 27; 5:16; 9:23); Jehoshaphat controls Edom as Solomon had controlled his various districts, which is why the "king" of Edom turns up in alliance with Judah in 2 Kings 3 in a noticeably supporting role.

Judah's control of Edom was not challenged until the reign of Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram (2 Kings 8:20–22).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:48 the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber. Because Jehoshaphat rules over Edom, just as Solomon had, he is able like Solomon to build a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber (near Elath in Edom; cf. 9:26–28), but he does not benefit from them. These turn out to be not days of glory for the house of David but days of humbling (cf. 11:39).

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:49 Jehoshaphat was not willing. Solomon's Israel was truly unified, but the current peace between Israel and Judah (v. 44) is little more than the absence of hostility. Whereas Solomon took Sidonians on board his ships (9:27), Jehoshaphat refuses even to have Israelites along. (As 2 Chron. 20:35 tells it, Jehoshaphat was originally willing to cooperate with Ahaziah to build the merchant ships. But after Eliezer prophesied against Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahaziah [2 Chron. 20:37], Jehoshaphat changed his mind, which is the situation described here in 1 Kings.)

1 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:50 slept with his fathers (see note on 2:10). Jehoshaphat will reappear in 2 Kings 3, in what must be regarded as a "flashback" to the earlier part (i.e., the first seven years) of Jehoram of Israel's reign, when Jehoshaphat was still on the throne of Judah (cf. 1 Kings 22:42; 2 Kings 3:1).

2 Kings

Elijah Denounces Ahaziah

2 KINGS 1 [†] [a] After the death of Ahab, Moab [b] rebelled against Israel.

[2][†]Now Ahaziah fell through the lattice in his upper chamber in Samaria, and lay sick; so he sent messengers, telling them, “Go, inquire of [c] Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, [d] whether I shall recover from this sickness.” [3][†]But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah [e] the Tishbite, “Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them, ‘Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of [c] Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? [4][^]Now therefore thus says the LORD, [f] You shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.’” So Elijah went.

[5]The messengers returned to the king, and he said to them, “Why have you returned?” [6]And they said to him, “There came a man to meet us, and said to us, ‘Go back to the king who sent you, and say to him, Thus says the LORD, Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are sending to inquire of [c] Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore you shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.’” [7]He said to them, “What kind of man was he who came to meet you and told you these things?” [8][†]They answered him, [g] “He wore a garment of hair, with a belt of leather about his waist.” And he said, “It is Elijah the Tishbite.”

[9][†]Then the king sent to him a captain of fifty men with his fifty. He went up to Elijah, who was sitting on the top of a hill, and said to him, [h] “O man of God, the king says, ‘Come down.’” [10]But Elijah answered the captain of fifty, “If I am a man of God, [i] let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.” Then fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

[11]Again the king sent to him another captain of fifty men with his fifty. And he answered and said to him, “O man of God, this is the king’s order, ‘Come down quickly!’” [12]But Elijah answered them, “If I am a man of God, [j] let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.”

Then the fire of God came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

[13][‡]Again the king sent the captain of a third fifty with his fifty. And the third captain of fifty went up and came and fell on his knees before Elijah and entreated him, “O man of God, please let my life, and the life of these fifty servants of yours, [k]be precious in your sight. [14]Behold, fire came down from heaven and consumed the two former captains of fifty men with their fifties, but now let my life be precious in your sight.” [15]Then the angel of the LORD said to Elijah, “Go down with him; do not be afraid of him.” So he arose and went down with him to the king [16]and said to him, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Because you have sent messengers to inquire of [c]Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron—is it because there is no God in Israel to inquire of his word?—therefore you shall not come down from the bed to which you have gone up, but you shall surely die.’”

[17]So he died according to the word of the LORD that Elijah had spoken. Jehoram became king in his place [l]in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, because Ahaziah had no son. [18]Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel?

Elijah Taken to Heaven

2 KINGS 2 [‡]Now when the LORD was about to [m]take Elijah up to heaven by a whirlwind, Elijah and [n]Elisha were on their way from [o]Gilgal. [2][‡]And Elijah said to Elisha, [p]“Please stay here, for the LORD has sent me as far as Bethel.” But Elisha said, [q]“As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they went down to Bethel. [3][‡]And [r]the sons of the prophets who were in Bethel came out to Elisha and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take away your master from over you?” And he said, “Yes, I know it; keep quiet.”

[4][‡]Elijah said to him, “Elisha, [p]please stay here, for the LORD has sent me to [t]Jericho.” But he said, [q]“As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they came to Jericho. [5][r]The sons of the prophets who were at Jericho drew near to Elisha and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take away your master from over you?” And he answered, “Yes, I know it; keep quiet.”

[6][†]Then Elijah said to him, [p]“Please stay here, for the LORD has sent me to the Jordan.” But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So the two of them went on. [7]Fifty men of [r]the sons of the prophets also went and stood at some distance from them, as they both were standing by the Jordan. [8]Then Elijah [u]took his cloak and rolled it up and struck the water, [v]and the water was parted to the one side and to the other, till the two of them could go over on dry ground.

[9][†]When they had crossed, Elijah said to Elisha, “Ask what I shall do for you, before I am taken from you.” And Elisha said, “Please let there be a double portion of your spirit on me.” [10][†]And he said, “You have asked a hard thing; yet, if you see me as I am being taken from you, it shall be so for you, but if you do not see me, it shall not be so.” [11][^][†]And as they still went on and talked, behold, [w]chariots of fire and horses of fire separated the two of them. And Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. [12]And Elisha saw it and he cried, “My father, my father! [x]The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!” And he saw him no more.

Then he took hold of his own clothes [y]and tore them in two pieces. [13]And he took up the cloak of Elijah that had fallen from him and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. [14][^][†]Then he took the cloak of Elijah that had fallen from him and struck the water, saying, “Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?” And when he had struck the water, [v]the water was parted to the one side and to the other, and Elisha went over.

Elisha Succeeds Elijah

[15][†]Now when [r]the sons of the prophets who were at Jericho saw him opposite them, they said, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” And they came to meet him and bowed to the ground before him. [16][†]And they said to him, “Behold now, there are with your servants fifty strong men. Please let them go and seek your master. It may be that [z]the Spirit of the LORD has caught him up and cast him upon some mountain or into some valley.” And he said, “You shall not send.” [17]But when they urged him [a]till he was ashamed, he said, “Send.” They sent therefore fifty men. And for three days they sought him but did not find him. [18]And they came back to him while he was staying at Jericho, and he said to them, “Did I not say to you, ‘Do not go’?”

[19][‡]Now the men of the city said to Elisha, “Behold, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my lord sees, but the water is bad, and the land is unfruitful.” [20]He said, “Bring me a new bowl, and put salt in it.” So they brought it to him. [21]Then he went to the spring of water and [b] threw salt in it and said, “Thus says the LORD, I have healed this water; from now on neither death nor miscarriage shall come from it.” [22]So the water has been healed to this day, according to the word that Elisha spoke.

[23][‡]He went up from there to Bethel, and while he was going up on the way, some small boys came out of the city and jeered at him, saying, “Go up, you baldhead! Go up, you baldhead!” [24]And he turned around, and when he saw them, [c] he cursed them in the name of the LORD. And two she-bears came out of the woods and tore forty-two of the boys. [25][‡]From there he went on to [d] Mount Carmel, and from there he returned [e] to Samaria.

Moab Rebels Against Israel

2 KINGS 3 [‡][f]In the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, Jehoram the son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned twelve years. [2][‡]He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, though not like his father and mother, for he put away the [g] pillar of Baal [h] that his father had made. [3]Nevertheless, he clung to [i] the sin of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [j] which he made Israel to sin; he did not depart from it.

[4][‡]Now Mesha king of Moab was a sheep breeder, [k] and he had to deliver to the king of Israel 100,000 lambs and the wool of 100,000 rams. [5]But [l] when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. [6]So King Jehoram marched out of Samaria at that time and mustered all Israel. [7][‡]And he went and sent word to Jehoshaphat king of Judah, “The king of Moab has rebelled against me. Will you go with me to battle against Moab?” And he said, “I will go. [m] I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.” [8]Then he said, “By which way shall we march?” Jehoram answered, “By the way of the wilderness of Edom.”

[9]So the king of Israel went with the king of Judah and [n] the king of Edom. And when they had made a circuitous march of seven days, there was no water for the army or for the animals that followed them. 10Then the king of Israel said, “Alas! [o]The LORD has called these three kings to give them into the hand of Moab.” 11[†][p]And Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the LORD here, through whom we may inquire of the LORD?” Then one of the king of Israel’s servants answered, [q]“Elisha the son of Shaphat is here, [r]who poured water on the hands of Elijah.” 12And Jehoshaphat said, “The word of the LORD is with him.” So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went down to him.

13And Elisha said to the king of Israel, [s]“What have I to do with you? Go to [t]the prophets of your father and to [u]the prophets of your mother.” But the king of Israel said to him, “No; it is [o]the LORD who has called these three kings to give them into the hand of Moab.” 14And Elisha said, [v]“As the LORD of hosts lives, before whom I stand, were it not that I have regard for Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, I would neither look at you nor see you. 15[†]But now [w]bring me a musician.” And when the musician played, [x]the hand of the LORD came upon him. 16And he said, “Thus says the LORD, ‘I will make this dry streambed full of pools.’ 17[^]For thus says the LORD, ‘You shall not see wind or rain, but that streambed shall be filled with water, so that you shall drink, you, your livestock, and your animals.’ 18This is a light thing in the sight of the LORD. He will also give the Moabites into your hand, 19and you shall attack every fortified city and every choice city, and shall fell every good tree and stop up all springs of water [y]and ruin every good piece of land with stones.” 20[†]The next morning, about the time of [z]offering the sacrifice, behold, water came from the direction of Edom, till the country was filled with water.

21When all the Moabites heard that the kings had come up to fight against them, all who were able to put on armor, from the youngest to the oldest, were called out and were drawn up at the border. 22And when they rose early in the morning and the sun shone on the water, the Moabites saw the water opposite them as red as blood. 23And they said, “This is blood; the kings have surely fought together and struck one another down. Now then, Moab, to the spoil!” 24But when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose and struck the Moabites, till they fled before them. And they went forward, striking the Moabites as they went. [1] 25[†]And they overthrew the cities, and [a] on every good piece of land every man threw a stone until it was covered. They stopped every spring of water and felled all the good trees, till only its stones were left in [b] Kir-hareseth, and the slingers surrounded and attacked it. [26]When the king of Moab saw that the battle was going against him, he took with him 700 [c] swordsmen to break through, opposite the king of Edom, but they could not. [27][‡]Then he took his oldest son who was to reign in his place [d] and offered him for a burnt offering on the wall. And there came great wrath against Israel. And they withdrew from him and returned to their own land.

Elisha and the Widow’s Oil

2 KINGS 4 [‡]Now the wife of one of the [e] sons of the prophets cried to Elisha, “Your servant my husband is dead, and you know that your servant feared the LORD, [f] but the creditor has come to take my two children to be his slaves.” [2]And Elisha said to her, “What shall I do for you? Tell me; what have you in the house?” And she said, “Your servant has nothing in the house except a jar of oil.” [3]Then he said, “Go outside, borrow vessels from all your neighbors, empty vessels and not too few. [4]Then go in and shut the door behind yourself and your sons and pour into all these vessels. And when one is full, set it aside.” [5]So she went from him and shut the door behind herself and her sons. And as she poured they brought the vessels to her. [6]When the vessels were full, she said to her son, “Bring me another vessel.” And he said to her, “There is not another.” Then the oil stopped flowing. [7]She came and told the [g] man of God, and he said, “Go, sell the oil and pay your debts, and you and your sons can live on the rest.”

Elisha and the Shunammite Woman

[8]One day Elisha went on to [h] Shunem, where a [i] wealthy woman lived, who urged him to eat some food. So whenever he passed that way, he would turn in there to eat food. [9]And she said to her husband, “Behold now, I know that this is a holy [g] man of God who is continually passing our way. [10][‡]Let us make a small room on the roof with walls and put there for him a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp, so that whenever he comes to us, he can go in there.”

[11]One day he came there, and he turned into the chamber and rested there. [12]And he said to [j]Gehazi his servant, "Call this Shunammite." When he had called her, she stood before him. [13][†]And he said to him, "Say now to her, 'See, you have taken all this trouble for us; what is to be done for you? Would you have a word spoken on your behalf to the king or to [k]the commander of the army?'" She answered, "I dwell among my own people." [14]And he said, "What then is to be done for her?" Gehazi answered, "Well, she has no son, and her husband is old." [15]He said, "Call her." And when he had called her, she stood in the doorway. [16]And he said, "At this season, [l]about this time next year, you shall embrace a son." And she said, "No, my lord, [g]O man of God; [m]do not lie to your servant." [17]But the woman conceived, and she bore a son about that time [l]the following spring, as Elisha had said to her.

Elisha Raises the Shunammite's Son

[18]When the child had grown, he went out one day to his father among the reapers. [19]And he said to his father, "Oh, [n]my head, my head!" The father said to his servant, "Carry him to his mother." [20]And when he had lifted him and brought him to his mother, the child sat on her lap till noon, and then he died. [21]And she went up [o]and laid him on the bed of the [g]man of God and shut the door behind him and went out. [22]Then she called to her husband and said, "Send me one of the servants and one of the donkeys, that I may quickly go to [g]the man of God and come back again." [23][†]And he said, "Why will you go to him today? It is neither [p]new moon nor Sabbath." She said, "All is well." [24]Then she saddled the donkey, and she said to her servant, "Urge the animal on; do not slacken the pace for me unless I tell you." [25]So she set out and came to the man of God [q]at Mount Carmel.

When the man of God saw her coming, he said to Gehazi his servant, "Look, there is the Shunammite. [26]Run at once to meet her and say to her, 'Is all well with you? Is all well with your husband? Is all well with the child?'" And she answered, "All is well." [27][†]And when she came [r]to the mountain to the man of God, she caught hold of his feet. And Gehazi came to push her away. But the man of God said, "Leave her alone, for she is in bitter distress, and the Lord has hidden it from me and has not told me.” [28]Then she said, “Did I ask my lord for a son? [s]Did I not say, ‘Do not deceive me?’” [29][†]He said to Gehazi, [t]“Tie up your garment and [u]take my staff in your hand and go. If you meet anyone, [v]do not greet him, and if anyone greets you, do not reply. And [u]lay my staff on the face of the child.” [30][†]Then the mother of the child said, [w]“As the Lord lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So he arose and followed her. [31]Gehazi went on ahead and laid the staff on the face of the child, but there was no sound or sign of life. Therefore he returned to meet him and told him, “The child [x]has not awakened.”

[32]When Elisha came into the house, he saw the child lying dead on his bed. [33]So he went in and [y]shut the door behind the two of them [z]and prayed to the Lord. [34][^][†]Then he went up and lay on the child, putting his mouth on his mouth, his eyes on his eyes, and his hands on his hands. And as [a]he stretched himself upon him, the flesh of the child became warm. [35]Then he got up again and walked once back and forth in the house, and went up [a]and stretched himself upon him. The child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. [36]Then he summoned Gehazi and said, “Call this Shunammite.” So he called her. And when she came to him, he said, “Pick up your son.” [37]She came and fell at his feet, bowing to the ground. [b]Then she picked up her son and went out.

Elisha Purifies the Deadly Stew

[38][†]And Elisha came again to [c]Gilgal when [d]there was a famine in the land. And as [e]the sons of the prophets [f]were sitting before him, he said to his servant, [g]“Set on the large pot, and boil stew for the sons of the prophets.” [39]One of them went out into the field to gather herbs, and found a wild vine and gathered from it his lap full of wild gourds, and came and cut them up into the pot of stew, not knowing what they were. [40][†]And they poured out some for the men to eat. But while they were eating of the stew, they cried out, “O man of God, there is death in the pot!” And they could not eat it. [41]He said, “Then bring flour.” [h]And he threw it into the pot and said, “Pour some out for the men, that they may eat.” And there was no harm in the pot.

[42][†]A man came from [i]Baal-shalishah, [j]bringing the man of God bread of the firstfruits, twenty loaves of barley and fresh ears of grain in his sack. And Elisha said, [k]“Give to the men, that they may eat.” [43]But his servant said, “How can I set this before a hundred men?” So he repeated, “Give them to the men, that they may eat, for thus says the LORD, ‘They shall eat and have some left.’” [44]So he set it before them. And they ate and had some left, according to the word of the LORD.

Naaman Healed of Leprosy

2 KINGS 5 [†] [l]Naaman, [m]commander of the army of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master and in high favor, because by him the LORD had given victory to Syria. He was a mighty man of valor, but he was a leper. [1] [2]Now the Syrians on [n]one of their raids had carried off a little girl from the land of Israel, and she worked in the service of Naaman’s wife. [3]She said to her mistress, “Would that my lord were with the prophet who is in Samaria! He would cure him of his leprosy.” [4]So Naaman went in and told his lord, “Thus and so spoke the girl from the land of Israel.” [5][†]And the king of Syria said, “Go now, and I will send a letter to the king of Israel.”

So he went, [o]taking with him ten talents of silver, six thousand shekels [2] of gold, and ten [p]changes of clothing. [6]And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, which read, “When this letter reaches you, know that I have sent to you Naaman my servant, that you may cure him of his leprosy.” [7]And when the king of Israel read the letter, [q]he tore his clothes and said, [r]“Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man sends word to me to cure a man of his leprosy? Only [s]consider, and see how he is seeking a quarrel with me.”

[8]But when Elisha the [t]man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, he sent to the king, saying, “Why have you torn your clothes? Let him come now to me, that he may know that there is a prophet in Israel.” [9][†]So Naaman came with his horses and chariots and stood at the door of Elisha’s house. [10]And Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, [u]“Go and wash in the Jordan seven times, and your flesh shall be restored, and you shall be clean.” [11]But Naaman was angry and went away, saying, “Behold, I thought that he would surely come out to me and stand and call upon the name of the LORD his God, and wave his hand over the place and cure the leper. [12]Are not Abana [3] and Pharpar, the rivers of [v] Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Could I not wash in them and be clean?" So he turned and went away in a rage. [13][†]But his servants came near and said to him, [w] "My father, it is a great word the prophet has spoken to you; will you not do it? Has he actually said to you, 'Wash, and be clean'?" [14][^][†]So he went down and dipped himself seven times in the Jordan, according to the word of the man of God, [x] and his flesh was restored like the flesh of a little child, [y] and he was clean.

Gehazi's Greed and Punishment

[15]Then he returned to the man of God, he and all his company, and he came and stood before him. And he said, "Behold, I know that [z] there is no God in all the earth but in Israel; so [a] accept now a present from your servant." [16][†]But he said, [b] "As the LORD lives, before whom I stand, [c] I will receive none." And he urged him to take it, but he refused. [17][†]Then Naaman said, "If not, please let there be given to your servant two mule loads of earth, for from now on your servant will not offer burnt offering or sacrifice to any god but the LORD. [18][†]In this matter may the LORD pardon your servant: when my master goes into the house of [d] Rimmon to worship there, [e] leaning on my arm, and I bow myself in the house of Rimmon, when I bow myself in the house of Rimmon, the LORD pardon your servant in this matter." [19]He said to him, [f] "Go in peace."

But when Naaman had gone from him a short distance, [20][†][g] Gehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, said, "See, my master has spared this Naaman the Syrian, in not accepting from his hand what he brought. [h] As the LORD lives, I will run after him and get something from him." [21]So Gehazi followed Naaman. And when Naaman saw someone running after him, he got down from the chariot to meet him and said, [i] "Is all well?" [22]And he said, "All is well. My master has sent me to say, 'There have just now come to me from [j] the hill country of Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets. Please give them a talent of silver and [k] two changes of clothing.'" [23]And Naaman said, [l] "Be pleased to accept two talents." And he urged him and tied up two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of clothing, and laid them on two of his servants. And they carried them before Gehazi. [24]And when he came to the hill, he took them from their hand and put them in the house, and he sent the men away, and they departed. [25]He went in and stood before his master, and Elisha said to him, “Where have you been, Gehazi?” And he said, “Your servant went nowhere.” [26][†]But he said to him, “Did not my heart go when the man turned from his chariot to meet you? Was it a time to accept money and garments, olive orchards and vineyards, sheep and oxen, male servants and female servants? [27]Therefore the leprosy of Naaman shall cling to you and to your descendants forever.” So he went out from his presence [m] a leper, like snow.

The Axe Head Recovered

2 KINGS 6 [†]Now [n] the sons of the prophets said to Elisha, “See, the place where we dwell under your charge is too small for us. [2]Let us go to the Jordan and each of us get there a log, and let us make a place for us to dwell there.” And he answered, “Go.” [3]Then one of them said, “Be pleased to go with your servants.” And he answered, “I will go.” [4]So he went with them. And when they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees. [5]But as one was felling a log, his axe head fell into the water, and he cried out, “Alas, my master! It was borrowed.” [6]Then the man of God said, “Where did it fall?” When he showed him the place, [o] he cut off a stick and threw it in there and made the iron float. [7]And he said, “Take it up.” So he reached out his hand and took it.

Horses and Chariots of Fire

[8][†]Once when the king of Syria was warring against Israel, he took counsel with his servants, saying, “At such and such a place shall be my camp.” [9][†]But the man of God sent word to the king of Israel, “Beware that you do not pass this place, for the Syrians are going down there.” [10]And the king of Israel sent to the place about which the man of God told him. Thus he used to warn him, so that he saved himself there more than once or twice.

[11]And the mind of the king of Syria was greatly troubled because of this thing, and he called his servants and said to them, “Will you not show me who of us is for the king of Israel?” [12]And one of his servants said, “None, my lord, O king; but Elisha, the prophet who is in Israel, tells the king of Israel the words that you speak in your bedroom.” [13][†]And he said, “Go and see where he is, that I may send and seize him.” It was told him, “Behold, he is in [p]Dothan.” [14]So he sent there horses and chariots and a great army, and they came by night and surrounded the city.

[15]When the servant of the man of God rose early in the morning and went out, behold, an army with horses and chariots was all around the city. And the servant said, “Alas, my master! What shall we do?” [16][†]He said, “Do not be afraid, [q]for those who are with us are more than those who are with them.” [17][^][†]Then Elisha prayed and said, “O LORD, please [r]open his eyes that he may see.” So the LORD opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of [s]horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha. [18][†]And when the Syrians came down against him, Elisha prayed to the LORD and said, “Please strike this people with blindness.” [t]So he struck them with blindness in accordance with the prayer of Elisha. [19][†]And Elisha said to them, “This is not the way, and this is not the city. Follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom you seek.” And he led them to Samaria.

[20]As soon as they entered Samaria, Elisha said, “O LORD, [r]open the eyes of these men, that they may see.” So the LORD opened their eyes and they saw, and behold, they were in the midst of Samaria. [21]As soon as the king of Israel saw them, he said to Elisha, [u]“My father, shall I strike them down? Shall I strike them down?” [22][†]He answered, “You shall not strike them down. Would you strike down those whom you have taken captive [v]with your sword and with your bow? [w]Set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink and go to their master.” [23]So he prepared for them a great feast, and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. And the Syrians did not come again [x]on raids into the land of Israel.

Ben-hadad’s Siege of Samaria

[24][†]Afterward [y]Ben-hadad king of Syria mustered his entire army and went up and besieged Samaria. [25][†]And there was a great famine in Samaria, as they besieged it, until a donkey's head was sold for eighty shekels of silver, and the fourth part of a kab [1] of dove's dung for five shekels of silver. 26[‡]Now as the king of Israel was passing by on the wall, a woman cried out to him, saying, "Help, my lord, O king!" 27And he said, "If the LORD will not help you, how shall I help you? From the threshing floor, or from the winepress?" 28[‡]And the king asked her, "What is your trouble?" She answered, "This woman said to me, 'Give your son, that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow.' 29 [z] So we boiled my son and ate him. And on the next day I said to her, 'Give your son, that we may eat him.' But she has hidden her son." 30[‡]When the king heard the words of the woman, [a] he tore his clothes—now he was passing by on the wall—and the people looked, and behold, [a] he had sackcloth beneath on his body— 31and he said, [b] "May God do so to me and more also, if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat remains on his shoulders today."

32[‡]Elisha was sitting in his house, [c] and the elders were sitting with him. Now the king had dispatched a man from his presence, but before the messenger arrived Elisha said to the elders, "Do you see how this [d] murderer has sent to take off my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door and hold the door fast against him. Is not the sound of his master's feet behind him?" 33And while he was still speaking with them, the messenger came down to him and said, "This trouble is from the LORD! [e] Why should I wait for the LORD any longer?"

Elisha Promises Food

2 KINGS 7 [‡]But Elisha said, "Hear the word of the LORD: thus says the LORD, [f] Tomorrow about this time a seah [1] of fine flour shall be sold for a shekel, [2] and two seahs of barley for a shekel, at the gate of Samaria." 2[‡]Then [g] the captain on whose hand the king leaned said to the man of God, [h] "If the LORD himself should make windows in heaven, could this thing be?" But he said, "You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat of it."

The Syrians Flee

3[†]Now there were four men who were lepers [3] [i] at the entrance to the gate. And they said to one another, “Why are we sitting here until we die? 4If we say, ‘Let us enter the city,’ the famine is in the city, and we shall die there. And if we sit here, we die also. So now come, let us go over to the camp of the Syrians. If they spare our lives we shall live, and if they kill us we shall but die.” 5So they arose at twilight to go to the camp of the Syrians. But when they came to the edge of the camp of the Syrians, behold, there was no one there. 6[†]For the Lord had made the army of the Syrians [j] hear the sound of chariots and of horses, the sound of a great army, so that they said to one another, “Behold, the king of Israel has hired against us [k] the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Egypt to come against us.” 7 [l] So they fled away in the twilight and abandoned their tents, their horses, and their donkeys, leaving the camp as it was, and fled for their lives. 8And when these lepers came to the edge of the camp, they went into a tent and ate and drank, and they carried off silver and gold and clothing and went and hid them. Then they came back and entered another tent and carried off things from it and went and hid them.

9Then they said to one another, “We are not doing right. This day is a day of good news. If we are silent and wait until the morning light, punishment will overtake us. Now therefore come; let us go and tell the king’s household.” 10So they came and called to the gatekeepers of the city and told them, “We came to the camp of the Syrians, and behold, there was no one to be seen or heard there, nothing but the horses tied and the donkeys tied and the tents as they were.” 11Then the gatekeepers called out, and it was told within the king’s household. 12And the king rose in the night and said to his servants, “I will tell you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we are hungry. Therefore they have gone out of the camp to hide themselves in the open country, thinking, ‘When they come out of the city, we shall take them alive and get into the city.’” 13[†]And one of his servants said, “Let some men take five of the remaining horses, seeing that those who are left here will fare like the whole multitude of Israel who have already perished. Let us send and see.” 14So they took two horsemen, and the king sent them after the army of the Syrians, saying, “Go and see.” 15So they went after them as far as the Jordan, and behold, all the way was littered with garments and equipment that the Syrians had thrown away in their haste. And the messengers returned and told the king.

[16]Then the people went out and plundered the camp of the Syrians. So a seah of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel, [m]according to the word of the LORD. [17]Now the king had appointed [n]the captain on whose hand he leaned to have charge of the gate. And the people trampled him in the gate, so that he died, as the man of God had said [o]when the king came down to him. [18]For when the man of God had said to the king, "Two seahs of barley shall be sold for a shekel, and a seah of fine flour for a shekel, about this time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria," [19][n]the captain had answered the man of God, "If the LORD himself should make windows in heaven, could such a thing be?" And he had said, [p]"You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat of it." [20][†]And so it happened to him, for the people trampled him in the gate and he died.

The Shunammite's Land Restored

2 KINGS 8 [†]Now Elisha had said to the woman [q]whose son he had restored to life, "Arise, and depart with your household, and sojourn wherever you can, for the LORD [r]has called for a famine, and it will come upon the land for [s]seven years." [2][†]So the woman arose and did according to the word of the man of God. She went with her household and sojourned in the land of the Philistines seven years. [3][†]And at the end of the seven years, when the woman returned from the land of the Philistines, she went to appeal to the king for her house and her land. [4]Now the king was talking with [t]Gehazi the servant of the man of God, saying, "Tell me all the great things that Elisha has done." [5]And while he was telling the king how [q]Elisha had restored the dead to life, behold, the woman whose son he had restored to life appealed to the king for her house and her land. And Gehazi said, "My lord, O king, here is the woman, and here is her son whom Elisha restored to life." [6][†]And when the king asked the woman, she told him. So the king appointed an official for her, saying, "Restore all that was hers, together with all the produce of the fields from the day that she left the land until now."

Hazael Murders Ben-hadad

[7][†]Now Elisha came to [u]Damascus. [v]Ben-hadad the king of Syria was sick. And when it was told him, “The man of God has come here,” [8][†]the king said to [w]Hazael, [x]“Take a present with you and go to meet the man of God, [y]and inquire of the LORD through him, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this sickness?’” [9]So Hazael went to meet him, and took a present with him, all kinds of goods of Damascus, forty camels’ loads. When he came and stood before him, he said, [z]“Your son Ben-hadad king of Syria has sent me to you, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this sickness?’” [10][†]And Elisha said to him, [a]“Go, say to him, ‘You shall certainly recover,’ but [1] the LORD has shown me that [b]he shall certainly die.” [11][†]And he fixed his gaze and stared at him, [c]until he was embarrassed. And the man of God wept. [12]And Hazael said, “Why does my lord weep?” He answered, “Because I know [d]the evil that you will do to the people of Israel. You will set on fire their fortresses, and you will kill their young men with the sword [e]and dash in pieces their little ones and rip open their pregnant women.” [13]And Hazael said, “What is your servant, [f]who is but a dog, that he should do this great thing?” Elisha answered, [g]“The LORD has shown me that you are to be king over Syria.” [14]Then he departed from Elisha and came to his master, who said to him, “What did Elisha say to you?” And he answered, “He told me [h]that you would certainly recover.” [15][^][†]But the next day he took the bed cloth [2] and dipped it in water and spread it over his face, till he died. And Hazael became king in his place.

Jehoram Reigns in Judah

[16][†]In the fifth year of [i]Joram the son of Ahab, king of Israel, when Jehoshaphat was king of Judah, [3] Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, began to reign. [17]He was [j]thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. [18][†]And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for [k]the daughter of Ahab was his wife. And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. [19][†]Yet the LORD was not willing to destroy Judah, for the sake of David his servant, [l] since he promised to give [m] a lamp to him and to his sons forever.

[20][†]In his days Edom revolted from the rule of Judah and set up [n] a king of their own. [21]Then Joram [4] passed over to Zair with all his chariots and rose by night, and he and his chariot commanders struck the Edomites who had surrounded him, but his army [o] fled home. [22][p] So Edom revolted from the rule of Judah to this day. Then [q] Libnah revolted at the same time. [23][†]Now the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [24]So Joram slept with his fathers and was buried [r] with his fathers in the city of David, and [s] Ahaziah his son reigned in his place.

Ahaziah Reigns in Judah

[25][†] [t] In the [u] twelfth year of Joram the son of Ahab, king of Israel, Ahaziah the son of Jehoram, king of Judah, began to reign. [26]Ahaziah was [v] twenty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Athaliah; she was [w] a granddaughter of Omri king of Israel. [27]He also walked in the way of the house of Ahab and did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, as the house of Ahab had done, for he was son-in-law to the house of Ahab.

[28][†]He went with Joram the son of Ahab to make war against [x] Hazael king of Syria at [y] Ramoth-gilead, and the Syrians wounded Joram. [29][z] And King Joram returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Syrians had given him at [a] Ramah, when he fought against Hazael king of Syria. And [b] Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Joram the son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was sick.

Jehu Anointed King of Israel

2 KINGS 9 [†]Then Elisha the prophet called one of [c] the sons of the prophets and said to him, [d] “Tie up your garments, and take this [e] flask of oil in your hand, and go to [f] Ramoth-gilead. [2][†]And when you arrive, look there for Jehu [g] the son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi. And go in and have him rise from among [h] his fellows, and lead him to an inner chamber.

[4]So the young man, the servant of the prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead. [5]And when he came, behold, the commanders of the army were in council. And he said, "I have a word for you, O commander." And Jehu said, "To which of us all?" And he said, "To you, O commander." [6]So he arose and went into the house. And the young man poured the oil on his head, saying to him, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, [i]I anoint you king over the people of the LORD, over Israel. [7][†]And you shall strike down the house of Ahab your master, so that I may avenge [j]on Jezebel the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the LORD. [8]For the whole house of Ahab shall perish, [k]and I will cut off from Ahab [l]every male, [m]bond or free, in Israel. [9]And I will make the house of Ahab like [n]the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like [o]the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah. [10][†][p]And the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the territory of Jezreel, and none shall bury her." Then he opened the door and fled.

[11]When Jehu came out to the servants of his master, they said to him, [q]"Is all well? Why did [r]this mad fellow come to you?" And he said to them, "You know the fellow and his talk." [12]And they said, "That is not true; tell us now." And he said, "Thus and so he spoke to me, saying, 'Thus says the LORD, I anoint you king over Israel.'" [13][†]Then in haste [s]every man of them took his garment and put it under him on the bare [1] steps, and they blew the trumpet and proclaimed, [t]"Jehu is king."

Jehu Assassinates Joram and Ahaziah

[14]Thus Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi conspired against Joram. ([u]Now Joram with all Israel had been on guard at Ramoth-gilead against [v]Hazael king of Syria, [15] [w]but King Joram had returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Syrians had given him, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria.) So Jehu said, "If this is your decision, then let no one slip out of the city to go and tell the news in Jezreel." [16]Then Jehu mounted his chariot and went to Jezreel, for Joram lay there. And Ahaziah king of Judah had come down to visit Joram.

17[†]Now the watchman was standing on the tower in Jezreel, and he saw the company of Jehu as he came and said, “I see a company.” And Joram said, “Take a horseman and send to meet them, and let him say, ‘Is it peace?’” 18So a man on horseback went to meet him and said, “Thus says the king, ‘Is it peace?’” And Jehu said, “What do you have to do with peace? Turn around and ride behind me.” And the watchman reported, saying, “The messenger reached them, but he is not coming back.” 19Then he sent out a second horseman, who came to them and said, “Thus the king has said, ‘Is it peace?’” And Jehu answered, “What do you have to do with peace? Turn around and ride behind me.” 20Again the watchman reported, “He reached them, but he is not coming back. And the driving [x] is like the driving of Jehu [y] the son of Nimshi, for he drives furiously.”

21Joram said, [z] “Make ready.” And they made ready his chariot. [a] Then Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah set out, each in his chariot, and went to meet Jehu, and met him [b] at the property of Naboth the Jezreelite. 22[†]And when Joram saw Jehu, he said, “Is it peace, Jehu?” He answered, “What peace can there be, so long as [c] the whorings and the sorceries of your mother Jezebel are so many?” 23Then Joram reined about and fled, saying to Ahaziah, “Treachery, O Ahaziah!” 24And Jehu drew his bow with his full strength, and shot Joram between the shoulders, so that the arrow pierced his heart, and he sank in his chariot. 25[^][†]Jehu said to Bidkar [d] his aide, “Take him up and throw him [b] on the plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite. For remember, when you and I rode side by side behind Ahab his father, how [e] the LORD made this [f] pronouncement against him: 26‘As surely as I saw yesterday the blood of Naboth and the blood of his sons—declares the LORD—I will repay you on this plot of ground.’ Now therefore take him up and throw him on the plot of ground, in accordance with the word of the LORD.”

27[†] [g] When Ahaziah the king of Judah saw this, he fled in the direction of Beth-haggan. And Jehu pursued him and said, “Shoot him also.” And they shot him [2] in the chariot at the ascent of Gur, which is by [h] Ibleam. And he fled to [h] Megiddo and died there. 28 [i] His servants carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his tomb with his fathers in the city of David.

[29][†]In the [j] eleventh year of Joram the son of Ahab, Ahaziah began to reign over Judah.

Jehu Executes Jezebel

[30][†]When Jehu came to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it. And [k] she painted her eyes and adorned her head and looked out of the window. [31][†]And as Jehu entered the gate, she said, [l] “Is it peace, you Zimri, murderer of your master?” [32][†]And he lifted up his face to the window and said, “Who is on my side? Who?” Two or three eunuchs looked out at him. [33]He said, “Throw her down.” So they threw her down. And some of her blood spattered on the wall and on the horses, and they trampled on her. [34]Then he went in and ate and drank. And he said, “See now to this cursed woman and bury her, [m] for she is a king’s daughter.” [35]But when they went to bury her, they found no more of her than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. [36][†]When they came back and told him, he said, “This is the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant Elijah the Tishbite: [n] ‘In the territory of Jezreel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezebel, [37]and the corpse of Jezebel shall be [o] as dung on the face of the field in the territory of Jezreel, so that no one can say, This is Jezebel.’”

Jehu Slaughters Ahab’s Descendants

2 KINGS 10 [†]Now Ahab had seventy sons in [p] Samaria. So Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria, to the rulers of the city, [1] to the elders, and to [q] the guardians of the sons [2] of Ahab, saying, [2]“Now then, as soon as this letter comes to you, seeing your master’s sons are with you, and there are with you chariots and horses, fortified cities also, and weapons, [3][†]select the best and fittest of your master’s sons and set him on his father’s throne and fight for your master’s house.” [4]But they were exceedingly afraid and said, “Behold, the two kings could not stand before him. How then can we stand?” [5][†]So he who was over the palace, and he who was over the city, together with the elders and the guardians, sent to Jehu, saying, [r] “We are your servants, and we will do all that you tell us. We will not make anyone king. Do whatever is good in your eyes.” [6]Then he wrote to them a second letter, saying, “If you are on my side, and if you are ready to obey me, take the heads of your master’s sons and come to me at Jezreel tomorrow at this time.” Now the king’s sons, seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, [q] who were bringing them up. [7][†]And as soon as the letter came to them, they took the king’s sons [s] and slaughtered them, seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets and sent them to him at Jezreel. [8][†]When the messenger came and told him, “They have brought the heads of the king’s sons,” he said, “Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until the morning.” [9]Then in the morning, when he went out, he stood and said to all the people, “You are innocent. [t] It was I who conspired against my master and killed him, but who struck down all these? [10][^]Know then that there shall [u] fall to the earth nothing of the word of the LORD, which the LORD spoke concerning the house of Ahab, for the LORD has done [v] what he said by his servant Elijah.” [11]So Jehu struck down all who remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, all his great men and his close friends and his priests, until he left him none remaining.

[12]Then he set out and went to Samaria. On the way, when he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, [13][†]Jehu met [w] the relatives of Ahaziah king of Judah, and he said, “Who are you?” And they answered, “We are the relatives of Ahaziah, and we came down to visit the royal princes and the sons of the queen mother.” [14]He said, “Take them alive.” And they took them alive and slaughtered them at the pit of Beth-eked, forty-two persons, and he spared none of them.

[15][†]And when he departed from there, he met [x] Jehonadab the son of [y] Rechab coming to meet him. And he greeted him and said to him, “Is your heart true to my heart as mine is to yours?” And Jehonadab answered, “It is.” Jehu said, [3] “If it is, [z] give me your hand.” So he gave him his hand. And Jehu took him up with him into the chariot. [16]And he said, “Come with me, and see [a] my zeal for the LORD.” So he [4] had him ride in his chariot. [17]And when he came to Samaria, [b] he struck down all who remained to Ahab in Samaria, till he had wiped them out, according to the word of the LORD [v] that he spoke to Elijah.

Jehu Strikes Down the Prophets of Baal

[18][†]Then Jehu assembled all the people and said to them, [c]“Ahab served Baal a little, but Jehu will serve him much. [19]Now therefore call to me all the [d]prophets of Baal, all his worshipers and all his priests. Let none be missing, for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal. Whoever is missing shall not live.” But Jehu did it with cunning in order to destroy the worshipers of Baal. [20][†]And Jehu ordered, [e]“Sanctify [f]a solemn assembly for Baal.” So [g]they proclaimed it. [21]And Jehu sent throughout all Israel, and all the worshipers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left who did not come. And they entered [h]the house of Baal, and the house of Baal was filled from one end to the other. [22]He said to him who was in charge of the wardrobe, “Bring out the vestments for all the worshipers of Baal.” So he brought out the vestments for them. [23]Then Jehu went into the house of Baal with Jehonadab the son of Rechab, and he said to the worshipers of Baal, “Search, and see that there is no servant of the LORD here among you, but only the worshipers of Baal.” [24]Then they [5] went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings.

Now Jehu had stationed eighty men outside and said, “The man who allows any of those whom I give into your hands to escape [i]shall forfeit his life.” [25][†]So as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, Jehu said to the guard and to the officers, [j]“Go in and strike them down; let not a man escape.” So when they put them to the sword, the guard and the officers cast them out and went into the inner room of the house of Baal, [26]and they brought out the [k]pillar that was in [h]the house of Baal and burned it. [27][†]And they demolished the [k]pillar of Baal, and demolished the house of Baal, and made it [l]a latrine to this day.

Jehu Reigns in Israel

[28]Thus Jehu wiped out Baal from Israel. [29][†]But Jehu did not turn aside from [m]the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [n]which he made Israel to sin—that is, the golden calves that were in Bethel and in Dan. [30][†]And the LORD said to Jehu, “Because you have done well in carrying out what is right in my eyes, and have done to the house of Ahab according to all that was in my heart, [o]your sons of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel." [31]But Jehu was not careful to walk in the law of the LORD, the God of Israel, with all his heart. [p]He did not turn from the sins of Jeroboam, which he made Israel to sin.

[32][†]In those days the LORD [q]began to cut off parts of Israel. [r]Hazael defeated them throughout the territory of Israel: [33]from the Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, and the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from [s]Aroer, which is by the Valley of the Arnon, that is, [t]Gilead and Bashan. [34][†]Now the rest of the acts of Jehu and all that he did, and all his might, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [35]So Jehu slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria. And Jehoahaz his son reigned in his place. [36]The time that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years.

Athaliah Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 11 [†] [u]Now when [v]Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the royal family. [2][^]But Jehosheba, the daughter of King Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took [w]Joash the son of Ahaziah and stole him away from among the king's sons who were being put to death, and she put [1] him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus they [2] hid him from Athaliah, so that he was not put to death. [3]And he remained with her six years, hidden in the house of the LORD, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

Joash Anointed King in Judah

[4][†] [x]But in the seventh year [y]Jehoiada sent and brought the captains of [z]the Carites and of the guards, and had them come to him in the house of the LORD. And he made a covenant with them and put them under oath in the house of the LORD, and he showed them the king's son. [5][†]And he commanded them, "This is the thing that you shall do: one third of you, [a]those who come off duty on the Sabbath and guard the king's house [6]([b]another third being at the gate Sur and a third at the gate behind the guards) shall guard the palace. [3] [7]And the two divisions of you, which come on duty in force on the Sabbath and guard the house of the LORD on behalf of the king, [8]shall surround the king, each with his weapons in his hand. And whoever approaches the ranks is to be put to death. Be with the king [c]when he goes out and when he comes in."

[9]The captains did according to all that Jehoiada the priest commanded, and they each brought his men who were to go off duty on the Sabbath, with those who were to come on duty on the Sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest. [10][†]And the priest gave to the captains the spears and [d]shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of the LORD. [11]And the guards stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house on behalf of the king. [12][†]Then he brought out the king's son and put [e]the crown on him and gave him [f]the testimony. And they proclaimed him king and anointed him, and they clapped their hands and said, [g]"Long live the king!"

[13]When Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she went into the house of the LORD to the people. [14][†]And when she looked, there was the king standing [h]by the pillar, according to the custom, and the captains and the trumpeters beside the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and [i]blowing trumpets. And Athaliah [j]tore her clothes and cried, "Treason! Treason!" [15]Then Jehoiada the priest commanded the captains who were set over the army, "Bring her out between the ranks, and put to death with the sword anyone who follows her." For the priest said, "Let her not be put to death in the house of the LORD." [16]So they laid hands on her; and she went through the horses' entrance to the king's house, and there she was put to death.

[17][†]And Jehoiada [k]made a covenant between the LORD and the king and people, that they should be the LORD's people, and also [l]between the king and the people. [18]Then all the people of the land went to [m]the house of Baal and tore it down; [n]his altars and his images they broke in pieces, and they killed Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. And the priest posted watchmen over the house of the LORD. [19]And he took the captains, [o]the Carites, the guards, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching through [p]the gate of the guards to the king's house. And he took his seat on the throne of the kings.

[20]So all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been put to death with the sword at the king's house.

Jehoash Reigns in Judah

[21][‡] [4] [q] Jehoash [5] was seven years old when he began to reign.

2 KINGS 12 In the seventh year of Jehu, Jehoash [1] began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah of Beersheba. [2][‡]And Jehoash did what was right in the eyes of the LORD all his days, because Jehoiada the priest instructed him. [3]Nevertheless, [r] the high places were not taken away; the people continued to sacrifice and make offerings on the high places.

Jehoash Repairs the Temple

[4][‡]Jehoash said to the priests, "All the money of the holy things [s] that is brought into the house of the LORD, the money for which each man is assessed—the money from the assessment of persons—and [t] the money that a man's heart prompts him to bring into the house of the LORD, [5]let the priests take, each from his donor, and let them repair the house wherever any need of repairs is discovered." [6]But by the twenty-third year of King Jehoash, the priests had made no repairs on the house. [7][‡]Therefore King Jehoash summoned Jehoiada the priest and the other priests and said to them, "Why are you not repairing the house? Now therefore take no more money from your donors, but hand it over for the repair of the house." [8]So the priests agreed that they should take no more money from the people, and that they should not repair the house.

[9][^]Then Jehoiada the priest took [u] a chest and bored a hole in the lid of it and set it beside the altar on the right side as one entered the house of the LORD. And the priests who guarded the threshold put in it all the money that was brought into the house of the LORD. [10]And whenever they saw that there was much money in the chest, the king's secretary and the high priest came up and they bagged and counted [v] the money that was found in the house of the LORD. [11]Then they would give the money that was weighed out into the hands of the workmen who had the oversight of the house of the LORD. And they paid it out to the carpenters and the builders who worked on the house of the LORD, 12and [w] to the masons and the stonecutters, as well as to buy timber and quarried stone for making repairs on the house of the LORD, and for any outlay for the repairs of the house. 13[†] [x] But there were not made for the house of the LORD [y] basins of silver, snuffers, bowls, trumpets, or any vessels of gold, or of silver, from the money that was brought into the house of the LORD, 14for that was given to the workmen who were repairing the house of the LORD with it. 15And [z] they did not ask for an accounting from the men into whose hand they delivered the money to pay out to the workmen, for they dealt honestly. 16The money from [a] the guilt offerings and the money from the [b] sin offerings was not brought into the house of the LORD; [c] it belonged to the priests.

17[†]At that time [d] Hazael king of Syria went up and fought against Gath and took it. But when Hazael set his face [e] to go up against Jerusalem, 18Jehoash king of Judah [f] took all the sacred gifts that Jehoshaphat and Jehoram and Ahaziah his fathers, the kings of Judah, had dedicated, [g] and his own sacred gifts, and all the gold that was found in the treasuries of the house of the LORD and of the king's house, and sent these to Hazael king of Syria. Then Hazael went away from Jerusalem.

The Death of Joash

19[†]Now the rest of the acts of Joash and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? 20[†] [h] His servants arose and made a conspiracy [i] and struck down Joash in the house of [j] Millo, on the way that goes down to Silla. 21It was [k] Jozacar the son of Shimeath and Jehozabad the son of [k] Shomer, his servants, who struck him down, so that he died. And they buried him with his fathers in the city of David, [l] and Amaziah his son reigned in his place.

Jehoahaz Reigns in Israel

2 KINGS 13 [†]In the twenty-third year of Joash the son of Ahaziah, king of Judah, Jehoahaz the son of Jehu began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned seventeen years. 2He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD and followed the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [m] which he made Israel to sin; he did not depart from them. 3 [n] And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he gave them continually into the hand of [o] Hazael king of Syria and into the hand of [p] Ben-hadad the son of Hazael. 4[†]Then Jehoahaz [q] sought the favor of the LORD, and the LORD listened to him, [r] for he saw the oppression of Israel, how the king of Syria oppressed them. 5(Therefore the LORD gave Israel [s] a savior, so that they escaped from the hand of the Syrians, and the people of Israel lived in [t] their homes as formerly. 6[†]Nevertheless, they did not depart from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, [m] which he made Israel to sin, but walked [1] in them; and [u] the Asherah also remained in Samaria.) 7[†]For there was not left to Jehoahaz an army of more than fifty horsemen and ten chariots and ten thousand footmen, for the king of Syria had destroyed them and made them like the dust [v] at threshing. 8Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz and all that he did, and his might, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? 9[†]So Jehoahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria, and Joash his son reigned in his place.

Jehoash Reigns in Israel

10In the thirty-seventh year of Joash king of Judah, Jehoash [2] the son of Jehoahaz began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned sixteen years. 11He also did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. He did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [m] which he made Israel to sin, but he walked in them. 12 [w] Now the rest of the acts of Joash [x] and all that he did, [y] and the might with which he fought against Amaziah king of Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? 13So Joash slept with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat on his throne. And Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

The Death of Elisha

[14][†]Now when Elisha had fallen sick with the illness of which he was to die, Joash king of Israel went down to him and wept before him, crying, [z]“My father, my father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!” [15]And Elisha said to him, “Take a bow and arrows.” So he took a bow and arrows. [16]Then he said to the king of Israel, “Draw the bow,” and he drew it. And Elisha laid his hands on the king’s hands. [17]And he said, “Open the window eastward,” and he opened it. Then Elisha said, “Shoot,” and he shot. And he said, “The LORD’s arrow of victory, the arrow of victory over Syria! For you shall fight the Syrians in [a]Aphek until you have made an end of them.” [18]And he said, “Take the arrows,” and he took them. And he said to the king of Israel, “Strike the ground with them.” And he struck three times and stopped. [19]Then [b]the man of God was angry with him and said, “You should have struck five or six times; then you would have struck down Syria until you had made an end of it, but now you will strike down Syria only [c]three times.”

[20][†]So Elisha died, and they buried him. Now bands of [d]Moabites used to invade the land in the spring of the year. [21]And as a man was being buried, behold, a marauding band was seen and the man was thrown into the grave of Elisha, and as soon as the man touched the bones of Elisha, he revived and stood on his feet.

[22][e]Now Hazael king of Syria oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz. [23][^][†][f]But the LORD was gracious to them and had compassion on them, [g]and he turned toward them, [h]because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would not destroy them, nor has he cast them from his presence until now.

[24]When Hazael king of Syria died, Ben-hadad his son became king in his place. [25][†]Then Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz took again from Ben-hadad the son of Hazael the cities [i]that he had taken from Jehoahaz his father in war. [j]Three times Joash defeated him and recovered the cities of Israel.

Amaziah Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 14 [†][k]In the [l]second year of Joash the son of Joahaz, king of Israel, [m]Amaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, began to reign. [2]He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jehoaddin of Jerusalem. [3]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, yet not like David his father. He did in all things as Joash his father had done. [4] [n]But the high places were not removed; [o]the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. [5]And as soon as the royal power was [p]firmly in his hand, he struck down his servants [q]who had struck down the king his father. [6]But he did not put to death the children of the murderers, according to what is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, where the LORD commanded, [r]“Fathers shall not be put to death because of their children, nor shall children be put to death because of their fathers. But each one shall die for his own sin.”

[7][‡] [s]He struck down ten thousand Edomites in [t]the Valley of Salt and took [u]Sela by storm, and called it [v]Joktheel, which is its name to this day.

[8] [w]Then Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoash [1] the son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, “Come, [x]let us look one another in the face.” [9][‡]And Jehoash king of Israel sent word to Amaziah king of Judah, [y]“A thistle on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son for a wife,’ and a wild beast of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thistle. [10][^]You have indeed [z]struck down Edom, [a]and your heart has lifted you up. Be content with your glory, and stay at home, for why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?”

[11][‡]But Amaziah would not listen. So Jehoash king of Israel went up, and he and Amaziah king of Judah [x]faced one another in battle at [b]Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah. [12]And Judah was defeated by Israel, [c]and every man fled to his home. [13]And Jehoash king of Israel captured Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Jehoash, son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh, and came to Jerusalem and broke down the wall of Jerusalem for four hundred cubits, [2] from [d]the Ephraim Gate to [e]the Corner Gate. [14]And he seized [f]all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king’s house, also hostages, and he returned to Samaria.

[15][‡] [g]Now the rest of the acts of Jehoash that he did, and his might, and how he fought with Amaziah king of Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [16]And Jehoash slept with his fathers and was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel, and Jeroboam his son reigned in his place.

[17] [h] Amaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, lived fifteen years after the death of Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel. [18]Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [19][‡]And they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to [i] Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish and put him to death there. [20]And they brought him on horses; and he was buried in Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David. [21]And all the people of Judah took Azariah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amaziah. [22][‡]He built [j] Elath and restored it to Judah, after the king slept with his fathers.

Jeroboam II Reigns in Israel

[23]In the fifteenth year of Amaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel, began to reign in Samaria, and he reigned forty-one years. [24]And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. He did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [k] which he made Israel to sin. [25][‡] [l] He restored the border of Israel [m] from Lebo-hamath as far as the Sea of [n] the Arabah, according to the word of the Lord, the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant [o] Jonah the son of Amittai, the prophet, who was from [p] Gath-hepher. [26][‡]For the Lord [q] saw that the affliction of Israel was very bitter, [r] for there was none left, bond or free, and there was none to help Israel. [27][‡] [s] But the Lord had not said that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven, so he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam the son of Joash.

[28][‡]Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam and all that he did, and his might, how he fought, and how he restored [t] Damascus and [u] Hamath to Judah in Israel, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [29]And Jeroboam slept with his fathers, the kings of Israel, and Zechariah his son reigned in his place.

Azariah Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 15 [v]In the twenty-seventh year of Jeroboam king of Israel, [w]Azariah the son of Amaziah, king of Judah, began to reign. [2]He was [x]sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. [3][†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, according to all that his father Amaziah had done. [4][y]Nevertheless, the high places were not taken away. The people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. [5][†][z]And the LORD touched the king, so that he was a leper [1] to the day of his death, [a]and he lived in a separate house. [2] And Jotham the king’s son was over the household, governing the people of the land. [6][†]Now the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [7]And Azariah slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers [b]in the city of David, and Jotham his son reigned in his place.

Zechariah Reigns in Israel

[8][†]In the thirty-eighth year of Azariah king of Judah, Zechariah the son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in Samaria six months. [9][^]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his fathers had done. He did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [c]which he made Israel to sin. [10]Shallum the son of Jabesh conspired against him and [d]struck him down at Ibleam and put him to death and reigned in his place. [11]Now the rest of the deeds of Zechariah, behold, they are written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. [12](This was [e]the promise of the LORD that he gave to Jehu, “Your sons shall sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation.” And so it came to pass.)

Shallum Reigns in Israel

[13]Shallum the son of Jabesh began to reign in the thirty-ninth year of [f]Uzziah [3] king of Judah, and he reigned one month in [g]Samaria. [14]Then Menahem the son of Gadi came up from [h]Tirzah and came to Samaria, and he struck down Shallum the son of Jabesh in Samaria and put him to death and reigned in his place. [15]Now the rest of the deeds of Shallum, and the conspiracy that he made, behold, they are written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. [16][‡]At that time Menahem sacked Tiphsah and all who were in it and its territory from Tirzah on, because they did not open it to him. Therefore he sacked it, [i]and he ripped open all the women in it who were pregnant.

Menahem Reigns in Israel

[17]In the thirty-ninth year of Azariah king of Judah, Menahem the son of Gadi began to reign over Israel, and he reigned ten years in Samaria. [18]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. He did not depart all his days from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, which he made Israel to sin. [19][j] Pul [4] the king of Assyria came against the land, and Menahem gave [j] Pul a thousand talents [5] of silver, that he might help him [k]to confirm his hold on the royal power. [20][‡]Menahem exacted the money from Israel, that is, from all the wealthy men, fifty shekels [6] of silver from every man, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back and did not stay there in the land. [21]Now the rest of the deeds of Menahem and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [22]And Menahem slept with his fathers, and Pekahiah his son reigned in his place.

Pekahiah Reigns in Israel

[23]In the fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah, Pekahiah the son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned two years. [24]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. He did not turn away from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [c]which he made Israel to sin. [25]And Pekah the son of Remaliah, his captain, conspired against him with fifty men of the people of Gilead, and struck him down in Samaria, in the citadel of the king’s house with Argob and Arieh; he put him to death and reigned in his place. [26]Now the rest of the deeds of Pekahiah and all that he did, behold, they are written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel.

Pekah Reigns in Israel

[27][†]In the fifty-second year of Azariah king of Judah, Pekah the son of Remaliah began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned twenty years. [28]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. He did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [l]which he made Israel to sin.

[29]In the days of Pekah king of Israel, [m]Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria came and captured [n]Ijon, [o]Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, [p]Kedesh, [q]Hazor, Gilead, and [r]Galilee, all the land of Naphtali, and he carried the people captive to Assyria. [30]Then Hoshea the son of Elah made a conspiracy against Pekah the son of Remaliah and struck him down and put him to death and reigned in his place, [s]in the twentieth year of Jotham the son of Uzziah. [31]Now the rest of the acts of Pekah and all that he did, behold, they are written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel.

Jotham Reigns in Judah

[32][†]In the second year of Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, Jotham the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, began to reign. [33]He was [t]twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerusha the daughter of Zadok. [34][†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, [u]according to all that his father Uzziah had done. [35][v]Nevertheless, the high places were not removed. The people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. He built [w]the upper gate of the house of the LORD. [36]Now the rest of the acts of Jotham and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [37][†]In those days the LORD began to send [x]Rezin the king of Syria and [x]Pekah the son of Remaliah against Judah. [38]Jotham slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father, and Ahaz his son reigned in his place.

Ahaz Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 16 [†]In the seventeenth year of Pekah the son of Remaliah, Ahaz the son of Jotham, king of Judah, began to reign. [2]Ahaz was [y]twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. And he did not do what was right in the eyes of the LORD his God, as his father David had done, 3[^]but he walked in the way of the kings of Israel. [z] He even burned his son as an offering, [1] [a] according to the despicable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. 4 [b] And he sacrificed and made offerings [c] on the high places and on the hills and under every green tree.

5 [d] Then Rezin king of Syria and [d] Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, came up to wage war on Jerusalem, and they besieged Ahaz [e] but could not conquer him. 6[†]At that time Rezin the king of Syria recovered [f] Elath for Syria and drove the men of Judah from [f] Elath, and the Edomites came to Elath, where they dwell to this day. 7[†] [g] So Ahaz sent messengers to [h] Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, saying, "I am your servant and your son. Come up and rescue me from the hand of the king of Syria and from the hand of the king of Israel, who are attacking me." 8Ahaz also [i] took the silver and gold that was found in the house of the LORD and in the treasures of the king's house and sent a present to the king of Assyria. 9 [j] And the king of Assyria listened to him. The king of Assyria marched up against Damascus [k] and took it, carrying its people captive to [l] Kir, and he killed Rezin.

10[†]When King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet [m] Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, he saw the altar that was at Damascus. And King Ahaz sent to [n] Uriah the priest a model of the altar, and its pattern, exact in all its details. 11And Uriah the priest built the altar; in accordance with all that King Ahaz had sent from Damascus, so Uriah the priest made it, before King Ahaz arrived from Damascus. 12And when the king came from Damascus, the king viewed the altar. [o] Then the king drew near to the altar and went up on it 13and burned his burnt offering and his grain offering and poured his drink offering and threw the blood of his peace offerings on the altar. 14And [p] the bronze altar that was before the LORD he removed [q] from the front of the house, from the place between [r] his altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of [r] his altar. 15And King Ahaz commanded Uriah the priest, saying, "On the great altar burn [s] the morning burnt offering and the evening grain offering and the king's burnt offering and his grain offering, with the burnt offering of all the people of the land, and their grain offering and their drink offering. And throw on it all the blood of the burnt offering and all the blood of the sacrifice, but [t] the bronze altar shall be for me to inquire by.” [16]Uriah the priest did all this, as King Ahaz commanded.

[17][†]And King Ahaz cut off the frames of the stands and removed the basin from them, and he took down [u] the sea [2] from off the bronze oxen that were under it and put it on a stone pedestal. [18]And the covered way for the Sabbath that had been built inside the house and the outer entrance for the king he caused to go around the house of the LORD, because of the king of Assyria. [19][†]Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz that he did, are they not written [v] in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [20]And Ahaz slept with his fathers and [w] was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and Hezekiah his son reigned in his place.

Hoshea Reigns in Israel

2 KINGS 17 [†]In the twelfth year of Ahaz king of Judah, [x] Hoshea the son of Elah began to reign in Samaria over Israel, and he reigned nine years. [2]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, yet not as the kings of Israel who were before him. [3][†] [y] Against him came up [z] Shalmaneser king of Assyria. And Hoshea became his vassal and paid him tribute. [4]But the king of Assyria found treachery in Hoshea, for he had sent messengers to So, king of Egypt, and offered no tribute to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year. Therefore the king of Assyria shut him up and bound him in prison. [5]Then the king of Assyria invaded all the land and came to Samaria, and for three years he besieged it.

The Fall of Israel

[6][†]In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria [a] captured Samaria, [b] and he carried the Israelites away to Assyria [c] and placed them in Halah, and on the Habor, the river of [d] Gozan, and in the cities of [e] the Medes.

Exile Because of Idolatry

[7][^][†]And this occurred because the people of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God, [f] who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and had feared other gods [8] [g] and walked in the customs of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel, [h] and in the customs that the kings of Israel had practiced. [9]And the people of Israel did secretly against the LORD their God things that were not right. They built for themselves high places in all their towns, [i] from watchtower to fortified city. [10]They set up for themselves [j] pillars and Asherim on every high hill and under every green tree, [11]and there they made offerings on all the high places, as the nations did whom the LORD carried away before them. And they did wicked things, provoking the LORD to anger, [12]and they served idols, [k] of which the LORD had said to them, “You shall not do this.” [13]Yet the LORD [l] warned Israel and Judah [m] by every prophet [n] and every seer, saying, [o] “Turn from your evil ways and keep my commandments and my statutes, in accordance with all the Law that I commanded your fathers, and that I sent to you by my servants the prophets.”

[14]But they would not listen, [p] but were stubborn, as their fathers had been, who did not believe in the LORD their God. [15]They despised his statutes [q] and his covenant that he made with their fathers and the warnings that he gave them. They went after [r] false idols [s] and became false, and they followed the nations that were around them, concerning whom the [t] LORD had commanded them that they should not do like them. [16]And they abandoned all the commandments of the LORD their God, and made for themselves metal images of [u] two calves; and they [v] made an Asherah and [w] worshiped all the host of heaven and served [x] Baal. [17] [y] And they burned their sons and their daughters as offerings [1] and used [z] divination and [a] omens and [b] sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. [18]Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel and removed them out of his sight. None was left but [c] the tribe of Judah only.

[19] [d] Judah also did not keep the commandments of the LORD their God, but walked in the customs that Israel had introduced. [20]And the LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel and afflicted them [e] and gave them into the hand of plunderers, until he had cast them out of his sight.

[21] [f] When he had torn Israel from the house of David, [g] they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king. And Jeroboam drove Israel from following the LORD [h] and made them commit great sin. [22] The people of Israel walked in all the sins that Jeroboam did. They did not depart from them, [23] until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, [i] as he had spoken by all his servants the prophets. [j] So Israel was exiled from their own land to Assyria until this day.

Assyria Resettles Samaria

[24] [†] [k] And the king of Assyria brought people from [l] Babylon, Cuthah, [m] Avva, [n] Hamath, and [o] Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the people of Israel. And they took possession of Samaria and lived in its cities. [25] And at the beginning of their dwelling there, they did not fear the LORD. Therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them. [26] So the king of Assyria was told, “The nations that you have carried away and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the law of the god of the land. Therefore he has sent lions among them, and behold, they are killing them, because they do not know the law of the god of the land.” [27] Then the king of Assyria commanded, “Send there one of the priests whom you carried away from there, and let him [2] go and dwell there and teach them the law of the god of the land.” [28] So one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria came and lived in [p] Bethel and taught them how they should fear the LORD.

[29] But every nation still made gods of its own and put them [q] in the shrines of the high places that the Samaritans had made, every nation in the cities in which they lived. [30] The men of [r] Babylon made Succoth-benoth, the men of Cuth made Nergal, the men of Hamath made Ashima, [31] and the Avvites made Nibhaz and Tartak; and the Sepharvites [s] burned their children in the fire to [t] Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of [u] Sepharvaim. [32] [v] They also feared the LORD [w] and appointed from among themselves all sorts of people as priests of the high places, who sacrificed for them in the shrines of [x] the high places. [33] So they feared the LORD but also served their own gods, after the manner of the nations from among whom they had been carried away.

[34]To this day they do according to the former manner. They do not fear the LORD, and they do not follow the statutes or the rules or the law or the commandment that the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, [y]whom he named Israel. [35]The LORD made a covenant with them and commanded them, [z]“You shall not fear other gods [a]or bow yourselves to them or serve them or sacrifice to them, [36]but [b]you shall fear the LORD, [c]who brought you out of the land of Egypt with great power and [d]with an outstretched arm. You shall bow yourselves to him, and to him you shall sacrifice. [37]And the statutes and the rules and the law and the commandment that he wrote for you, [e]you shall always be careful to do. [z]You shall not fear other gods, [38]and [f]you shall not forget the covenant that I have made with you. [z]You shall not fear other gods, [39]but [b]you shall fear the LORD your God, and he will deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.” [40]However, they would not listen, but they did according to their former manner.

[41] [g]So these nations feared the LORD and also served their carved images. Their children did likewise, and their children’s children—as their fathers did, so they do to this day.

Hezekiah Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 18 [‡] [h]In the third year of Hoshea son of Elah, king of Israel, [i]Hezekiah the son of Ahaz, king of Judah, began to reign. [2]He was [j]twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was [k]Abi the daughter of Zechariah. [3] [l]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, according to all that David his father had done. [4][‡] [m]He removed the high places and broke the [n]pillars and cut down [o]the Asherah. And he broke in pieces [p]the bronze serpent that Moses had made, for until those days the people of Israel had made offerings to it (it was called Nehushtan). [1] [5][^][‡] [q]He trusted in the LORD, the God of Israel, [r]so that there was none like him among all the kings of Judah after him, nor among those who were before him. [6] [s]For he held fast to the LORD. He did not depart from following him, but kept the commandments that the LORD commanded Moses. [7][‡] [t]And the LORD was with him; wherever he went out, [u]he prospered. He rebelled against the king of Assyria and would not serve him. 8 [v]He struck down the Philistines as far as Gaza and its territory, [w]from watchtower to fortified city.

9[†]In the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea son of Elah, king of Israel, [x]Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria and besieged it, 10and at the end of three years he took it. In the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of Hoshea king of Israel, Samaria was taken. 11The king of Assyria carried the Israelites away to Assyria and put them in [y]Halah, and on the [y]Habor, [y]the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes, 12because they did not obey the voice of the Lord their God but transgressed his covenant, even all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded. They neither listened nor obeyed.

Sennacherib Attacks Judah

13[†] [z]In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. 14[†]And Hezekiah king of Judah sent to the king of Assyria at Lachish, saying, “I have done wrong; withdraw from me. Whatever you impose on me I will bear.” [a]And the king of Assyria required of Hezekiah king of Judah three hundred talents [2] of silver and thirty talents of gold. 15And Hezekiah [b]gave him all the silver that was found in the house of the Lord and in the treasuries of the king’s house. 16At that time Hezekiah stripped the gold from the doors of the temple of the Lord and from the doorposts that Hezekiah king of Judah had overlaid and gave it to the king of Assyria. 17[†]And the king of Assyria sent the [c]Tartan, the Rab-saris, and the Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem. When they arrived, they came and stood by [d]the conduit of the upper pool, which is on the highway to the Washer’s Field. 18[†]And when they called for the king, there came out to them [e]Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and [f]Shebnah the secretary, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder.

19[†]And the Rabshakeh said to them, “Say to Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you rest this trust of yours? 20Do you think that mere words are strategy and power for war? In whom do you now trust, that you have rebelled against me? [21]Behold, you are trusting now in Egypt, that broken reed of [g] a staff, which will pierce the hand of any man who leans on it. Such is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who trust in him. [22]But if you say to me, “We trust in the LORD our God,” is it not he [h] whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, “You shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem”?

[23]Come now, make a wager with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses, if you are able on your part to set riders on them.
[24]How then can you repulse a single captain among the least of my master’s servants, when you trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen?
[25]Moreover, is it without the LORD that I have come up against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.’”

[26][‡]Then [e] Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, and [f] Shebnah, and Joah, said to the Rabshakeh, “Please speak to your servants in [i] Aramaic, for we understand it. Do not speak to us in the language of Judah within the hearing of the people who are on the wall.” [27]But the Rabshakeh said to them, “Has my master sent me to speak these words to your master and to you, and not to the men sitting on the wall, who are doomed with you to eat their own dung and to drink their own urine?”

[28]Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out in a loud voice in the language of Judah: “Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria!
[29][‡]Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you out of my [3] hand. [30][^]Do not let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD by saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.’ [31][‡]Do not listen to Hezekiah, for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘Make your peace with me [4] and come out to me. Then [j] each one of you will eat of his own vine, and each one of his own fig tree, and each one of you will drink the water of his own cistern, [32]until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, [k] a land of grain and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive trees and [l] honey, that you may live, and not die. And do not listen to Hezekiah when he misleads you by saying, “The LORD will deliver us.” [33] [m] Has any of the gods of the nations ever delivered his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? [34] [n] Where are the gods of [o] Hamath and [p] Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and [q] Ivvah? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? [35]Who among all the gods of the lands have delivered their lands out of my hand, [r]that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?'"

[36]But the people were silent and answered him not a word, for the king's command was, "Do not answer him." [37]Then [s]Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah [t]with their clothes torn and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Isaiah Reassures Hezekiah

2 KINGS 19 [†] [u]As soon as King Hezekiah heard it, [t]he tore his clothes and [v]covered himself with sackcloth and went into the house of the LORD. [2]And he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, and Shebna the secretary, and the senior priests, [v]covered with sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz. [3][†]They said to him, "Thus says Hezekiah, This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace; children have come to the point of birth, and there is no strength to bring them forth. [4] [w]It may be that the LORD your God heard all the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent [x]to mock the living God, and will rebuke the words that the LORD your God has heard; therefore lift up your prayer for [y]the remnant that is left." [5]When the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah, [6]Isaiah said to them, "Say to your master, 'Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which [z]the servants of the king of Assyria have [a]reviled me. [7][†]Behold, I will put a spirit in him, so that [b]he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land, and I will make him [c]fall by the sword in his own land.'"

Sennacherib Defies the LORD

[8]The Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria fighting against [d]Libnah, for he heard that the king had left [e]Lachish. [9] [f]Now the king heard concerning Tirhakah king of Cush, "Behold, he has set out to fight against you." So he sent messengers again to Hezekiah, saying, [10][†]"Thus shall you speak to Hezekiah king of Judah: 'Do not let your God [g]in whom you trust deceive you by promising that [h] Jerusalem will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria. [11]Behold, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, devoting them to destruction. And shall you be delivered? [12] [i] Have the gods of the nations delivered them, the nations that my fathers destroyed, [j] Gozan, [k] Haran, Rezeph, and the people of [l] Eden who were in Telassar? [13] [m] Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, the king of Hena, or the king of Ivvah?'"

Hezekiah's Prayer

[14]Hezekiah received [n] the letter from the hand of the messengers and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD and spread it before the LORD. [15][†]And Hezekiah prayed before the LORD and said: "O LORD, the God of Israel, [o] enthroned above the cherubim, [p] you are the God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; you have made heaven and earth. [16] [q] Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; [r] open your eyes, O LORD, and see; and hear the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent [s] to mock the living God. [17]Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste the nations and their lands [18]and have cast their gods into the fire, for they were not gods, [t] but the work of men's hands, wood and stone. Therefore they were destroyed. [19]So now, O LORD our God, save us, please, from his hand, [u] that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that [p] you, O LORD, are God alone."

Isaiah Prophesies Sennacherib's Fall

[20][†]Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Your prayer to me about Sennacherib king of Assyria [v] I have heard. [21][†]This is the word that the LORD has spoken concerning him:

"She despises you, she scorns you—[w] the virgin daughter of Zion;
she [x] wags her head behind you—
  the daughter of Jerusalem.

22[^] “Whom have you [y] mocked and [z] reviled?
Against whom have you raised your voice and lifted your eyes to the heights?
Against [a] the Holy One of Israel!
23 [b] By your messengers you have mocked the Lord, and you have said, [c] ‘With my many chariots
I have gone up the heights of the mountains, to the far recesses of [d] Lebanon;
I felled its tallest cedars,
its choicest cypresses;
I entered its farthest lodging place, its most [e] fruitful forest.
24 I dug wells
and drank foreign waters, and I dried up with the sole of my foot all the streams [f] of Egypt.’

25 “Have you not heard that [g] I determined it long ago?
I planned from days of old what [h] now I bring to pass, that you should turn fortified cities into heaps of ruins, 26 while their inhabitants, shorn of strength, are dismayed and confounded,
and have become [i] like plants of the field and like tender grass, like grass on the housetops, blighted before it is grown.

27 “But I know your sitting down [j] and your going out and coming in,
and your raging against me.
28 Because you have raged against me and your complacency has come into my ears,

I will [k] put my hook in your nose and my bit in your mouth, and [l] I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.

[29][†]"And this shall be [m] the sign for you: this year eat what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs of the same. Then in the third year sow and reap and plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. [30] [n] And the surviving remnant of the house of Judah shall again take root downward and bear fruit upward. [31]For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnant, and out of Mount Zion [o] a band of survivors. [p] The zeal of the LORD will do this.

[32][†]"Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not come into this city or shoot an arrow there, or come before it with a shield or [q] cast up a siege mound against it. [33] [r] By the way that he came, by the same he shall return, and he shall not come into this city, declares the LORD. [34] [s] For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake [t] and for the sake of my servant David."

[35][†]And that night [u] the angel of the LORD went out and struck down 185,000 in the camp of the Assyrians. And when people arose early in the morning, behold, these were all dead bodies. [36]Then Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went home and lived at [v] Nineveh. [37][†]And as he was worshiping in the house of Nisroch his god, [w] Adrammelech and Sharezer, his sons, struck him down with the sword and escaped into the land of Ararat. And Esarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

Hezekiah's Illness and Recovery

2 KINGS 20 [†] [x] In those days [y] Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came to him and said to him, "Thus says the LORD, [z] 'Set your house in order, for you shall die; you shall not recover.'" [2][†]Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD, saying, [3][†]"Now, O LORD, [a] please remember how I have walked before you in faithfulness and [b] with a whole heart, [c] and have done what is good in your sight." [d] And Hezekiah wept bitterly. [4][†]And before Isaiah had gone out of the middle court, the word of the Lord came to him: [5][^][†]“Turn back, and say to Hezekiah [e]the leader of my people, Thus says the Lord, the God of David your father: [f]I have heard your prayer; [g]I have seen your tears. Behold, I will heal you. On the third day you shall go up to the house of the Lord, [6]and I will add fifteen years to your life. I will deliver you and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria, [h]and I will defend this city for my own sake and for my servant David’s sake.” [7][†]And Isaiah said, “Bring a cake of figs. And let them take and lay it on the boil, that he may recover.”

[8][†]And Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I shall go up to the house of the Lord on the third day?” [9]And Isaiah said, “This shall be [i]the sign to you from the Lord, that the Lord will do the thing that he has promised: shall the shadow go forward ten steps, or go back ten steps?” [10]And Hezekiah answered, “It is an easy thing for the shadow [j]to lengthen ten steps. Rather let the shadow go back ten steps.” [11]And Isaiah the prophet called to the Lord, [k]and he brought the shadow back ten steps, by which it had gone down on the steps of Ahaz.

Hezekiah and the Babylonian Envoys

[12][†][l]At that time [m]Merodach-baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, [n]sent envoys with letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that Hezekiah had been sick. [13][†]And Hezekiah welcomed them, and he showed them [o]all his treasure house, the silver, the gold, the spices, the precious oil, his armory, all that was found in his storehouses. There was nothing in his house or in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. [14]Then Isaiah the prophet came to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say? And from where did they come to you?” And Hezekiah said, “They have come from a far country, from Babylon.” [15]He said, “What have they seen in your house?” And Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing in my storehouses that I did not show them.”

[16]Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the Lord: [17]Behold, the days are coming, when [p]all that is in your house, and that which your fathers have stored up till this day, shall be carried to Babylon. Nothing shall be left, says the LORD. [18][q] And some of your own sons, who shall be born to you, shall be taken away, [r] and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon." [19][†]Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, [s] "The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good." For he thought, "Why not, if there will be peace and security in my days?"

[20][†] [t] The rest of the deeds of Hezekiah and all his might and how he made [u] the pool and the conduit [v] and brought water into the city, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [21][w] And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and Manasseh his son reigned in his place.

Manasseh Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 21 [†] [x] Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hephzibah. [2]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [y] according to the despicable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. [3]For he rebuilt the high places [z] that Hezekiah his father had destroyed, and he erected altars for Baal and made [a] an Asherah, [b] as Ahab king of Israel had done, [c] and worshiped all the host of heaven and served them. [4][d] And he built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, [e] "In Jerusalem will I put my name." [5]And he built altars [c] for all the host of heaven in [f] the two courts of the house of the LORD. [6][g] And he burned his son as an offering [1] and [h] used fortune-telling and [i] omens and dealt [j] with mediums and with necromancers. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. [7][†]And the carved image of [a] Asherah that he had made he set in the house of which the LORD said to David and to Solomon his son, "In this house, [e] and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever. [8][^] [†] [k] And I will not cause the feet of Israel to wander anymore out of the land that I gave to their fathers, if only they will be careful to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the Law that my servant Moses commanded them." [9]But they did not listen, and Manasseh led them astray to do more evil than the nations had done whom the LORD destroyed before the people of Israel.

Manasseh’s Idolatry Denounced

[10]And the LORD said by his servants the prophets, [11] [l]“Because Manasseh king of Judah has committed these abominations and has done things [m]more evil than all that the Amorites did, who were before him, [n]and has made Judah also to sin [o]with his idols, [12][†]therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Behold, I am bringing upon Jerusalem and Judah such disaster [2] that the ears of everyone who hears of it [p]will tingle. [13][†] [q]And I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring line of Samaria, and the plumb line of the house of Ahab, and I will wipe Jerusalem as one wipes a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down. [14]And I will forsake the remnant of my heritage and give them into the hand of their enemies, and they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies, [15]because they have done what is evil in my sight and have provoked me to anger, since the day their fathers came out of Egypt, even to this day.”

[16] [r]Moreover, Manasseh shed very much innocent blood, till he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another, besides the sin [s]that he made Judah to sin so that they did what was evil in the sight of the LORD.

[17][†] [t]Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh and all that he did, and the sin that he committed, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [18] [u]And Manasseh slept with his fathers and was buried in the garden of his house, [v]in the garden of Uzza, and Amon his son reigned in his place.

Amon Reigns in Judah

[19][†]Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Meshullemeth the daughter of Haruz of Jotbah. [20]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [w]as Manasseh his father had done. [21]He walked in all the way in which his father walked and served [x]the idols that his father served and worshiped them. [22] [y]He abandoned the LORD, the God of his fathers, and did not walk in the way of the LORD. [23]And the servants of Amon conspired against him and put the king to death in his house. [24]But the people of the land struck down all those who had conspired against King Amon, and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his place. [25]Now the rest of the acts of Amon that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [26]And he was buried in his tomb [z]in the garden of Uzza, and Josiah his son reigned in his place.

Josiah Reigns in Judah

2 KINGS 22 [†] [a]Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiah of [b]Bozkath. [2][^][†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD and walked in all the way of David his father, [c]and he did not turn aside to the right or to the left.

Josiah Repairs the Temple

[3][†]In the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the king sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, son of Meshullam, the secretary, to the house of the LORD, saying, [4]"Go up to [d]Hilkiah the high priest, that he may count the money [e]that has been brought into the house of the LORD, which [f]the keepers of the threshold have collected from the people. [5][g]And let it be given into the hand of the workmen who have the oversight of the house of the LORD, and let them give it to the workmen who are at the house of the LORD, repairing the house [6](that is, to the carpenters, and to the builders, and to the masons), and let them use it for buying timber and quarried stone to repair the house. [7]But [h]no accounting shall be asked from them for the money that is delivered into their hand, for they deal honestly."

Hilkiah Finds the Book of the Law

[8][†]And Hilkiah the high priest said to Shaphan the secretary, "I have found [i]the Book of the Law in the house of the LORD." And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it. [9]And Shaphan the secretary came to the king, and reported to the king, "Your servants have emptied out the money that was found in the house and have delivered it into the hand of the workmen who have the oversight of the house of the LORD." [10]Then Shaphan the secretary told the king, "Hilkiah the priest has given me a book." And Shaphan read it before the king.

[11][†]When the king heard the words of the Book of the Law, [j]he tore his clothes. [12]And the king commanded Hilkiah the priest, and [k]Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and [l]Achbor the son of [l]Micaiah, and Shaphan the secretary, and Asaiah the king's servant, saying, [13][^]"Go, inquire of the LORD for me, and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that has been found. For great is [m]the wrath of the LORD that is kindled against us, because our fathers have not obeyed the words of this book, to do according to all that is written concerning us."

[14][†]So Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asaiah went to Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of [n]Tikvah, son of [n]Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe (now she lived in Jerusalem in [o]the Second Quarter), and they talked with her. [15]And she said to them, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: 'Tell the man who sent you to me, [16]Thus says the LORD, Behold, I will bring disaster upon this place and upon its inhabitants, all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read. [17][p]Because they have forsaken me and have made offerings to other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the work of their hands, therefore [m]my wrath will be kindled against this place, and it will not be quenched. [18]But to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, [19][q]because your heart was penitent, and you [r]humbled yourself before the LORD, when you heard how I spoke against this place and against its inhabitants, that they should become [s]a desolation and [t]a curse, and you [u]have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, declares the LORD. [20][^][†]Therefore, behold, I will gather you to your fathers, and [v]you shall be gathered to your grave in peace, and your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring upon this place.'" And they brought back word to the king.

Josiah's Reforms

2 KINGS 23 [w]Then the king sent, and all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem were gathered to him. [2][†]And the king went up to the house of the LORD, and with him all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem and the priests and the prophets, all the people, both small and great. And [x]he read in their hearing all the words of the Book of the Covenant [y]that had been found in the house of the LORD. 3And the king stood [z]by the pillar and [a]made a covenant before the LORD, [b]to walk after the LORD and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. And all the people joined in the covenant.

4[†]And the king commanded Hilkiah the high priest and the priests [c]of the second order and the keepers of the threshold to bring out of the temple of the LORD all the vessels made for [d]Baal, for [e]Asherah, and for all the host of heaven. [f]He burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of the Kidron and carried their ashes to Bethel. 5And he deposed the priests whom the kings of Judah had ordained to make offerings in the high places at the cities of Judah and around Jerusalem; those also who burned incense to Baal, to the sun and the moon and the constellations [g]and all the host of the heavens. 6And he brought out [h]the Asherah from the house of the LORD, outside Jerusalem, to the brook Kidron, [i]and burned it at the brook Kidron [j]and beat it to dust and cast the dust of it upon the graves [k]of the common people. 7And he broke down the houses of [l]the male cult prostitutes who were in the house of the LORD, [m]where the women wove hangings for [h]the Asherah. 8[†]And he brought all the priests out of the cities of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had made offerings, from [n]Geba to Beersheba. And he broke down the high places of the gates that were at the entrance of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on one’s left at the gate of the city. 9 [o]However, the priests of the high places did not come up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem, but they ate unleavened bread among their brothers. 10[†]And he defiled [p]Topheth, which is [q]in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, [r]that no one might burn his son or his daughter as an offering to [s]Molech. [1] 11[†]And he removed the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, at the entrance to the house of the LORD, by the chamber of Nathan-melech the chamberlain, which was in the precincts. [2] And he burned the chariots of the sun with fire. 12[†]And the altars [t]on the roof of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars [u]that Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the LORD, he pulled down and broke in pieces [3] and cast the dust of them [v]into the brook Kidron. 13[†]And the king defiled the high places that were east of Jerusalem, to the south of [w]the mount of corruption, which Solomon the king of Israel had built for [x]Ashtoreth the abomination of the Sidonians, and for [y]Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for [z]Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. 14[†]And he broke in pieces the [a]pillars and cut down the Asherim and filled their places with the bones of men.

15[†]Moreover, the altar at Bethel, the high place erected [b]by Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [c]who made Israel to sin, [d]that altar with the high place he pulled down and burned, [4] reducing it to dust. He also burned the Asherah. 16And as Josiah turned, he saw the tombs there on the mount. And he sent and took the bones out of the tombs and burned them on the altar and defiled it, [e]according to the word of the Lord that the man of God proclaimed, who had predicted these things. 17Then he said, "What is that monument that I see?" And the men of the city told him, [f]"It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and predicted [5] these things that you have done against the altar at Bethel." 18And he said, "Let him be; let no man move his bones." So they let his bones alone, with the bones [g]of the prophet who came out of Samaria. 19And Josiah removed all the shrines also of the high places that were [h]in the cities of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made, provoking the Lord to anger. He did to them according to all that he had done at Bethel. 20And [i]he sacrificed all the priests of the high places who were there, on the altars, [j]and burned human bones on them. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

Josiah Restores the Passover

21And the king commanded all the people, [k]"Keep the Passover to the Lord your God, [l]as it is written in this Book of the Covenant." 22[†][m]For no such Passover had been kept since the days of the judges who judged Israel, or during all the days of the kings of Israel or of the kings of Judah. 23But in the eighteenth year of King Josiah this Passover was kept to the Lord in Jerusalem.

24[†]Moreover, Josiah put away [n]the mediums and the necromancers and [o]the household gods and [p]the idols and all the abominations that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, that he might establish [q] the words of the law that were written in the book [r] that Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD. 25[†] [s] Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart and with all his soul and with all his might, according to all the Law of Moses, nor did any like him arise after him.

26[†]Still the LORD did not turn from the burning of his great wrath, by which his anger was kindled against Judah, [t] because of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked him. 27And the LORD said, "I will remove Judah also out of my sight, [u] as I have removed Israel, and I will cast off this city that I have chosen, Jerusalem, [v] and the house of which I said, My name shall be there."

Josiah's Death in Battle

28[†]Now the rest of the acts of Josiah and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? 29 [w] In his days [x] Pharaoh Neco king of Egypt went up to the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates. King Josiah went to meet him, and Pharaoh Neco killed him at [y] Megiddo, as soon as he saw him. 30 [z] And his servants carried him dead in a chariot from [y] Megiddo and brought him to Jerusalem and buried him in his own tomb. [a] And the people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah, and anointed him, and made him king in his father's place.

Jehoahaz's Reign and Captivity

31[†] [b] Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was [c] Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 32And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [d] according to all that his fathers had done. 33And [x] Pharaoh Neco put him in bonds at [e] Riblah in the land of [f] Hamath, that he might not reign in Jerusalem, and laid on the land a tribute of a hundred talents [6] of silver and a talent of gold. 34And [x] Pharaoh Neco made Eliakim the son of Josiah king in the place of Josiah his father, and [g] changed his name to Jehoiakim. But he took Jehoahaz away, [h] and he came to Egypt and died there. [35]And Jehoiakim [i] gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, but he taxed the land to give the money according to the command of Pharaoh. He exacted the silver and the gold of the people of the land, from everyone according to his assessment, to give it to Pharaoh Neco.

Jehoiakim Reigns in Judah

[36][†] [j] Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zebidah the daughter of Pedaiah of Rumah. [37]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [d] according to all that his fathers had done.

2 KINGS 24 [k] In his days, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up, and Jehoiakim became his servant for three years. Then he turned and rebelled against him. [2][^][†]And the LORD sent against him bands of the [l] Chaldeans and [m] bands of the Syrians and bands of the Moabites and bands of the Ammonites, and sent them against Judah to destroy it, [n] according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servants the prophets. [3]Surely this came upon Judah at the command of the LORD, to remove them out of his sight, [o] for the sins of Manasseh, according to all that he had done, [4]and also [p] for the innocent blood that he had shed. For he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, and the LORD would not pardon. [5][†] [q] Now the rest of the deeds of Jehoiakim and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [6]So Jehoiakim [r] slept with his fathers, and Jehoiachin his son reigned in his place. [7] [s] And the king of Egypt did not come again out of his land, [t] for the king of Babylon had taken all that belonged to the king of Egypt [u] from the Brook of Egypt to the river Euphrates.

Jehoiachin Reigns in Judah

[8][†] [v] Jehoiachin was [w] eighteen years old when he became king, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Nehushta the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. [9]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [x] according to all that his father had done.

Jerusalem Captured

[10][‡]At that time the servants of [y]Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up to Jerusalem, and the city was besieged. [11]And [y]Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came to the city while his servants were besieging it, [12][z]and Jehoiachin the king of Judah gave himself up to the king of Babylon, himself and his mother and his servants and his officials and his palace officials. [a]The king of Babylon took him prisoner [b]in the eighth year of his reign [13]and carried off all the treasures of the house of the LORD [c]and the treasures of the king's house, [d]and cut in pieces all the vessels of gold in the temple of the LORD, [e]which Solomon king of Israel had made, [f]as the LORD had foretold. [14][g]He carried away all Jerusalem and all the officials and all the mighty men of valor, [h]10,000 captives, [i]and all the craftsmen and the smiths. None remained, [j]except the poorest people of the land. [15][k]And he carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon. The king's mother, the king's wives, his officials, and the chief men of the land he took into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon. [16]And the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon all the men of valor, [l]7,000, and the craftsmen and the metal workers, 1,000, all of them strong and fit for war. [17][m]And the king of Babylon [n]made Mattaniah, [o]Jehoiachin's uncle, king in his place, [p]and changed his name to Zedekiah.

Zedekiah Reigns in Judah

[18][‡][q]Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was [r]Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. [19]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, [s]according to all that Jehoiakim had done. [20]For because of the anger of the LORD it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that he cast them out from his presence.

[t]And Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

Fall and Captivity of Judah

2 KINGS 25 [u]And in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, [v]Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem and laid siege to it. [w]And they built siegeworks all around it. [2]So the city was besieged till the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. [3]On the ninth day of the fourth month [x]the famine was so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land. [4]Then a breach was made in the city, and all the men of war fled by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, by [y]the king's garden, and [z]the Chaldeans were around the city. And they went in the direction of the [a]Arabah. [5]But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king and overtook him in the plains of Jericho, and all his army was scattered from him. [6]Then they captured the king [b]and brought him up to the king of Babylon at [c]Riblah, and they passed sentence on him. [7]They slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, [d]and put out the eyes of Zedekiah and bound him in chains and took him to Babylon.

[8][†] [e]In the fifth month, on [f]the seventh day of the month—that was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon—Nebuzaradan, the captain of the bodyguard, a servant of the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem. [9][^][†] [g]And he burned the house of the LORD [h]and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem; every great house he burned down. [10]And all the army of the Chaldeans, who were with the captain of the guard, [i]broke down the walls around Jerusalem. [11] [j]And the rest of the people who were left in the city and the deserters who had deserted to the king of Babylon, together with the rest of the multitude, Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried into exile. [12]But the captain of the guard left [k]some of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and plowmen.

[13][†] [l]And the pillars [m]of bronze that were in the house of the LORD, and [n]the stands and [o]the bronze sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces and carried the bronze to Babylon. [14] [p]And they took away the pots and the shovels and the snuffers and the dishes for incense and all the vessels of bronze used in the temple service, [15]the fire pans also and the bowls. What was of gold the captain of the guard took away as gold, and what was of silver, as silver. [16]As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the stands that Solomon had made for the house of the LORD, [q]the bronze of all these vessels was beyond weight. [17] [r]The height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, [1] and on it was a capital of bronze. The height of the capital was three cubits. A latticework and pomegranates, all of bronze, were all around the capital. And the second pillar had the same, with the latticework.

[18] [s] And the captain of the guard took [t] Seraiah the chief priest and [u] Zephaniah the second priest and the three keepers of the threshold; [19]and from the city he took an officer who had been in command of the men of war, and [v] five men of the king’s council who were found in the city; and the secretary of the commander of the army, who mustered the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the city. [20]And Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at [w] Riblah. [21][‡]And the king of Babylon struck them down and put them to death at [w] Riblah in the land of Hamath. [x] So Judah was taken into exile out of its land.

Gedaliah Made Governor of Judah

[22][‡]And over the people who remained in the land of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had left, he appointed [y] Gedaliah the son of [z] Ahikam, son of Shaphan, governor. [23] [a] Now when all the captains and their men heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah governor, they came with their men to Gedaliah at [b] Mizpah, namely, Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah the son of the Maacathite. [24]And Gedaliah swore to them and their men, saying, “Do not be afraid because of the Chaldean officials. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.” [25] [c] But in the seventh month, [d] Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with ten men and struck down Gedaliah and put him to death along with the Jews and the Chaldeans who were with him at Mizpah. [26] [e] Then all the people, both small and great, and the captains of the forces arose and went to Egypt, for they were afraid of the Chaldeans.

Jehoiachin Released from Prison

[27][^][‡] [f] And in the thirty-seventh year of [g] the exile of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, graciously [h] freed [2] Jehoiachin king of Judah from prison. [28]And he spoke kindly to him and gave him a seat above the seats of the kings who were with him in Babylon. [29]So Jehoiachin put off his prison garments. And every day of his life [i] he dined regularly at the king's table, [30]and for his allowance, a regular allowance was given him by the king, according to his daily needs, as long as he lived.

Study Notes for 2 Kings

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:1–18 The Death of Ahaziah. Like his father Ahab, Ahaziah is destined to meet Elijah. The occasion for their confrontation is an injury sustained by the king when falling out the window of his upper chamber in Samaria.

Israel and Judah in 2 Kings

c. 853 B.C.

The book of 2 Kings recounts events in Israel and Judah from the death of Ahab to the exile of Israel and Judah. The complex and shifting political setting for the book involves Israel, Judah, Syria, Ammon, Moab, Edom, and Philistia, as well as Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, and other kingdoms far beyond Israel's borders.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:1 After the death of Ahab, Moab rebelled. More on this rebellion will be related in ch. 3. It is mentioned here to make the point that, whereas the relatively righteous Jehoshaphat maintained his control of other nations (Edom, 1 Kings 22:47), Ahab's Baal-worshiping son did not. An inscribed stone monument of King Mesha of Moab (commonly known as the "Mesha Inscription" or "Moabite Stone") probably refers to this same Moabite rebellion (see note on 2 Kings 3:4–27).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:2 Samaria was the capital of the northern kingdom of Israel from the time of Omri (1 Kings 16:24) until the fall of the northern kingdom under Hoshea (2 Kings 17). Ekron was an important Philistine city about 25 miles (40 km) west of Jerusalem. Baal-zebub means "lord of the flies" and is probably a deliberate Hebrew corruption of "Baal-zebul" ("Baal the exalted" or "Baal/master of the height" or possibly "Baal/master of the dwelling"; cf. note on Matt. 10:25), intended to express the authors' scorn of or hostility toward this "deity." Ahaziah looks for help from this local manifestation of the god Baal (see 1 Kings 16:31–33), perhaps regarding the Ekronite version of the deity as especially powerful.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:3–4 In a scene reminiscent of the opening verses of 1 Kings 19, the Lord sends an angel (Hb. mal'ak) in response to other people's sending messengers (also Hb. mal'ak, 2 Kings 1:2).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:8 He wore a garment of hair. The Hebrew is lit., "He was a man who was a lord/owner of hair"—possibly a play on words with "lord of the flies" in v. 2. The "hair" could be either animal or human, which is why translations of the Hebrew have varied between "garment of hair" and "hairy" (i.e., long-haired, bearded).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:9–12 the king sent to him a captain of fifty men. The odds would seem good for 50 soldiers to be able to bring back one man, but the Lord is on Elijah's side. This is not the first time a negative oracle addressed to a king elicits an attempt to capture the prophet who delivered it (cf. 1 Kings 13:1–7; 17:1–4; 18:9–10; also 1 Sam. 19:19–24). The prophetic word, however, cannot be brought under human control, and the God of Mount Carmel sends fire from heaven to underline this fact (cf. 1 Kings 18:38). Two "lords" vie for worship throughout the Elijah story (Baal and Yahweh), both of them identified with fire—and Ahaziah has chosen the wrong one. Here 100 soldiers die as a result of Ahaziah's choice to turn from God, again showing that the sins of leaders often lead to tragic consequences for those whom they lead (see note on 2 Sam. 24:17).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 1:13–18 third captain. This man shows Elijah the respect he is due as a prophet of the Lord and escapes with his life. On the other hand, Ahaziah has his desired meeting with Elijah, and it changes nothing; the king dies. His brother Jehoram succeeds him (v. 17; cf. 3:1). On the Chronicles of the Kings, see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:1–10:36 Elisha and Israel. Elijah's days have been numbered since 1 Kings 19:15–18, and particularly God's instructions there about Elisha. The end of the war with Baal worship will not come about until Elisha has succeeded Elijah, and Hazael and Jehu have appeared. This section of 1–2 Kings now tells of these events.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:1–25 Elijah Gives Way to Elisha. The prophetic mantle passes from Elijah to Elisha. As Elijah has called fire down from heaven in ch. 1, so he now will be lifted in fire up to heaven, and Elisha will be authenticated as his successor.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:1 The idea of going up to heaven at the end of an earthly life was not common in ancient Israel. The OT more characteristically speaks of the deceased's "going down" to Sheol, the world of the dead (e.g., Job 7:9; Isa. 57:9; see note on 1 Sam. 2:6). It was the fate even of mighty heroes of the Hebrew tradition to be "gathered to their people" in this way (e.g., Gen. 25:7–8; 1 Kings 2:10). Elijah represents a remarkable exception to this way of speaking (see also Enoch in Gen. 5:24; cf. Heb. 11:5). This does not mean that the OT faithful had no fellowship with God after they died, but only that this idea is seldom made explicit in the OT (but see indications of hope for continuing fellowship with God after death in Ps. 16:10–11; 17:15; 23:6; 115:17–18; Eccles. 12:7; and certainly here in 2 Kings 2:11). In the NT, Jesus implied that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob were alive and in God's presence (Matt. 22:32); Moses and Elijah appeared talking with Jesus in Matt. 17:3; and the parable of the rich man and Lazarus implied fellowship in Abraham's presence immediately after death (Luke 16:22–25). Extrabiblical texts underline the unusual nature, in the ancient Near Eastern context, of any idea that mortals can enter and remain in heaven. The best known of these is the Akkadian myth of Adapa, the son of Ea, who visits heaven and almost obtains eternal life, but is compelled in the end to return to earth. It is not clear whether the Lord has any reason for sending Elijah from Gilgal to Bethel, and then on to Jericho (2 Kings 2:2–4); but all three cities appear in 2 Kings as locations of prophetic communities (“sons of the prophets”; see note on v. 3; also v. 5; 4:38), and Elijah is probably their leader (as Elisha is later).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:2 Bethel is identified with Jeroboam’s apostasy in 1 Kings 12–13. Please stay here. It is never made clear why Elijah, in the course of his roundabout journey, keeps trying to get Elisha to remain behind on the very day that the prophetic succession is to take place (“today the LORD will take away your master”), but it is probably a testing of Elisha’s mettle as the professed disciple and designated successor to Elijah. This may provide further evidence of Elijah’s reluctance to fully embrace God’s plans for the future (see 1 Kings 19:13–21). Elijah affirms a little later that Elisha can receive Elijah’s spiritual power only if he sees him when he is taken away by God (2 Kings 2:9–10). The prophets in the meantime are to “keep quiet”; it is disrespectful to speak of Elijah’s passing while he is still around.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:3 The sons of the prophets are not their physical descendants but groups of prophets usually affiliated with a more prominent prophet (cf. 1 Sam. 10:5; 19:20; 1 Kings 18:4; 2 Kings 4:1, 38; 6:1; 9:1). (The phrase “sons of” can mean “members of a guild of”; cf. “the sons of the gatekeepers” in Ezra 2:42.) Though groups of false prophets also exist (e.g., 1 Kings 22:6), the prophetic groups associated with true prophets such as Samuel and Elijah are never viewed as false prophets but as servants of God, and therefore they must have received special revelations from God (which is the requirement for a true prophet: Deut. 18:18, 20; Jer. 14:14; Ezek. 13:1–3), though none of their prophecies are recorded in Scripture. In this text God has revealed to them that today the LORD will take away Elijah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:4–5 Jericho was in the Jordan Valley about 10 miles (16 km) to the northwest of the Dead Sea and is best known as the city that the Israelites first conquered in Canaan.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:6–8 The Jordan River runs along a short stretch of a geological fault that starts in the north in Syria and extends southward into Africa. This scene of the crossing of the Jordan is reminiscent of Moses at the Red Sea, where the people also go over on dry land (Ex. 14:15–31, esp. vv. 21–22). Later in the chapter, Elisha proves that he is Joshua to Elijah's Moses by recrossing the river (see note on 2 Kings 2:14).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:9 Elisha requests of Elijah what an eldest son would expect of a father in Israel: a double portion of the inheritance (see Deut. 21:15–17). In this case, however, the inheritance is not land but spiritual power: Elisha has already left behind him normal life and the normal rules of inheritance (cf. 1 Kings 19:19–21).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:10 You have asked a hard thing. It is not clear how Elisha's request can be hard, given that Elisha is ordained by God to succeed Elijah as a Spirit-empowered prophet. Is Elijah simply looking for difficulties? But cf. note on v. 2.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:11–13 chariots of fire and horses of fire. The divine army, last encountered waging war on Ahab (1 Kings 22:1–38), has come for Elijah; Elisha sees it, as he will see it again in 2 Kings 6:8–23. In biblical tradition, both chariotry and fire have strong associations with God's self-disclosure. Both images come together in the most common natural form of divine appearing ("theophany") in the OT: the thunderstorm—the storm cloud representing the divine chariot or throne (Ezekiel 1; Hab. 3:8) and the fiery lightning bolts representing the divine weapons (Ps. 18:14; Hab. 3:11). In response to this particular theophany, Elisha took hold of his own clothes and tore them in two pieces. This is perhaps part of a mourning ritual (cf. Gen. 37:34; 2 Sam. 13:31; Isa. 37:1), but it is also suggestive of leaving his old life behind, as he picks up instead the cloak of Elijah (used in 1 Kings 19:19–21 to symbolize Elisha's prophetic call).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:14 the water was parted … and Elisha went over. The Spirit who empowered Elijah has now come upon Elisha, and miracles immediately follow. As Elijah's true successor, Elisha is able to repeat Elijah's action in parting the waters (v. 8). There is also a kind of parallel in the life of Joshua, for Joshua also crossed the Jordan in Joshua 3 and entered the land of Israel near Jericho, “repeating” Moses’ action in parting the waters (Exodus 14).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:15 they came to meet him and bowed. The roots of the Jericho community’s allegiance to Elisha lie in their conviction that he is Elijah’s bona fide successor (The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:16 Please let them go and seek your master. The sons of the prophets seem to understand that the prophetic succession has taken place, but do not fully understand what has happened. Standing at a distance (v. 7), they have seen the fire and the whirlwind (v. 11), but they have not perceived what was happening in the storm’s midst. They wonder, therefore, whether the Spirit of the Lord has not simply caught Elijah up and cast him upon some mountain or into some valley; and they at least want to retrieve Elijah’s body for burial (cf. 1 Sam. 31:11–13).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:19–22 the water is bad, and the land is unfruitful. This is the first of two stories that further authenticate Elisha as Elijah’s prophetic successor, a man able both to bless and to curse in the Lord’s name (cf. Moses in Deuteronomy 28). Jericho was in an area ideal for settlement because of the presence of the perennial spring ‘Ain es-Sultan, which irrigated the fertile land around it. This story, however, tells of contamination of the water supply (the rebuilding of the city having taken place under the shadow of Joshua’s curse; Josh. 6:26; 1 Kings 16:34). The remedy offered by the new Joshua (Elisha), who has just crossed the Jordan, involves a new bowl and salt. New items, being uncontaminated, were customarily employed in rituals in the ancient Near East (e.g., Judg. 16:11; 1 Kings 11:29). Elsewhere in the OT, salt is associated with the covenant and is included as part of offerings made to the Lord (see “salt of the covenant” in Lev. 2:13; cf. Num. 18:19), as well as being used in other specific rituals (Judg. 9:45; Ezek. 16:4). The use of salt here is likewise symbolic, for by itself a tiny bowl of salt would have no effect on a constantly flowing spring. The healing of the water was therefore accomplished by supernatural means: Thus says the Lord, I have healed this water.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:23–24 jeered at him. The focal point for Israel’s apostasy was Bethel (see 1 Kings 12:25–13:34). Therefore, it is no surprise to find young people from this city adopting a disrespectful attitude toward a prophet of the Lord, and to treat a prophet with disrespect is to treat God himself with disrespect. The reference to the baldhead is not clear, but Elisha might have already been so bald by nature that to youthful eyes he looked grotesque; or perhaps some prophets, like later Christian monks, shaved their heads as a mark of their vocation. he cursed them. … And two she-bears … tore forty-two of the boys. Though this judgment may at first seem harsh, the group must have included over 50 boys old enough to be out running in a pack, and so they constituted something of a physical threat to Elisha. The authors of Kings regularly show that contempt toward divinely called prophets is disastrous for God's people.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 2:25 The succession narrative now complete, Elisha ends his journey with a visit to Mount Carmel—the scene of Elijah's great victory—and a return to Samaria to continue the war against Baal worship.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:1–27 Elisha and the Conquest of Moab. One expects that Elisha, as Elijah's successor, will also be involved in politics, and in this story he is consulted about a military campaign. The narrative noticeably echoes 1 Kings 22:1–28.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:2 not like his father and mother. As one of a number of surprises in ch. 3, Jehoram son of Ahab is distanced from the rest of his family by the way in which his reign is described. The implication is that while he tolerated the Baal cult (cf. v. 13; 9:22; 10:18–28), he did not himself worship Baal (he removed Baal's pillar from the temple; see 1 Kings 14:23).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:4–27 The Moabite Stone (currently in the Louvre Museum in Paris) is a stele set up by Mesha, king of Moab, to commemorate his achievements. Mesha makes his version of a war fought with Israel in 850 B.C. prominent; the Israelite account appears in this chapter. The two accounts differ: Mesha emphasizes his victories over Israel, and the biblical writer emphasizes Israel's successful counterattacks.

Moab, Edom, and Libnah Revolt

853, 848 B.C.

When King Ahab of Israel died, King Mesha of Moab seized the opportunity to throw off the yoke of tribute imposed on his people by David. Israel, Judah, and Edom (which still belonged to Judah) joined forces to attack Moab, but their efforts failed to re-subdue the nation. Perhaps emboldened by Moab's success, Edom later revolted against the rule of King Jehoram (also called Joram) of Judah. At the same time, the western town of Libnah also revolted against Judah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:4–5 Mesha was a ninth-century king of Moab, the successor of his father Chemosh-yatti according to the Moabite Stone (see notes on 1:1; 3:4–27). He began his reign under the dominion of the Israelite house of Omri, and was required to pay his overlord “tribute” (i.e., taxation) in the form of a percentage of his agricultural produce (lambs and wool), which is understandable given the importance of sheep in the economy of ancient Palestine. After the death of Ahab, Mesha took advantage of the new situation and rebelled, inciting Ahab’s son Jehoram to launch the military campaign described in this chapter (see map).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:7–9 he went and sent word to Jehoshaphat. Like his father before him, Jehoram seeks help from his southern neighbor Jehoshaphat, whose initial response is recognizable from 1 Kings 22:4: I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses. Missing on this occasion, however, is any desire on Jehoshaphat’s part to discover the counsel of the Lord before going off to war (contrast 1 Kings 22:5); here he moves directly from agreement to tactics (2 Kings 3:8), and from tactics to action (v. 9). This is surprising. The tactics involve attacking Moab from the south, through the wilderness of Edom, rather than from the north. This is possible because Edom is under Judean rule (1 Kings 22:47) and her king is Jehoshaphat’s deputy rather than an independent monarch. The action involves a march in which the combined armies get lost, caught in a circuitous march. Unsurprisingly, a military venture undertaken without prophetic advice faces disaster.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:11–14 Is there no prophet of the LORD here? Jehoshaphat’s memory suddenly returns, and he asks the right question (cf. 1 Kings 22:7). Elisha, the one who poured water on the hands of Elijah (probably a reference to Elisha’s role as Elijah’s servant), is found to be in their midst. Unimpressed as he is with Jehoram’s piety, Elisha agrees to help because of righteous (albeit forgetful) Jehoshaphat’s presence in the alliance.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:15–19 bring me a musician. Music plays a part in Elisha’s attainment of the prophetic state in which he utters his prophecy (cf. 1 Sam. 10:5–11; note on 1 Sam. 10:5). The immediate crisis (no water, 2 Kings 3:9) is to be dealt with by miracle, as the nearby streambed shall be filled with water from an unspecified and unexpected source (neither wind nor rain). God will further grant the alliance a comprehensive victory over Moab. They will attack every fortified city and every choice city (or perhaps “major town”), devastating the land as they move through it. Deuteronomy 20:19–20 prohibits this kind of destruction in normal cases, but here it appears that Elisha portrays the Moabites as a nation to be given over to desolation (like the cities of Canaan in Deut. 20:16–18), rather than simply subjugated.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:20–24 Events begin to unfold in line with Elisha’s prophecy. Water mysteriously flows from the direction of Edom (Hb. ’Edom), fooling the Moabites into thinking the allies have slaughtered each other because in the morning sunlight the water appears red (Hb. ’adummim) as blood (Hb. dam); notice the play on words with ’Edom. Their reckless advance on the Israelite camp is met with force.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:25 The combined armies act out Elisha’s words (cf. v. 19) point by point, attacking all the Moabite cities including Kir-hareseth, strategically situated on a rocky hill overlooking the Dead Sea about 17 miles (27 km) south of the Arnon Gorge and 11 miles (18 km) east of the Dead Sea.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 3:27 Facing defeat by Israel, Mesha offered his son as burnt offering on the wall. As a consequence, there came great wrath (Hb. qetsep) against Israel. This is not to be understood as divine anger, because on the one hand the biblical authors did not regard the Moabite god Chemosh as a real god (1 Kings 11:7), and on the other hand Israel’s God would surely not have acted on Moab’s behalf as a result of a ritual practice that was abhorrent to him (cf. 2 Kings 16:3; 17:17; 21:6). It seems, instead, that this “great wrath” is human wrath (as on both other occasions in Kings when qetsep appears, 5:11; 13:19): Mesha’s troops respond to his desperate act with an anger that carries them to victory against the odds.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:1–44 Elisha’s Miracles. Both Elijah and Elisha are now associated with the God who provides water at will (cf. 1 Kings 18), whether by ordinary means (wind and rain, 1 Kings 18:45) or not (neither wind nor rain, 2 Kings 3:17). A number of further miracles serve in the same way as a reminder of Elijah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:1–7 the creditor has come to take my two children to be his slaves. Indebtedness was a common problem throughout the ancient Near East and could lead to the loss of property, home, fields, and ultimately the freedom of the debtor (cf. Neh. 5:4–5; Isa. 50:1; Amos 2:6; 8:6). Persons and property ending up in the hands of creditors could often be redeemed (cf. Ruth 4:1–12; Jer. 32:6–15), and among the responsibilities of the "kinsman-redeemer" in an extended Israelite family was the maintenance or redemption of the person or dependents of a kinsman in debt (Lev. 25:35–55). In the apparent absence of a true kinsman for the widow in this story, Elisha as the leader of the prophetic communities effectively takes on this kind of role for her. The proceeds from the sale of the multiplied oil (cf. 1 Kings 17:7–16) will leave her and her sons sufficient money to live on even after she has paid off her debts.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:10 a small room on the roof. Roofs in ancient Israel were typically flat and served as important areas in the life of the family (cf. Josh. 2:6–8; 2 Sam. 11:2; 2 Kings 23:12; Jer. 19:13), providing among other things temporary guest accommodations (cf. 1 Sam. 9:26; 2 Sam. 16:22; 1 Kings 17:17–24). The structure in question here, however, is more permanent (it has walls).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:13 a word spoken on your behalf. Elisha offers the Shunammite woman benefits, through his patronage, from the king or the commander of the army—two of the most powerful people in the land. She has no need of their help, however, because she is wealthy (v. 8) and, living among her own kinfolk (my own people), has their support and protection. She is not vulnerable like the widow in vv. 1–7.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:23 The implication to be drawn from the husband's response is that it was customary in Israel to consult prophets only on particular rest days—the new moon, marking the beginning of each month, and the Sabbath (cf. 1 Sam. 20:5–34; Hos. 2:11; Amos 8:5). The practice of celebrating on the first of the month had ancient roots; the new moon was already one of the principal lunar festivals in Old Babylonian times. This woman's business, however, will not wait. All is not really well, but she does not want either her husband or Gehazi (2 Kings 4:26) getting in her way as she seeks Elisha's help.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:27 the LORD has hidden it from me. Elisha had not foreseen this happening. Prophets are not omniscient, but depend always on God's revelation.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:29 Tie up your garment. As the woman had arrived at Carmel in great haste (v. 24), so Elisha sends Gehazi back to Shunem in similar haste, his garment hitched up so that he can run (cf. 1 Kings 18:46).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:30–31 I will not leave you. The woman is not willing to accept Elisha's plan to resurrect the boy from a distance by means of his staff; she wants his personal attention, which in the end does in fact prove crucial. Only his own prayer and mysterious actions succeed in bringing the boy back to life (cf. 1 Kings 17:19–23).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:34 Elisha's actions vividly picture God restoring breath to the child (putting his mouth on his mouth), as well as sight (his eyes) and strength (his hands). As Elisha stretched himself upon him, it portrayed the Spirit of God who, through Elisha, was being imparted to the child to give him life.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:38 famine in the land. Elisha's third miracle (see note on vv. 1–44) is reminiscent of the healing of the water of Jericho (2:19–22). Famine is the context in which the whole succeeding narrative up to ch. 8 takes place (see 8:1), although a general state of famine does not imply an absolute absence of food (see, e.g., 4:42–44).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:40–41 death in the pot. As with the salt thrown into the water at Jericho (2:21), the flour used by Elisha is a visible sign of the Lord's power working through Elisha.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 4:42–44 bread of the firstfruits. The final miracle of the chapter (see note on vv. 1–44) also concerns provision for the people who depend on Elisha. A limited amount of food is once again multiplied (cf. vv. 1–7), in face of the incomprehension of the servant, so that it not only provides immediate needs but also produces a surplus. It is the final demonstration in the chapter that the God of Elisha heals, provides, and brings life from death.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:1–27 A Syrian Is Healed. The account of Elisha's miracles continues with the story that again picks up themes from the Elijah story: the Lord is seen to be God, not only of Israelites, but also of foreigners (1 Kings 17:17–24), and is in fact acknowledged as the only real God there is (1 Kings 18:20–40).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:1 the LORD had given victory to Syria. It was common throughout the ancient Near East for peoples to claim that their gods had given them victory in battle, but the claim here is of a distinctively monotheistic kind; here (as always in the Bible) Israel's God is responsible for victory or defeat in battles, no matter which gods may be worshiped by the victorious or defeated peoples (cf. Dan. 1:1–2). The vanquished here are not specified but may have included Israel, which was defeated at Ramoth-gilead in 1 Kings 22:29–36. The general by whom God had given the Syrians victory on this occasion was himself a leper (Hb. metsora'); he suffered from some kind of disfigurement of the skin (but not necessarily what is known by modern people as "leprosy"; see note on Luke 5:12), rendering him ritually unclean from an Israelite point of view (cf. Leviticus 13–14; Num. 12:1–15; 2 Sam. 3:28–29).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:5–7 a letter to the king of Israel. An uneasy truce appears to be in force between Syria and Israel. There is sufficient tension, however, for the king of Israel to be concerned that the king of Syria is seeking a quarrel in asking him to perform a task (cure him of his leprosy) that only divinity can accomplish—akin to the raising of someone from the dead (to kill and to make alive). The tearing of clothes, as well as indicating sorrow (see note on 2:11–13), could also signify consternation (cf. 22:11–13). There is sufficient quiet, on the other hand, for Naaman to travel safely to Israel with his letter and his various gifts. Ten talents of silver represents about 750 pounds (341 kg) of this metal, compared with 150 pounds (68 kg; six thousand shekels) of gold, reflecting the much greater value of the gold (which here is equivalent to the combined annual wages of 600 common laborers).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:9–12 stood at the door. Naaman clearly expects personal and immediate attention from Elisha, but Elisha addresses him only through a messenger and sends him to wash in the Jordan; moreover, Naaman was looking for a cure, and Elisha apparently offers only ritual cleansing (wash … be clean; cf. the cleansing ritual of Leviticus 13–14 with its use of the same Hb. verbs [Lev. 14:8–9 and in 13:7, 35; 14:2, 23, 32]). This he could have had at home, by bathing in the rivers of Damascus.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:13 Has he actually said … ? Naaman's servants have been listening more attentively, for Elisha did not speak only of ritual cleansing but of healing ("your flesh shall be restored," v. 10). They urge Naaman to consider Elisha's actual words and act on them.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:14–15 a little child. The Hebrew is na'ar qaton, and there is evidently a play on the phrase na'arah qetannah ("little girl") in v. 2. The "great man" (v. 1) had a problem, to which the "little girl" had the solution; but the solution involved Naaman's becoming, like her, "a little child"—someone under prophetic authority, humbly acknowledging his new faith (I know that there is no God in all the earth but in Israel). He had looked to the prophet himself for a cure, in line with the words of his Israelite informant (v. 3); but the way in which the cure has been wrought has made it clear to him that Elisha's God is a living person, not simply a convenient metaphor for unnatural prophetic powers.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:16 I will receive none. For Elisha to accept a gift is to risk the impression that he is personally responsible for what has happened.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:17 two mule loads of earth. The earth is to be used in the construction of a mud-brick altar (cf. Ex. 20:24–25) for Naaman's worship of the Lord.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:18 May the LORD pardon is reminiscent of Solomon's prayer in 1 Kings 8:22–53, with its frequent requests to forgive (1 Kings 8:30, 34, 36, 39, 50) and its consideration of the foreigner who prays toward the temple (1 Kings 8:41–43). Naaman's dilemma is that he will still be required in the course of his official duties to attend the temple of Rimmon—a reference to the storm god Baal-hadad under a name that has not been previously encountered (see note on 1 Kings 16:31–33; cf. Zech. 12:11).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:20–22 I will run … and get something from him. Gehazi either has not grasped the meaning of what has happened or does not care; he tries to "cash in" on an act of God (cf. Joshua 7; Acts 8:18–24) by means of a story designed to explain a change of heart on Elisha's part (he has two new arrivals to provide for).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 5:26 Was it a time to accept … ? Gehazi's aspirations to wealth and status have led him to forget the Lord (cf. Deut. 6:10–12; also compare the list of items here with the catalog of royal wealth in 1 Sam. 8:14–17). Just as kings can misuse their power for self-enrichment, so can the servants of prophets.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:1–23 Elisha and Syria. With the healing of Naaman, Elisha has involved himself with Syria for the first time. That involvement now occupies most of the attention of the authors for the next two chapters, as they prepare the reader for the bloody events of chs. 8–10.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:1–7 While one of the prophetic communities is building a new place to meet, a member of the group loses a borrowed axe head. Elisha has past experience of manipulating the waters of the Jordan by the Lord's power (2:14), and here he is miraculously able to make the iron float like the piece of wood he has thrown in beside it.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:8 the king of Syria was warring against Israel. Relations between Syria and Israel have deteriorated since ch. 5.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:9 the man of God sent word. Elisha intervenes to help Jehoram, not because anything has changed in his behavior (3:2–3, 13) but simply because the time has not yet arrived for final judgment on this royal house (cf. chs. 9–10). Prophetic oracles apparently were often sought or offered in the ancient Near East in relation to military campaigns (see note on 3:11–14).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:13 Dothan is only 10 miles (16 km) north of the capital city of Samaria, illustrating the extent of Syrian penetration into Israel at this time. But the Syrian king is deluded in his belief that he can send and seize Elisha (cf. 1 Kings 13:1–6; 18:9–14; 2 Kings 1:2–17).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:16 those who are with us. Elisha knows that the Lord has sent an army of angels to protect him, and apparently he can see them but the servant cannot. They are more than a match for the Syrian army (cf. Ps. 91:11; Heb. 1:14).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:17 the LORD opened the eyes of the young man. The angelic armies have been there all along, but they are invisible to Elisha's servant until the Lord enables him to see them (cf. 2:11; also Num. 22:31; Luke 2:13; Col. 1:16). the mountain was full. Syrian troops may surround (Hb. sabab) the city (2 Kings 6:15), but Elisha himself is supported all around (Hb. sabib) by the army of the Lord.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:18 blindness. Probably not a loss of physical sight (since the Syrians would not doubt their location just because they could no longer physically see it), but rather a dazed mental condition in which they are open to suggestion and manipulation but still able to follow the prophet to Samaria. The Syrians are "bedazzled" and do not "see" things clearly, whereas Elisha's servant has been given perfect clarity of "sight" about reality.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:19 I will bring you to the man whom you seek. The statement is somewhat puzzling, but rather than leaving the Syrians, Elisha did in fact bring them face to face with the man they were looking for.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:22 You shall not strike them down. Jehoram would not kill men taken captive with your sword and with your bow, and these are not even men like that. They are to be treated as guests.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:24–7:20 The Siege of Samaria. The uneasy peace of ch. 5 gave way in 6:8–23 to sporadic fighting involving Syrian raids into Israelite territory, curtailed because of what has just happened to the last of the raiding parties (6:23), but now comes a full-blown invasion.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:25 donkey's head … dove's dung. Donkeys were commonly found among the domestic animals in Syria-Palestine, and various OT laws identify them as significant possessions (e.g., Ex. 13:13; 20:17; 22:4). So severe was the siege that the inhabitants of Samaria were reduced not only to slaughtering and eating valuable animals, but also to consuming body parts that would not normally be consumed, and purchasing them for exorbitant prices (the cost of a live horse in 1 Kings 10:29 is only 150 shekels of silver, and here a donkey's head costs eighty). During this crisis even half a liter (the fourth part of a kab) of dove's dung cost what the average worker could make in six months (five shekels of silver).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:26–27 Help, my lord, O king. The plea is directed to the king as the ultimate court of human justice, as in 1 Kings 3:16–28, but Israel has strayed a long way from that glorious era when a wise king could ensure justice. The normal food supply is exhausted; nothing comes from the threshing floor (see note on 1 Kings 22:10–12) or winepress (a flat, hard surface on which grapes could be trodden, with the juice running off into a reservoir and then being poured into large jars for fermentation).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:28–29 Give your son. The Assyrian king Ashurbanipal also reports that, during his two-year siege of Babylon (which ended in 648 B.C.), "famine seized them; for their hunger they ate the flesh of their sons and daughters"; the Bible itself reports other instances of cannibalism arising from a long siege (e.g., Lam. 2:20; 4:10; Ezek. 5:10).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:30–31 he tore his clothes. See notes on 2:11–13; 5:5–7; sackcloth is also symbolic of mourning and distress. Jehoram appears to believe that removing Elisha will remove the problems he is facing.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 6:32 the elders were sitting with him. As the "sons of the prophets" seem to have gathered to listen to the prophet (ch. 4), so here the elders of Samaria are gathered together in Elisha's house (cf. the similar scenario in Ezek. 8:1; 20:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:1 a seah of fine flour … two seahs of barley. A seah is about 7 quarts (7.7 liters). The king will have to wait no longer: salvation is imminent, and normal business at the gate of Samaria will be resumed on the following day (the prices are much lower here than in 6:25). The open area inside city gates served various important social purposes in ancient times. Among other things, agricultural activities took place and business was transacted there (e.g., Gen. 23:10; 34:20).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:2 windows in heaven. It is impossible for this officer to imagine how such an economic recovery could happen overnight, in the aftermath of such a terrible siege. Will God hand out unexpected material blessings through the windows of his heavenly storehouse (cf. Ps. 78:23; Mal. 3:10)? To mock the prophetic word is to mock the Lord himself, however, so he shall see it … but … not eat.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:3–4 four men who were lepers. A leper had first brought the Syrians to Samaria during Jehoram's reign (5:1–7), and four men with a similar ailment now drive them away. Faced with certain death if they enter the city or sit where they are, they instead choose possible death in the camp of the Syrians.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:6 kings of Egypt. Perhaps the four lepers (Hb. metsora'im), seen in the twilight (v. 5), are mistaken for a mercenary army drawn from northern Syria and from Egypt (Hb. Mitsrayim); otherwise, the delusion came from another source.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:13–14 five of the remaining horses. Only two horsemen are sent. Perhaps they take with them three spare horses, or one spare horse (if the horsemen took two chariots, each having two horses).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 7:20 the people trampled him. The skeptical officer of v. 2, ironically stationed at the very gate at which he had anticipated seeing no trade, is trampled in the scramble to acquire goods, fulfilling Elisha's prophecy.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:1–6 The Shunammite's Land Restored. After the long narrative about the siege of Samaria, the Shunammite woman of 4:8–37 reappears. The key to understanding this new story is found in 4:13, where the woman declines Elisha's offer of help because she has a home among her own people. In 8:1–6, however, she no longer has such a home, for she has followed Elisha's advice and avoided famine by sojourning in Philistia.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:1 Elisha had said. The prophecy had been delivered around the same time that Elisha restored the woman's son to life, and the famine had followed shortly thereafter (cf. 4:38). This general state of famine is to be distinguished from the even more severe famine in the city of Samaria described in 6:24–7:20, which is specifically the result of siege.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:2 The land of the Philistines was a natural place for the Shunammite woman to seek refuge during a time of famine in Israel (the patriarch Isaac himself moved into this region in similar circumstances; Gen. 26:1), not least because of its proximity to Egypt, the breadbasket of the ancient world and the common destination throughout the biblical period of people escaping times of hardship (e.g., Gen. 12:10; 41:53–42:5; 47:4).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:3 her house and her land. Someone has taken the woman's property in her absence—perhaps Jehoram himself, showing the same land-grabbing tendencies as his parents (cf. 1 Kings 21). The king was now the recipient of her appeal, as the person with primary responsibility under God for the establishment and maintenance of order and justice throughout the kingdom (cf. Psalm 72). In Israel the end of the seventh year was a proper time for restoration of property and cancellation of debt (Ex. 21:2–3; Deut. 15:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:6 all the produce. The king goes farther than restoring everything that belonged to the woman; he also provides her with all the income from her land that she would have received had she stayed in the country.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:7–15 Hazael Murders Ben-hadad. The house of Omri has now held the throne of Israel since 1 Kings 16:23, and in spite of Elijah's prophecy in 1 Kings 21:21–24 about its end, one now reads of Ahab's second apostate son holding on to his kingdom with the help of Elijah's successor (e.g., 2 Kings 3:1–27; 6:9–10). Has Elijah sabotaged God's plan by failing to anoint Hazael and Jehu (1 Kings 19:15–18)? It turns out that the answer is no. Hazael is now introduced, to be followed shortly by Jehu.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:8–9 meet the man of God. Ben-hadad II consults Israel's God about his future in much the same way that King Ahaziah of Israel earlier consulted Baal-zebub of Ekron (see note on 1:2). It appears to have been customary when consulting prophets to offer some payment, in this case an extravagant gift of forty camels' loads of goods (cf. 1 Sam. 9:1–9; 1 Kings 14:1–4; 2 Kings 5:1–6). The messenger Hazael enters the narrative mysteriously. Readers are not told his lineage, nor even his role (servant? officer?). He comes from nowhere—a mere "dog," as he puts it in 8:13. A fragmentary Assyrian text on a basalt statue of King Shalmaneser III refers to him similarly as the "son of nobody," doubtless reflecting lowly, nonroyal origins.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:10 say to him, “You shall certainly recover.” This is what the Hebrew text says. But the word translated “to him” (Hb. lo) is sometimes to be read as the negative word “not” (the Hb. word lo’ has virtually the same sound as the almost identical Hb. word lo). If this is the case, then Hazael is to say to Ben-hadad, “You will certainly not recover” (see esv footnote), and Hazael would have lied to the king (v. 14). But if the Hebrew of Elisha’s statement does indeed mean “You shall certainly recover,” it could have been a truthful prediction about the course of Ben-hadad’s sickness that was still negated when Hazael murdered him—i.e., Ben-hadad could have recovered had Hazael not murdered him. Alternatively, some have suggested that Elisha’s statement was in fact deceptive, to lull the king into a false sense of security, so that he would be unprepared for Hazael’s attack.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:11 he fixed his gaze. The text does not identify “he” and “him” in this verse. Most interpreters understand the first “he” to be Elisha, who “fixed his gaze” on Hazael, staring at him but also seeing with prophetic vision what Hazael would do in the future. Hazael does not know how to respond and is embarrassed, and then Elisha weeps. An alternative interpretation is that Hazael remains dazed by what he has heard and so he stares at Elisha, until Elisha’s weeping breaks into his reverie.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:15 Hazael became king. Hazael came to power in Syria at some point between the Assyrian Shalmaneser III’s campaign in the west in his fourteenth year (845 B.C.), when it is known that Ben-hadad (a throne name; his personal name was Adad-idri) was still on the throne, and the campaign of Shalmaneser’s eighteenth year (841), which records Hazael as king. He reigned for about 40 years as one of Israel’s most bitter enemies.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:16–29 Jehoram and Ahaziah. Judah was last mentioned in ch. 3, when Jehoshaphat was king of Judah. Another Judean king has come and gone in the meantime, however, and the reader must be told about him and be introduced to his successor in order to understand chs. 9–10.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:16 Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat. First introduced briefly in 1 Kings 22:50, this king is mentioned again in 2 Kings 1:17. In 8:21, 23–24, his name appears as “Joram,” which is also the name of the king of Israel in this period (v. 16). This Israelite king is himself called “Jehoram” in such verses as 1:17 and 3:1. At precisely the point when the southern monarchy has come to resemble the northern monarchy most closely in its worship (see note on 8:18), their kings are called by the same name, and one must work hard to distinguish their actions in the text.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:18 Jehoram walked in the way of the kings of Israel. His father, Jehoshaphat, had made peace with the king of Israel in the aftermath of the struggles that arose out of the division of the kingdoms under Jeroboam and Rehoboam (1 Kings 22:44). From Jehoshaphat’s reign onward, the fortunes of the house of Omri and the house of David were closely interconnected. There was intermarriage between the two families (Jehoram had married the daughter of Ahab), and the two kingdoms followed a similar religious policy (as the house of Ahab had done).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:19 he promised to give a lamp to him. See 1 Kings 11:36; 15:4. Sins in David’s family are to be punished not with the destruction of his dynasty but with the “rod of men” (2 Sam. 7:14–16)—divine discipline, characterized in 1–2 Kings as “affliction” (see 1 Kings 11:39). So it is that the LORD was not willing to destroy Judah, for the sake of David his servant.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:20–22 In his days Edom revolted. The “affliction” on David’s house in this case (cf. note on v. 19) comes in Jehoram’s failure to subdue a rebellion by Edom, a country hitherto ruled by a king appointed by Judah (1 Kings 22:47; see note on 2 Kings 3:7–9), and in unrest even within Judah itself: Libnah was a Judean city to the southwest of Jerusalem and 5 miles (8 km) to the northeast of Lachish, with which it is associated in 19:8. Chronicles adds to this picture of a weak king by telling of attacks from the Philistines and Arabs who had given tribute to Jehoram’s father (2 Chron. 21:16–17).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:23 Chronicles of the Kings. See note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:25–27 Ahaziah the son of Jehoram. This Judean king, too, has habits of religion to match those of the family to whom he is related by marriage (He also walked in the way of the house of Ahab). The fact that he reigned for only one year, combined with the fact that he began his reign in the twelfth year of Joram … king of Israel (i.e., Joram's last year, 3:1), is the first hint of moving toward the end of the house of Omri.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 8:28–29 war against Hazael king of Syria. The context in which the house of Omri comes to its end is now provided. Another joint battle against the Syrians at Ramoth-gilead (cf. 1 Kings 22:1–4) is followed by withdrawal to the Omride stronghold of Jezreel, so that the Israelite king can recover from his wounds. Ramoth-gilead is apparently back in Israelite hands by this point in the narrative (2 Kings 9:14), perhaps abandoned in the course of the general Syrian retreat in 7:3–7.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:1–10:17 The End of Ahab's House. Of the players in the last act of Ahab's drama who were mentioned in 1 Kings 19:15–18, only Jehu has remained out of the picture. His story is now told.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:1 Tie up your garments. See 1 Kings 18:46 and 2 Kings 4:29; speed will be important for this messenger from among the sons of the prophets (the prophetic communities over which Elisha presides; see note on 2:3). The army is still at Ramoth-gilead, even though the king has withdrawn to Jezreel (8:29).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:2 Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi. Jehu was described in 1 Kings 19:16 only as "son of Nimshi" (cf. also 2 Kings 9:20), but Nimshi now turns out in fact to have been his grandfather rather than his father (who shares his name with a Judean king, Jehoshaphat). This use of Hebrew ben to mean "grandson" rather than "son" certainly occurs in the OT (e.g., Gen. 29:5; 31:28), but it is unusual for the grandfather to be referred to in citations of this particular kind; perhaps Nimshi was a particularly well-known person.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:3 flask of oil. Elijah had been commanded to anoint Jehu king over Israel (1 Kings 19:16), but had failed to do so. It is left to Elisha now to fulfill his mission. Anointing with oil was a common practice in the ancient Near East to mark various rites of passage, and in Israel it was closely associated with the enthronement of kings (see 1 Sam. 16:13). It appears to be bound up with the king's legitimacy and right to rule; to be the “anointed of the Lord” is to be a person inviolable and sacrosanct (1 Sam. 24:6–7; 2 Sam. 19:21–22). The secret anointing that takes place here (in an “inner chamber”; 2 Kings 9:2) is particularly reminiscent of Samuel’s anointing of Saul (cf. 1 Sam. 9:27–10:1). The reasons for Elisha’s advice to the messenger to open the door and flee are not provided, but the reference to Jehu’s reckless chariot driving in 2 Kings 9:20 perhaps suggests that he has a reputation for rash behavior and could be dangerous to the messenger.

841 B.C.

Elisha fulfilled the Lord’s prophecy to Elijah by sending someone to Ramoth-gilead to anoint Jehu, one of Joram’s commanders, as king of Israel. Jehu promptly headed for Jezreel, where King Joram (also called Jehoram) of Israel was recovering from some battle wounds. When Joram and King Ahaziah of Judah went out in their chariots to meet Jehu, Jehu mortally wounded Joram with an arrow and chased Ahaziah to Beth-haggan, where he wounded him as well. It appears that Ahaziah then fled to Megiddo, where he died (see also 2 Chron. 22:9).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:7 you shall strike down the house of Ahab. The oracle actually delivered by the messenger is much longer than the one pronounced by Elisha in v. 3. The essence of the message is given there, with its fuller form being delayed until later, presumably so that repetition should not unnecessarily hold up the narrative. For the same reason, only the essence of the message is later communicated by Jehu to his fellow officers (v. 12), the details being subsumed under "Thus and so he spoke to me." the blood of my servants the prophets. Elijah did not explicitly state to Ahab in 1 Kings 21:21–24 that the Lord's action against Ahab's house would be partly a matter of vengeance for the blood of the prophets. This is implicit in 1 Kings 19:14–18, however, where God's response to Elijah's complaint about the murder of the prophets (1 Kings 18:4, 13) is precisely to send him to anoint Jehu (among others).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:10 none shall bury her. Similarly, this is not explicitly stated in 1 Kings 21:23, nor indeed is it said that Jezebel's body would be like "dung on the face of the field … so that no one can say, 'This is Jezebel'" (2 Kings 9:37); but these things are implicit in the statement that dogs shall eat Jezebel (1 Kings 21:23). It was considered a terrible thing in Israel not to be afforded a proper burial (cf. Deut. 28:25–26; Jer. 16:4).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:13 they blew the trumpet and proclaimed, "Jehu is king." The people's eagerness to do this suggests that there was already unrest in the army because of Jehoram's lack of success in his military ventures.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:17–20 I see a company. As Jehu approaches with his army, it is not at first clear to those within the city what is happening. The watchman initially sees only a company (lit., "a multitude"). Later, after the two messengers sent out to elicit information have failed to return, he deduces from the manner in which the lead chariot is being driven that Jehu is involved: he drives furiously.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:22 Is it peace, Jehu? It seems improbable that Jehoram and Ahaziah would have left the safety of Jezreel to meet Jehu if there had been any doubt in their minds about his intentions. The Hebrew hashalom has the sense, "Is all well?" (cf. 4:26; 5:21; 9:11). Jehoram has sent messengers, and has now gone out himself, to discover what brings Jehu to Jezreel: has disaster overtaken Ramoth-gilead, and is this company all that remains of his army? Jehu's response is to ask how things can be well in a kingdom dominated by the Baal religion and the whorings of Joram's mother Jezebel. "Whorings" (Hb. zenunim), also linked with sorceries (Hb. keshapim) in Nah. 3:4, is a term associated with fertility religion in Hosea (Hos. 1:2; 2:2, 4; 4:12; 5:4). It is derived from the Hebrew verb zanah (cf. 1 Kings 3:16; 22:38).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:25–26 plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite. See the prophecy of Elijah to Ahab in 1 Kings 21:17–24, which precipitated that king's death (1 Kings 22, esp. v. 38; see also note on 1 Kings 21:19) in circumstances similar to those of his son Jehoram (death by arrow, 1 Kings 22:34).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:27–28 he fled to Megiddo and died there. Linked with Ahab in marriage and at one with him in religion, Ahaziah also shares in his fate. He is shot … in the chariot, later to be transported dead to his capital city for burial (cf. 1 Kings 22:34–37). The shooting takes place near Ibleam, one of the cities that guarded access to and from the southern end of the Jezreel Valley, as Ahaziah flees south from Jezreel back toward Samaria; but after the attack he abruptly changes direction and heads northwest for Megiddo in the western part of the Jezreel Valley. Megiddo was an important and strategic city in ancient times, controlling the main international highway running from Egypt to Damascus as it entered the valley. Israelite remains at Megiddo from the period of the divided monarchy are numerous. An imposing water tunnel, probably cut during Ahab's reign (9th century B.C.), was discovered here. A large vertical shaft (115 feet/35 m) was cut into bedrock, and then a 200-foot (61-m) horizontal shaft was dug to reach a spring outside the city. A series of buildings was discovered that probably served as either storehouses or stables in the time of Ahab.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:29 the eleventh year of Joram the son of Ahab. In 8:25 one reads of "the twelfth year." Accession dates could be reckoned in different ways, particularly in terms of the way that part-years were handled, resulting in such apparent discrepancies. The new information is given here to clarify how it could be that both men died at the same time if Jehoram reigned for 12 years (3:1) yet Ahaziah, who came to the throne in Jehoram's "twelfth year," reigned for one year. The fragmentary ninth-century B.C. Tell Dan inscription probably alludes to the deaths of these same kings, although the Syrian king responsible for the inscription there claims responsibility for the deaths of the Judean and Israelite kings mentioned—a good example of the oversimplification and hyperbole that is typical of victory monuments in the ancient Near East. Perhaps Hazael regarded Jehu as a vassal, and felt justified in claiming Jehu's feats as his own.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:30 she painted her eyes and adorned her head. This could mean only that Jezebel met her end proudly, dressed up as a queen should be. Her posture, however, echoes the "woman in the window" motif found on carved ivory plaques from various ancient Near Eastern sites (see note on 2 Sam. 6:16–19), which may represent the goddess Astarte, one of the wives of Baal; so perhaps Jezebel is being represented as the very incarnation of the religion that she brought into Israel from Sidon.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:31 Is it peace, you Zimri? "Is it peace?" is a question intricately tied to the demise of Ahab and his dynasty (see note on v. 22; cf. vv. 18–19; 1 Kings 22:28). Jezebel asks, sarcastically, whether "all is well" (knowing that all is far from well) and she taunts Jehu as one who is unlikely to survive his own revolution (Zimri's reign was a "seven-day wonder"; see 1 Kings 16:8–20).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:32 It was common practice in the ancient world for the king to have a harem (cf. 1 Kings 11:3), and for the harem to be provided with guards. These guards were typically eunuchs (castrated males), so that the king could be sure that the males close to his women were not capable of sexual relations with them. Eunuchs also performed an important role in the official hierarchy of the ancient Near East more generally. In neo-Assyrian sources, e.g., they are attested at the royal court, in the army, in the bureaucracy, and in the provincial administration. They functioned, among many other roles, as the king's personal attendants, cooks, palace guards, scribes, and ambassadors.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 9:36 the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant Elijah. Using the language of covenant curses, Elijah earlier prophesied the "cutting off" of all the males of Ahab's house (1 Kings 21:21–22; 2 Kings 9:8–9) as well as the gruesome death of Jezebel (1 Kings 21:23; 2 Kings 9:10). dogs shall eat. The exposure of Jezebel's corpse to devouring dogs meant disgrace since burial was now impossible. Now that Jezebel is dead, Jehu turns his attention to Ahab's sons (see note on 10:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:1 Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. Elijah had prophesied that the Lord would consume Ahab's descendants and cut off from him every last male in Israel (1 Kings 21:21; cf. the previous prophecies against Jeroboam and Baasha in 1 Kings 14:10; 16:3). Jehu now looks to fulfill this prophecy. The guardians of the sons of Ahab are probably those in general who were loyal to Ahab and to his house, as distinct from the rulers and the elders with their specific roles.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:3 fight for your master's house. By writing letters to the leading citizens and challenging them to place one of Ahab's potential heirs on his father's throne, Jehu forces them to choose sides.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:5 he who was over the palace … he who was over the city. These are the "rulers of the city" mentioned in v. 1. The position of palace administrator was an important one (cf. 15:5; 18:18, 37; 19:2), and his power at least in Judah is indicated in Isa. 22:22. Both the title ("he who was over the palace") and sometimes the names of its holders are found in extrabiblical inscriptions. The joint reply of these two officials along with the elders and the other former Ahab loyalists (the "guardians") reveals that they are no longer Ahab's or Jehoram's, but are now Jehu's servants.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:7 they took the king's sons and slaughtered them. This fulfills the word of the Lord in 9:7–9 and is similar to other instances in which entire groups of people are put to death (e.g., Dan. 6:24, which likewise does not commend the action; cf. note on 2 Sam. 21:3–6). This kind of drastic action against a royal household was not at all uncommon in the ancient world, as the present incumbents of thrones tried to ensure a future free of retaliation. For example, the Aramaic Panammuwa Inscription (c. 733–727 B.C.) records that Panammuwa of Sam'al was the survivor of a palace coup in which a brother killed his father Barsur, along with 70 brothers of his father. This text and the biblical text in Judg. 9:5, where Abimelech kills 70 of his brothers before being crowned king, may suggest that the number seventy in such contexts is a round number, or a matter of literary convention, rather than an exact number. In any case, the number of sons of such a monarch could be quite large.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:8–10 two heaps at the entrance of the gate. The Assyrian king Ashurnasirpal II records in an inscription that during his siege of the city of Damdammusa he cut off the heads of 600 of his enemy’s troops and, in an act of intimidation, “built a pile of heads before his gate.” Jehu’s aim is similar: to convince the people that resistance is futile. He knows who struck down all these, but the people do not; and he invites them to believe that the heads mean that the revolution is bigger than he is, involving mysterious powers more lethal than his (he killed only his master); it is truly the LORD who is at work in overthrowing the house of Ahab. As fair-minded (implied by innocent) people, they should be able to arrive at the correct interpretation of the evidence.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:13–14 His work in Jezreel complete, Jehu leaves for Samaria. On the way, he encounters some relatives of Ahaziah king of Judah. The Judean royal family keeps being drawn into the events, even though there was no prophetic forewarning. Cf. 9:27 for the death of Ahaziah. they took them alive and slaughtered them. This new king is thorough in exterminating all traces of the past, and the consequences for Judah will be dire (11:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:15 Is your heart true to my heart as mine is to yours? The Hebrew vocabulary of yashar (“right,” “true”) and lebab (“heart”) appears in other places in 1–2 Kings (e.g., 1 Kings 14:8), including 2 Kings 10:30 in relation to Jehu himself: “you have done well in carrying out what is right in my eyes, and have done to the house of Ahab according to all that was in my heart.” The wording here underlines that the theme throughout the chapter is “who is on the Lord’s side; who is in the right?” Jehonadab, who is on the right side, reappears in Jeremiah 35 (“Jonadab”) as the founder of a purist religious group committed to Israel’s older ways.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:18–36 Jehu Destroys Baal Worship. It is no surprise to find Jehu now taking decisive action against the worship of Baal, for 1 Kings 19:15–18 had pointed toward final victory over Baal worship in naming Jehu (along with Hazael, 2 Kings 10:32–33) as the Lord's instrument of judgment.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:18–19 Jehu assembled all the people. Samaria had been the focal point for the Baal cult (cf. 1 Kings 16:32–33), to which Jehu now gives his attention. His strategy is to feign enthusiasm while preparing for destruction; he tells the people that although the dynasty has changed, the religious policy will remain the same (Ahab served Baal a little, but Jehu will serve him much).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:20 Sanctify a solemn assembly. This phrase is unparalleled in Hebrew, but a Ugaritic text concerned with gaining protection for the royal ancestors of King Ammurapi of Ugarit suggests that it represents genuine Canaanite religious terminology.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:25 inner room. The Hebrew is 'ir, which normally means "city." In this context it presumably refers to some "city-like" aspect of the temple, behind its own walls—perhaps an inner room or a walled courtyard.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:27 the pillar of Baal … the house of Baal. See 1 Kings 16:32–33 and 2 Kings 3:2. Baal worship in Israel is officially at an end. It has neither royal patronage nor royal tolerance.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:29 did not turn aside from the sins of Jeroboam. The worship of Baal was only a particularly bad form of the idolatry practiced in Israel. Jehu has dealt with Baal worship, but he does nothing at all about the golden calves … in Bethel and in Dan that Jeroboam installed after leading Israel in revolt against the house of David (1 Kings 12:25–30). The symbolism of these calves encouraged a blurring of the distinction between Mosaic and Canaanite religion; the high god of the Canaanite pantheon, El, is frequently called "the bull" in Ugaritic materials (signifying his strength and fertility), and Baal himself is also represented as a bull. Archaeologists have discovered bull icons at numerous sites in Syria-Palestine, including Byblos, Ugarit, and Hazor.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:30 Since Jehu does not abolish the golden calves in Bethel and Dan (v. 29; cf. v. 31), it is surprising to find him addressed as someone who has carried out what is right (Hb. yashar) in the eyes of the Lord. In other places, the authors of Kings use yashar only positively, with regard to David (1 Kings 15:5) and the relatively good (i.e., non-idolatrous) kings of Judah (1 Kings 15:11; 22:43; 2 Kings 12:2; 14:3; 15:3, 34; 18:3; 22:2). It is even more surprising to find Jehu receiving a David-like dynastic promise. His descendants will sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation. This is not the same thing as a promise of eternal dynasty, but it is nevertheless extraordinary; Jeroboam was promised a dynasty like David's if he did "what was right" in the Lord's eyes (1 Kings 11:38), but then he failed and lost this opportunity (1 Kings 14:8). Evidently what Jehu has done that is right (eradication of Baal worship) far outweighs what he continues to do that is wrong.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:32–33 the LORD began to cut off parts of Israel. First Kings 19:15–18 pointed to a time when God's judgment would fall on Israel because of Baal worship. Jehu would deal with those who escaped Hazael, and Elisha with those who escaped Jehu. Implicit in such an ordering was that Hazael would turn out to be the greatest destroyer of the three—something to which 2 Kings 8:12 also pointed, with its emphasis on Hazael's brutality. It is no surprise, therefore, to find now an account of Hazael's aggression against Israel. He is said to have conquered Transjordan as far south as the Valley of the Arnon, the southern limit of Israelite Transjordanian territory (cf. Josh. 12:2). This military success occurred during the lull in Assyrian aggression against Syria-Palestine between the campaign of Shalmaneser III's twenty-first year (838 B.C.), when he captured four of Hazael's cities and accepted tribute from the peoples of the Phoenician coast, and the campaign of the fifth year of Adad-nirari III (806). This respite enabled Damascus to turn its full attention toward Israel and Judah and to subject these kingdoms to prolonged pressure in the last decades of the ninth century. More of Hazael's conquests will be reported later (2 Kings 12:17–18; 13:3–7, 22–23).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 10:34 the rest of the acts of Jehu. Jehu appears in Assyrian records describing an event that must have taken place shortly after his accession to the throne, during the western campaign of Shalmaneser III's eighteenth year (841 B.C.). During that campaign King Shalmaneser besieged Damascus, marched on to the Hauran Mountains in southern Syria, then through Gilead to the south of the Sea of Galilee and through Jezreel to Ba'li-ra'si (perhaps Mount Carmel) near Tyre. Hosea 10:14 may preserve a memory of this march through northern Palestine, since "Shalman" there is probably an abbreviated form of Shalmaneser's name. At this time, Shalmaneser collected tribute from "Jehu the Israelite" as well as from Tyre and Sidon. The Black Obelisk of Shalmaneser III (854–824 B.C.), found at the site of Nimrud, depicts the Israelite king Jehu giving tribute. Jehu, or perhaps his emissary, lies prostrate before the king while other Israelites present tribute that includes gold and silver objects. If the figure is Jehu, then it is the only extant pictorial representation of an Israelite king from antiquity. Shalmaneser III, after having received tribute from Jehu, also plundered Tyre and Sidon in Phoenicia. In commemoration of this successful campaign, Shalmaneser had his portrait carved on the cliffs of the Dog River, north of Beirut.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:1–12:21 Joash. The destruction of the house of Ahab has greatly affected the house of David: Ahaziah (of Judah) has been killed, just like Jehoram (of Israel), and a number of his relatives have suffered the same fate as Ahab's relatives (10:12–14). Have the two houses become so identified in intermarriage (8:18, 27) that a distinction no longer exists between them? Chapters 11–12 clarify that in fact the distinction remains, for David's house survives even the assault of wicked Queen Athaliah, a Judean "Jezebel."

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:1–3 Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah. Possibly a daughter of Jezebel (8:26), Athaliah certainly displays the same ruthless streak. Her attack on the royal family is stemmed only by the resourceful Jehosheba, who hides the young Joash and his nurse in the Jerusalem temple. The nurse's willingness to share danger with the child in her care contrasts sharply with the spineless leading men of Samaria in 10:1–7. Cf. note on 2 Chron. 22:10–12.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:4 Jehoiada … the Carites and … the guards. It is subsequently clarified that Jehoiada is the chief priest (vv. 9, 15). Jerusalem's guards and their duties around the palace and the temple have been described in 1 Kings 14:27–28. The Carites appear in the consonantal Hebrew text of 2 Sam. 20:23 as part of the elite royal bodyguard alongside the Pelethites. They may well be the same body as (or at least the regiment may be descended from the regiment of) the Cherethites, with whom the Pelethites normally appear in the OT (2 Sam. 8:18; 15:18; 20:7, 23; 1 Kings 1:38, 44); see note on 1 Kings 1:38.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:5–8 This is the thing that you shall do. The normal duties of the troops mentioned here are reasonably clear: the guarding of the king's house (the royal palace) and the house of the LORD (the temple), along with two important gates. The gate Sur was a gate in the walled enclosure that surrounded the temple precincts and the royal residences in Jerusalem, probably to be identified with the gate of Shallecheth of 1 Chron. 26:16 (called the "Gate of the Foundation" in 2 Chron. 23:5). From this gate a road ascended to the Fish Gate at the northwest corner of the city's outer defensive wall. The gate behind the guards was apparently located in a wall separating the temple and palace complexes (2 Kings 11:19) and is called the "upper gate" in 2 Chron. 23:20 (cf. 2 Kings 15:35). The interpretation of the troops' reassignments, however, is more difficult. It does not seem likely that the troops in 11:5–6 are being assigned to guard the king's palace (v. 6), for the terminology used to specify the building at the end of v. 6 (Hb. habbayit massakh, perhaps "house named destruction"?) is not the same as the terminology used of the royal palace in v. 5 ("the king's house," Hb. bet-hammelek). Furthermore, Athaliah leaves the royal palace unhindered in v. 13, with no guards in sight. Most likely, then, it is the temple ("palace") of Baal that is to be guarded in v. 6—the building destined for destruction in v. 18. Troops are sent to both temples: the "house named destruction" (vv. 5–6) and the "house of the LORD" (v. 7). They are sent to the first in order to discourage interference by the worshipers of Baal and to detain the priest Mattan. The overall concern is that sufficient security be provided for the coronation ceremony to take place within the temple precincts.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:10 spears and shields. Since it is not likely that the soldiers needed to be armed by the chief priest, it is probably the symbolism that is important here. The commanders are making it clear that they have allied themselves with David's cause, and at the same time they are receiving articles to be given to the new king as symbols of his royal power (the spear is a prominent royal weapon in the books of Samuel; e.g., 1 Sam. 18:10–11; 22:6).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:12 the testimony. Joash is presented with a list of divinely ordained laws (Hb. 'edut). For kings ruling under divine law, see Deut. 17:18–20; 1 Kings 2:3; 2 Kings 23:3.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:14 pillar. In 1–2 Kings the Hebrew 'ammud has appeared thus far only in 1 Kings 7, referring to the pillars of the Solomonic palace (1 Kings 7:2–3, 6) and temple (1 Kings 7:15–22, 41–42). Either Jachin or Boaz is probably in view here (1 Kings 7:21); "Jachin" may mean "the establisher," and would thus provide a fitting location for a coronation. The emphasis on custom is important in a context where the authors are trying to stress the legitimacy of Joash's claim to the throne; the coronation takes place in line with law and custom, and in full view of the people of the land.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:17 Jehoiada made a covenant. The king and people once more identify themselves as the LORD's people through a covenant-renewal ceremony (cf. Josh. 24:1–27; 2 Kings 23:1–3). At the same time, a covenant is made between the king and the people (cf. 2 Sam. 5:1–3), redefining kingship in distinctively Israelite terms after a period in which foreign ideas have dominated.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 11:21 Joash, introduced by that name in v. 2, will be called Jehoash throughout most of ch. 12, to be called Joash again only in 12:19, where his death is reported. See also note on 13:9.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:2–3 Jehoash (i.e., Joash; see note on 11:21) did what was right. He was a relatively good king who rejected idolatrous worship (contrast the verdict on the idolaters Jehoram and Ahaziah in 8:18, 27), but the high places were not taken away (see note on 1 Kings 3:2; cf. also 1 Kings 15:14; 22:43).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:4–5 repair the house. The temple of the Lord had suffered neglect during the years in which the worship of Baal was encouraged, and to neglect a temple in the ancient world was to neglect its deity and to risk his or her disapproval and the possible undermining of a king's legitimate authority to rule (which is why a king such as Esarhaddon of Assyria had servants traveling around his realm and sending him reports about the state of its temples). Three sources of income are specified as the repair project gets underway here. Two of these represent regular temple income: payments made in relation to the periodic census of male Israelites (money for which each man is assessed; Ex. 30:11–16), and monetary equivalents for things dedicated to God (money from the assessment of persons; Lev. 27:1–25). Money that a man's heart prompts him to bring refers to a special fund-raising campaign similar to that initiated by Moses, at God's command, in Exodus 35 (where people also give from the heart; Ex. 35:5, 21–22, 26, 29).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:7–12 hand it over. Joash's initial plan was to leave the matter to the priests themselves (vv. 4–5). But this plan fails because, it is implied, the priests are not eager to spend good money on mere buildings, even though they are well provided for through the normal sacrificial system (v. 16; cf. Num. 5:5–10). Joash himself therefore takes control of the project, ensuring that the income goes directly to the workmen appointed to supervise the work.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:13 But there were not made … any vessels of gold, or of silver. Joash's achievements, after all his efforts, are somewhat disappointing: only a very humble restoration of the temple has taken place, and it stands as a poor reflection of its former glory (cf. 1 Kings 7:50). Once again the reader is reminded of the "affliction of the house of David" theme (1 Kings 11:39) that has surfaced in the description of even the best of the post-Solomonic Judean kings.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:17–18 took all the sacred gifts. The theme of affliction continues: Judah, too, is oppressed by Hazael king of Syria (cf. 10:32–33 for his assault on Israel), as he turns east from the Philistine city of Gath to attack Jerusalem. This presupposes that Hazael could move at will through Israelite territory to the north, so that the campaign is best dated during the reign of Jehu's son Jehoahaz (c. 815–799 B.C.), who fared even worse than his father at the hands of Syria (13:1–7, 22–23). Like Asa, Joash knows no Solomonic peace during his rule, and tribute flows north from Israel to Syria, instead of south from Syria to Israel (cf. 1 Kings 15:18–24). Both Asa and Joash in fact empty the treasuries of the house of the LORD and of the king's house. Long past are those days when the king of Israel had "rest on every side" (1 Kings 5:4). Much later, Hag. 2:7–8 (see notes there) foretold that one day the nations would bring their wealth to the temple.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:19 Chronicles of the Kings. See note on 1 Kings 14:19.

Syria Captures Gilead

c. 825–798 B.C.

The Syrians under Hazael continued to plague Israel during Jehu's reign, eventually capturing all of Gilead from Aroer on the Arnon River to Bashan in the north. Later during the reign of Jehoash (also called Joash), Hazael attacked Gath on the western border of Judah, and Jehoash sent Hazael treasures from the temple of the Lord to persuade him to withdraw from attacking Jerusalem.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 12:20 Silla was probably a neighborhood of Jerusalem below "the Millo" (see note on 2 Sam. 5:9), and the house of Millo was perhaps a prominent building in the Millo.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:1–25 Jehoahaz and Jehoash. The reader is now updated on what has been happening in Israel during the reigns of those two kings whose accessions took place within Joash of Judah's lifetime.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:1–5 the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel. Under normal circumstances, one might expect the appearance of a prophet to announce the end of Jehu's house because of its sins (v. 2; cf. 1 Kings 14:6–16). The divine promise to Jehu, however, is functioning like the earlier promise to David (2 Sam. 7:1–17; 2 Kings 10:30), and the Israelite royal house is for the moment being treated like the Judean royal house. The anger of the Lord is thus expressed only in the form of Syrian oppression.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:4–5 Jehoahaz sought the favor of the LORD. The language throughout vv. 3–5 is reminiscent of the book of Judges, where Israel's recurring idolatry was followed by divine anger, expressing itself in oppression by foreigners. When Israel cried out under this oppression, God sent a savior (2 Kings 13:5; cf. Judg. 3:9, 15) to rescue them. It seems likely that the "savior" in question here is Assyria, whose interest in Syria-Palestine was rekindled in the closing years of the ninth century B.C., resulting in a measure of relief for Israel as the attention of Damascus necessarily turned to the north.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:6 the Asherah … remained in Samaria. On Asherim, see note on 1 Kings 14:15. The English translation here implies that this is the same Asherah that Ahab made earlier (mentioned in 1 Kings 16:33), which in that case must have survived Jehu's reformation. But it could also be translated "an Asherah (once again) stood in Samaria."

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:7–8 dust at threshing. See note on 1 Kings 22:10–12. God's punishment is so severe that it reduces the army of Jehoahaz to little more than a remnant, as insubstantial as chaff in the breeze. On the Chronicles of the Kings (also in 2 Kings 13:12), see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:9 The next king of Israel, introduced here as Joash, is referred to as both Joash (e.g., v. 14) and Jehoash (v. 25) throughout the rest of this chapter and in ch. 14 (e.g., 14:8–9). He is not to be confused with Joash of Judah; see note on 11:21.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:14–19 Joash (Jehoash of Israel) weeps because he thinks he is on the verge of defeat, having inherited depleted resources in chariots and horsemen from his father (v. 7). Elisha, who knows of other chariots and horsemen of Israel who are not of flesh and blood (2:11–12; 6:8–17), is able to promise the king a series of victories (three times, 13:19). The victories would have been greater in number had the king, in response to prophetic commands, been more enthusiastically obedient ("You should have struck five or six times") to the words of the prophet (cf. 1 Kings 13:1–32). Aphek lay eastward of the main Israelite territory in Transjordan, the direction in which Jehoash shoots the arrow and from which the Syrian threat to Israel typically came.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:20–21 grave of Elisha. Tombs in ancient Israel were often dug out of soft rock, or located in caves (e.g., Genesis 23), and they were not difficult to access. It is probably important to know at this point that Elisha's powers to resurrect live on (cf. 2 Kings 4:8–37), because as this man was thrown (Hb. shalak) into the grave of Elisha, so God will soon "throw" (or "cast") Israel into exile in Assyria (17:20, same verb, shalak). The Israelites need to maintain contact with the great prophets of the past through obedience to their teachings if this "death" in exile is also to be followed by an unexpected resurrection (cf. Ezek. 37:1–14).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:23–25 his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Here is a deeper reason than the one given in 10:30 for Israel's survival during Jehoahaz's reign. Long before he made promises to Jehu about kingship and a covenant with David, God was dealing with Israel's ancestors (e.g., Gen. 15:1–21; 17:1–27). That is why he kept the Syrians at bay during the reign of Jehoahaz, in spite of Israel's sin; and that is why the equally sinful Jehoash was later able to lead Israel to something of a recovery (in a period when Hazael's successor Ben-hadad III was preoccupied with the Assyrian threat to his north). Even until now (2 Kings 13:23), in the time that the authors are writing (after Israel's exile), Israel remains in God's presence.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 13:25 Three times Joash (i.e., Jehoash; see note on v. 9) defeated him, fulfilling the prophecy of Elisha (v. 19).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:1–15:7 Amaziah, Jeroboam II, and Azariah. The impetus of the recovery in the closing verses of ch. 13 continues into ch. 14, as the house of Jehu brings Israel relief, not only from Syria but also from a hostile Judah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:1–6 Amaziah was a relatively good (i.e., non-idolatrous) king of Judah (he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD), basically keeping the Law of Moses (Deut. 24:16) while failing like others before him to remove the high places (see note on 1 Kings 3:2; also 1 Kings 15:11; 22:43; 2 Kings 12:2). Yet in ways not further defined here, the kings throughout the period from Joash to Jotham are regarded by the authors of Kings as not like David (contrast 1 Kings 3:3; 15:11; 22:43 with 2 Kings 12:2; 14:3; 15:3, 34 in terms of what is and is not said); there is some doubt in the authors' minds about the wholeheartedness of these kings' commitment to the Lord.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:7 Valley of Salt … Sela. Edom had revolted against Judean rule during the reign of Jehoram (8:20–22). Amaziah does not reestablish Judean control over Edom, but this important victory does ultimately have implications for Judah's ability to trade (see note on 14:22).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:9–10 A thistle … sent to a cedar. Emboldened by the success of his Edomite campaign, Amaziah has decided for unstated reasons to confront the more powerful Jehoash of Israel, so Jehoash sends him this insult and warning. The point of Jehoash's parable is that a puny thistle (i.e., Amaziah), easily trampled by any wild beast, should not make the mistake of comparing itself in might to the immovable cedar on Lebanon (Jehoash). Be content with your glory, and stay at home. Jehoash is not seeking conflict with Amaziah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:11–14 Beth-shemesh. This important town on the northwest border of Judah, about 20 miles (32 km) by road from Jerusalem, guarded an important pass from the Philistine plain. Defeat here inevitably led to an assault on Jerusalem itself and the destruction of about 600 feet (183 m) of city wall on the northern side between the Ephraim Gate (the main gate in the center of the northern wall) and the Corner Gate (probably at the northwestern corner of the city).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:15–17 the rest of the acts of Jehoash. … Amaziah … lived fifteen years. The surprising repetition of this information concerning Jehoash in the context of Amaziah's reign (cf. 13:12–13) may be intended to contrast the two kings in their deaths: Jehoash, who did not seek conflict with fellow Israelites, came to a natural and peaceful end, while Amaziah, the aggressor who acted as Rehoboam had been forbidden to act, met a violent death (14:19–20; cf. 1 Kings 12:22–24). It is also possible, however, that Jehoash is highlighted here because he was the effective ruler of Judah in this period, as was his son Jeroboam after him; Amaziah is not said to have "ruled" in Judah after Jehoash's death, but only to have "lived" there. On the Chronicles of the Kings (also 2 Kings 14:18, 28), see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:19 they made a conspiracy against him. Nothing is said of any reprisals by Amaziah's son against the conspirators (15:1–7; contrast 14:5–6), perhaps implying that Azariah was himself one of the mysterious "they." Amaziah was bound to be unpopular, given the consequences for the city of Jerusalem from his military folly. The city of Lachish where he died was the most important fortified city in Judah after Jerusalem, defending one of the east-west valleys that gave access to the Judean Plateau and Jerusalem from the coastal plains.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:22 after the king slept with his fathers. The immediate context might lead the reader to think of Amaziah, but in fact it is Jehoash who has just been described as sleeping with his fathers (cf. v. 16). If the reference is indeed to Jehoash, this is further evidence that he was the one exercising power in Judah after the battle of Beth-shemesh (see note on vv. 15–17). It was only after his death and with the decline of Syria (see note on v. 25) that Azariah was able to consolidate Amaziah's gains in Edom by claiming the port of Elath at the north end of the Gulf of Aqaba (the Red Sea). This town, closely associated with Ezion-geber and the trade of the Solomonic era with the wider world (1 Kings 9:26), stood at the southern end of the great King’s Highway that ran all the way north through Transjordan to Damascus and facilitated trade connections especially with southern Arabia. Presumably it was lost to Judah when Edom revolted during Jehoram’s reign (2 Kings 8:20–22).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:25 He restored the border of Israel. The Assyrian assault on the area north of Israel (alluded to in 13:5) seriously weakened the kingdoms of that region, including Syria, and this allowed Jehoash to recapture some Israelite towns from the Syrians (13:25). In the immediately subsequent years, the Assyrian kings only infrequently ventured out on military campaigns to their west, and in this context Jeroboam II of Israel was able to further the Israelite recovery begun by his father, extending the borders of Israel from the Sea of the Arabah in the south (the Dead Sea, Josh. 3:16; 12:3) to the northern Lebo-hamath (“entrance to Hamath,” a city or geographical feature associated with Hamath in central Syria). Jeroboam was thus able to restore the territory of northern Israel to Solomonic proportions (1 Kings 8:65). Jonah the son of Amittai (cf. Jonah 1:1) had prophesied that Jeroboam would accomplish this, although Jonah was not the only prophet active during this period and his was not the only message for Israel (cf. Hos. 1:1; Amos 1:1).

c. 767–753 B.C.

A power vacuum created by Assyria’s attack and withdrawal from Syria allowed Jeroboam II of Israel and Azariah (also called Uzziah) of Judah to recover land that had once belonged to their kingdoms. Jeroboam recovered much of Gilead, and Azariah recovered Elath on the Red Sea. Jeroboam also subdued much of Syria’s territory for a time, and Azariah captured some Philistine towns and fought against the Arabians at Gurbaal and the Meunites.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:26 there was none left, bond or free. See note on 1 Kings 14:10.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:27 To blot out the name of Israel from under heaven would be to destroy Israel utterly (cf. Deut. 9:14–19), making forgiveness and restoration impossible (cf. Deut. 29:20). This the LORD had not said he would do; and when there was a danger of its happening, during the time of Jehu's dynasty, God took steps to deliver Israel from her enemies.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 14:28 Judah in Israel. This unusual phrase reflects the unusual situation in Judah and Israel during the reigns of Jehoash and Jeroboam II, when the kings of Israel were apparently in effective control of Judah (see notes on vv. 15–17, 19, 22). It is perhaps an Israelite designation for the whole restored kingdom during Jeroboam's reign, representing Jeroboam's claim to lordship over a Judah currently integrated into Israel. Alternatively, it could be a phrase chosen by the authors to represent their view that the Davidic dynasty in Jerusalem remains the chosen dynasty, that Judah is the heartland of the kingdom that rightly belongs to that dynasty, and that the kingdom will one day be returned to Judah in its entirety (cf. 1 Kings 11:39). Jeroboam II may appear to be a "second Solomon," but the phrase "Judah in Israel" reminds the reader to whom this territory really belongs. Whatever is the case, this is a period in which territory is being restored (cf. 2 Kings 14:22) to Israel, both to the north and to the south. Jeroboam II ruled Israel from 786 to 746 B.C. Archaeologists at Megiddo discovered a seal dating to the eighth century B.C. The seal contains a roaring lion; above the animal in Hebrew is the name "Shema," and below is the phrase "Servant of Jeroboam." The finely rendered seal gives evidence of a high level of craftsmanship at this time.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:3–4 he did what was right [but] the high places were not taken away. See 14:3–4 for a similar description of Azariah's father Amaziah. Azariah is also called Uzziah in various places (cf. 15:13, 30, 32, 34). Azariah's (Uzziah's) reign saw the beginning of Isaiah's prophetic ministry (Isa. 1:1; 6:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:5 a leper to the day of his death. At some point during his reign, Azariah became a leper (see note on 5:1) and was unable to govern, occupying a separate house—lit. in Hebrew "the house of freedom" (bet hakhopshit), which is probably a metaphor for being relieved of responsibility in government more than a description of his living conditions. The king was seriously incapacitated and was regarded as effectively dead (cf. the related Hb. word khopshi in connection with the world of the dead in Job 3:19, "free," and Ps. 88:5, "set loose"). Cf. also note on 2 Chron. 26:21–23. His son Jotham therefore exercised effective governmental power in Judah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:6 On the Chronicles of the Kings (also vv. 11, 15, 21, 26, 31, 36), see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:8–31 Israel's Last Days. Israel's respite from foreign oppression is as temporary as her domination of Judah. With the passing of Jeroboam II, the nation has reached the "fourth generation" of the divine promise to Jehu (10:30) and has returned to the unstable government of the northern kingdom implied by 1 Kings 14:15 and illustrated in 1 Kings 14–16 (before the houses of Omri and Jehu were established). Reign now follows reign in quick succession, as the reader moves toward the end of Israel's story.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:8–12 After the glorious reign of Jeroboam II, the reign of his son Zechariah marks the end of the dynasty of Jehu, as foretold in 10:30.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:16–22 Menahem sacked Tiphsah. This attack on an important city on the Euphrates River is the last, brutal action of an Israelite king claiming control of a Solomon-like empire (cf. 1 Kings 4:24). Such a campaign would probably have taken place early in his reign, either before the campaigns of Pul the king of Assyria in 743–740 B.C. began, or during these years as part of the anti-Assyrian struggle in the region. "Pul" is the Hebrew version of the Akkadian "Pulu," a short name for Tiglath-pileser III, known from the Babylonian king lists. Tiglath-pileser's goal was apparently to establish an Assyrian trading center on the border with Egypt, and he required control of the intervening regions to accomplish this and to ensure safe passage for trade between Philistia and Assyria. Menahem's tributary payment of a thousand talents of silver makes him Assyria's friend for the time being, and is mentioned in Assyrian records relating to Tiglath-pileser's successful campaign of 738 B.C. against Syria and Phoenicia.

Prophets of Israel and Judah

c. 875–430 B.C.

Prophets had been a part of Israelite society since the days of Moses, but the complex political, religious, and social situations of the divided monarchy made their role of communicating God's clear message even more pronounced. Unlike priests, prophets did not inherit their role by birth and often were not part of the religious establishment. They arose from various parts of Israel and Judah, with some having direct access to the king (e.g., Elijah and Elisha) and others communicating their messages directly to the people (e.g., Amos and Nahum).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:20 Menahem exacted the money from Israel. Sixty-three ostraca were found at Samaria that record tax payments dated by years of the king. These may in fact have been the additional tax payments that Menahem imposed on Israel to pay off the Assyrian king Pul in 738 B.C.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:27–31 Pekah is the last of the Israelite kings to rule during the long reign of Azariah in Judah. Pekah's twenty years in power appear to be counted from before the period when he began to reign over Israel in Samaria and governed only part of the Israelite territory mentioned in v. 29; for if Menahem was king of Israel in 738 B.C. (see note on vv. 16–22) and Pekah was succeeded by Hoshea around 732 (see note on 17:1–2), Pekah could not have reigned for 20 years over Israel as a whole. The end of the period in which he did reign over all Israel saw Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria annex much of Israel's northern and eastern territory during his campaigns of 733–732 B.C. (see notes on 15:37; 16:7–9). This list of conquered towns to the west of the Jordan, however, is not exhaustive but representative (moving from Ijon, at the northern end of the Huleh Valley and guarding the main highway leading from Palestine to Syria, to Hazor, the largest site in Upper Galilee and occupying the most strategic position in the region). The Assyrians also deported a significant percentage of Israel's population, which was a major feature of Tiglath-pileser's imperial policy, designed to increase the Assyrian labor force and reduce the possibility of further opposition among subjugated peoples.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:32–16:20 Jotham and Ahaz. The house of David has seen three of its last four kings assassinated, and the fourth set aside his power because of illness. Things are not about to improve, as Jotham and his apostate son Ahaz are introduced.

The Resurgence of Assyrian Influence

c. 740 B.C.

Looming over most of the latter history of the divided monarchy is the growing power and influence of Assyria. The resurgence of this ancient empire dominated much of the politics of the ancient Near East from the time of Jeroboam and Azariah until the empire's demise at the end of the seventh century B.C. Israel bore the brunt of Assyria's forays into Palestine, though Judah experienced its share of attacks as well. Assyria would eventually engulf nearly the entire Near East from Ur to Ararat to Egypt.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:34–35 the high places were not removed. See note on 1 Kings 3:2. Jotham was a relatively good (i.e., non-idolatrous) king. Nevertheless, he is described as being like his father rather than like David (see note on 2 Kings 14:1–6), and he failed to centralize worship of the Lord in Jerusalem, allowing people to continue worshiping at the “high places.” The upper gate is the “gate behind the guards” mentioned in 11:6, presumably damaged in the course of Jehoash’s incursion into Jerusalem in 14:13–14. Jotham’s reign saw the beginning of Micah’s prophetic ministry (Mic. 1:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 15:37 Rezin … Pekah. This is the beginning of the so-called Syro-Ephraimite War seen so prominently in Isaiah 7–9. In due course Judah will ask Assyria to help fight off Israel and Syria (see note on 2 Kings 16:7–9), and the Assyrian response is reflected already in the note on 15:27–31.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:1–4 he did not do what was right. With Jotham's son Ahaz, Judah returns to officially sanctioned idolatry as the high places become centers of Canaanite religion (cf. 1 Kings 14:23–24). This religion includes child sacrifice to the god Molech (Ahaz burned his son as an offering; see 1 Kings 11:7; 16:34). Confirmation for the rule of Ahaz has come from the discovery of a bulla (clay seal) with the inscription, "Belonging to Ahaz [son of] Yehotam [Jotham], king of Judah" (see note on 2 Kings 18:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:6 Rezin … recovered Elath for Syria. This town had only recently been won back for Judah by Azariah (14:22). Rezin here briefly reestablishes Syrian control over the entirety of the King's Highway in Transjordan from Damascus to Elath, and surrenders Elath to the Edomites, who appear to have taken part as allies, along with the Philistines, in the assault on Judah (2 Chron. 28:17–18).

Syria and Israel Attack Judah

c. 740–732 B.C.

As the Assyrian Empire expanded westward, Syria and Israel sought to compel Judah and the other nearby states to form an anti-Assyrian alliance. Judah refused, leading Syria and Israel to attack Jerusalem. Syria also wrested Elath from Judah and gave it to the Edomites. The Edomites may have also raided Judah and taken captives at this time (see 2 Chron. 28:17). The Philistines, who may have been part of the anti-Assyrian alliance, attacked Judah as well, capturing several cities in the Shephelah and the Negeb (see 2 Chron. 28:18).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:7–9 I am your servant. Rather than turning to the Lord for help, Ahaz accepts vassal status to Assyria and requests his new overlord's help, which arrives in the form of the Assyrian campaigns of 733–732 B.C. in Syria-Palestine. This resulted in the capture of Damascus and the death of Rezin as well as the annexation of large parts of northern Israel and the death of Pekah (15:29–30). Kir was the original home of the people of Syria (Amos 9:7), located somewhere in Mesopotamia.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:10–16 the altar that was at Damascus. Ahaz travels to Damascus to meet his new overlord and is so impressed by this Syrian altar to the god Hadad that he has a copy of it installed in Jerusalem. Ahaz has strayed far from true faith in the Lord, and his religion is full-fledged syncretism with the pagan religions of the other nations. The old bronze altar (1 Kings 8:64) is now to be used only for Ahaz to inquire by, i.e., for divination (the interpretation of omens). This probably refers to extispicy, the examination of the entrails of sacrificial animals, focusing on the inspection of the liver (hepatoscopy), in order to divine the will and intentions of the gods. Extispicy is attested in the ancient Near East from early in the second millennium B.C. and played an important role not only at royal courts but also in the everyday life of ordinary people. The god Hadad was central to the practice of divination, along with Shamash the sun god. The practice is forbidden, along with child sacrifice, in Deut. 18:10.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:17–18 cut off the frames … took down the sea. See 1 Kings 7:23–36. The architectural details that follow the information about the frames and the sea, and what Ahaz does about these, are unfortunately obscure. All that seems clear is that his actions are motivated by a desire not to offend the king of Assyria. In doing these things, Ahaz desecrates the furnishings of the temple of the Lord. Obedience to the Lord is gone, the Lord's blessing and protection are gone, and now the beauty of the Lord's temple is gradually being removed.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 16:19 Chronicles of the Kings. See note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1–41 The End of Israel. The authors now describe the uprooting and scattering of Israel, long foretold (1 Kings 14:15) but delayed because of God's promises and God's character (2 Kings 10:30; 13:1–25; 14:23–29).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1–5 Hoshea was the last ruler of the northern kingdom of Israel (732–722 B.C.). A seal from this time has been found that reads, "Belonging to Abdi servant of Hoshea." It is one of the final artifacts from Israel before it was destroyed at the hands of the Assyrians.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:1–2 evil … , yet not as the kings of Israel who were before him. As with the kings of Judah who were "not like David" (14:3; see 12:2; 15:3, 34), the reader is left to surmise what exactly this means. Perhaps Hoshea was not wholly unrestrained in his pursuit of Jeroboam's sins, as he ruled over what remained of northern Israel after the Assyrian assault of 732 B.C. (15:27–31). His succession to the throne as an Assyrian vassal is recorded not only in 15:30 and 17:1 but also in an inscription of Tiglath-pileser III himself, who claims that he "placed Hoshea as king over them."

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:3–4 he had sent messengers to So, king of Egypt. Hoshea had reestablished his vassal status with Tiglath-pileser's successor Shalmaneser V (727–722 B.C.) but later reneged on this agreement and courted Egypt instead, bringing down upon himself the wrath of the Assyrian king. The identity of "So, king of Egypt" is a matter of debate. The pharaoh in question might have been Osorkon IV, the last pharaoh of the twenty-second dynasty (730–715 B.C.), or Tefnakht, founder of the overlapping and rising twenty-fourth dynasty (727–720). Some scholars have proposed an Egyptian military commander named Sib'e, but he is unknown in any other texts. Alternatively, "So" may not be a personal name but may be based on the name of the town, "Sais," the capital of King Tefnakht.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:6 the king of Assyria captured Samaria. Shalmaneser is identified here as the conqueror of Samaria, c. 722 B.C., after a three-year siege (see also 18:9–10); this agrees with the Babylonian Chronicle. But Shalmaneser's successor Sargon II (722–705 B.C.) takes this honor for himself in his inscriptions, perhaps in order to claim more success for himself than he actually achieved and also to give himself legitimacy (as a usurper of the Assyrian throne) by connecting himself with the previous reign. The places of exile mentioned in this verse (Halah, the Habor, the river of Gozan, the cities of the Medes) are scattered widely over the Assyrian Empire, from the western to the eastern borders. An Aramaic inscription from the tenth century B.C. mentions the city of "Gozan." The inscription has 23 lines, and it appears on a life-size statue of King Haddayishi, the ruler of Sikanu and Gozan. It was found in a field near Tell Fakhariyah in northeastern Syria.

722 B.C.

During the reign of Hoshea of Israel, Shalmaneser of Assyria attacked Israel and made it a vassal kingdom. Later, however, Hoshea conspired against Assyria, refusing to pay the tribute and appealing to Egypt for help, so the Assyrians came and besieged Samaria until it fell. Many Israelites were exiled far from Israel to the area near Gozan and the cities of the Medes, and foreign peoples from other parts of the empire were relocated to Israel in an effort to prevent revolt. This signaled the end of the northern kingdom of Israel.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:7–23 this occurred because the people of Israel had sinned (v. 7). Of the different explanations that might have been given for the way in which the northern kingdom came to its end, the authors of 1–2 Kings are interested only in this most fundamental explanation; the remainder of 2 Kings 17:7–23 catalogs the details. The people of Israel worshiped false gods from watchtower to fortified city (i.e., from the smallest to the largest place where people lived) at their high places (see 1 Kings 3:2), building themselves pillars and Asherim and two calves (see 1 Kings 12:28; 14:15, 23), and worshiping Baal (see 1 Kings 16:31–33). All of this was done in flagrant disregard for God's Law and covenant and in defiance of his prophets. Interestingly, however, some of the sins listed are not those of Israel only but also of Judah, which is drawn into the condemnation. Only in the account of Ahaz's reign have the authors mentioned child sacrifice (2 Kings 17:17; cf. 16:3) and divination (cf. 16:15); and only when they reach Manasseh's reign will the authors tell of omens (cf. 21:6) and worship of the host of heaven (17:16; cf. 21:3), i.e., the sun, the moon, the planets, and the stars. In the ancient Near East these astral bodies were identified with specific gods and goddesses and worshiped as such, and their movements were carefully studied for astrological reasons. Israel encountered worship of this kind as soon as it entered Canaan, as indicated by Judg. 2:13: "they … served the Baals and the Ashtaroth" ("Ashtoreth" [2 Kings 23:13] is the biblical name for Astarte or Venus, and the plural forms of the names of these gods here refer to various local manifestations of Hadad and Astarte). Astral worship is forbidden to Israelites in Deut. 4:19–20, as indeed divination and omens (along with fire sacrifice) are prohibited in Deut. 18:10.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:7 The authors describe the disobedience as sin against God's love and faithfulness, thus clarifying its seriousness.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 17:24–41 the king of Assyria brought people … and placed them in the cities of Samaria. The land of Israel is not left empty; people from places both close at hand (e.g., Hamath) and farther away (e.g., Babylon) are settled there. Their religion is the subject of interest in this last section of the chapter. It was a religion that involved them in what they thought of as fearing the God of Israel while also serving their own gods (v. 33), but that the authors regarded as not fearing the Lord at all (v. 34). As the only God who truly exists, the Lord claims exclusive worship; a broad pantheon of gods is not acceptable. The deities in question include Succoth-benoth (the goddess Banitu and possibly also Sakkut/Ninurta); the Mesopotamian underworld god Nergal (associated with famine, drought, plague, and death); and the West Semitic god Ashima. Nibhaz and Tartak may be Elamite deities, while Adrammelech and Anammelech may be Phoenician and Emarite gods respectively.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:1–20:21 Hezekiah. A king is now presented who is not merely similar to David, like Asa and Jehoshaphat (1 Kings 15:11; 22:43), but resembles him more closely than any other Davidic king so far. It is this king who reforms Judean worship, making it what it should be, and whose trust in God is vindicated, as the Assyrians fail to take Jerusalem as they have taken Samaria.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:1 Extrabiblical evidence for the reign of Hezekiah comes from a bulla (clay seal) bearing his name. It reads, “Belonging to Hezekiah [son of Ahaz], king of Judah.” The only other Judahite king whose seal impression has been found is Ahaz (see note on 16:1–4).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:4 He removed the high places. This is a significant accomplishment because even the most righteous of Judean kings prior to Hezekiah in 1–2 Kings failed to do this (e.g., 1 Kings 3:2; 15:14; 22:43). Hezekiah also destroys the pillars and the Asherah (see notes on 1 Kings 14:15; 14:23), perhaps a particular Asherah that Hezekiah’s father Ahaz placed in the Jerusalem temple (as Manasseh will later do, 2 Kings 21:3; 23:12). Hezekiah takes further action against the bronze serpent named Nehushtan, which Moses had made in the wilderness (Num. 21:4–9) and which had recently itself become an object of worship (no doubt because of the close association of serpents with the goddess Asherah). At the site of Beersheba, archaeologists discovered a horned altar. The altar, from the late eighth century B.C., was built of hewn stones and had a serpent carved into one of its blocks. Obviously, this altar was used at the site in an aberrant cultic worship. It was probably destroyed during King Hezekiah’s religious reforms.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:5–6 He trusted in the LORD. Hezekiah's trust was unparalleled in Judean history (there was none like him among all the kings of Judah), and was evidenced in the way that he held fast to God (Hb. dabaq) throughout his life (cf. Deut. 10:20; 11:22; 13:4; 30:20), in contrast to Solomon, who in his old age "held fast" (Hb. dabaq; see 1 Kings 11:2, "clung") to foreign wives and broke the Law of Moses.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:7–8 The consequence of Hezekiah's religious faithfulness was that his military exploits paralleled David's in a unique way: the LORD was with him (cf. 1 Sam. 16:18; 18:12, 14; 2 Sam. 5:10); he prospered in war (cf. 1 Sam. 18:5, 14, 15); and he struck down the Philistines (cf. 1 Sam. 18:27; 19:8). He was quite unlike his father Ahaz, for he rebelled against the king of Assyria and would not serve him (cf. 2 Kings 16:7). His rebellious acts may have begun as early as 720 B.C., when one of the inscriptions of the Assyrian king Sargon II describes the Assyrian as "the subduer of the country Judah which lies far away"; but the authors mainly have in mind the events following Sargon's unexpected death on the battlefield in 705, when widespread revolt broke out in Syria-Palestine, leading to an Assyrian invasion of Palestine in 701 (see note on 18:13). Hezekiah's attack on the Philistines was in fact a preemptive strike against Assyrian allies in advance of this invasion.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:9–12 Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria. The fate of the northern kingdom at the hands of the king of Assyria is reiterated here (cf. 17:1–6) to remind readers of the context in which Hezekiah pursued his bold policy of rebellion. Israel's rebellion met with a devastating response.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:13–19:37 A six-sided prism has been found that contains the annals of Sennacherib, king of Assyria (704–681 B.C.). It dates to 689 B.C. and recounts eight military campaigns. One of these describes Sennacherib's siege of Jerusalem in the following way (referring to Hezekiah): "Himself I made a prisoner in Jerusalem, his royal residence like a bird in a cage." Although this is Sennacherib's account of the siege, it is noteworthy that no Assyrian record mentions any capture of Jerusalem, so these sources are not in conflict with the record of Sennacherib's departure and death in 19:36–37.

701 B.C.

During the reign of Hezekiah of Judah, Sennacherib of Assyria attacked cities along the western edge of Judah, and he sent officials to besiege Jerusalem and convince Hezekiah to surrender. The Cushite king Tirhakah advanced from Egypt to support Hezekiah but apparently failed. The siege of Jerusalem was broken when the angel of the LORD killed 185,000 Assyrians in a single night. Sennacherib withdrew and returned to Nineveh in Assyria, where his own sons killed him.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:13–14 In 701 B.C. Sennacherib, king of Assyria, launched a major assault against Judah. Archaeology sheds significant light on this event. The Sennacherib Relief found at Nineveh depicts the Assyrian attack on the Judean city of Lachish. Sennacherib built a siege ramp on the southwestern corner of the city and destroyed its defenses by using archers, infantry, and siege machines. The Judeans responded by erecting a countersiege ramp to bolster their defenses. It was to no avail: Sennacherib conquered Lachish. Both of the actual ramps have been uncovered.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:13 Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah. After Sargon II's death, the new Assyrian king Sennacherib (704–681 B.C.) first campaigned in southern Mesopotamia (703–702) against the king of Babylon, Marduk-apla-iddina II (see 20:12), before turning his attention to Syria-Palestine in 701. (See map.) The rebellion there quickly collapsed, and Hezekiah found himself without effective allies and without fortresses. Sennacherib's own account of the campaign is found in its earliest form on the Rassam Cylinder, which dates from immediately after the events (700 B.C.).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:14–16 I have done wrong. Hezekiah's first response to the crisis is to bargain—a disappointing prologue to what will eventually turn out to be his finest hour. On Lachish, see notes on 14:19 and 18:13–14. As one of Judah's most important cities, Lachish received particular attention from Sennacherib during this campaign, and after a siege it was eventually captured and burned to the ground. When Sennacherib later constructed his royal palace at Nineveh, he commissioned a set of stone reliefs to commemorate his famous conquest of the city. The choice of the assault on Lachish for this impressive artistic representation is interesting, in that it serves to underline (without intending to do so) that Sennacherib did not capture Jerusalem.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:17 Still besieging Lachish, Sennacherib decides after all not to accept Hezekiah's attempt to persuade him to withdraw (no doubt because Hezekiah was one of the moving forces in the revolt), and he sends an army to Jerusalem to pressure Hezekiah to surrender. The Tartan (Assyrian turtanu) was one of two persons in the Assyrian army with this title who often led campaigns on behalf of the emperor, and the Rab-saris was himself often dispatched on campaigns at the head of Assyrian forces. The Rabshakeh, or "chief cupbearer," would have accompanied the emperor as a personal attendant. His presence in this delegation is no doubt to be explained in terms of his linguistic abilities (vv. 19, 26). The conduit of the upper pool is of uncertain location, but was just outside the city wall; it is the place where Isaiah had earlier called on Ahaz to exercise faith in the midst of war (Isa. 7:1–9). The Washer’s Field may plausibly be associated with the spring En-rogel to the south of Jerusalem at the juncture of the Hinnom and the Kidron Valleys—a natural place, because of its water supply, for the Assyrian army to encamp.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:18 over the household … the secretary … the recorder. Three of the most important of the Judean officials go out to negotiate with the three Assyrian officials (see also 1 Kings 4:1–6).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:19–25 On what do you rest this trust? The matter of Hezekiah’s trust (cf. v. 5) lies at the heart of this speech (see also vv. 20, 21, 22, 24). Sennacherib reasons that trust in Egypt would be futile, but so also would trust in the LORD, for it is his high places and altars that Hezekiah has removed, and indeed it is the Lord who has sent Assyria to destroy Judah because of this sacrilege!

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:26–28 Please speak to your servants in Aramaic. Aramaic was the language of the Assyrian Empire west of the Euphrates and would have been understood by the educated Judean royal officials, though not by the ordinary people on the city wall. However, the Assyrians were trying to appeal to the people over the heads of their rulers, therefore they ignored the request and continued to address the people in Hebrew (the language of Judah).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:29–30 The Rabshakeh equates trust in the Lord with deception; the reader is prepared to see God vindicate that trust.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 18:31–35 eat of his own vine … his own fig tree … drink the water of his own cistern. The Assyrian king is presented as a powerful god who is able to provide for his worshipers, in contrast to the allegedly weak God of Israel who is unable to deliver. The language of the false promise recalls Deut. 8:7–9.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:1–2 he tore his clothes. On the tearing of clothes as a sign of deep emotion, see note on 5:5–7. The contrast between the wicked Jehoram (6:30–31) and the pious Hezekiah is particularly interesting. The besieged Jehoram is unwilling to wait for God and looks instead to remove the head of God’s prophet, while Hezekiah humbly sends a message to the prophet Isaiah to request prayer to God (19:4).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:3–4 there is no strength. It is a day of great humiliation and powerlessness. The remnant, in this context, likely comprises those from the northern kingdom (Israel) who sought refuge in Judah, and specifically in Jerusalem, in the face of prior Assyrian aggression, along with those of the southern kingdom (Judah) who survive Sennacherib’s siege (see Introduction to Micah: Key Themes). The only hope for this remnant is that the Lord, who is truly the living God and not simply one false god among many, will act to defend his name (see 2 Kings 19:30–31).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:7–9 I will put a spirit in him. According to the prophet Isaiah (cf. vv. 2, 5–6), the Lord will so influence Sennacherib’s thinking that several events will occur. Sennacherib will hear (Hb. shama‘) a certain rumor, abandon his campaign, and return (Hb. shub) to his own land, where he will meet his death (v. 7). However, the timing of this is not clear. Repetition of the pair of Hebrew verbs (“hear” and “return”), found again in vv. 8–9, encourages the hope that Sennacherib’s doom is imminent: in v. 8, Rabshakeh … heard (Hb. shama‘) that the king had left Lachish and he returned to him (Hb. shub); in v. 9, the king heard (Hb. shama‘) concerning Tirhakah king of Cush and sent messengers again (lit., “he returned [Hb. shub] and sent”) to Hezekiah. The ultimate fulfillment of the prophecy does not in fact occur until vv. 35–37. “Tirhakah king of Cush” commanded an Egyptian army that marched into Palestine in 701 B.C. to aid the rebels. He would later be a pharaoh of Egypt (690–664). Sennacherib defeated this Egyptian force at Eltekeh, about 12 miles (19 km) east of the Mediterranean on the eastern border of the coastal plain.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:10–13 Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you. The argument is subtly different on this second speech by the Assyrians. In 18:19–35 the Rabshakeh claimed that Hezekiah was deceiving the people about what would happen if they trusted the Lord (18:29–30); here he claims that Hezekiah is the one deceived by the God in whom he trusts. This is a God, according to Sennacherib, who is not only weak but duplicitous; and he invites Hezekiah to turn his back on this deity and save himself from the fate of all those other kings who went to their doom clinging to their idols.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:15–19 Hezekiah prayed before the LORD. Hezekiah's response on this occasion is not to send messengers to Isaiah, asking the prophet to pray (v. 4), but rather to pray himself to God, who is here envisaged as dwelling in a special way in the Jerusalem temple and as being invisibly enthroned in the Most Holy Place on two enormous cherubim (see note on 1 Sam. 4:3–4; cf. also 1 Kings 8:6–7). This God is God alone, creator of heaven and earth, and therefore God … of all the kingdoms of the earth. He is not to be confused with the gods of the nations against whom the Assyrians have known admittedly great success —"gods" who are in fact mere cult images made of wood and overlaid with metal and precious stones. Hezekiah now asks that Jerusalem be delivered for the glory of God himself: that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you, O LORD, are God alone.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:20–28 A second prophecy from Isaiah (cf. vv. 6–7), in three parts, brings God's response to Hezekiah's prayer. This first part concerns Sennacherib's blasphemy, pride, and ultimate downfall. He thinks of himself as a god, claiming to have brought judgment (as only the Lord can do) on the mighty cedars of Lebanon and on Egypt (cf. Ps. 29:5; Isa. 2:12–13; 19:1–15; Amos 2:9; Zech. 11:1–3); he has allegedly ascended the heights so that he can look God straight in the face (cf. Ps. 73:8; 75:4–5; Isa. 14:13–15); and he boasts that he has both brought and withheld fertility on the earth, creating water supplies and drying up rivers (cf. Ps. 36:8–9; Jer. 2:13; 17:13; 51:36; Ezekiel 31; Hos. 13:15). His great mistake has been to imagine that what he has accomplished in his military campaigns has been achieved in his own strength. In reality, it was the Lord who determined it long ago. It was God who planned from days of old that Sennacherib would turn fortified cities into heaps of ruins (2 Kings 19:25), so his pride in his mighty accomplishments is foolishness. In fact, Assyria is merely the rod of God's anger (cf. Isa. 10:5–11). Likewise, the Lord will bring an end to his campaigns, causing Sennacherib to turn … back on the way by which he came, led like an animal by a hook in the nose and a bit in the mouth (2 Kings 19:28).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:21 Daughter of Zion (or daughter of Jerusalem) is frequently used in the OT as a personification of the city of Jerusalem and its inhabitants. Jerusalem is as defenseless as a virgin daughter, but because of the Lord's protection she will not be violated by mighty Sennacherib; in fact, she wags her head at him, scoffing at his pride.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:29–31 this shall be the sign for you. The second part of Isaiah's prophecy looks beyond the withdrawal of the Assyrians from Judah. The sign that Judah will recover from the Assyrian assault is to be found in the way that the survivors will be provided for in the short term: initially they will be able to survive only because of the crops that spring up from what is already in the ground, but in the third year they will resume normal agricultural practice, able to bear fruit.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:32–34 concerning the king of Assyria. The third part of Isaiah's prophecy makes explicit the circumstances in which Sennacherib will return home by the way that he came (vv. 28, 33). He will return home before the army encamped outside the city of Jerusalem takes military action against it—for the sake of God's servant David (cf. 1 Kings 11:13, 32; 2 Kings 8:19).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:35–36 Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went home. The event precipitating Sennacherib's "return" to Nineveh when he "heard" about it (see note on vv. 7–9) involved enormous casualties suffered by his army outside Jerusalem, with 185,000 struck down in one night by the angel of the LORD. Here is God's remarkable answer to Hezekiah's prayer, "O LORD our God, save us, please, from his hand" (v. 19), and the fulfillment of God's promise in vv. 32–34.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 19:37 Sennacherib, who had "mocked and reviled" the Lord, is killed by his sons, and all his proud boasting (18:22, 32–35; 19:10–13) ends in nothing. Though he was worshiping in the house of Nisroch his god, this false god could not protect the king. The name "Nisroch" is not attested in Assyrian sources, and readers are left to guess at the deity intended (perhaps it is Ashur, the chief god of Assyria). Sennacherib's assassins flee to Ararat, known to the Assyrians as Urartu, a kingdom of eastern Asia Minor that flourished from the ninth to the sixth centuries B.C. Esarhaddon ruled Assyria from 681 to 669 B.C. In his own records he describes the events surrounding his accession to the throne, referring to his "elder brothers who … went out of their senses … and butted each other—like kids—to take over the kingship," and of the "flight of the usurpers … to an unknown country." One of his letters identifies one of the assassins as Arad-Mullissu, probably the Adrammelech of the biblical text.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:1 In those days. Verses 1–19 represent a "flashback" to the period around 713–712 B.C., some 12 years before Sennacherib's invasion and some 15 years before Hezekiah's death (cf. v. 6).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:2 Hezekiah turned his face to the wall. Hezekiah is in distress and wishes to be left alone, although for different reasons from Ahab in 1 Kings 21:4.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:3 please remember. The prayer is somewhat more self-centered than the one in 19:15–19, stressing the king's own righteousness. This is the first hint in this passage that Hezekiah has an attitude problem.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:4 The middle court was the area between the temple and the palace (see Solomon's Temple and Palace Complex); Isaiah is on the way back to the temple. The word of the LORD comes to him suddenly and unexpectedly.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:5 On the third day. A detail not included in Isaiah's parallel account (Isa. 38:5). you shall go up. God's response to Hezekiah's prayer (2 Kings 20:3) shows that many prophecies, though stated in unconditional terms (v. 1), have implied conditions.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:7 Figs had long been cultivated in Palestine. They could be eaten fresh or dried, made into cakes, or fermented and made into wine. Here a cake of figs, serving as a compress, is applied to what may have been an abscess. The belief that figs had medicinal qualities is also attested earlier at Ugarit and later in Rome. But the healing of such a serious illness (v. 1) probably included a supernatural work of God as well.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:8–11 What shall be the sign that the LORD will heal me? The king is unwilling to believe the promise of healing without a sign, which is provided in the unnatural movement of a shadow on some steps associated with Ahaz (it moves back, even though the sun has already caused it to go down the steps). The text offers no explanation of the details of this miracle; in the biblical worldview, nothing is beyond the power of the Maker of heaven and earth. Hezekiah, too, is sinking down toward death, but he will miraculously recover and go up to the temple.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:12 When Sargon II ascended the Assyrian throne in 722 B.C., Merodach-baladan (the Hb. name for Marduk-apla-iddina II) had himself crowned king in Babylon, and the ensuing conflict in Mesopotamia lasted intermittently until Esarhaddon's reign in Assyria (see notes on 17:24–41; 19:37). This visit of Merodach-baladan's envoys to Jerusalem is best set during his first spell of kingship in Babylon (722–710 B.C.), before Sargon II reconquered Babylonia after 710 and drove him into exile.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:13–18 he showed them all his treasure house. Hezekiah is evidently proud of his wealth, but pride comes before a fall (cf. Prov. 11:2), when nothing shall be left and even some of the king's sons (descendants) will be taken away into exile in Babylon. On eunuchs, see note on 2 Kings 9:32, although here the term may be intended metaphorically rather than literally (the "sons" will be powerless servants of the king of Babylon).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:19 Why not? Hezekiah is surprisingly unmoved by Isaiah's prophecy, and again displays self-centeredness. All he cares about is peace and security in his days. Even this "king like David" has his dark side.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 20:20 the pool and the conduit. The Gihon Spring in the Kidron Valley was Jerusalem's crucial water resource, and a large quarter-mile-long conduit (often known as the Siloam Channel) brought water from there to a reservoir at the southern end of the city of David. Since this water supply lay outside the city's walls and was vulnerable in time of siege, a subsidiary tunnel leading from the Siloam conduit allowed residents to access its water from inside the city walls. In preparation for the Assyrian attack, Hezekiah had an additional tunnel cut that diverted water from the Gihon Spring directly underground to the Pool of Siloam, which now lay within the city walls, whereupon the old water system was apparently abandoned. An inscription cut into the conduit wall and known as the Siloam Tunnel Inscription commemorates this accomplishment. On the Chronicles of the Kings, see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:1–26 Manasseh and Amon. The Lord has kept faith with the house of David even through the bad times because of his promise to David, but hints abound throughout chs. 16–20 that Judah will ultimately share Israel's fate and go into exile. With Manasseh, these hints of disaster give way to explicit prophetic announcements of judgment.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:1–9 Manasseh is the very worst of the Judean kings, indulging in all that has been most reprehensible in the religion of Israel (both north and south) in the preceding chapters of 1–2 Kings, and adding to it (despicable practices of the nations). His father's reforms are reversed as the high places are rebuilt (v. 3) so that idolatry can resume there, and a new Asherah (v. 3) replaces the one that Hezekiah removed (see 18:4). Manasseh built altars for all the host of heaven (21:5; see 17:7–23) in the two courts of the temple (both in the inner court described in 1 Kings 6:36 and in the "middle court" described in 2 Kings 20:4). His grandfather Ahaz is his role model, as he sacrifices his own son in the fire (21:6) and uses fortune-telling and omens (v. 6; see 16:3, 17:7–23; also Deut. 18:10). Ahab (cf. 2 Kings 21:3) stands behind Ahaz; and King Saul's reign is also echoed in the reference to mediums and necromancers (v. 6; 1 Sam. 28:3–25), divination by inquiring of the dead. The Lord of hosts (1 Kings 18:15; 19:10; etc.) has become to Manasseh merely a god among hosts, with a consort goddess for company (Asherah) and open to manipulation by occult means. If the Lord previously drove out before the people of Israel the nations that did these things before (2 Kings 21:2, 9), what will happen now to Judah?

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:7 A decorative pitcher found at the site of Lachish dates to the thirteenth century B.C. On the shoulder of the vessel is a stylized tree, representing the Canaanite goddess Asherah. An inscription above the tree refers to an offering to Elat, another name for the goddess. Israel is told not to worship trees as an Asherah (cf. Deut. 16:21; Judg. 6:25–30; 1 Kings 14:15; 15:13; 2 Kings 18:4; Mic. 5:13–15).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:8 For the feet of Israel to wander … out of the land would be for the people to go into exile; the biblical authors make it clear that the exile of Judah was due to moral reasons (Judah's unfaithfulness) rather than to any weakness in God.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:12 the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. The disaster now to befall Jerusalem and Judah will cause a reaction in people who hear of it—perhaps a sensation in the ears, or more likely a shaking in terror as the news enters the body through the ears (cf. Ex. 15:14; Deut. 2:25; Isa. 32:11; 64:2).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:13 the measuring line … the plumb line. The city will be assessed by the divine architect (cf. the use of the measuring line in Isa. 34:11; Lam. 2:8) and, like a dangerous building, will be condemned.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:17–18 Manasseh's burial site lay outside the "city of David" (i.e., the original settled area of Jerusalem on the southern hill) that is noted as the resting place of preceding kings (e.g., Ahaz in 16:20). The garden of Uzza was perhaps an enclosure on the Temple Mount dedicated to the Arabian goddess al-Uzza, who was identified with Venus (notice Manasseh's worship of astral deities in 21:3), or an enclosure at the southern end of the Kidron Valley, just outside the city walls, where there was a "king's garden" (25:4; Neh. 3:15). Already in Solomon's day, the eastern slopes of the Kidron Valley were associated with idolatrous worship (1 Kings 11:7). On the Chronicles of the Kings (also 2 Kings 21:25), see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 21:19–26 Amon. See note on 2 Chron. 33:21–25.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:1–23:30 Josiah. Josiah is a long-awaited king (cf. 1 Kings 13:2) and the doer of many significant deeds, but he comes too late to make any difference to Judah's fate.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:2 Josiah is the ideal king of Deut. 17:20, who does not turn from the Mosaic law to the right or to the left. He transcends even David and Hezekiah in his faithfulness to God (2 Kings 23:21–25).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:3–7 the king sent Shaphan. Josiah's initial concern is simply to repair the temple, like Joash in 12:1–16, not to reform its worship. In fact, the reforms introduced by Joash some 200 years previously are still in place: it is still the task of the doorkeepers to collect the money for temple repairs, and it is the task of the secretary to oversee, with the high priest, the counting and distribution of the money to the men in charge of the work.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:8 I have found the Book of the Law. The phrase "Book of the Law" is used in the Pentateuch only in reference to Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut. 28:61; 29:21), which was read to the king and provided the basis for his actions. Available to the kings of Israel and Judah in previous years (cf. 1 Kings 2:3; 2 Kings 10:31; 14:6; 18:6), it was evidently lost or concealed during the long reign of the apostate Manasseh, who systematically infringed its laws.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:11–13 Although it is not until the eighteenth year of his reign (v. 3) that the new king begins to take action concerning the apostate condition of worship in Judah, the authors of 1–2 Kings do not blame him. Brought up in a royal court that had been apostate for 57 years and that subjected all opposition to a reign of terror, Josiah was not aware of the Lord's demands. As soon as he became aware, he tore his clothes in grief and despair (cf. 1 Kings 21:27; 2 Kings 5:7–8; 6:30; 11:14; 19:1–2) and sent officials to inquire of the LORD.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:14–16 Huldah. It was not Jeremiah or Zephaniah (Jer. 1:2; Zeph. 1:1) who was consulted, but an obscure prophetess who was the wife of a court official or perhaps of one of the temple personnel (it is not clear whether Shallum was in charge of the wardrobe of the king or of the priests). Huldah lived in the Second Quarter of Jerusalem, probably a residential area on the western hill. Her words confirm what is already known from the unnamed prophets of 2 Kings 21: the Lord is going to bring disaster on Jerusalem and its people.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 22:20 you shall be gathered to your grave in peace. Because Josiah has humbled himself before the Lord, he will not personally see all the disaster that is to fall on Jerusalem. He will die before the terrible events prophesied in 21:12–14 and 22:15–17 come to pass.

628–609 B.C.

Early in his reign King Josiah of Judah launched a massive effort to abolish pagan worship throughout Judah and the land of Israel and to refurbish the temple of the LORD in Jerusalem. At the same time, the waning power of the Assyrians allowed him to add much of the land of Israel to his kingdom. Josiah met his demise at Megiddo, however, as he sought to prevent Pharaoh Neco II of Egypt from reaching Carchemish to assist the Assyrians, who were being attacked by forces from the rising Babylonian Empire.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:2–3 the king went up to the house of the LORD. Since Josiah is a pious king, Huldah's oracle about the future does not deflect him from the path of religious reform; reformation in the light of the Book of the Covenant is still the right thing to do. His first move is to organize a covenant-renewal ceremony (cf. 11:12–14, when the king also stood by the pillar).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:4–9 all the vessels made for Baal, for Asherah. Everything to do with Baal and Asherah and the worship of the host of heaven is subject to radical treatment (see 1 Kings 14:15; 16:31–33; 2 Kings 17:7–23). The Kidron Valley, whose eastern slopes had been associated with idolatry since the time of Solomon (1 Kings 11:7), was a convenient place to destroy their cult objects, thereby removing them from Jerusalem and desecrating the valley itself as a religious site. On male cult prostitutes (2 Kings 23:7), see note on 1 Kings 14:24. The hangings for the Asherah (2 Kings 23:7) are probably ritual garments used in the worship of this goddess (cf. 10:22). Among the high places destroyed (see note on 1 Kings 3:2) were some at a particular gate (2 Kings 23:8) of the city (otherwise unknown).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:8 defiled the high places where the priests had made offerings. These were local places of worship in various cities (see note on 1 Kings 3:2). One example is probably an Israelite temple found at the site of Arad. It was built in the tenth century B.C., and has many similarities to the Solomonic Jerusalem temple: e.g., a sacrificial altar in the courtyard of the Arad complex measured exactly the same as the temple altar described in Ex. 27:1. The Arad complex was not a legitimate Israelite shrine and was therefore abolished in the seventh century B.C., through the reforms of either Josiah or Hezekiah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:10 The Valley of the Son of Hinnom ran along the western and southern sides of ancient Jerusalem until it met the Kidron Valley running from north to south. It is here associated with the worship of Molech (see note on 1 Kings 11:7–8), and Topheth is the site where this worship was practiced. Sacred sites of this kind, containing urns holding ashes and bone remains of children and animals, have been found at Carthage and other Phoenician colonies of the western Mediterranean. “Hinnom Valley” is the short form of the name, which was transliterated into Greek as “Gehenna” (see note on Matt. 23:15).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:11 horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun. The practice of dedicating horses to the sun appears to have been distinctively Assyrian (by way of the Hurrian peoples of Mitanni in northern Mesopotamia and Syria in the second half of the second millennium B.C.). In an excavation in Jerusalem, dating from the eighth to seventh centuries B.C., hundreds of religious vessels were found. Among these were animal figurines, many of them horses. Some of the horses had a disk between their ears, perhaps representing the sun. They could have been miniatures of the horses described here, placed at the entrance to the house of the LORD.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:12 altars on the roof. A Ugarit text (describing the ritual for the annual celebration of the grape harvest at the temple of Baal in that city) mentions a king sacrificing on a roof (in the context of the worship of Shaphash, the female sun deity at Ugarit). The roof is a natural location for worship of the starry host (see 16:1–4).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:13 Because of its hosting of idolatrous altars, the Mount of Olives, the central summit on a ridge of three running to the east of Jerusalem and the Kidron Valley, is here called the mount of corruption. On Ashtoreth (Astarte), see note on 17:7–23; on Chemosh and Milcom, see notes on 1 Kings 11:5; 11:7–8.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:14 he broke in pieces the pillars. Josiah is destroying all the buildings associated with idol worship. Excavations at ‘En Hatzeva, 20 miles (32 km) southwest of the Dead Sea, have uncovered a huge cache of religious objects from the seventh to sixth centuries B.C. These objects were used in a nearby shrine. The shrine and the objects appear to be Edomite. The temple was suddenly destroyed, perhaps during Josiah’s reforms.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:15–20 altar at Bethel. A marked feature of Josiah’s reforms is that he not only destroys but also defiles (vv. 8, 10, 13), particularly by placing pagan religious objects in proximity with graves and human bones (vv. 6, 14). It has already been hinted in v. 4 that this procedure was extended to Bethel, and now that narrative is picked up. Josiah takes action against this cult, which survives in the activities of the new settlers in the land of Israel (17:24–41), in fulfillment of the prophecy of 1 Kings 13:2 (see also 1 Kings 13:11–32 for the background to 2 Kings 23:17–18). Josiah's opportunity to act in this way in Assyrian territory arose from King Ashurbanipal's death around 630 B.C. and the consequent civil war and general strife in Assyria; Assyria was not capable of exercising effective control in Syria-Palestine during this period.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:22 A Passover like this had not been observed since the days of the judges who judged Israel (see Josh. 5:10–12 for the last mention of Passover in the narrative; also Deut. 16:1–8 for the stipulations, esp. v. 6). In celebrating this festival Josiah outstrips not only Hezekiah in faithfulness to God, but even David.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:24 On mediums and necromancers, see note on 21:1–9. The household gods were images of deities (see note on 19:15–19) that could be either life-size (1 Sam. 19:13–16) or figurine-size (Gen. 31:19–35). They could be used in divination in general (Ezek. 21:21; Zech. 10:2), and perhaps necromancy in particular. Some extrabiblical texts suggest that the worship of such family deities in the ancient Near East was closely linked with the care and worship of dead ancestors, and rituals in Mesopotamia certainly involved such figurines that often represented a dead person, who was believed to speak through the representation.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:25 In spite of several generations of idolatry and rebellion against the Lord, somehow Josiah arose as a righteous king who not only appeared outwardly to be righteous but turned to the LORD with all his heart and with all his soul and with all his might, according to all the Law of Moses.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:26 Though Josiah was himself righteous (v. 25), it was not enough to turn away God's wrath from the nation that had done such evil: Still the LORD did not turn from the burning of his great wrath. The righteousness of this one king could not change the overall situation. because of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked him. God must purge his people of deeply rooted unfaithfulness, and only exile would accomplish this.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:28–30 Pharaoh Neco killed him at Megiddo. After the death of the Assyrian king Ashurbanipal around 630 B.C., Egypt gradually emerged as the major power in Syria-Palestine and as the ally of Assyria in its struggle with Babylon, sending troops northward, at least from 616 onward, to join with the Assyrians in battle. The battle mentioned here took place in 609 B.C. as Pharaoh Neco II marched north for what was apparently the last joint Assyrian-Egyptian engagement with the Babylonians (and their allies, the Medes). Megiddo controlled the main international highway running from Egypt to Damascus as it entered the Jezreel Valley (see note on 9:27–28). Josiah's decision to confront the Egyptian army there implies that he had captured Megiddo from either the Egyptians or the Assyrians before the battle, and was perhaps hoping to benefit from being seen to take the Babylonians' side. But Josiah died in the battle. On the Chronicles of the Kings, see note on 1 Kings 14:19. The Babylonian Chronicle recounts the expeditions of Pharaoh Neco II of Egypt to aid the Assyrians. Josiah sought to prevent Egypt's reinforcing of Assyria. Evidence of the battle at Megiddo can be seen at the site.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:31–25:30 The End of Judah. The story of 1–2 Kings now comes to its end as imperial power passes to Babylon, temple and palace are destroyed, and Jerusalem's treasures are carried off to a foreign land. It is left to Josiah's grandson Jehoiachin to offer such hope as can be found for the future of the Davidic "lamp" (1 Kings 11:36).

Babylon Attacks Judah

597, 586 B.C.

The final years of the kingdom of Judah were marked by a power struggle between the Egyptians and the Babylonians, the rising power that had overtaken the Assyrian Empire. King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon eventually won out and seized control of the Mediterranean coastal lands. When Zedekiah, who had been placed on the throne of Judah by the Babylonians, rebelled, Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem and captured the city. Zedekiah fled toward the east but was captured near Jericho and sent to Riblah to be judged.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:31–35 Jehoahaz. The new king of Judah is summoned to Pharaoh Neco's temporary headquarters at Riblah on the eastern bank of the Orontes River, as the Egyptians return from the unsuccessful siege of Haran (609 B.C.). Jehoahaz is removed from power and subsequently imprisoned in Egypt. (See note on 2 Chron. 36:1–4.)

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 23:36–24:7 Jehoahaz's replacement is his brother Jehoiakim, who is confronted by the armies of Babylon that have just dismantled the Assyrian Empire and now invade Palestine in pursuit of complete victory over Egypt. Their ruler is Nebuchadnezzar, who was never able to defeat Egypt completely but did enough to ensure that the king of Egypt did not come again out of his land. Jehoiakim first switched his allegiance from Egypt to Babylon (604 B.C.), but after Nebuchadnezzar's failed attempt to invade Egypt in 601 (i.e., after three years), he rebelled against Babylon and looked once again to Egypt for help (cf. Jer. 46:14–28).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 24:2 and the LORD sent against him bands. Cf. 23:26–27.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 24:5 Chronicles of the Kings. See note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 24:8–17 Jehoiachin. The Babylonian withdrawal from Palestine in 601 B.C. turned out to be only temporary, and Jehoiakim's rebellion brought the Babylonian army to the gates of Jerusalem at the end of the year 598. The city surrendered to the Babylonians on the fifteenth or sixteenth of March 597 B.C., by which time Jehoiachin was king. Significant deportations followed; on deportation as an imperial tactic, see note on 15:27–31. Although 1–2 Kings does not mention this, the prophet Ezekiel was among the exiles; his prophetic ministry began a few years later in Babylon (Ezek. 1:2–3).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 24:10–17 This first capture of Jerusalem occurred in 597 B.C., the seventh year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. The Babylonian Chronicle tells of the king's army laying siege to Jerusalem, capturing it, and appointing his own king over it. He then took tribute from Judah.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 24:18–25:7 Jehoiachin’s uncle Mattaniah ruled next, under the name of Zedekiah, as a Babylonian vassal. Jeremiah 27–29 suggests that from early in his reign (Jer. 27:1; 28:1) he was plotting revolt, and eventually he rebelled. A two-year siege of Jerusalem followed, and the city eventually fell in 587 or 586 B.C. As the city wall was being breached on the northern side, Zedekiah managed to escape by night with his troops through an exit in the southeastern wall that is probably to be identified with the Fountain Gate of Neh. 3:15. He was captured while fleeing to the Arabah by way of the Wadi Kelt in the vicinity of Jericho (see also note on 2 Chron. 36:11–16).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 25:8–12 And he burned the house of the LORD and the king’s house and all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9). A few weeks after the fall of Jerusalem, the full vengeance of the Babylonian king was visited upon the city. Every important building was burned down (v. 9); the walls around Jerusalem (v. 10) were broken down; and a further section of the population was exiled, with some being executed.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 25:9–10 Evidence has been found for Nebuchadnezzar’s destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., including Babylonian arrowheads of iron and bronze. See also note on 2 Chron. 36:17–21.

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 25:13–14 Pillars of bronze that were in the house of the LORD begins a detailed list of temple furnishings (vv. 13–17) carried off by the Babylonians for the value of their metal. The pots and the shovels and the snuffers and the dishes for incense and all the rest were beautiful instruments used to worship the Lord of heaven and earth (see notes on 1 Kings 7:15–21; 7:23–47). But the Lord has abandoned this temple, so its outward beauty has become a deceptive illusion of his presence. Its destruction is a fitting end to the nation. No mention is made of the ark of the covenant; presumably that also was taken (cf. Jer. 3:16). “How lonely sits the city that was full of people!” (Lam. 1:1).

2 KINGS—NOTE ON 25:21 Almost all hope is gone in the summary statement, So Judah was taken into exile out of its land. (See map.) But the land is still “its land,” holding out the promise of a future return.

597, 586, 582 B.C.

It appears that three separate deportations of Judeans to Babylon took place under the rule of Nebuchadnezzar (see also Jer. 52:28–30). The first came during the reign of Jehoiachin, when Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem and carried away many of the treasures of the temple and the royal palace. The second occurred after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., when the walls of the city were leveled and the temple was completely destroyed. The third appears to have occurred around 582 B.C. while King Nebuchadnezzar was reasserting his control over the general region of Palestine (see note on Jer. 52:28–30).

Introduction to 1–2 Chronicles

Author and Title

The text nowhere directly identifies its author (traditionally designated “the Chronicler”). Jewish tradition assigned the work to Ezra the scribe, who lived in the fifth century B.C., and some modern scholarship has supported this view. But the question of authorship is closely linked to the view one takes of the original form of the Chronicler’s work and its relationship to Ezra–Nehemiah (see the sections on the Date and the Purpose, Occasion, and Background). In any case, the internal evidence indicates that the author was a priest or Levite with scribal training who was employed in the service of the temple during the Persian period (539–332 B.C.) and had access to the temple records.

The Hebrew title of the work, Dibre Hayyamim, is derived from 1 Chronicles 27:24 and may be translated “the events of the years” or “annals.” In the Septuagint (Greek translation), it is known as Paraleipomena or “the things omitted,” indicating that it was considered a supplement to the books of Samuel and Kings. The English title derives from a suggestion by Jerome, the translator of the Vulgate (a Latin translation), that a more suitable title would be “the chronicle of the whole sacred history.” Martin Luther adopted this proposal, titling his translation of the books Die Chronika, and versions ever since the Reformation have followed his practice.

Date

Until the latter half of the twentieth century it was widely held that Chronicles and Ezra–Nehemiah were originally a single work recounting Israel’s history from Adam to the time of Nehemiah, c. 430 B.C. (see Neh. 5:14). However, most scholars now consider them separate works from the same temple circles of priests and scribes. The inclusion in Chronicles of modified passages from Ezra–Nehemiah (1 Chron. 9:2–34 = Neh. 11:3–19; 2 Chron. 36:22–23 = Ezra 1:1–3) points to Chronicles being a somewhat later work. The list of the postexilic Davidic descendants in 1 Chronicles 3:17–24 suggests a date of c. 400 B.C., or possibly some decades later.

Theme

The central theme of Chronicles is the significance of the Davidic covenant as the enduring basis of Israel's life and hope. The Davidic covenant is expressed in the two institutions that derive directly from it: the monarchy and the temple. These institutions are mutually related (1 Chron. 17:10b–14), and together they represent God's kingdom in Israel (2 Chron. 13:5, 8). The Davidic covenant does not replace the Mosaic covenant but builds on it for the new age of the monarchy and the temple. Further dimensions of the Davidic covenant are discussed below under Key Themes.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

The Babylonian campaign against Judah, which began in 605 B.C. under Nebuchadnezzar, climaxed in the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple in 586 and the deportation of many of its leading people to settlements near Babylon. The conquest meant the overthrow of the Davidic monarchy and the end of Judah as a nation-state. Babylon, in turn, fell in 538 B.C. to the Persians under Cyrus II. The Persians followed a more benign policy of permitting the exiled people groups to return to their lands (now provinces in the Persian Empire) to rebuild their cities and reestablish their religious practices. Groups of exiles from Judah, including priests and civil leaders, returned in 538 B.C., but the temple was not completely rebuilt until 516. This initial restoration was followed by those who returned in 458 B.C. with Ezra, who came to reestablish the Law of Moses as the rule for the community's life, and Nehemiah, who arrived as governor in 445 to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem.

Chronicles was most probably composed in this period, or some years afterward. Judah, as the historical heir of Israel, had been reconstituted in the land, with the temple rebuilt and functioning in Jerusalem. Yet it was a community much reduced in strength and numbers, occupying only a small portion of the land compared to the preexilic kingdom. The people of Judah were subject to foreign overlords, living in the midst of a mixed, and sometimes antagonistic, population. In many ways their conditions in the land were still characterized by exile rather than restoration (see Ezra 9:6–15; Neh. 9:32–36). The questions of Israel's place in God's purposes and the meaning of his ancient promises to David were pressing ones.

With such questions in mind, the Chronicler wrote to commend a positive prescription for the spiritual and social renewal of his community. He presented an interpretation of Israel's past, drawing mainly on the books of Samuel and Kings. He recast and supplemented those books in many ways, not only to show how the nation's unfaithfulness to God had led it into disaster but also to point out how its faithful kings and people had experienced God's blessing. These episodes were evidently intended to encourage a similar response in the hearer. The exhortative character of Chronicles is pronounced, especially in the speeches of the kings and prophets. Those recorded speeches rhetorically address the people and priests of the Chronicler's present, the historical heirs of preexilic Israel.

The Chronicler's narrative method is clear and explicit. He recounts the history of Israel and the Davidic monarchy down to the exile primarily as a matter of "seeking God" or "forsaking him," and sets out the consequences that flow from that choice for the king and people. To seek God means to orient one's life toward him in active faith and obedience, to be diligent in fulfilling the commands of the Mosaic law, to oppose idolatry, and especially to support and participate in the authorized worship of the temple (see 1 Chron. 10:13; 13:3; 15:13; 16:10; 22:19; 28:9; 2 Chron. 1:5; 12:14; 14:4, 7; 15:2, 4; 16:12; 17:4; 18:4; 19:3; 20:4; 22:9; 26:5; 30:19; 31:21; 34:3). Those who seek God experience his blessing, typically in the form of large families (1 Chron. 14:3–7; 2 Chron. 11:19–21; 13:21; 24:3), building projects (1 Chron. 14:1; 2 Chron. 8:1–6; 11:5–12; 14:6–7; 17:12; 26:2, 6; 27:3–4; 32:5, 29–30; 33:14), riches and honor (1 Chron. 14:2, 17; 29:2–5; 2 Chron. 9:13–14, 22; 26:8, 15), military strength and success (1 Chron. 5:20–22; 14:8–16; 18:1–20:8; 2 Chron. 8:3; 13:13–18; 14:9–15; 20:20–26; 25:11–13; 26:4–8; 27:5–7; 32:20–22), and peace for the land (1 Chron. 22:18; 23:25; 2 Chron. 14:4–7; 15:15, 19; 17:10).

The converse is to forsake God, which includes apostasy and idolatry, the neglect and abuse of the temple and its institutions, despising the word of prophets, and egregious violence (see 1 Chron. 28:9; 2 Chron. 12:1, 5; 13:10; 21:10; 24:18). God's punishment for forsaking him and his law includes defeat and despoiling by foreign enemies (1 Chron. 10:1–7; 2 Chron. 12:2–4; 21:8–11, 16–17; 24:23–24; 25:17–24; 28:5–8, 16–21; 33:10–11; 35:20–24; 36:5–19), sickness and death for disobedient individuals (1 Chron. 2:3; 10:13–14; 2 Chron. 16:12; 21:12–15, 18–19; 22:7–9; 23:14–15; 24:25; 25:27; 26:16–21; 33:24; 35:23–24), and, finally, forfeiture of the land and exile for the people (1 Chron. 5:26; 9:1; 2 Chron. 36:18, 20). The basic concepts represented by "seeking God" or "forsaking" him are, of course, also expressed by a broader range of phrases ("to serve God with a whole heart"; "to do what is right [or evil] in the eyes of the LORD"; and esp. "to be unfaithful"; see note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8).

Just as important as the exhortation to faithful seeking, if not more so, is the message of forgiveness and restoration to God through sacrifices of atonement and humble prayer. The Chronicler is insistent that from beginning (1 Chron. 2:3, 7) to end (2 Chron. 36:14), Israel is a sinful people that fails to reverence God in his holiness as they should. That sinfulness extends even to David (1 Chron. 21:1), who best exemplifies for the Chronicler what it means to seek God. Yet God in his mercy provides the way back to himself. The temple stands where David repented and offered sacrifice. It is designated by God as the instrument of his forgiveness and the point at which the consequences of sin may be reversed (2 Chron. 7:12–16). This emphasis on repentance explains one of the notable differences in presentation and purpose between Chronicles and Kings. The Chronicler would certainly agree with the writer(s) of Kings that figures such as Rehoboam and Manasseh were notorious sinners whose disobedience divided the kingdom and led to its fall. But the Chronicler also uses them as examples of repentance and personal recipients of God's grace.

The destruction of the kingdom of Judah and the exile of its people are duly explained as the consequence of Israel's persistent unfaithfulness and its rejection of the prophetic summons to repentance (2 Chron. 36:16). But the ending of Chronicles—Cyrus's decree to return and rebuild the temple (2 Chron. 36:22–23)—takes the reader full circle to the beginning: a representative core of God's people has once again been gathered to the land and to the temple in Jerusalem, their daily round of worship standing in continuity with the preexilic days (1 Chron. 9:2–34). The Chronicler has shown how Israel's fall occurred, how such a disaster may be avoided in the future, and how all who belong to Israel may be gathered and consolidated as God's people. At the center stands the temple, the symbol of Yahweh's constant will to forgive and restore his penitent people who "seek his face" in prayer (2 Chron. 7:14). The restored temple testifies to the permanent continuance of God's covenant promises to David. Holding fast to those promises, and supporting the temple institutions that testify to them, is Israel's road to greater blessing and restoration.

A key question in discerning the Chronicler's purpose has to do with the promise to David of a permanent dynasty (1 Chron. 17:12–14; 2 Chron. 6:16–17; 13:5) in an age when the Davidic monarchy had long since ceased to function. Some commentators believe that the Chronicler envisioned a return to something like the preexilic kingdom, with a descendant of David once more enthroned in Jerusalem. Yet nothing in the book allows it to be tied so directly to the political circumstances of postexilic Judah. Alternatively, it has been argued that the Chronicler saw the temple and its priestly institutions as the heir to these promises, replacing the defunct monarchy in the theocratic rule of the religious community. Against this is the fact that the Chronicler goes to great lengths to show that the monarchy and the temple are separate pillars of God's rule in Israel, and that the Davidic house has been preserved through great danger (see 2 Chronicles 21–23, esp. 23:3) and down into the Chronicler's day (1 Chron. 3:17–24). Moreover, the Davidic dynasty is connected with God's own throne and eternal kingdom as the instrument of God's rule over Israel (1 Chron. 28:5; 2 Chron. 9:8) and therefore has a transcendent character compared to "the kingdoms of the countries" (1 Chron. 29:30). For these reasons, it seems clear that the Chronicler understood the Davidic line to be a focus of hope for the future, although he has not specified what this hope entails. This can be called an implicit messianism, a hope that will bear fruit in the appearance of Christ. The Chronicler's eye, however, is directed more to what his own community may become in the interim: he envisions "all Israel" (not only Judah but all the tribes) as once more possessing the land, living according to the Law of Moses, and worshiping at the temple.

History of Salvation Summary

God chose Israel to be his people, through whom he would bless all peoples, especially by raising up the ultimate heir of David to rule them. He gave his people the privilege of worshiping and obeying him, but sadly, they were unfaithful, and he disciplined them severely. For all that, the exile was not the end of Israel's story. Members of the restoration community were the heirs of Israel, both of its mission and of its privileges. May they be faithful this time! (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ).

Literary Features

First and Second Chronicles are both court histories, but within that genre they are very different books; 1 Chronicles also focuses strongly on the heroic figure of King David. Specific forms of documentary writing include genealogies, inventories, and summaries of events such as lists of David's victories. There are also speeches or orations, prayers, and a psalm of praise (1 Chron. 16:8–36). The story of David is placed within the encompassing story of God's dealings with his covenant nation Israel, whose identity assumes a corporate character (repeatedly called "all Israel"). Smaller groups of people round out the cast of characters, including the Levites, the priests, others who assisted in worship at the temple, and military and civil officials. Because the writer gives readers a largely idealized picture of David's reign, especially regarding the religious life of the nation, a picture emerges of a good society ruled by an ideal ruler under God's providential control.

Second Chronicles is expansive in its scope, tracing the history of a nation as embodied in its kings over a span of 400 years. Because the focus is so thoroughly on individual kings, the book has the feel of an anthology of brief biographies and hero stories. The stories of many of the kings and their disappointing downfalls have affinities with literary tragedy, and the pictures of national life under the good kings are brief utopian visions of a good society. The format of 2 Chronicles has more in common with the flow of a story than a history book. Stories are based on a principle of back-and-forth rhythm, and 2 Chronicles obeys this rule of narrative construction. As the narrative progresses, the pendulum swings back and forth between good and bad rulers, and between God's blessing and punishment. The reader also moves back and forth between religious events and more "secular" political or military events (with some of the material resembling what one might encounter in any book of ancient history). Just as readers remember a story partly as a gallery of memorable characters, so 2 Chronicles likewise remains in the reader's memory as a collection of imposing kings with impressive-sounding names. Finally, the author alternates between relatively brief accounts of evil kings and more extended accounts of good kings. In 2 Chronicles 11–36, kings are presented as characters to emulate for their faith or shun for their impiety.

Key Themes

1. The Davidic covenant. God's promissory covenant with David (1 Chron. 17:10b–14, 23–27; 2 Chron. 6:10, 15–17, 42; 7:17–18; 13:8; 23:3) is the source of the Davidic dynasty and Solomon's temple. God's commitment to "build a house" for David is fulfilled in the accession of Solomon and the line of his descendants, while the temple is completed as God promised (2 Chron. 6:10). The covenant has its origin in God's purpose and initiative in electing David to be his king (1 Chron. 28:4) and Solomon to be his temple builder (1 Chron. 22:9–10; 28:5).

God is committed to maintaining his covenant in preserving the Davidic house even through apostasy (2 Chron. 21:13) and exile (1 Chron. 3:17–24). The covenant continues "forever" because of God's gracious love for Israel, a point frequently celebrated in worship (see 1 Chron. 16:41; 2 Chron. 5:13; 20:21); nevertheless, there are conditions of obedience to God's commands if the king and his people are to experience the blessings of the covenant (1 Chron. 28:9; 2 Chron. 7:17–18; 15:2, 7).

While the Davidic covenant plays a preeminent role in the work, it does not displace the Mosaic covenant as the foundation for Israel's existence in the exodus (see 1 Chron. 17:5; 2 Chron. 5:10; 6:5; 7:22; 20:7) and the way in which the nation must live its life before God. The Law of Moses remains the standard of authority and the mark of obedience to God's will, according to which David and his successors are judged (1 Chron. 15:15; 22:13; 2 Chron. 7:17; 12:2; 14:4; 19:10; 24:9; 25:4; 35:6). David instituted a number of reforms in the organization of worship and the duties of the Levites (1 Chron. 16:4, 37–40; 23:1–26:32), but these changes did not alter the fundamental status of the Mosaic law. The reforming kings (including Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. 17:7–9; and Josiah, 2 Chronicles 34–35) took care to ensure that their measures would bring Judah's life into closer conformity with the Law of Moses.

2. The temple. Solomon's temple looms very large in Chronicles, all the more so in comparison to the books of Samuel and Kings. Much of the presentation of David's reign is taken up with his preparations for the temple, including the ark narrative (1 Chronicles 13, 15–16), which is really a harbinger of the building that will house the symbol of God's presence (1 Chron. 17:1; 2 Chron. 5:4–5; 6:41). Moreover, David's wars (1 Chronicles 18–20) have their primary meaning for the Chronicler in securing "rest" for the land as the condition for temple building (1 Chron. 22:17–19). The portrayal of Solomon's reign is also taken up almost entirely with describing the construction and dedication of the temple (2 Chron. 2:1–8:16). In post-Solomonic history, the temple plays a central role in the reigns of Hezekiah (2 Chronicles 29–30) and Josiah (2 Chronicles 34–35).

The temple's great significance for the Chronicler is as the manifestation of the Davidic covenant alongside the dynasty. The temple and the Davidic house have a mutually supportive relationship. Just as David provided for the construction of the building (1 Chron. 22:2–16; 29:2–5) and organized its personnel (1 Chronicles 23–26), his faithful successors should take pains to ensure that its round of worship is maintained (see 2 Chron. 13:10–12), and the building is kept in repair (see 2 Chron. 24:4–14) or purified after defilement (2 Chron. 29:3–19; 34:8–13). Conversely, it is the temple personnel who should come to the aid of the Davidic dynasty in its time of crisis (2 Chron. 23:10–16).

Above all, the Chronicler's interest in the temple lies with its personnel, especially the Levites. Considerable attention is given to their activities of offering praise in song and music (1 Chron. 6:31–47; 9:33; 15:19; 16:4–6, 37–38; 25:1–31; 2 Chron. 5:12–13; 7:6; 8:14–15; 20:21–22; 30:21; 35:15), uttering prophecy and encouragement (1 Chron. 25:1; 2 Chron. 20:14–17), supporting the Aaronic priests in administering the sacrifices (2 Chron. 29:34; 35:11–14), safeguarding the holiness of the temple (1 Chron. 9:17–27; 26:1–19; 2 Chron. 23:18), and other kinds of administration and teaching (1 Chron. 9:28–29, 31–32; 26:20–32; 2 Chron. 17:8–9; 24:4–5, 8– 11; 29:3–19; 31:11–19; 34:9–13). In short, the Levites played an essential role in maintaining the whole apparatus of worship, and in many ways may be seen as the forerunners of the Christian ministry (see Rom. 15:16). Their principal service is to offer the praise that accompanies the regular sacrifices, declaring God's eternal covenant love to Israel (1 Chron. 16:34; 2 Chron. 5:13) and assisting the people in their own offering of praise (2 Chron. 7:3). Worship for the Chronicler is a means of transformation into covenant obedience and the kindling of faith and hope.

3. The people of Israel. The Chronicler sought to address some urgent questions in his day concerning the identity of Israel and to instill fresh confidence in the people. The genealogies of Israel that begin the work (1 Chronicles 1–9) start by tracing the people's ancestry back to Adam, a striking reminder that Israel lay at the center of God's purpose from the very beginning of creation. Although only a "remnant" and a provincial outpost in a great empire, Israel must remember that its security and destiny rest with Yahweh, "who rule[s] over all the kingdoms of the nations" and has given the land to Abraham's descendants "forever" (2 Chron. 20:6–7).

Second, the continuation of the genealogies makes it clear that Israel in its broadest extent embraces all 12 tribes that were descended from Jacob/Israel's sons (1 Chron. 2:1). While 2 Chronicles 11–36 is mainly the narrative of Judah and Benjamin, the northern tribes never forfeited their status as members of Israel, even in their rebellion against the rightful Davidic king (2 Chron. 13:5). Judah and Benjamin formed the core of the preexilic southern kingdom as well as being the majority of the restoration community, but they did so as the representative center, to which all who belonged by ancestry to Israel might join themselves. The Chronicler shows how this might be done, first of all by presenting the ideal picture of "all Israel" united in their support of David and Solomon at the foundation of the Davidic monarchy and the dedication of the temple (see 1 Chron. 11:1–12:40; 13:2, 5; 15:3; 28:1; 29:6; 2 Chron. 1:2; 5:2; 6:3; 7:8–10). The division of the kingdom under Rehoboam led to a centuries-long schism in the people, and the northern tribes lapsed into apostasy (2 Chron. 13:8–9). With the fall of the northern kingdom, however, Hezekiah made brotherly overtures to the north to heal these divisions through participation in temple worship (see 2 Chron. 30:6–9) as one people under the Davidic king, as they had been in Solomon's day (2 Chron. 30:23–27). The participation of northerners in Josiah's Passover (2 Chron. 35:17) and the membership of people from Ephraim and Manasseh in the postexilic community in Jerusalem (1 Chron. 9:3) demonstrated the same desire to include "all Israel" once more, with the temple (a visible symbol of the Davidic covenant) as the focus of unity.

Chronicles might also be called a genuinely populist work. Although its concern with kings and the priesthood might seem hierarchical, it demonstrates a striking interest in the broad participation of the people in the life of the nation. Compared to the presentation in the books of Samuel and Kings, the Chronicler consistently highlights the role of the people at large in laying the religious foundations of the nation (see 1 Chron. 11:4; 13:2; 15:25; 2 Chron. 1:2–3), no doubt as a way of affirming that "all Israel" (both north and south, the laity as well as the priesthood) has a share in these institutions. The Chronicler also shows the people responding generously to appeals to support the temple (1 Chron. 29:5–9; 2 Chron. 31:4–10) and participating in the numerous acts of religious reform and covenant renewal (see 2 Chron. 15:8–17; 17:7–9; 23:16–21; 31:1; 34:29–32). All these portrayals show the covenant people at their best, responding to the call to "seek God" and entering into his blessing. This was evidently an outlook that the Chronicler desired the people of his own day to emulate.

Outline for 1–2 Chronicles

Chronicles is a carefully constructed work with a clearly directed narrative. Its material falls into three major sections that overlap their present division into two books. Each of these sections has in turn a number of more or less discrete units. In greater detail, these units are as follows:

I. A Genealogical Presentation of the Tribes of Israel (1 Chron. 1:1–9:44)
  A. Adam to Esau (1:1–54)
  B. The sons of Israel (2:1–2)
  C. The tribe of Judah (2:3–4:23)
  D. The tribe of Simeon (4:24–43)
  E. The Transjordanian tribes (5:1–26)
  F. The tribe of Levi (6:1–81)
  G. Other northern tribes (7:1–40)
  H. The tribe of Benjamin (8:1–40)
  I. The resettlement of Jerusalem (9:1–34)
  J. The genealogy of Saul (9:35–44)
II. The United Kingdom of David and Solomon (1 Chron. 10:1–2 Chron. 9:31)
  A. David’s rise to power over Israel (1 Chron. 10:1–12:40)
  B. David’s transfer of the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem (13:1–16:43)
  C. The dynastic promise to David (17:1–27)
  D. David’s wars (18:1–20:8)
  E. David’s census and preparation for the temple (21:1–29:30)
  F. Solomon’s temple preparations (2 Chron. 1:1–2:18)
  G. Solomon’s building of the temple (3:1–5:1)
  H. The dedication of the temple (5:2–7:22)

[13] The sons of Dishan: Uz and Aran.

43 [q] These are the kings who reigned in the land of Edom before any king reigned over the people of Israel: Bela the son of Beor, the name of his city being Dinhabah. 44Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of [r] Bozrah reigned in his place. 45Jobab died, and Husham of the land of the [s] Temanites reigned in his place. 46Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad, who defeated Midian in the country of Moab, reigned in his place, the name of his city being Avith. 47Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his place. 48Samlah died, and Shaul of Rehoboth on the Euphrates [14] reigned in his place. 49Shaul died, and Baal-hanan, the son of Achbor, reigned in his place. 50Baal-hanan died, and Hadad reigned in his place, the name of his city being Pai; and his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab. 51And Hadad died.

The chiefs of Edom were: chiefs Timna, Alvah, Jetheth, 52Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, 53Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, 54Magdiel, and Iram; these are the chiefs of Edom.

A Genealogy of David

1 CHRONICLES 2 [†]These are the sons of [t] Israel: [u] Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, [v] Issachar, Zebulun, 2 [w] Dan, [x] Joseph, [y] Benjamin, [z] Naphtali, [a] Gad, and Asher. 3[†] [b] The sons of Judah: [c] Er, Onan and Shelah; these three Bath-shua the Canaanite bore to him. Now Er, Judah's firstborn, was evil in the sight of the LORD, and he put him to death. 4His daughter-in-law [d] Tamar also bore him Perez and Zerah. Judah had five sons in all.

5The [e] sons of Perez: Hezron and Hamul. 6The sons of Zerah: Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara, five in all. 7The son [1] of Carmi: Achan, the troubler of Israel, who [f] broke faith in the matter of the devoted thing; 8and Ethan's son was Azariah.

9[†]The sons of Hezron that were born to him: Jerahmeel, [g] Ram, and [h] Chelubai. 10 [g] Ram fathered Amminadab, and [i] Amminadab fathered [j] Nahshon, prince of the sons of Judah. 11Nahshon fathered [k] Salmon, [2] Salmon fathered [l] Boaz, 12Boaz fathered Obed, [l] Obed fathered Jesse. 13 [m] Jesse fathered Eliab his firstborn, Abinadab the second, [n] Shimea the third, 14Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, 15Ozem the sixth, [o] David the seventh. 16And their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. [p] The sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, Joab, and Asahel, three. 17 [q] Abigail bore Amasa, and the father of Amasa was [q] Jether the Ishmaelite.

21Afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of [v] Machir the father of Gilead, whom he married when he was sixty years old, and she bore him Segub. 22And Segub fathered Jair, who had twenty-three cities in the land of Gilead. 23 [w] But Geshur and Aram took from them Havvoth-jair, Kenath, and its villages, sixty towns. All these were descendants of Machir, the father of Gilead. 24After the death of Hezron, [x] Caleb went in to Ephrathah, [3] the wife of Hezron his father, and she bore him [y] Ashhur, the father of Tekoa.

25[†]The sons of [z] Jerahmeel, the firstborn of Hezron: Ram, his firstborn, Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. 26Jerahmeel also had another wife, whose name was Atarah; she was the mother of Onam. 27The sons of Ram, the firstborn of Jerahmeel: Maaz, Jamin, and Eker. 28The sons of Onam: Shammai and Jada. The sons of Shammai: Nadab and Abishur. 29The name of Abishur's wife was Abihail, and she bore him Ahban and Molid. 30The sons of Nadab: Seled and Appaim; and Seled died childless. 31The son [4] of Appaim: Ishi. [a] The son of Ishi: Sheshan. The son of Sheshan: Ahlai. 32The sons of Jada, Shammai's brother: Jether and Jonathan; and Jether died childless. 33The sons of Jonathan: Peleth and Zaza. These were the descendants of Jerahmeel. 34Now Sheshan had no sons, only daughters, but Sheshan had an Egyptian slave whose name was Jarha. 35So Sheshan gave his daughter in marriage to Jarha his slave, and she bore him Attai. 36Attai fathered Nathan, and Nathan fathered [b] Zabad. 37 [b] Zabad fathered Ephlal, and Ephlal fathered [c] Obed. 38Obed fathered Jehu, and Jehu fathered Azariah. 39Azariah fathered Helez, and Helez fathered Eleasah. 40Eleasah fathered Sismai, and Sismai fathered Shallum. 41Shallum fathered Jekamiah, and Jekamiah fathered [d] Elishama.

42[†]The sons of [e] Caleb the brother of Jerahmeel: Mareshah [5] his firstborn, who fathered Ziph. The son [6] of Mareshah: [f] Hebron. [7] 43The sons of Hebron: Korah, Tappuah, Rekem and Shema. 44Shema fathered Raham, the father of Jorkeam; and Rekem fathered Shammai. 45The son of Shammai: Maon; and Maon fathered Beth-zur. 46Ephah also, Caleb's concubine, bore Haran, Moza, and Gazez; and Haran fathered Gazez. 47The sons of Jahdai: Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph. 48Maacah, Caleb's concubine, bore Sheber and Tirhanah. 49She also bore Shaaph the father of Madmannah, Sheva the father of Machbenah and the father of Gibea; and the [g] daughter of Caleb was Achsah. 50These were the descendants of Caleb.

The sons [8] of Hur the firstborn of [h] Ephrathah: Shobal the father of Kiriath-jearim, 51 [i] Salma, the father of Bethlehem, and Hareph the father of Beth-gader. 52Shobal the father of Kiriath-jearim had other sons: [j] Haroeh, half of the Menuhoth. 53And the clans of Kiriath-jearim: the Ithrites, the Puthites, the Shumathites, and the Mishraites; from these came the [k] Zorathites and the Eshtaolites. [54]The sons of Salma: Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab and half of the Manahathites, the Zorites. [55]The clans also of the scribes who lived at Jabez: the Tirathites, the Shimeathites and the Sucathites. These are the [l] Kenites who came from Hammath, the father of [m] the house of Rechab.

[23]These were the potters who were inhabitants of Netaim and Gederah. They lived there in the king's service.

Descendants of Simeon

[24][†] [n] The sons of Simeon: Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, Shaul; [25]Shallum was his son, Mibsam his son, Mishma his son. [26]The sons of Mishma: Hammuel his son, Zaccur his son, Shimei his son. [27]Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brothers did not have many children, [o] nor did all their clan multiply [p] like the men of Judah. [28] [q] They lived in Beersheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, [29] [r] Bilhah, Ezem, [s] Tolad, [30] [s] Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, [31]Beth-marcaboth, [t] Hazar-susim, [t] Beth-biri, and [t] Shaaraim. These were their cities until David reigned. [32]And their villages were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan, five cities, [33]along with all their villages that were around these cities as far as [u] Baal. These were their settlements, and they kept a genealogical record.

[34]Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah the son of Amaziah, [35]Joel, Jehu the son of Joshibiah, son of Seraiah, son of Asiel, [36]Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, [37]Ziza the son of Shiphi, son of Allon, son of Jedaiah, son of Shimri, son of Shemaiah— [38]these mentioned by name were princes in their clans, [v] and their fathers' houses increased greatly. [39]They journeyed to the entrance of [w] Gedor, to the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks, [40]where they found rich, good pasture, and the land was very broad, [x] quiet, and peaceful, for the former inhabitants there belonged to Ham. [41] [y] These, registered by name, came in the days of Hezekiah, king of Judah, and destroyed their tents and the Meunites who were found there, and marked them for destruction to this day, [z] and settled in their place, because there was pasture there for their flocks. 42And some of them, five hundred men of the Simeonites, went to [a] Mount Seir, having as their leaders Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. 43And they defeated [b] the remnant of the Amalekites who had escaped, and they have lived there to this day.

Descendants of Reuben

1 CHRONICLES 5 [†]The sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel ([c] for he was the firstborn, but because [d] he defiled his father's couch, [e] his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph the son of Israel, so that he could not be enrolled as the oldest son; 2[f] though Judah became strong among his brothers and a [g] chief came from him, yet the birthright belonged to Joseph), 3[†]the [h] sons of Reuben, the firstborn of Israel: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. 4The sons of Joel: Shemaiah his son, Gog his son, Shimei his son, 5Micah his son, Reaiah his son, Baal his son, 6Beerah his son, whom [i] Tiglath-pileser [1] king of Assyria carried away into exile; he was a chief of the Reubenites. 7[†]And his kinsmen by their clans, [j] when the genealogy of their generations was recorded: the chief, Jeiel, and Zechariah, 8and Bela the son of Azaz, son of [k] Shema, son of Joel, who lived in [l] Aroer, as far as [m] Nebo and [n] Baal-meon. 9He also lived to the east as far as the entrance of the desert this side of the Euphrates, because their livestock had multiplied [o] in the land of Gilead. 10And in the days of Saul they waged war against the [p] Hagrites, who fell into their hand. And they lived in their tents throughout all the region east of Gilead.

Descendants of Gad

11[†]The sons of Gad lived over against them in the land of Bashan as far as [q] Salecah: 12Joel the chief, Shapham the second, Janai, and Shaphat in Bashan. 13And their kinsmen according to their fathers' houses: Michael, Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia and Eber, seven. 14These were the sons of Abihail the son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz. 15Ahi the son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was chief in their fathers' houses, 16and they lived in Gilead, in Bashan and in its towns, and in all the pasturelands of [r]Sharon to their limits. [17]All of these were recorded in genealogies in the days of [s]Jotham king of Judah, and in the days of [t]Jeroboam king of Israel.

[18][†]The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had valiant men who carried shield and sword, and drew the bow, [u]expert in war, 44,760, able to go to war. [19]They waged war against the [v]Hagrites, [w]Jetur, Naphish, and Nodab. [20]And when they prevailed [2] over them, the Hagrites and all who were with them were given into their hands, [x]for they cried out to God in the battle, and he granted their urgent plea [y]because they trusted in him. [21]They carried off their livestock: 50,000 of their camels, 250,000 sheep, 2,000 donkeys, and 100,000 men alive. [22][†]For many fell, because the war was of God. And they lived [z]in their place until [a]the exile.

The Half-Tribe of Manasseh

[23][†]The members of the half-tribe of Manasseh lived in the land. They were very numerous from Bashan to Baal-hermon, [b]Senir, and Mount Hermon. [24]These were the heads of their fathers' houses: Epher, [3] Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel, mighty warriors, famous men, heads of their fathers' houses. [25][†]But they broke faith with the God of their fathers, and [c]whored [d]after the gods of the peoples of the land, whom God had destroyed before them. [26]So the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of [e]Pul king of Assyria, the spirit of [f]Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and he took them into exile, namely, the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, and brought them [g]to Halah, [g]Habor, Hara, and [g]the river Gozan, to this day.

Descendants of Levi

1 CHRONICLES 6 [†] [1] [h]The sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 2 [i]The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 3 [j]The children of Amram: Aaron, Moses, and Miriam. [k]The sons of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 4 [l] [m]Eleazar fathered [n]Phinehas, Phinehas fathered Abishua, 5Abishua fathered Bukki, Bukki fathered Uzzi, 6Uzzi fathered

Zerahiah, Zerahiah fathered [o] Meraioth, [7]Meraioth fathered Amariah, Amariah fathered Ahitub, [8][p] Ahitub fathered [q] Zadok, Zadok fathered Ahimaaz, [9]Ahimaaz fathered Azariah, Azariah fathered Johanan, [10][†]and Johanan fathered Azariah ([r] it was he who served as priest [s] in the house that Solomon built in Jerusalem). [11][l] Azariah fathered [t] Amariah, Amariah fathered Ahitub, [12]Ahitub fathered Zadok, Zadok fathered [u] Shallum, [13]Shallum fathered [v] Hilkiah, Hilkiah fathered Azariah, [14]Azariah fathered [w] Seraiah, Seraiah fathered Jehozadak; [15]and [x] Jehozadak went into exile when the LORD sent Judah and Jerusalem into exile [y] by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.

[16][†] [2] The [z] sons of Levi: Gershom, Kohath, and Merari. [17]And these are the names of the sons of Gershom: [a] Libni and Shimei. [18][b] The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron and Uzziel. [19][c] The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. These are the clans of the Levites according to their fathers. [20][d] Of Gershom: Libni his son, [e] Jahath his son, Zimmah his son, [21]Joah his son, Iddo his son, Zerah his son, Jeatherai his son. [22][†][f] The sons of Kohath: Amminadab his son, Korah his son, Assir his son, [23]Elkanah his son, Ebiasaph his son, Assir his son, [24]Tahath his son, Uriel his son, Uzziah his son, and Shaul his son. [25]The sons of Elkanah: Amasai and Ahimoth, [26]Elkanah his son, Zophai his son, Nahath his son, [27]Eliab his son, Jeroham his son, Elkanah his son. [28][†]The sons of Samuel: Joel [3] his firstborn, the second Abijah. [4] [29][g] The sons of Merari: Mahli, Libni his son, Shimei his son, Uzzah his son, [30]Shimea his son, Haggiah his son, and Asaiah his son.

[31][†]These are the men [h] whom David put in charge of the service of song in the house of the LORD [i] after the ark rested there. [32]They ministered with song before the tabernacle of the tent of meeting until Solomon built the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, and they performed their service according to their order. [33]These are the men who served and their sons. Of the sons of the Kohathites: Heman the singer the son of Joel, son of [j] Samuel, [34]son of Elkanah, son of Jeroham, son of Eliel, son of Toah, [35]son of Zuph, son of Elkanah, son of Mahath, son of Amasai, [36]son of Elkanah, son of Joel, son of Azariah, son of Zephaniah, [37]son of Tahath, son of Assir, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah, [38]son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Israel; [39]and his brother [k] Asaph, who stood on his right hand, namely, Asaph the son of Berechiah, son of Shimea, [40]son of Michael, son of Baaseiah, son of Malchijah, [41]son of Ethni, son of Zerah, son of Adaiah, [42]son of Ethan, son of Zimmah, son of Shimei, [43]son of Jahath, son of Gershom, son of Levi. [44]On the left hand were their brothers, the sons of Merari: Ethan the son of Kishi, son of Abdi, son of Malluch, [45]son of Hashabiah, son of Amaziah, son of Hilkiah, [46]son of Amzi, son of Bani, son of Shemer, [47]son of Mahli, son of Mushi, son of Merari, son of Levi. [48]And their brothers the Levites were appointed for all the service of the tabernacle of the house of God.

[49][^][‡]But Aaron and his sons made offerings [l] on the altar of burnt offering and on [m] the altar of incense for all the work of the Most Holy Place, and [n] to make atonement for Israel, according to all that Moses the servant of God had commanded. [50] [o] These are the sons of Aaron: Eleazar his son, Phinehas his son, Abishua his son, [51]Bukki his son, Uzzi his son, Zerahiah his son, [52]Meraioth his son, Amariah his son, Ahitub his son, [53]Zadok his son, Ahimaaz his son.

[54][‡]These are their dwelling places according to their [p] settlements within their borders: to the sons of Aaron of the [q] clans of Kohathites, for theirs was the first lot, [55]to them they gave Hebron in the land of Judah and its surrounding pasturelands, [56] [r] but the fields of the city and its villages they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh. [57] [s] To the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of refuge: Hebron, Libnah with its pasturelands, Jattir, Eshtemoa with its pasturelands, [58]Hilen with its pasturelands, Debir with its pasturelands, [59]Ashan with its pasturelands, and Beth-shemesh with its pasturelands; [60]and from the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon, [5] Geba with its pasturelands, Alemeth with its pasturelands, and Anathoth with its pasturelands. All their cities throughout their clans were thirteen.

[61] [t] To the rest of the Kohathites were given by lot out of the clan of the tribe, out of the half-tribe, the half of Manasseh, ten cities. [62]To the Gershomites according to their clans were allotted thirteen cities out of the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali and Manasseh in Bashan. [63] [u] To the Merarites according to their clans were allotted twelve cities out of the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun. [64] [v] So the people of Israel gave the Levites the cities with their pasturelands. [65]They gave by lot out of the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin [w] these cities that are mentioned by name.

[66] [x] And some of the clans of the sons of Kohath had cities of their territory out of the tribe of Ephraim. [67]They were given the cities of refuge: Shechem with its pasturelands in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer with its pasturelands, [68] [y] Jokmeam with its pasturelands, Beth-horon with its pasturelands, [69]Aijalon with its pasturelands, Gath-rimmon with its pasturelands, [70]and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Aner with its pasturelands, and Bileam with its pasturelands, for the rest of the clans of the Kohathites.

[71] [z] To the Gershomites were given out of the clan of the half-tribe of Manasseh: Golan in Bashan with its pasturelands and [a] Ashtaroth with its pasturelands; [72]and out of the tribe of Issachar: Kedesh with its pasturelands, Daberath with its pasturelands, [73]Ramoth with its pasturelands, and Anem with its pasturelands; [74]out of the tribe of Asher: Mashal with its pasturelands, Abdon with its pasturelands, [75]Hukok with its pasturelands, and Rehob with its pasturelands; [76]and out of the tribe of Naphtali: Kedesh in Galilee with its pasturelands, Hammon with its pasturelands, and Kiriathaim with its pasturelands. [77] [b] To the rest of the Merarites were allotted out of the tribe of Zebulun: [c] Rimmono with its pasturelands, [c] Tabor with its pasturelands, [78]and [d] beyond the Jordan at Jericho, on the east side of the Jordan, out of the tribe of Reuben: Bezer in the wilderness with its pasturelands, Jahzah with its pasturelands, [79]Kedemoth with its pasturelands, and Mephaath with its pasturelands; [80]and out of the tribe of Gad: [e] Ramoth in Gilead with its pasturelands, [f] Mahanaim with its pasturelands, [81] [g] Heshbon with its pasturelands, and [h] Jazer with its pasturelands.

Descendants of Issachar

1 CHRONICLES 7 [†]The sons [1] of Issachar: Tola, [i] Puah, [j] Jashub, and Shimron, four. [2]The sons of Tola: Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Ibsam, and Shemuel, heads of their fathers' houses, namely of Tola, mighty warriors of their generations, their number [k] in the days of David being 22,600. [3]The son [2] of Uzzi: Izrahiah. And the sons of Izrahiah: Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Isshiah, all five of them were chief men. [4]And along with them, by their generations, according to their fathers' houses, were units of the army for war, 36,000, for they had many wives and sons. [5]Their kinsmen belonging to all the clans of Issachar were in all 87,000 mighty warriors, enrolled by genealogy.

[6][†] [l] The sons of Benjamin: Bela, Becher, and Jediael, three. [7]The sons of Bela: Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri, five, heads of fathers' houses, mighty warriors. And their enrollment by genealogies was 22,034. [8]The sons of Becher: Zemirah, Joash, Eliezer, Elioenai, Omri, Jeremoth, Abijah, [m] Anathoth, and Alemeth. All these were the sons of Becher. [9]And their enrollment by genealogies, according to their generations, as heads of their fathers' houses, mighty warriors, was 20,200. [10]The son of Jediael: Bilhan. And the sons of Bilhan: Jeush, Benjamin, Ehud, Chenaanah, Zethan, Tarshish, and Ahishahar. [11]All these were the sons of Jediael according to the heads of their fathers' houses, mighty warriors, 17,200, able to go to war. [12]And Shuppim and Huppim were the sons of Ir, Hushim the son of [n] Aher.

Descendants of Naphtali

[13][†] [o] The sons of Naphtali: [p] Jahziel, Guni, Jezer and [q] Shallum, the descendants of Bilhah.

Descendants of Manasseh

[14][†] [r] The sons of Manasseh: Asriel, whom his Aramean concubine bore; she bore [s] Machir the father of Gilead. [15][†]And Machir took a wife for Huppim and for Shuppim. The name of his sister was Maacah. And the name of the second was Zelophehad, and [t] Zelophehad had daughters. [16]And Maacah the wife of Machir bore a son, and she called his name Peresh; and the name of his brother was Sheresh; and his sons were Ulam and Rakem. [17]The son of Ulam: [u] Bedan. These were the sons of Gilead the son of Machir, son of Manasseh. [18]And his sister Hammolecheth bore Ishhod, Abiezer and Mahlah. [19]The sons of Shemida were Ahian, Shechem, Likhi, and Aniam.

Descendants of Ephraim

[20][†]The [v] sons of Ephraim: Shuthelah, and Bered his son, Tahath his son, Eleadah his son, Tahath his son, [21]Zabad his son, Shuthelah his son, and Ezer and Elead, whom the men of Gath who were born in the land killed, because they came down to raid their livestock. [22]And Ephraim their father mourned many days, and his brothers came to comfort him. [23]And Ephraim went in to his wife, and she conceived and bore a son. And he called his name Beriah, because disaster had befallen his house. [3] [24]His daughter was Sheerah, who built both Lower and Upper [w] Beth-horon, and Uzzen-sheerah. [25]Rephah was his son, Resheph his son, Telah his son, Tahan his son, [26]Ladan his son, Ammihud his son, [x] Elishama his son, [27]Nun [4] his son, [y] Joshua his son. [28] [z] Their possessions and settlements were Bethel and its towns, and to the east Naaran, and to the west [a] Gezer and its towns, Shechem and its towns, and Ayyah and its towns; [29] [b] also in possession of the Manassites, [c] Beth-shean and its towns, Taanach and its towns, Megiddo and its towns, Dor and its towns. In these lived the sons of Joseph the son of Israel.

Descendants of Asher

[30][†] [d] The sons of Asher: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, and their sister Serah. [31]The sons of Beriah: Heber, and Malchiel, who fathered Birzaith. [32]Heber fathered Japhlet, Shomer, Hotham, and their sister Shua. [33]The sons of Japhlet: Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. These are the sons of Japhlet. [34]The sons of Shemer his brother: Rohgah, Jehubbah, and Aram. [35]The sons of Helem his brother: Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal. [36]The sons of Zophah: Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah. [37]Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, Ithran, and Beera. [38]The sons of Jether: Jephunneh, Pispa, and Ara. [39]The sons of Ulla: Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia. [40]All of these were men of Asher, heads of fathers’ houses, approved, mighty warriors, chiefs of the princes. Their number enrolled by genealogies, for service in war, was 26,000 men.

A Genealogy of Saul

1 CHRONICLES 8 [†] [e] Benjamin fathered Bela his firstborn, Ashbel the second, [f] Aharah the third, [2]Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth. [3]And Bela had sons: Addar, Gera, Abihud, [4]Abishua, [g] Naaman, Ahoah, [5]Gera, [h] Shephuphan, and Huram. [6]These are the sons of Ehud (they were heads of fathers' houses of the inhabitants of Geba, and they were carried into exile to [i] Manahath): [7]Naaman, [1] Ahijah, and Gera, that is, Heglam, [2] who fathered Uzza and Ahihud. [8][†]And Shaharaim fathered sons in the country of Moab after he had sent away Hushim and Baara his wives. [9]He fathered sons by Hodesh his wife: Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, [10]Jeuz, Sachia, and Mirmah. These were his sons, heads of fathers' houses. [11]He also fathered sons by Hushim: Abitub and Elpaal. [12]The sons of Elpaal: Eber, Misham, and Shemed, who built [j] Ono and [k] Lod with its towns, [13]and Beriah and [l] Shema (they were heads of fathers' houses of the inhabitants of [m] Aijalon, who caused the inhabitants of Gath to flee); [14]and Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth. [15]Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, [16]Michael, Ishpah, and Joha were sons of Beriah. [17]Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, [18]Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab were the sons of Elpaal. [19]Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, [20]Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, [21]Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were the sons of Shimei. [22]Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, [23]Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, [24]Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, [25]Iphdeiah, and Penuel were the sons of Shashak. [26]Shamsherai, Shehariah, Athaliah, [27]Jaareshiah, Elijah, and Zichri were the sons of Jeroham. [28]These were the heads of fathers' houses, according to their generations, chief men. These lived in Jerusalem.

[29][†] [n] [o] Jeiel [3] the father of Gibeon lived in Gibeon, and the name of his wife was Maacah. [30]His firstborn son: Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Nadab, [31]Gedor, Ahio, Zecher, [32]and Mikloth (he fathered Shimeah). Now these also lived opposite their kinsmen in Jerusalem, with their kinsmen. [33][^] [p] Ner was the father of Kish, Kish of Saul, Saul of [q] Jonathan, Malchi-shua, Abinadab and Eshbaal; [34]and the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal was the father of [r]Micah. [35]The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tarea, and Ahaz. [36]Ahaz fathered Jehoaddah, and Jehoaddah fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri. Zimri fathered Moza. [37]Moza fathered Binea; Raphah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. [38]Azel had six sons, and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Azel. [39]The sons of Eshek his brother: Ulam his firstborn, Jeush the second, and Eliphelet the third. [40]The sons of Ulam were men who were mighty warriors, bowmen, having many sons and grandsons, 150. All these were Benjaminites.

A Genealogy of the Returned Exiles

1 CHRONICLES 9 [†]So all Israel was recorded in genealogies, and these are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel. And [s]Judah was taken into exile in Babylon because of their breach of faith. [2][^][†] [t]Now the first to [u]dwell again in their possessions in their cities were Israel, the priests, the Levites, and the [v]temple servants. [3][†]And some of the people of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh lived in Jerusalem: [4]Uthai the son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, from the sons of [w]Perez the son of Judah. [5]And of the Shilonites: Asaiah the firstborn, and his sons. [6]Of the sons of Zerah: Jeuel and their kinsmen, 690. [7]Of the Benjaminites: Sallu the son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Hassenuah, [8]Ibneiah the son of Jeroham, Elah the son of Uzzi, son of Michri, and Meshullam the son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibnijah; [9]and their kinsmen according to their generations, [x]956. All these were heads of fathers’ houses according [y]to their fathers’ houses.

[10][†] [z]Of the priests: Jedaiah, Jehoiarib, Jachin, [11]and Azariah the son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the [a]chief officer of the house of God; [12]and Adaiah the son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah, and Maasai the son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer; [13]besides their kinsmen, heads of their fathers’ houses, 1,760, mighty men for the work of the service of the house of God.

[14][†] [b]Of the Levites: Shemaiah the son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, of the sons of Merari; [15]and Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal and Mattaniah the son of Mica, son of Zichri, son of Asaph; [16]and Obadiah the son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun, and Berechiah the son of Asa, son of Elkanah, who lived in the villages of the Netophathites.

[17][‡]The gatekeepers were Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman, and their kinsmen (Shallum was the chief); [18]until then they were [c]in the king's gate on the east side as the gatekeepers of the camps of the Levites. [19]Shallum the son of Kore, son of [d]Ebiasaph, son of Korah, and his kinsmen of his fathers' house, the [e]Korahites, were in charge of the work of the service, keepers of the thresholds of the tent, as their fathers had been in charge of the camp of the Lord, keepers of the entrance. [20]And [f]Phinehas the son of Eleazar was the chief officer over them in time past; the Lord was with him. [21] [g]Zechariah the son of Meshelemiah was gatekeeper at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [22]All these, who were chosen as gatekeepers at the thresholds, were 212. They were enrolled by genealogies in their villages. [h]David and Samuel [i]the seer established them in their office of trust. [23]So they and their sons were in charge of the gates of the house of the Lord, that is, the house of the tent, as guards. [24]The gatekeepers were on the four sides, east, west, north, and south. [25]And their kinsmen who were [j]in their villages were obligated to come [k]in every seven days, in turn, to be with these, [26]for the four chief gatekeepers, who were Levites, were entrusted to be over [l]the chambers and the treasures of the house of God. [27]And they lodged around the house of God, for on them lay the duty of watching, and [m]they had charge of opening it every morning.

[28]Some of them had charge of the utensils of service, for they were required to count them when they were brought in and taken out. [29]Others of them were appointed over the furniture and over all the holy utensils, also over the [n]fine flour, the wine, the oil, the incense, and the spices. [30]Others, of the sons of the priests, [o]prepared the mixing of the spices, [31][†]and Mattithiah, one of the Levites, the firstborn of [p]Shallum the [e]Korahite, was entrusted with [q]making the flat cakes. [32]Also some of their kinsmen of the Kohathites had [r]charge of the showbread, to prepare it every Sabbath.

[33]Now these, the [s]singers, the heads of fathers' houses of the Levites, were in the chambers of the temple free from other service, for they were on duty day and night. [34]These were heads of fathers' houses of the Levites, according to their generations, leaders. These lived in Jerusalem.

Saul's Genealogy Repeated

[35][†] [t]In Gibeon lived the father of Gibeon, Jeiel, and the name of his wife was Maacah, [36]and his firstborn son Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, [37]Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth; [38]and Mikloth was the father of Shimeam; and these also lived opposite their kinsmen in Jerusalem, with their kinsmen. [39] [u]Ner fathered Kish, Kish fathered Saul, Saul fathered Jonathan, Malchi-shua, Abinadab, and Eshbaal. [40][†]And the son of Jonathan was [v]Merib-baal, and Merib-baal fathered Micah. [41]The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and [w]Ahaz. [1] [42]And Ahaz fathered [x]Jarah, and Jarah fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri. And Zimri fathered Moza. [43]Moza fathered Binea, and [y]Rephaiah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. [44]Azel had six sons and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan; these were the sons of Azel.

The Death of Saul and His Sons

1 CHRONICLES 10 [†] [z]Now the Philistines fought against Israel, and the men of Israel fled before the Philistines and fell slain on Mount Gilboa. [2]And the Philistines overtook Saul and his sons, and the Philistines struck down Jonathan and Abinadab and Malchi-shua, the sons of Saul. [3]The battle pressed hard against Saul, and the archers found him, and he was wounded by the archers. [4][†]Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised come and mistreat me." But his armor-bearer would not, for he feared greatly. Therefore Saul took his own sword and fell upon it. [5]And when his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died. [6][†]Thus Saul died; he and his three sons and all his house died together. [7]And when all the men of Israel who were in the valley saw that the army [1] had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their cities and fled, and the Philistines came and lived in them.

[8]The next day, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. [9]And they stripped him and took his head and his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to carry the good news to their idols and to the people. [10]And they put his armor in the temple of their gods and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon. [11][†]But when all Jabesh-gilead heard all that the Philistines had done to Saul, [12]all the valiant men arose and took away the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh. And they buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh and fasted seven days.

[13][†]So Saul died [a] for his breach of faith. He broke faith with the LORD in that he did not keep the command of the LORD, and also [b] consulted a medium, seeking guidance. [14][^]He [c] did not seek guidance from the LORD. Therefore the LORD put him to death and [d] turned the kingdom over to David the son of Jesse.

David Anointed King

1 CHRONICLES 11 [†] [e] Then all Israel gathered together to David at Hebron and said, "Behold, we are your bone and flesh. [2]In times past, even when Saul was king, it was you who led out and brought in Israel. And the LORD your God said to you, [f] 'You shall be shepherd of my people Israel, and you shall be prince over my people Israel.'" [3][^]So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, and David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anointed David king over Israel, [g] according to the word of the LORD by Samuel.

David Takes Jerusalem

[4][†]And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, [h] that is, Jebus, where the Jebusites were, [i] the inhabitants of the land. [5]The inhabitants of Jebus said to David, "You will not come in here." Nevertheless, David took the stronghold of Zion, that is, the city of David. [6]David said, "Whoever strikes the Jebusites first [j] shall be chief and commander." And Joab the son of Zeruiah went up first, so he became chief. [7]And David lived in the stronghold; therefore it was called the city of David. [8][†]And he built the city all around from the Millo in complete circuit, and Joab repaired the rest of the city. [9][†]And David [k]became greater and greater, for the LORD of hosts was with him.

David’s Mighty Men

[10][†] [l]Now these are the chiefs of David’s mighty men, who gave him strong support in his kingdom, together with all Israel, to make him king, [m]according to the word of the LORD concerning Israel. [11]This is an account of David’s mighty men: [n]Jashobeam, a [n]Hachmonite, was [o]chief of the three. [1] He wielded his spear against 300 whom he killed at one time.

[12][†]And next to him among the three mighty men was Eleazar the son of [p]Dodo, the Ahohite. [13]He was with David at Pas-dammim [q]when the Philistines were gathered there for battle. There was a plot of ground full of barley, and the men fled from the Philistines. [14]But he took his [2] stand in the midst of the plot and defended it and killed the Philistines. And the LORD saved them by a great victory.

[15][†]Three of the thirty chief men went down to the rock to David at the cave of Adullam, when the army of Philistines was encamped in the [r]Valley of Rephaim. [16]David was then in the stronghold, and the [s]garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem. [17]And David said longingly, “Oh that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!” [18][†]Then the three mighty men broke through the camp of the Philistines and drew water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate and took it and brought it to David. But David would not drink it. He poured it out to the LORD [19]and said, “Far be it from me before my God that I should do this. Shall I drink the lifeblood of these men? For at the risk of their lives they brought it.” Therefore he would not drink it. These things did the three mighty men.

[20]Now Abishai, the brother of Joab, was chief of the thirty. [3] And he wielded his spear against 300 men and killed them and won a name beside the three. [21]He was the most renowned [4] of the thirty [5] and became their commander, but he did not attain to the three.

[22]And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was a valiant man [6] of Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds. He struck down two heroes of Moab. He also went down and struck down a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen. [23]And he struck down an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits [7] tall. The Egyptian had in his hand a spear [t] like a weaver's beam, but Benaiah went down to him with a staff and snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand and killed him with his own spear. [24]These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada and won a name beside the three mighty men. [25][‡]He was renowned among the thirty, but he did not attain to the three. And David set him over his bodyguard.

[26]The mighty men were [u] Asahel the brother of Joab, Elhanan the son of Dodo of Bethlehem, [27]Shammoth of Harod, [8] Helez the Pelonite, [28]Ira the son of Ikkesh of Tekoa, Abiezer of Anathoth, [29]Sibbecai the Hushathite, Ilai the Ahohite, [30]Maharai of Netophah, Heled the son of Baanah of Netophah, [31]Ithai the son of Ribai of Gibeah of the people of Benjamin, Benaiah of Pirathon, [32]Hurai of the brooks of Gaash, Abiel the Arbathite, [33]Azmaveth of Baharum, Eliahba the Shaalbonite, [34]Hashem [9] the Gizonite, Jonathan the son of Shagee the Hararite, [35]Ahiam the son of Sachar the Hararite, Eliphal the son of Ur, [36]Hepher the Mecherathite, Ahijah the Pelonite, [37]Hezro of Carmel, Naarai the son of Ezbai, [38]Joel the brother of Nathan, Mibhar the son of [v] Hagri, [39]Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai of Beeroth, the armor-bearer of Joab the son of Zeruiah, [40]Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite, [41]Uriah the Hittite, [w] Zabad the son of Ahlai, [42]Adina the son of Shiza the Reubenite, a leader of the Reubenites, and thirty with him, [43]Hanan the son of Maacah, and Joshaphat the Mithnite, [44]Uzzia the Ashterathite, Shama and Jeiel the sons of Hotham the Aroerite, [45]Jediael the son of Shimri, and Joha his brother, the Tizite, [46]Eliel the Mahavite, and Jeribai, and Joshaviah, the sons of Elnaam, and Ithmah the Moabite, [47]Eliel, and Obed, and Jaasiel the Mezobaite.

The Mighty Men Join David

1 CHRONICLES 12 [‡] [x] Now these are the men who came to David at Ziklag, while he could not move about freely because of Saul the son of Kish. And they were among the mighty men who helped him in war. [2]They [y] were bowmen and could shoot arrows and sling stones with either the right or the

8[†]From the Gadites there went over to David at the stronghold in the wilderness mighty and experienced warriors, expert with shield and spear, whose faces were like the faces of lions and who were [f] swift as gazelles upon the mountains: 9Ezer the chief, Obadiah second, Eliab third, 10Mishmannah fourth, Jeremiah fifth, 11Attai sixth, Eliel seventh, 12Johanan eighth, Elzabad ninth, 13Jeremiah tenth, Machbannai eleventh. 14These Gadites were officers of the army; the least was a [g] match for a hundred men and the greatest for a thousand. 15These are the men who crossed the Jordan in the first month, when it was [h] overflowing all its banks, and put to flight all those in the valleys, to the east and to the west.

16[†]And some of the men of Benjamin and Judah came to the stronghold to David. 17David went out to meet them and said to them, "If you have come to me in friendship to help me, my heart will be joined to you; but if to betray me to my adversaries, although there is no wrong in my hands, then may the God of our fathers see and rebuke you." 18Then [i] the Spirit clothed [j] Amasai, chief of the thirty, and he said,

"We are yours, O David, and with you, O son of Jesse!
[k] Peace, peace to you,
  and peace to your helpers!
  For your God helps you."

Then David received them and made them officers of his troops.

19[†]Some of the men of Manasseh deserted to David [l] when he came with the Philistines for the battle against Saul. (Yet he did not help them, for the rulers of the Philistines took counsel and sent him away, saying, [m] "At peril to our heads he will desert to his master Saul.”) [20]As he went to Ziklag, these men of Manasseh deserted to him: Adnah, Jozabad, Jediael, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, chiefs of thousands in Manasseh.

[21]They helped David against [n]the band of raiders, for they were all mighty men of valor and were commanders in the army. [22][†]For from day to day men came to David to help him, until there was a great army, like an army of God.

[23][^][†]These are the numbers of the divisions of the armed troops [o]who came to David in Hebron [p]to turn the kingdom of Saul over to him, [q]according to the word of the LORD. [24]The men of Judah bearing shield and spear were 6,800 armed troops. [25]Of the Simeonites, mighty men of valor for war, 7,100. [26]Of the Levites 4,600. [27]The prince Jehoiada, of the house of Aaron, and with him 3,700. [28][r]Zadok, a young man mighty in valor, and twenty-two commanders from his own fathers’ house. [29]Of the Benjaminites, [s]the kinsmen of Saul, 3,000, of whom the [t]majority had to that point kept their allegiance to the house of Saul. [30]Of the Ephraimites 20,800, mighty men of valor, famous men in their fathers’ houses. [31]Of the half-tribe of Manasseh 18,000, who were [u]expressly named to come and make David king. [32]Of Issachar, men who [v]had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do, 200 chiefs, and all their kinsmen under their command. [33]Of Zebulun 50,000 seasoned troops, [w]equipped for battle with all the weapons of war, to help David [3] with [x]singleness of purpose.
[34]Of Naphtali 1,000 commanders with whom were 37,000 men armed with shield and spear. [35]Of the Danites 28,600 men equipped for battle. [36]Of [y]Asher 40,000 [z]seasoned troops [z]ready for battle. [37]Of the Reubenites and Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh from beyond the Jordan, 120,000 men armed with all the weapons of war.

[38][†]All these, men of war, arrayed in battle order, came to Hebron with [a]a whole heart to make David king over all Israel. Likewise, all the rest of Israel were of a [b]single mind to make David king. [39]And they were there with David for three days, eating and drinking, for their brothers had made preparation for them. [40]And also their relatives, from as far as Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, came bringing food on donkeys and on camels and on mules and on oxen, abundant provisions of flour, [c] cakes of figs, clusters of raisins, and wine and oil, oxen and sheep, for there was joy in Israel.

The Ark Brought from Kiriath-Jearim

1 CHRONICLES 13 [‡]David consulted with the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, with every leader. [2]And David said to all the assembly of Israel, "If it seems good to you and from the LORD our God, let us send abroad to our brothers [d] who remain in all the lands of Israel, as well as to the priests and Levites in the cities that have pasturelands, that they may be gathered to us. [3]Then let us bring again the ark of our God to us, [e] for we did not seek it [1] in the days of Saul." [4]All the assembly agreed to do so, for the thing was right in the eyes of all the people.

Uzzah and the Ark

[5][‡][f] So David assembled all Israel [g] from the [h] Nile [2] of Egypt to Lebo-hamath, to bring the ark of God [i] from Kiriath-jearim. [6][j] And David and all Israel went up to [k] Baalah, that is, to Kiriath-jearim that belongs to Judah, to bring up from there the ark of God, which is called by the name of the LORD who [l] sits enthroned above the cherubim. [7][‡]And they carried the ark of God on a new cart, from the house of [m] Abinadab, and Uzzah and Ahio [3] were driving the cart. [8][‡]And David and all Israel were celebrating before God with all their might, with song and [n] lyres and harps and tambourines and cymbals and trumpets.

[9]And when they came to the threshing floor of [o] Chidon, Uzzah put out his hand to take hold of the ark, for the oxen stumbled. [10][^]And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah, and he struck him down [p] because he put out his hand to the ark, and [q] he died there before God. [11]And David was angry because the LORD had broken out against Uzzah. And that place is called Perez-uzza [4] to this day. [12][^]And David was afraid of God that day, and he said, "How can I bring the ark of God home to me?" [13][‡]So David did not take the ark home into the city of David, but took it aside to the house [r] of Obed-edom the Gittite. [14]And the ark of God remained with the household of Obed-edom in his house three months. [s] And the LORD blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that he had.

David’s Wives and Children

1 CHRONICLES 14 [†] [t] And Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, also masons and carpenters to build a house for him. [2]And David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel, and that his kingdom was highly exalted for the sake of his people Israel.

[3][†]And David took more wives in Jerusalem, and David fathered more sons and daughters. [4] [u] These are the names of the children born to him in Jerusalem: [v] Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, [5]Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, [6]Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, [7]Elishama, [w] Beeliada and [x] Eliphelet.

Philistines Defeated

[8][†]When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up to search for David. But David heard of it and went out against them. [9]Now the Philistines had come and [y] made a raid in the [z] Valley of Rephaim. [10][†]And David inquired of God, “Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?” And the LORD said to him, “Go up, and I will give them into your hand.” [11]And he went up to Baal-perazim, and David struck them down there. And David said, “God has broken through [1] my enemies by my hand, like a bursting flood.” Therefore the name of that place is called Baal-perazim. [12]And they left their gods there, and David gave command, and they were burned.

[13]And the Philistines yet again [a] made a raid in the valley. [14]And when David again inquired of God, [b] God said to him, “You shall not go up after them; go around and come against them opposite the balsam trees. [15][^][†]And when you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out to battle, for God has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” [16]And David did as God commanded him, and they struck down the Philistine army from Gibeon to Gezer. [17][†]And the fame of David went out into all lands, and the LORD brought the [c] fear of him upon all nations.

The Ark Brought to Jerusalem

1 CHRONICLES 15 [‡]David [1] built houses for himself in the city of David. And he prepared a place for the ark of God and [d] pitched a tent for it. 2[^]Then David said that no one but the Levites may carry [e] the ark of God, for the LORD had chosen them to carry the ark of the LORD and to minister to him forever. 3[f] And David assembled all Israel at Jerusalem to bring up the ark of the LORD [g] to its place, which he had prepared for it. 4[‡]And David gathered together the sons of Aaron and [h] the Levites: 5of the sons of Kohath, Uriel the chief, with 120 of his brothers; 6of the sons of Merari, Asaiah the chief, with 220 of his brothers; 7of the sons of Gershom, Joel the chief, with 130 of his brothers; 8of the sons of Elizaphan, Shemaiah the chief, with 200 of his brothers; 9of the sons of Hebron, Eliel the chief, with 80 of his brothers; 10of the sons of Uzziel, Amminadab the chief, with 112 of his brothers. 11[‡]Then David summoned the priests [i] Zadok and [j] Abiathar, and the Levites Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab, 12and said to them, “You are the heads of the fathers’ houses of the Levites. [k] Consecrate yourselves, you and your brothers, so that you may bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel, [l] to the place that I have prepared for it. 13 [m] Because you did not carry it the first time, the LORD our God broke out against us, because we did not seek him according to the rule.” 14So the priests and the Levites consecrated themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel. 15And the Levites carried the ark of God on their shoulders [n] with the poles, [o] as Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD.

16[^][‡]David also commanded the chiefs of the Levites to appoint their brothers as the singers who should play loudly on [p] musical instruments, on harps and lyres and cymbals, to raise sounds of joy. 17[‡]So the Levites appointed [q] Heman the son of Joel; and of his brothers [r] Asaph the son of Berechiah; and of the sons of Merari, their brothers, [s] Ethan the son of Kushaiah; 18and with them their brothers of the second order, Zechariah, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, and Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers Obed-edom and Jeiel. 19The singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, were to sound bronze cymbals; [20]Zechariah, [t] Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were to play harps according to [u] Alamoth; [21]but Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, [v] Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah were to lead with lyres according to [w] the Sheminith. [22]Chenaniah, leader of the Levites in music, should direct the music, for he understood it. [23]Berechiah and Elkanah were to be gatekeepers for the ark. [24]Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer, the priests, should [x] blow the trumpets before the ark of God. [v] Obed-edom and Jehiah were to be gatekeepers for the ark.

[25][†] [y] So David and the elders of Israel and the commanders of thousands went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of [v] Obed-edom with rejoicing. [26]And because God helped the Levites who were carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD, they sacrificed [z] seven bulls and seven rams. [27]David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, as also were all the Levites who were carrying the ark, and the singers and Chenaniah the leader of the music of the singers. And David wore a linen ephod. [28]So all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting, to the sound of the horn, [a] trumpets, and cymbals, and made loud music on [b] harps and lyres.

[29]And as the ark of the covenant of the LORD came to the city of David, Michal the daughter of Saul looked out of the window and saw King David dancing and celebrating, and she despised him in her heart.

The Ark Placed in a Tent

1 CHRONICLES 16 [†]And they brought in the ark of God and set it inside [c] the tent that David had pitched for it, and they offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before God. [2]And when David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD [3]and distributed to all Israel, both men and women, to each a loaf of bread, a portion of meat, [1] and a cake of raisins.

[4][^][†]Then he appointed some of the Levites as ministers before the ark of the LORD, to invoke, to thank, and to praise the LORD, the God of Israel. [5] [d] Asaph was the chief, and second to him were Zechariah, Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel, who were to play harps and lyres; Asaph was to sound the cymbals, [6]and Benaiah and Jahaziel the priests were to blow trumpets regularly before the ark of the covenant of God. [7]Then on that day [e]David first appointed that thanksgiving be sung to the Lord by Asaph and his brothers.

David's Song of Thanks

8 [^][†] [f]Oh give thanks to the Lord; [g]call upon his name;
[h]make known his deeds among the peoples!
9 Sing to him, sing praises to him;
tell of all his wondrous works!
10 Glory in his holy name;
let the hearts of those who seek the Lord rejoice!
11 [i]Seek the Lord and his strength; seek his presence continually!
12 [j]Remember the wondrous works that he has done,
[k]his miracles and the judgments he uttered, 13 O offspring of Israel his servant, children of Jacob, his chosen ones!

14 He is the Lord our God;
[l]his judgments are in all the earth.
15 Remember his covenant forever,
the word that he commanded, for a thousand generations, 16 the covenant [m]that he made with Abraham,
his sworn promise to Isaac, 17 which [n]he confirmed to Jacob as a statute, to Israel as an everlasting covenant, 18 saying, [o]"To you I will give the land of Canaan, as your portion for an inheritance."

19 When you were [p]few in number, of little account, and [q]sojourners in it, 20 wandering from nation to nation,

from one kingdom to another people, 21 he allowed no one to oppress them;
he [r] rebuked kings on their account, 22 saying, “Touch not my anointed ones, do my [s] prophets no harm!”

23[^][†] [t] Sing to the LORD, all the earth!
Tell of his salvation from day to day.
24 Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous works among all the peoples!
25 For [u] great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised, and he is to be feared [v] above all gods.
26 For all the gods of the peoples are worthless idols,
[w] but the LORD made the heavens.
27 Splendor and majesty are before him;
strength and joy are in his place.

28 Ascribe to the LORD, O families of the peoples, [x] ascribe to the LORD glory and strength!
29 Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name;
bring an offering and come before him!
[y] Worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness; [2] 30 tremble before him, all the earth;
yes, the world is established; it shall never be moved.
31 [z] Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice, and let them say among the nations, [a] “The LORD reigns!” 32 [b] Let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
let the field exult, and everything in it!
33 Then shall the trees of the forest sing for joy before the LORD, for he comes to judge the earth.
34[†] Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
for his steadfast love endures forever!

35[^] [c] Say also:

“Save us, O God of our salvation, and gather and deliver us from among the nations, that we may give thanks to your holy name and glory in your praise.
36 [d]Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting!”

[e]Then all the people said, “Amen!” and praised the Lord.

Worship Before the Ark

[37][†]So David left Asaph and his brothers there [f]before the ark of the covenant of the Lord to minister regularly before the ark [g]as each day required, [38]and also [h]Obed-edom and his [3] sixty-eight brothers, while [h]Obed-edom, the son of Jeduthun, and [i]Hosah were to be gatekeepers. [39]And he left [j]Zadok the priest and his brothers the priests before the tabernacle of the Lord [k]in the high place that was at Gibeon [40]to offer burnt offerings to the Lord [l]on the altar of burnt offering [m]regularly morning and evening, to do all that is written in the Law of the Lord that he commanded Israel. [41]With them were [n]Heman and Jeduthun [o]and the rest of those chosen and [p]expressly named to give thanks to the Lord, [q]for his steadfast love endures forever. [42]Heman and Jeduthun had trumpets and cymbals for the music and instruments [r]for sacred song. The sons of Jeduthun were appointed to the gate.

[43] [s]Then all the people departed each to his house, and David went home to bless his household.

The Lord’s Covenant with David

1 CHRONICLES 17 [†] [t]Now when David lived in his house, David said to Nathan the prophet, “Behold, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of the covenant of the Lord is under a tent.” [2]And Nathan said to David, “Do all that is in your heart, for God is with you.”

[3][†]But that same night the word of the Lord came to Nathan, [4][^]“Go and tell my servant David, ‘Thus says the Lord: [u]It is not you who will build me a house to dwell in. [5]For I have not lived in a house since the day I brought up Israel to this day, [v] but I have gone from tent to tent and from dwelling to dwelling. [6]In all places where I have moved with all Israel, did I speak a word with any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people, saying, “Why have you not built me a house of cedar?”’ [7]Now, therefore, thus shall you say to my servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep, to be prince over my people Israel, [8]and I have been with you wherever you have gone and have cut off all your enemies from before you. And I will make for you a name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. [9]And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, that they may dwell in their own place and be disturbed no more. And violent men shall waste them no more, as formerly, [10][†]from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel. And I [w] will subdue all your enemies. Moreover, I declare to you that the LORD will build you a house. [11]When your days are fulfilled to walk with your fathers, I will raise up your offspring after you, one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom. [12]He shall build a house for me, and I will establish his throne forever. [13] [x] I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son. I will not take my steadfast love from him, [y] as I took it from him who was before you, [14]but I will confirm him in my house and in my kingdom forever, and his throne shall be established forever.’” [15]In accordance with all these words, and in accordance with all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

David’s Prayer

[16][^][†]Then King David went in and sat before the LORD and said, “Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? [17]And this was a small thing in your eyes, O God. You have also spoken of your servant’s house for a great while to come, and have shown me future generations, [1] O LORD God! [18]And what more can David say to you for honoring your servant? For you know your servant. [19] [z] For your servant’s sake, O LORD, and according to your own heart, you have done all this greatness, in making known all these great things. [20]There is none like you, O LORD, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. [21]And who is like your people Israel, the one [2] nation on earth whom God went to redeem to be his people, making for yourself a name for great and awesome things, in driving out nations before your people whom you redeemed from Egypt? [22]And you made your people Israel to be your people forever, and you, O Lord, became their God. [23]And now, O Lord, let the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and concerning his house be established forever, and do as you have spoken, [24]and your name will be established and magnified forever, saying, 'The Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, is Israel's God,' and the house of your servant David will be established before you. [25]For you, my God, have revealed to your servant that you will build a house for him. Therefore your servant has found courage to pray before you. [26]And now, O Lord, you are God, and you have promised this good thing to your servant. [27]Now you have been pleased to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you, for it is you, O Lord, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever."

David Defeats His Enemies

1 CHRONICLES 18 [†] [a] After this David defeated the Philistines and subdued them, and he took Gath and its villages out of the hand of the Philistines.

[2]And he defeated Moab, and the Moabites became servants to David and brought tribute.

[3]David also defeated [b] Hadadezer king of [c] Zobah-Hamath, as he went to set up his monument [1] at the river Euphrates. [4][†]And David took from him 1,000 chariots, [d] 7,000 horsemen, and 20,000 foot soldiers. And David hamstrung all the chariot horses, but left enough for 100 chariots. [5]And when the Syrians of Damascus came to help Hadadezer king [e] of Zobah, David struck down 22,000 men of the Syrians. [6][^][†]Then David put garrisons [2] in Syria of Damascus, and the Syrians became servants to David and brought tribute. And the Lord gave victory to David [3] wherever he went. [7]And David took the shields of gold that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer and brought them to Jerusalem. [8]And from [f] Tibhath and from Cun, cities of Hadadezer, David took a large amount of bronze. [g] With it Solomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the vessels of bronze.

[9]When [h] Tou king of Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of Hadadezer, king [e] of Zobah, [10]he sent his son [i] Hadoram to King David, to ask about his health and to bless him because he had fought against [b] Hadadezer and defeated him; for [b] Hadadezer had often been at war with Tou. And he sent all sorts of articles of gold, of silver, and of bronze. [11]These also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he had carried off from all the nations, from [j] Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and Amalek.

[12][†]And [k] Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, killed 18,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt. [13]Then he put garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went.

David's Administration

[14][^][†]So David reigned over all Israel, and he administered justice and equity to all his people. [15][†]And [l] Joab the son of Zeruiah was over the army; and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder; [16] [m] and Zadok the son of Ahitub and [n] Ahimelech the son of Abiathar were priests; and [o] Shavsha was secretary; [17]and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were the [p] chief officials in the service of the king.

The Ammonites Disgrace David's Men

1 CHRONICLES 19 [†] [q] Now after this Nahash the king of the Ammonites died, and his son reigned in his place. [2][^][†]And David said, "I will deal kindly with Hanun the son of Nahash, for his father dealt kindly with me." So David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. And David's servants came to the land of the Ammonites to Hanun to console him. [3]But the princes of the Ammonites said to Hanun, "Do you think, because David has sent comforters to you, that he is honoring your father? Have not his servants come to you to search and to overthrow and to spy out the land?" [4]So Hanun took David's servants and shaved them and cut off their garments in the middle, at their hips, and sent them away; [5]and they departed. When David was told concerning the men, he sent messengers to meet them, for the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, “Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown and then return.”

[6][†]When the Ammonites saw that they had become a stench to David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent 1,000 talents[1] of silver to hire chariots and horsemen [r] from Mesopotamia, from Aram-maacah, and from [s] Zobah. [7]They hired 32,000 chariots and the king of Maacah with his army, who came and encamped before [t] Medeba. And the Ammonites were mustered from their cities and came to battle. [8]When David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army of the mighty men. [9]And the Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the city, and the kings who had come were by themselves in the open country.

Ammonites and Syrians Defeated

[10]When Joab saw that the battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the best men of Israel and arrayed them against the Syrians. [11]The rest of his men he put in the charge of [u] Abishai his brother, and they were arrayed against the Ammonites. [12]And he said, “If the Syrians are too strong for me, then you shall help me, but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will help you. [13]Be strong, and let us use our strength for our people and for the cities of our God, and may the Lord do what seems good to him.” [14]So Joab and the people who were with him drew near before the Syrians for battle, and they fled before him. [15]And when the Ammonites saw that the Syrians fled, they likewise fled before [u] Abishai, Joab’s brother, and entered the city. Then Joab came to Jerusalem.

[16]But when the Syrians saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers and brought out the Syrians who were beyond the Euphrates,[2] with [v] Shophach the commander of the army of [w] Hadadezer at their head. [17]And when it was told to David, he gathered all Israel together and crossed the Jordan and came to them and drew up his forces against them. And when David set the battle in array against the Syrians, they fought with him. [18][†]And the Syrians fled before Israel, and David killed of the Syrians the men of [x] 7,000 chariots and 40,000 [x] foot soldiers, and put to death also [v] Shophach the commander of their army. [19]And when the servants of [w] Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with David and became subject to him. So the Syrians were not willing to save the Ammonites anymore.

The Capture of Rabbah

1 CHRONICLES 20 [†] [y] In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, Joab led out the army and ravaged the country of the Ammonites and came and besieged Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem. And [z] Joab struck down Rabbah and overthrew it. [2] [a] And David took the crown of their king from his head. He found that it weighed a talent [1] of gold, and in it was a precious stone. And it was placed on David's head. And he brought out the spoil of the city, a very great amount. [3]And he brought out the people who were in it and set them to labor [2] [b] with saws and iron picks and axes. [3] And thus David did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

Philistine Giants Killed

[4][†] [c] And after this there arose war with the Philistines at Gezer. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, who was one of the descendants of the giants, and the Philistines were subdued. [5][†]And there was again war with the Philistines, and Elhanan the son of [d] Jair struck down Lahmi [d] the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. [6]And there was again war at Gath, where there was a man of great stature, who had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number, and he also was descended from the giants. [7][†]And when he taunted Israel, Jonathan the son of [e] Shimea, David's brother, struck him down. [8][^]These were descended from the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

David's Census Brings Pestilence

1 CHRONICLES 21 [†] [f] Then [g] Satan stood against Israel and incited David to number Israel. [2]So David said to Joab and the commanders of the army, “Go, number Israel, from Beersheba to Dan, and bring me a report, that I may know their number.” [3][‡]But Joab said, “May the LORD add to his people a hundred times as many as they are! Are they not, my lord the king, all of them my lord’s servants? Why then should my lord require this? Why should it be a cause of guilt for Israel?” [4]But the king’s word prevailed against Joab. So Joab departed and went throughout all Israel and came back to Jerusalem. [5][‡]And Joab gave the sum of the numbering of the people to David. In all Israel there were [h]1,100,000 men who drew the sword, and in Judah [h]470,000 who drew the sword. [6][i]But he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the numbering, for the king’s command was abhorrent to Joab.

[7][^][‡]But God was displeased with this thing, and he struck Israel. [8]And David said to God, “I have sinned greatly in that I have done this thing. But now, please [j]take away the iniquity of your servant, for I have acted very foolishly.” [9]And the LORD spoke to Gad, David’s [k]seer, saying, [10]“Go and say to David, ‘Thus says the LORD, Three things I offer you; choose one of them, that I may do it to you.’” [11]So Gad came to David and said to him, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Choose what you will: [12][‡]either [l]three years of famine, or three months of devastation by your foes while the sword of your enemies overtakes you, or else three days of the sword of the LORD, pestilence on the land, with the angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the territory of Israel.’ Now decide what answer I shall return to him who sent me.” [13]Then David said to Gad, “I am in great distress. Let me fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is very great, but do not let me fall into the hand of man.”

[14][‡]So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel, and 70,000 men of Israel fell. [15]And God sent the angel to Jerusalem to destroy it, but as he was about to destroy it, the LORD saw, and he [m]relented from the calamity. And he said to the angel who was working destruction, “It is enough; now stay your hand.” And the angel of the LORD was standing by the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. [16]And David lifted his eyes and saw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, and in his hand a drawn sword stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders, [n]clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces. [17][^][‡]And David said to God, “Was it not I who gave command to number the people? It is I who have sinned and done great evil. But these sheep, what have they done? Please let your hand, O Lord my God, be against me and against my father's house. But do not let the plague be on your people."

David Builds an Altar

18[‡]Now [o] the angel of the Lord had commanded Gad to say to David that David should go up and raise an altar to the Lord on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 19So David went up at Gad's word, which he had spoken in the name of the Lord. 20Now Ornan was threshing wheat. He turned and saw the angel, and his four sons who were with him hid themselves. 21As David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David and went out from the threshing floor and paid homage to David with his face to the ground. 22And David said to Ornan, "Give me the site of the threshing floor that I may build on it an altar to the Lord—give it to me at its full price—that the plague may be averted from the people." 23Then Ornan said to David, "Take it, and let my lord the king do what seems good to him. See, I give the oxen for burnt offerings and the threshing sledges for the wood and the wheat for a grain offering; I give it all." 24But King David said to Ornan, "No, but I will buy them for the full price. I will not take for the Lord what is yours, nor offer burnt offerings that cost me nothing." 25[‡]So David paid Ornan [p] 600 shekels [1] of gold by weight for the site. 26[‡]And David built there an altar to the Lord and presented burnt offerings and peace offerings and called on the Lord, and the Lord [2] [q] answered him with fire from heaven upon the altar of burnt offering. 27Then the Lord commanded the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

28[‡]At that time, when David saw that the Lord had answered him at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, he sacrificed there. 29For the tabernacle of the Lord, which Moses had made in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt offering [r] were at that time in the high place at Gibeon, 30but David could not go before it to inquire of God, for he was afraid of the sword of the angel of the Lord.

1 CHRONICLES 22 [^]Then David said, [s] "Here shall be the house of the Lord God and here the altar of burnt offering for Israel."

David Prepares for Temple Building

[2][†]David commanded to gather together the [t] resident aliens who were in the land of Israel, and he [u] set stonecutters to prepare dressed stones for building the house of God. [3]David also provided great quantities of iron for nails for the doors of the gates and for clamps, [v] as well as bronze in quantities beyond weighing, [4]and cedar timbers without number, [w] for the Sidonians and Tyrians brought great quantities of cedar to David. [5]For David said, [x] “Solomon my son is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the LORD must be exceedingly magnificent, of fame and glory throughout all lands. I will therefore make preparation for it.” So David provided materials in great quantity before his death.

Solomon Charged to Build the Temple

[6][†]Then he called for Solomon his son and charged him to build a house for the LORD, the God of Israel. [7]David said to Solomon, “My son, [y] I had it in my heart to build a house to the name of the LORD my God. [8]But the word of the LORD came to me, saying, [z] ‘You have shed much blood and have waged great wars. You shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed so much blood before me on the earth. [9][^]Behold, a son shall be born to you who shall be a man of rest. [a] I will give him rest from all his surrounding enemies. [b] For his name shall be Solomon, and I will give peace and quiet to Israel in his days. [10] [c] He shall build a house for my name. [d] He shall be my son, and I will be his father, and I will establish his royal throne in Israel forever.’

[11][†]“Now, my son, [e] the LORD be with you, so that you may succeed in building the house of the LORD your God, as he has spoken concerning you. [12] [f] Only, may the LORD grant you discretion and understanding, that when he gives you charge over Israel you may keep the law of the LORD your God. [13] [g] Then you will prosper if you are careful to observe the statutes and the rules that the LORD commanded Moses for Israel. [h] Be strong and courageous. Fear not; do not be dismayed. [14][†]With great pains I have provided for the house of the LORD [i] 100,000 talents [1] of gold, a million talents of silver, and [j] bronze and iron beyond weighing, for there is so much of it; timber and stone, too, I have provided. To these you must add.

15You have an abundance of workmen: stonecutters, masons, carpenters, and all kinds of craftsmen without number, skilled in working 16gold, silver, bronze, and iron. Arise and work! [k]The LORD be with you!"

17[†]David also commanded [l]all the leaders of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying, 18"Is not the LORD your God with you? And [m]has he not given you peace on every side? For he has delivered the inhabitants of the land into my hand, and the land is subdued before the LORD and his people. 19Now [n]set your mind and heart to seek the LORD your God. Arise and build the sanctuary of the LORD God, [o]so that the ark of the covenant of the LORD and the holy vessels of God may be brought into a house built [p]for the name of the LORD."

David Organizes the Levites

1 CHRONICLES 23 [†][q]When David was old and full of days, [r]he made Solomon his son king over Israel.

2David [1] assembled all the leaders of Israel and the priests and the Levites. 3[†]The Levites, [s]thirty years old and upward, were numbered, and [t]the total was [u]38,000 men. 4"Twenty-four thousand of these," David said, [2] [v]"shall have charge of the work in the house of the LORD, 6,000 shall be [w]officers and judges, 54,000 gatekeepers, and 4,000 shall offer praises to the LORD with the instruments [x]that I have made for praise." 6[†][y]And David organized them in divisions [z]corresponding to the sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

7[a]The sons of Gershon [3] were Ladan and Shimei. 8The sons of Ladan: [b]Jehiel the chief, and Zetham, and Joel, three. 9The sons of Shimei: Shelomoth, Haziel, and Haran, three. These were the heads of the fathers' houses of Ladan. 10And the sons of Shimei: Jahath, Zina, and Jeush and Beriah. These four were the sons of Shimei. 11Jahath was the chief, and Zizah the second; but Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons, therefore they became counted as a single father's house.

12[c]The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four. 13[†][d]The sons of Amram: Aaron and Moses. [e]Aaron was set apart to dedicate the most holy things, that he and his sons forever should [f]make offerings before the LORD and [g]minister to him and [h]pronounce blessings in his name forever. 14But the sons of Moses the [i] man of God were named among the [j] tribe of Levi. 15The [k] sons of Moses: Gershom and Eliezer. 16The sons of Gershom: [l] Shebuel the chief. 17The sons of Eliezer: Rehabiah the chief. Eliezer had no other sons, but the sons of Rehabiah were very many. 18The sons of Izhar: Shelomith the chief. 19The [m] sons of Hebron: Jeriah the chief, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth. 20 [n] The sons of Uzziel: Micah the chief and Isshiah the second.

21 [o] The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. The sons of Mahli: Eleazar and [p] Kish. 22Eleazar died [q] having no sons, but only daughters; their [r] kinsmen, the sons of Kish, married them. 23 [s] The sons of Mushi: Mahli, Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

24[†] [t] These were the sons of Levi by their fathers' houses, the heads of fathers' houses [u] as they were listed according to the number of the names of the individuals from [v] twenty years old and upward who were to do the work for the service of the house of the LORD. 25For David said, "The LORD, the God of Israel, [w] has given rest to his people, and he dwells in Jerusalem forever. 26[^]And so the Levites no longer need [x] to carry the tabernacle or any of the things for its service." 27For by the last words of David the sons of Levi were numbered from [v] twenty years old and upward. 28For their duty was to assist the sons of Aaron for the service of the house of the LORD, having the care of the courts and the chambers, the cleansing of all that is holy, and any work for the service of the house of God. 29Their duty was also to assist with the [y] showbread, the [z] flour for the grain offering, the wafers of unleavened bread, the [a] baked offering, the [b] offering mixed with oil, and all [c] measures of quantity or size. 30And they were to stand every morning, thanking and praising the LORD, and likewise at evening, 31and whenever burnt offerings were offered to the LORD [d] on Sabbaths, [e] new moons, and feast days, [f] according to the number required of them, regularly before the LORD. 32Thus [g] they were to keep charge of the tent of meeting and the sanctuary, and to attend the sons of Aaron, their brothers, for the [h] service of the house of the LORD.

David Organizes the Priests

1 CHRONICLES 24 [†]The divisions of the sons of Aaron were these. The sons of [i]Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 2[†][j]But Nadab and Abihu died before their father and had no children, so Eleazar and Ithamar became the priests. 3[†]With the help of [k]Zadok of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, David organized them according to the appointed duties in their service. 4Since more chief men were found among the sons of Eleazar than among the sons of Ithamar, they organized them under sixteen heads of fathers' houses of the sons of Eleazar, and eight of the sons of Ithamar. 5[†]They divided them [l]by lot, all alike, for there were sacred officers and officers of God among both the sons of Eleazar and the sons of Ithamar. 6And the scribe Shemaiah, the son of Nethanel, a Levite, recorded them in the presence of the king and the princes and Zadok the priest and [m]Ahimelech the son of Abiathar and the heads of the fathers' houses of the priests and of the Levites, one father's house being chosen for Eleazar and one chosen for Ithamar.

7[^][†]The first lot fell to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, 8the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, 9the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, 10[†]the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to [n]Abijah, 11the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, 12the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim, 13the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, 14the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer, 15the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizzez, 16the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, 17the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul, 18the twenty-third to Delaiah, the twenty-fourth to Maaziah. 19These had as their appointed duty in their service [o]to come into the house of the LORD according to the procedure established for them by Aaron their father, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

20[†]And of the rest of the sons of Levi: [p]of the sons of Amram, Shubael; of the sons of Shubael, Jehdeiah. 21 [q]Of Rehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, Isshiah the chief. 22Of the Izharites, Shelomoth; of the sons of Shelomoth, Jahath. 23 [r]The sons of Hebron: [1] Jeriah the chief, [2] Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, Jekameam the fourth. 24 [s]The sons of Uzziel, Micah; of the sons of Micah, Shamir. 25The brother of Micah, Isshiah; of the sons of Isshiah, Zechariah. [26] [t] The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. The sons of Jaaziah: Beno. [3] [27]The sons of Merari: of Jaaziah, Beno, Shoham, Zaccur, and Ibri. [28]Of Mahli: Eleazar, [u] who had no sons. [29]Of Kish, the sons of Kish: Jerahmeel. [30] [v] The sons of Mushi: Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites according to their fathers' houses. [31]These also, the head of each father's house and his younger brother alike, [w] cast lots, just as their brothers the sons of Aaron, in the presence of King David, [x] Zadok, Ahimelech, and the heads of fathers' houses of the priests and of the Levites.

David Organizes the Musicians

1 CHRONICLES 25 [‡]David and the chiefs of the service also set apart for the service the sons of [y] Asaph, and of [z] Heman, and of [a] Jeduthun, who [b] prophesied with lyres, with [c] harps, and with cymbals. The list of those who did the work and of their duties was: [2]Of the sons of Asaph: Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asharelah, sons of Asaph, under the direction of Asaph, who [b] prophesied under the direction of the king. [3]Of Jeduthun, the sons of Jeduthun: Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiah, Shimei, [1] Hashabiah, and Mattithiah, six, under the direction of their father Jeduthun, [b] who prophesied with the lyre in thanksgiving and praise to the Lord. [4][‡]Of Heman, the sons of Heman: Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel and Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, and Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, Mahazioth. [5]All these were the sons of Heman [d] the king's seer, according to the promise of God to exalt him, for God had given Heman fourteen sons and three daughters. [6]They were all under the direction of their father in the music in the house of the Lord with cymbals, [c] harps, and lyres for the service of the house of God. Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman were under the order of the king. [7][‡]The number of them along with their brothers, who were trained in singing to the Lord, all who were skillful, was [e] 288. [8]And they cast lots for their duties, [f] small and great, teacher and pupil alike.

[9]The first lot fell for Asaph to Joseph; the second to Gedaliah, to him and his brothers and his sons, twelve; [10]the third to Zaccur, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [11]the fourth to Izri, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [12]the fifth to Nethaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [13]the sixth to Bukkiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [14]the seventh to Jesharelah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [15]the eighth to Jeshaiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [16]the ninth to Mattaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [17]the tenth to Shimei, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [18]the eleventh to Azarel, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [19]the twelfth to Hashabiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [20]to the thirteenth, Shubael, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [21]to the fourteenth, Mattithiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [22]to the fifteenth, to Jeremoth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [23]to the sixteenth, to Hananiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [24]to the seventeenth, to Joshbekashah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [25]to the eighteenth, to Hanani, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [26]to the nineteenth, to Mallothi, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [27]to the twentieth, to Eliathah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [28]to the twenty-first, to Hothir, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [29]to the twenty-second, to Giddalti, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [30]to the twenty-third, to Mahazioth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; [31]to the twenty-fourth, to Romamti-ezer, his sons and his brothers, twelve.

Divisions of the Gatekeepers

1 CHRONICLES 26 [†]As for the divisions of the gatekeepers: of the Korahites, Meshelemiah the son of Kore, of the sons of Asaph. [2]And Meshelemiah had sons: [g] Zechariah the firstborn, Jediael the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth, [3]Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth, Eliehoenai the seventh. [4]And [h] Obed-edom had sons: Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, Sachar the fourth, Nethanel the fifth, [5]Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peullethai the eighth, [i] for God blessed him. [6]Also to his son Shemaiah were sons born who were rulers in their fathers’ houses, for they were men of great ability. [7]The sons of Shemaiah: Othni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad, whose brothers were able men, Elihu and Semachiah. [8]All these were of the sons of Obed-edom with their sons and brothers, able men qualified for the service; sixty-two of Obed-edom. [9]And Meshelemiah had sons and brothers, able men, eighteen.

[10]And [j]Hosah, of the sons of Merari, had sons: Shimri the chief (for though he was not the firstborn, his father made him chief), [11]Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brothers of Hosah were thirteen.

[12][†]These divisions of the gatekeepers, corresponding to their chief men, had duties, just as their brothers did, ministering in the house of the Lord. [13]And they cast lots by fathers' houses, [k]small and great alike, for their gates. [14]The lot for the east fell to Shelemiah. They cast lots also for his son Zechariah, a shrewd counselor, and his lot came out for the north. [15]Obed-edom's came out for the south, and to his sons was allotted [l]the gatehouse. [16]For Shuppim and [j]Hosah it came out for the west, at the gate of Shallecheth on the road that goes up. Watch corresponded to watch. [17]On the east there were six each day, [1] on the north four each day, on the south four each day, as well as two and two at the gatehouse. [18]And for the [n]colonnade [2] on the west there were four at the road and two at the colonnade. [19]These were the divisions of the gatekeepers among the Korahites and the sons of Merari.

Treasurers and Other Officials

[20][^][†]And of the Levites, Ahijah had charge of [o]the treasuries of the house of God and the treasuries of the dedicated gifts. [21]The sons of Ladan, the sons of the Gershonites belonging to Ladan, the heads of the fathers' houses belonging to Ladan the Gershonite: [p]Jehieli. [3]

[22][q]The sons of Jehieli, Zetham, and Joel his brother, were in charge of the treasuries of the house of the Lord. [23][r]Of the Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites— [24]and [s]Shebuel the son of Gershom, son of Moses, was chief officer in charge of the treasuries. [25]His brothers: from [t]Eliezer were his son Rehabiah, and his son [u]Jeshaiah, and his son Joram, and his son Zichri, and his son [v]Shelomoth. [26]This Shelomoth and his brothers were in charge of all the treasuries of the dedicated gifts that David the king and the heads of the fathers' houses and the officers of the thousands and the hundreds and the commanders of the army [w]had dedicated. [27]From spoil won in battles they dedicated gifts for the maintenance of the house of the Lord. [28]Also all that [x]Samuel the seer and Saul the son of Kish and Abner the son of Ner and Joab the son of Zeruiah had dedicated—all dedicated gifts were in the care of [v] Shelomoth [4] and his brothers.

[29][‡]Of the Izharites, Chenaniah and his sons were appointed to [y] external duties for Israel, [z] as officers and judges. [30]Of the Hebronites, [a] Hashabiah and his brothers, 1,700 men of ability, had the oversight of Israel westward of the Jordan for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king. [31]Of the Hebronites, [b] Jerijah was chief of the Hebronites of whatever genealogy or fathers' houses. (In the fortieth year of David's reign search was made and men of great ability among them were found at [c] Jazer in Gilead.) [32]King David appointed him and his brothers, 2,700 men of ability, heads of fathers' houses, to have the oversight of the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of the Manassites for everything pertaining to God and for [d] the affairs of the king.

Military Divisions

1 CHRONICLES 27 [‡]This is the number of the people of Israel, the heads of fathers' houses, the commanders of thousands and hundreds, and their officers who served the king in all matters concerning the divisions that came and went, month after month throughout the year, each division numbering 24,000:

[2] [e] Jashobeam the son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division in the first month; in his division were 24,000. [3]He was a [f] descendant of Perez and was chief of all the commanders. He served for the first month. [4] [g] Dodai the Ahohite [1] was in charge of the division of the second month; in his division were 24,000. [5]The third commander, for the third month, was [h] Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada the chief priest; in his division were 24,000. [6]This is the Benaiah [i] who was a mighty man of the thirty and in command of the thirty; Ammizabad his son was in charge of his division. [2] [7] [j] Asahel the brother of Joab was fourth, for the fourth month, and his son Zebadiah after him; in his division were 24,000. [8]The fifth commander, for the fifth month, was [k] Shamhuth the Izrahite; in his division were 24,000. [9]Sixth, for the sixth month, was [l] Ira, the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite; in his division were 24,000. [10]Seventh, for the seventh month, was [m] Helez the Pelonite, of the sons of Ephraim; in his division were 24,000. 11Eighth, for the eighth month, was [n]Sibbecai the Hushathite, of the Zerahites; in his division were 24,000. 12Ninth, for the ninth month, was [o]Abiezer of Anathoth, a Benjaminite; in his division were 24,000. 13Tenth, for the tenth month, was [p]Maharai of Netophah, of the Zerahites; in his division were 24,000. 14Eleventh, for the eleventh month, was [q]Benaiah of Pirathon, of the sons of Ephraim; in his division were 24,000. 15Twelfth, for the twelfth month, was [r]Heldai the Netophathite, of [s]Othniel; in his division were 24,000.

Leaders of Tribes

16[‡]Over the tribes of Israel, for the Reubenites, Eliezer the son of Zichri was chief officer; for the Simeonites, Shephatiah the son of Maacah; 17for Levi, [t]Hashabiah the son of Kemuel; for Aaron, [u]Zadok; 18for Judah, Elihu, one of David’s brothers; for Issachar, Omri the son of Michael; 19for Zebulun, Ishmaiah the son of Obadiah; for Naphtali, Jeremoth the son of Azriel; 20for the Ephraimites, Hoshea the son of Azaziah; for the half-tribe of Manasseh, Joel the son of Pedaiah; 21for the half-tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo the son of Zechariah; for Benjamin, Jaasiel the son of Abner; 22for Dan, Azarel the son of Jeroham. These were the [v]leaders of the tribes of Israel. 23[‡]David did not count those below twenty years of age, for the [w]LORD had promised to make Israel as many as the stars of heaven. 24Joab the son of Zeruiah began to count, but [x]did not finish. Yet [y]wrath came upon Israel for this, and the number was not entered in the chronicles of King David.

25[‡]Over the king’s treasuries was [z]Azmaveth the son of Adiel; and over the treasuries in the country, in the cities, in the villages, and in the towers, was Jonathan the son of Uzziah; 26and over those who did the work of the field for tilling the soil was Ezri the son of Chelub; 27and over the vineyards was Shimei the Ramathite; and over the produce of the vineyards for the wine cellars was Zabdi the Shiphmite. 28Over the olive and [a]sycamore trees in the Shephelah was Baal-hanan the Gederite; and over the stores of oil was Joash. 29Over the herds that pastured in [b]Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite; over the herds in the valleys was Shaphat the son of Adlai. 30Over the camels was Obil the Ishmaelite; and over the donkeys was Jehdeiah the Meronothite. Over the flocks was Jaziz the [c]Hagrite. [31]All these were stewards of King David's property.

[32][†]Jonathan, David's uncle, was a counselor, being a man of understanding and a scribe. He and Jehiel the son of Hachmoni attended the king's sons. [33][d]Ahithophel was the [e]king's counselor, and Hushai the Archite was the king's friend. [34]Ahithophel was succeeded by Jehoiada the son of [f]Benaiah, and [g]Abiathar. Joab was [h]commander of the king's army.

David's Charge to Israel

1 CHRONICLES 28 [†][i]David assembled at Jerusalem all the officials of Israel, the [j]officials of the tribes, the officers of the divisions that served the king, the [k]commanders of thousands, the commanders of hundreds, the [l]stewards of all the property and livestock of the king and his sons, together with the palace officials, the [m]mighty men and all the seasoned warriors. [2][†]Then King David rose to his feet and said: "Hear me, my brothers and my people. [n]I had it in my heart to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD and for the [o]footstool of our God, and I made preparations for building. [3]But God said to me, [p]'You may not build a house for my name, for you are a man of war and have shed blood.' [4][†]Yet the LORD God of Israel [q]chose me from all my father's house to be king over Israel [r]forever. [s]For he chose Judah as leader, and in the house of Judah my father's [t]house, and among my father's sons he took pleasure in me to make me king over all Israel. [5]And of [u]all my sons (for the LORD has given me many sons) he [v]has chosen Solomon my son to sit on the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel. [6][^][†]He said to me, 'It is [w]Solomon your son who shall build my house and my courts, for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father. [7]I will establish his kingdom [r]forever [x]if he continues strong in keeping my commandments and my rules, as he is today.' [8]Now therefore in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and seek out all the commandments of the LORD your God, that you may possess this good land and leave it for an inheritance to your children after you forever.

David’s Charge to Solomon

[9]“And you, Solomon my son, know the God of your father and serve him with a [y] whole heart and with a willing mind, [z] for the LORD searches all hearts and understands every plan and thought. [a] If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you forsake him, he will cast you off forever. [10]Be careful now, for the LORD has chosen you to build a house for the sanctuary; [b] be strong and do it.”

[11][‡]Then David gave Solomon his son the [c] plan of the [d] vestibule of the temple, [1] and of its houses, its treasuries, its upper rooms, and its inner chambers, and of the room for the [e] mercy seat; [12]and the plan of all that he had in mind for the courts of the house of the LORD, all the surrounding chambers, [f] the treasuries of the house of God, and the treasuries for dedicated gifts; [13]for the [g] divisions of the priests and of the [h] Levites, and all the work of the service in the house of the LORD; for all the vessels for the service in the house of the LORD, [14]the weight of gold for all golden vessels for each service, the weight of silver vessels for each service, [15]the weight of the golden [i] lampstands and their lamps, the weight of gold for each lampstand and its lamps, the weight of silver for a lampstand and its lamps, according to the use of each lampstand in the service, [16]the weight of gold for each table for the showbread, the silver for the silver tables, [17]and pure gold for the forks, the basins and the cups; for the golden bowls and the weight of each; for the silver bowls and the weight of each; [18]for the [j] altar of incense made of refined gold, and its weight; also his plan for the golden chariot of the [k] cherubim that spread their wings and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD. [19][^][‡]“All this he made clear to me in writing from the hand of the LORD, [l] all the work to be done according to the plan.”

[20][^][‡]Then David said to Solomon his son, [m] “Be strong and courageous and do it. Do not be afraid and do not be dismayed, for the LORD God, even my God, is with you. He will not leave you or forsake you, until all the work for the service of the house of the LORD is finished. [21][^]And behold the [n] divisions of the priests and the Levites for all the service of the house of God; and with you in all the work will be [o] every willing man who has skill for any kind of service; also the officers and all the people will be wholly at your command.”

Offerings for the Temple

1 CHRONICLES 29 [‡]And David the king said to all the assembly, “Solomon my son, whom alone God has chosen, is [p] young and inexperienced, and the work is great, for [q] the palace will not be for man but for the LORD God. [2]So I have provided for the house of my God, so far as I was able, the gold for the things of gold, the silver for the things of silver, and the bronze for the things of bronze, the iron for the things of iron, and wood for the things of wood, besides great quantities of [r] onyx and stones for setting, antimony, colored stones, all sorts of precious stones and marble. [3]Moreover, in addition to all that I have provided for the holy house, I have a treasure of my own of gold and silver, and because of my devotion to the house of my God I give it to the house of my God: [4] [s] 3,000 talents [1] of gold, of the gold of [t] Ophir, and 7,000 talents of refined silver, for overlaying the walls of the house, [2] [5]and for all the work to be done by craftsmen, gold for the things of gold and silver for the things of silver. Who then will offer willingly, consecrating himself [3] today to the LORD?”

[6][^]Then [u] the leaders of fathers’ houses made their freewill offerings, as did also the leaders of the tribes, the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and [v] the officers over the king’s work. [7][‡]They gave for the service of the house of God 5,000 talents and 10,000 [w] darics [4] of gold, 10,000 talents of silver, 18,000 talents of bronze and 100,000 talents of iron. [8]And whoever had precious stones gave them to the treasury of the house of the LORD, in the care of [x] Jehiel the Gershonite. [9]Then the people rejoiced because they had given willingly, for with a [y] whole heart they had offered freely to the LORD. David the king also rejoiced greatly.

David Prays in the Assembly

[10][‡]Therefore David blessed the LORD in the presence of all the assembly. And David said: [z] “Blessed are you, O LORD, the God of Israel our father, forever and ever. [11] [a] Yours, O LORD, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty, for all that is in the heavens and in the earth is yours. Yours is the kingdom, O LORD, and you are exalted as head above all. [12] [b] Both riches and honor come from you, and you rule over all. [c] In your hand are power and might, and in your hand it is to make great and to give strength to all. [13] And now we thank you, our God, and praise your glorious name.

[14] “But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able thus to offer willingly? For all things come from you, and of your own have we given you. [15] [d] For we are strangers before you and sojourners, as all our fathers were. Our days on the earth are [e] like a shadow, and there is no abiding. [5] [16] O LORD our God, all this abundance that we have provided for building you a house for your holy name comes from your hand and is all your own. [17] I know, my God, [f] that you test the heart and [g] have pleasure in uprightness. In the uprightness of my heart I have freely offered all these things, and now I have seen your people, who are present here, offering freely and joyously to you. [18] [^]O LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, our fathers, keep forever such purposes and thoughts in the hearts of your people, and direct their hearts toward you. [19] [h] Grant to Solomon my son a whole heart that he may keep your commandments, your testimonies, and your statutes, performing all, and that he may [i] build the palace [j] for which I have made provision.”

[20] Then David said to all the assembly, [k] “Bless the LORD your God.” And all the assembly blessed the LORD, the God of their fathers, [l] and bowed their heads and paid homage to the LORD and to the king. [21] And they offered sacrifices to the LORD, and on the next day offered burnt offerings to the LORD, 1,000 bulls, 1,000 rams, and 1,000 lambs, with their [m] drink offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel. [22] [†]And they ate and drank before the LORD on that day with great gladness.

Solomon Anointed King

And they made Solomon the son of David king [n] the second time, and they [o] anointed him as prince for the LORD, and [p] Zadok as priest.

[23] [‡] [q] Then Solomon sat on the [r] throne of the LORD as king in place of David his father. And he prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. [24] All the leaders and the mighty men, and also all the sons of King David, pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. [25]And the LORD made Solomon very [s] great in the sight of all Israel and [t] bestowed on him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

The Death of David

[26][†]Thus David the son of Jesse reigned over all Israel. [27]The [u] time that he reigned over Israel was forty years. He reigned seven years in Hebron and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. [28]Then he died [v] at a good age, [w] full of days, riches, and honor. And Solomon his son reigned in his place. [29]Now the acts of King David, from first to last, are written in the Chronicles [x] of Samuel the seer, and in the Chronicles of [y] Nathan the prophet, and in the Chronicles of [z] Gad the seer, [30]with accounts of all his rule and his might and of the circumstances [a] that came upon him and upon Israel and upon all the kingdoms of the countries.

Study Notes for 1 Chronicles

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:1–9:44 A Genealogical Presentation of the Tribes of Israel. The genealogies of chs. 1–9 are intended to show the Chronicler's own generation, now existing as the small province of Yehud (Judah) in the Persian Empire, that they are still God's people Israel and retain their central place in God's purposes for humanity. The identity and legitimacy of this people are traced in a line beginning with Adam (1:1) and extending through the tribes of Israel (chs. 2–8) down to the community of Judean exiles restored from captivity in Babylon (9:2–34). This community is depicted not as the sum total of the people but as the representative nucleus or focus to which "all Israel" may join in God's work of restoration. The tribal genealogies have been carefully structured to show how the Chronicler conceived of Israel:

Judah (2:3–4:23)
Simeon (4:24–43)
The Transjordanian tribes (5:1–26)
Levi (6:1–81)
The northern tribes (7:1–40)
Benjamin (8:1–40)

The greatest amount of detail is devoted to Judah, Levi, and Benjamin. Judah and Benjamin bracket the lists, while Levi is placed at the center. The significance of this arrangement is discussed in greater detail below; briefly, it indicates that Judah and Benjamin (the core of the old southern kingdom, along with Simeon, whose territory was merged with Judah's) enclose or enfold Israel, while the Levites provide its spiritual heart.

This section also announces in advance some of the book's key themes: Israel's history of unfaithfulness (Hb. ma'al), leading to exile (5:25–26; 9:1); the persistence of the Davidic line after the exile as the bearer of God's promise to his people (3:17–24); and the central role of the Levites and the Aaronic priests in offering worship and making atonement for Israel (6:1–81).

The opening chapter, drawn almost wholly from Genesis, traces the descent of Israel (as Jacob is consistently known in the book) from Adam and depicts the place of his descendants among the nations. The line of divine election runs from Adam through 10 generations to Noah, then through Shem in 10 generations to Abraham and on to Israel. The author highlights this theme by presenting first the secondary lines of descent before dealing, last of all, with the figures who form the ancestral link between Adam and Israel. The descendants of Japheth and Ham (1 Chron. 1:5–16) are listed before the Shemites, leading to Abraham (1:17–27). Next, the descendants of Abraham's concubines Hagar and Keturah are given (1:29–33) before Isaac (1:34); then Esau's line (1:35–54) before Israel's sons (2:1).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:1–54 Adam to Esau. This first genealogy takes the story from Adam, the first human, through Abraham and Isaac; then it focuses on Isaac's son Esau and the kings who descended from him.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:1–4 From Genesis 5. Israel's direct ancestral link with Adam means that Israel is the focus of God's purpose from creation. The line of Noah marks a fresh start for humanity after the flood.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:5–27 From Gen. 10:1–29; 11:10–32. Israel is located within the nations of the world, which are similarly God's creation and part of his purpose for Israel. The line of election is continued through Abraham, who is also recalled as the recipient of covenantal promises in 1 Chron. 16:16 and 2 Chron. 20:7.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:28–34 The details of Abraham's descendants are drawn from Gen. 25:1–4, 12–16. The concubine (1 Chron. 1:32) was an auxiliary wife; cf. Gen. 25:6, which speaks of Keturah in this way.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:35–54 From Gen. 36:10–14, 20–28, 31–43. The descendants of Esau and the sons of Seir (the Edomites) are considered together here, as both inhabited the neighboring territory of Edom, and the latter would often have conflicting relations with Judah (2 Chron. 20:10; 21:8; 25:5–13; 28:17). And of Timna, Amalek (1 Chron. 1:36) is literally "and Timna and Amalek." The names have been added here in an abbreviated note from Gen. 36:12, which here, as elsewhere in this chapter (e.g., 1 Chron. 1:4), omits kinship details.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:1–2 The Sons of Israel. The line of divine election culminates in the sons of Israel, the subject of the following genealogies. But the Chronicler does not consider them in the traditional order of these verses (drawn apparently from Gen. 35:22–26). Further, his actual listing of the 12 tribes differs because it includes the half-tribes of Manasseh in Transjordan (1 Chron. 5:23–26) and west of the Jordan (7:14–19) and omits mention of Zebulun and Dan.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:3–4:23 The Tribe of Judah. The first and most extensive place is given to Judah. This material is of diverse origin and much of it is fragmentary, but the author has arranged it as follows into an artistic whole according to the principles of a large-scale inclusio (or concentric-ring structure in which the last elements repeat the first):

2:3 Shelah, the oldest surviving son of Judah
2:4–8 Perez and Zerah, Judah's sons by Tamar
2:9–3:24 Hezron, ancestor of David and his line
4:1–20 Perez's other descendants
4:21–23 Shelah's descendants

As is common in such literary arrangements, the central unit (2:9–3:24) is the focus of chief interest because it leads to David, the central human character in Chronicles. This unit has its own complex arrangement of materials (see below).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:3–8 In the Chronicler's presentation, Judah is preeminent in Israel as a matter of divine choice, both as "leader" of the other tribes and as the source of David and his line, who are the bearers of divine promises of good for Israel (see 28:4). Judah's five sons demonstrate both Yahweh's judgment on disobedience (Er, Onan, Shelah) and his electing grace in continuing the lines of Perez and Zerah, the twins born from Judah's illicit union with Tamar (Genesis 38). Achan is 'Akar ("trouble") in the Hebrew text, an example of wordplay on the troubler (Hb. 'oker) of Israel (see Josh. 7:24–26). His breach of faith (broke faith, Hb. ma'al) is the first instance of a key term in the book that denotes Israel's failure to reverence Yahweh and render to him his due in obedience and worship (see Lev. 26:40). The Chronicler sees this as the archetypal sin of Israel that punctuates its history from beginning to end (see 1 Chron. 5:25; 9:1; 10:13; 2 Chron. 12:2; 26:16, 18; 28:19; 29:6, 19; 30:7; 36:14). The terrible consequences of ma'al include the loss of the Promised Land and the pain of exile; nevertheless, the Chronicler will show that these penalties can be reversed by heartfelt repentance and faithful obedience. Such a response is expressed above all in true worship according to the Law of Moses. The election of David, whose ancestry is given next, is concerned primarily with the establishment of such worship in Israel.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:9–17 Verses 10–12 are drawn mainly from Ruth 4:19–22. In the Chronicler's presentation, only the line of David (1 Chron. 2:15) is derived from Ram, and the rest of Judah is considered under the rubric of Hezron's other sons, Jerahmeel and Caleb (Chelubai is a variant of "Caleb"). The genealogy of Ram down to David (vv. 10–17) and David's own descendants (3:1–24) form an inclusio (or literary "bookends") around the Calebites (2:18–24, 42–55) and Jerahmeelites (vv. 25–41). Although 1 Sam. 16:10–13 indicates that David was the eighth son of Jesse, the Chronicler presents him as the seventh, perhaps to indicate his favored place in God's purpose. Telescoping (the omission of names) is a common feature of these genealogies, and often carries theological significance. (See note on 1 Sam. 16:10.)

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:18–24 Caleb the son of Hezron is to be distinguished from the later contemporary of Joshua (see 4:15). He was a forefather of Bezalel (2:20), the principal craftsman for the tabernacle (Ex. 31:2; 2 Chron. 1:5). By placing a reference to Bezalel directly after the genealogy of David, the author indicates the very close connection between the Davidic monarchy and the temple, one of the central themes of his historical narrative.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:25–41 Two lists (vv. 25–33 and 34–41) have been joined together here, probably from material preserved by this clan, the descendants of Jerahmeel, the firstborn of Hezron. The Jerahmeelites lived in the Negeb, on Judah's southern frontier, in David's day (1 Sam. 27:10). If this record of 23 generations is complete, Elishama may have been a contemporary of David, and the Chronicler would be drawing on ancient records from the early monarchy.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:42–55 An addition to vv. 18–24, comprising early lists of the descendants of Caleb (vv. 42–50a) and his son Hur (vv. 50b–55). Personal and place names are found together in this section (Hebron, Beth-zur, Kiriath-jearim, Bethlehem), so “father” here sometimes denotes the “founder” or “leader” of a city.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:1–24 The genealogy of Ram (2:10–17) is resumed in this composite list of David’s descendants, recounted in three distinct sections: David’s children (3:1–9); Solomon and the kings of Judah (vv. 10–16); and the postexilic generations (vv. 17–24). The literary arrangement of this material is an important indicator of the author’s message: just as Judah heads the genealogies of Israel (though Reuben was in fact the firstborn), the line of David’s descendants is placed in the center of the genealogy of Judah as the focus of hope and expectation.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:1–9 Drawn mainly from 2 Sam. 3:2–5 and 5:14–16 (see notes there), with a few textual variations (Daniel for “Chileab,” and the addition of Eliphelet, 1 Chron. 3:6, and Nogah, v. 7). The Chronicler’s narrative omits discussion of the troubles that beset David’s family in later years (2 Samuel 13–19; 1 Kings 1), but mention here of Amnon, Absalom, Adonijah, and Tamar implies that the reader is expected to be familiar with these accounts.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:10–16 The complete Davidic line down to the exile is given here, following the spelling used in Kings (Azariah is a variant of “Uzziah,” 2 Chronicles 26). The pattern is altered in 1 Chron. 3:15–16 because Josiah was succeeded by three of his sons, but not according to their birth order: Shallum (throne name: Jehoahaz), replaced by Jehoiakim (succeeded by his own son, Jeconiah [a variant of “Jehoiachin”]), then Zedekiah, the last king of Judah.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:17–24 Although the monarchy ceased to function as a political fact with the fall of Jerusalem (586 B.C.), the continuation of David’s line after the exile still testified to God’s promise of an enduring “house” for him, through which God’s kingdom would be eternally established (17:10b, 14). Zerubbabel played a central role in the restoration of the temple (Ezra 5:2; Hag. 1:12–15). Possibly Ezra 3:2, which calls Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, implies an adoption or levirate marriage (see note on Matt. 22:24). It is unclear from 1 Chron. 3:21 whether this list runs for six generations or more into the postexilic period, but in either case it appears to extend down to, or close to, the Chronicler’s own day. The preservation of the Davidic line in the family of Elioenai (v. 24) should inspire trust among the postexilic community in God's ancient promises, although no particular individual is identified here as David's successor. The Chronicler holds to the ancient messianic hope focused on the house of David, but does not specify how or through whom it will be fulfilled.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:19 sons of Zerubbabel. Matthew 1:13 and Luke 3:27 both trace Jesus' descent from David through other sons of Zerubbabel than those mentioned here. Apparently they were using other historical records than those preserved in 1 Chronicles.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:1–23 Information about other clans rounds off the genealogy of Judah and completes the literary inclusio (see note on 2:3–4:23) into which all this fragmentary and diverse material has been arranged: vv. 1–20 of ch. 4 supply additional details of the descendants of Perez (2:4–8), while 4:21–23 fill out the lineage of Judah's third son, Shelah (2:3), the first to have children after the "false starts" with Er and Onan.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:1 "Caleb" would be expected here, rather than Carmi, which may reflect early scribal confusion (see Gen. 46:9) or textual corruption of "Chelubai" (1 Chron. 2:9).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:9–10 Jabez prays that his name (Hb. ya'bets), which contains the same three consonants ('-b-ts) as the Hebrew for "pain" ('otseb), will not be an ill omen, but rather that he will live under God's blessing and protection (with land equating to livelihood). That God answers heartfelt prayer is a prominent theme of the narrative. On the gift of territorial expansion and divine protection in response to prayer, see 5:20–22 and 2 Chron. 20:6–12.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:13–15 The Kenizzites appear to have been a southern tribe that was absorbed into Judah. Othniel was the first major judge of Israel (Judg. 3:7–11) and a nephew of Caleb (Josh. 15:17).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:21–23 linen workers … potters. These records from preexilic times (vv. 22–23) indicate that certain Israelite clans, at least, acted as guilds, specializing in particular trades or crafts such as linen work or pottery; see 2:55 on scribes. Lehem may be Bethlehem. Royal seal impressions from jar handles dating from the Iron II period (1000–586 B.C.) have been found throughout Israel. The impressions contain two-line inscriptions: the upper line reads "belonging to the king"; the lower line contains names of cities. The towns mentioned in 4:23 may have supplied such goods.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:24–43 The Tribe of Simeon. The tribe of Simeon is considered next because its allotted territory lay within Judah's borders and was taken from that tribe (vv. 28–33; see Josh. 19:1–9), though by David's time (1 Chron. 4:31) Simeon had been largely absorbed back into Judah. Nevertheless, some Simeonite clans maintained their tribal identity through genealogical records (vv. 34–38), which would have included the historical notes of two military expansions undertaken to relieve the pressures of overpopulation (v. 38): one westward into Philistine territory in the days of Hezekiah in the eighth century B.C. (vv. 39–41), and another into the southern part of the Negeb (vv. 42–43). The westward campaign to Gedor (probably "Gerar") is depicted in the language of the conquest under Joshua: marked … for destruction (v. 41) signifies the religious kherem (Hb.) or "ban," in which a pagan people and their goods were "devoted" or wholly destroyed (see note on 1 Sam. 15:3).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:1–26 The Transjordanian Tribes. The Transjordanian tribe of Reuben (vv. 1–10), tribe of Gad (vv. 11–17), and half-tribe of Manasseh (vv. 23–26) are considered next, although by the Chronicler's time these tribes had largely lost their own identities as a consequence of the Assyrian invasions in the eighth century B.C. Nonetheless, the Chronicler still included within his conception of "all Israel" whatever remnants of the northern tribes still existed (see 2 Chron. 30:10–20).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:1–2 On account of Reuben's grave sin against his father, he forfeited his birthright as Israel/Jacob's firstborn to Joseph's sons Ephraim and Manasseh (see Gen. 35:22; 49:3–4), while leadership passed to Judah, from whose tribe David (a chief) arose. Yet the Chronicler expresses a receptive openness to the non-Judahite Israelites by stressing that the birthright belonged to Joseph, whose descendants formed the core of the former northern kingdom.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:3–6 This is a fragmentary genealogy of Reuben's line, extending down to their exile by the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III, in his conquest of Gilead (Transjordanian Israel) in 733 B.C. See also 2 Chron. 28:19–21.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:7–10 These verses recount an earlier expansion of the Reubenites into Gilead, a land later recaptured by the Moabites (in the 9th century B.C.). The Hagrites were linked with the Moabites (Ps. 83:6) and were understood to be descendants of Hagar (Genesis 16).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:11–17 The Chronicler's information about the descendants of Gad in Bashan (roughly, to the northeast of the Sea of Galilee) is taken from records (possibly a military census; see v. 18) dating from the eighth century B.C. reigns of Jotham king of Judah and Jeroboam king of Israel (v. 17).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:18–22 for they cried out to God (v. 20). The Chronicler has reworked a military census and battle report (v. 18) concerning the two and a half tribes to express one of his characteristic theological ideas: that God answers his people and grants them victory when they cry out to him in trusting prayer (see 2 Chron. 13:13–16; 14:9–15; 20:5–12, 22–23). They prevailed over them (1 Chron. 5:20) may be (see esv footnote), "they were helped to prevail over them," an allusion to divine aid in battle. For examples of "help" as a theological concept, see 12:18; 2 Chron. 25:8; 32:8.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:22 because the war was of God. See also 2 Chron. 20:15 and 32:8 for the idea that God fights for his people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:23–24 The half-tribe of Manasseh lived east of the Jordan between the boundary of Gad's territory (Bashan) and Mount Hermon in Lebanon. These details are probably drawn from old military records. Their large numbers and their extensive lands indicate divine blessing.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:25–26 Nevertheless, the half-tribe of Manasseh was defeated and exiled, along with the Reubenites and Gadites, into Assyrian lands by Tiglath-pileser (known as "Pulu" in the Babylonian Chronicle; see note on 2 Kings 15:16–22). However this may have looked from the perspective of worldly politics, the Chronicler attributes the defeat and exile to God's initiative in human affairs: the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Pul (see also 2 Chron. 21:16; 36:22). The writer's brief account is based on 2 Kings 17:7–23, along with particular details from 2 Kings 15:29; 17:6; 18:11, to which he has added his own characteristic emphasis, that because these idolatrous Israelites broke faith (Hb. ma'al), they were punished by suffering foreign invasion and exile. Exactly the same fate will befall Judah for the same reasons (1 Chron. 9:1; 2 Chron. 36:14–20). Just as 1 Chron. 5:20–22 portrays the result of faithfulness to God, vv. 25–26 depict the consequences of the opposite attitude. This basic contrast will be reflected throughout the narrative. The fate of these Transjordanian tribes is representative of the other northern tribes' fate as well. The Chronicler does not, however, describe their invasion and deportation by the Assyrians, but only alludes to these events in 2 Chron. 30:6–7.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:1–81 The Tribe of Levi. The significance of Levi is shown both by the amount of space devoted to this tribe and by its central position within this section of the book. Just as Judah (2:3–4:23) heads the genealogies of Israel (because of the leadership provided by the Davidic monarchy), and Benjamin (8:1–40) concludes them (because of its close association with the preexilic kingdom of Judah and the restoration community), Levi is placed in the literary and spiritual center of the Chronicler's ideal conception of Israel. The Chronicler will show that the Davidic monarchy and the Jerusalem temple (which is served in every respect by the Levites) together constitute the institutional foundations of Israel's existence, and in fact have a mutually supportive relationship. Primacy among the Levites belongs to the Aaronic high priests (6:1–15), who offered sacrifices of atonement for a guilty nation (v. 49)—one of the principal themes of the book (see 2 Chron. 7:12–14; 29:24). Other Levites were charged with the ministry of worship in Gibeon and Jerusalem (1 Chron. 6:31–48), another matter to which the Chronicler will frequently draw attention (see 16:7, 37; 23:1–27:34; 2 Chron. 29:27–28). At the same time, the Levites, who possessed no tribal territory themselves, are distributed throughout the cities of Israel (1 Chron. 6:54–81).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:1–15 Drawing from Ex. 6:16–25 for 1 Chron. 6:1–4a, this genealogy focuses on the line of Eleazar descended through Kohath from Levi, as the origin of the high-priestly line down to the exiled Jehozadak. The list of high priests is incomplete, omitting several mentioned in other parts of this book (Jehoiada, 2 Chron. 22:11; two other Azariahs, 2 Chron. 26:20, 31:10) and elsewhere in the OT (Eli and his descendants, 1 Sam. 14:3; Uriah, 2 Kings 16:10). The concluding note on the deportation of Jehozadak is a sober reminder that sin and its consequences touched even the most sacred person among the people (see 2 Chron. 36:14). Nevertheless, Jehozadak's line was preserved into the postexilic period (see Ezra 5:2, where he is called Jozadak), just as David's line was (1 Chron. 3:17–24), as indications of God's continuing commitment to his people. One of the insistent themes of Chronicles is that God's grace is not nullified by human disobedience, but that rather God creates fresh opportunities for each generation to trust and obey.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:10 Azariah. See note on 1 Kings 4:2.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:16–30 This section details the three main divisions or clans of the Levites, descended from Gershom (the Chronicler's usual spelling for "Gershon"), Kohath, and Merari. Verses 16–19a are based on Num. 3:17–20. Seven generations are given for the descendants of Gershom and Merari, probably taking them down to the time of David, who reorganized the duties of the Levites (on Asaiah, 1 Chron. 6:30, see 15:6).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:22–27 The Kohathite line is a little more difficult to follow. Amminadab may be an alternative name for Izhar (see v. 38) or Amram (v. 18). Verses 22–27 present the vertical line of descent from Korah, also giving seven generations, from Kohath through Assir to Shaul. Combined with this are horizontal lines of the family tree (Elkanah and Ebiasaph, v. 23, are Assir's brothers).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:28 The genealogy of the prophet Samuel identifies him as a Kohathite. First Samuel 1:1 states that his father Elkanah was from an "Ephraimite" family, but this may indicate the locality in which they lived as part of a Kohathite clan (see Josh. 21:20–21) rather than their tribal identity. A clear genealogical link with the Kohathite singer Heman is established in 1 Chron. 6:33–38 (basically the same as vv. 22–28, with the names arranged in a single vertical line).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:31–48 Genealogical details are provided of the Levites whom David put in charge of the service of song (v. 31) before the ark in Jerusalem and the tabernacle in Gibeon (explained in detail in 16:4–6, 41–42). Their leaders were appointed from each of the Levitical clans: Heman, from the Kohathites (6:33–38); Asaph, from the Gershomites (vv. 39–43); and Ethan, from the Merarites (vv. 44–47). Each line is traced back vertically to Levi.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:49–53 The work of the Aaronic priests in making atonement for Israel will be a recurrent theme in the narrative as the means of restoring and maintaining Israel's relationship with God (see 2 Chron. 13:10–11; 29:21). Verses 50–53 of 1 Chronicles 6 repeat vv. 4–8 to enclose the Levitical genealogies within the line of Aaronides down to Zadok and Ahimaaz, who were contemporaries of Solomon. Aaron's first two sons, Nadab and Abihu, who died for their disobedience, are not mentioned here (cf. v. 3; 24:1–2; also Ex. 6:23; 24:9; Lev. 10:1–7; Num. 3:2–4; 26:60–61).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:54–81 Summarized from Joshua 21 with some small omissions and variations of order. As a sign of their central role in the nation's life and well-being, it was intended that the Levites, with no allocated tribal land of their own, should reside throughout the tribal territory of Israel as spiritual representatives and leaders of the people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:1–40 Other Northern Tribes. This chapter contains briefer details of those tribes, including part of Benjamin, that belonged to the old northern kingdom of Israel. They are enclosed within the genealogies as part of the Chronicler's ideal conception of "all Israel" as a unity that existed in David's time (v. 2), even though their lands were no longer under Israelite control at the time of the Chronicler's writing.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:1–5 The list of the descendants of Issachar is composed from Gen. 46:13, Num. 26:23–25, and a military census from David's reign (1 Chron. 7:2–5; see ch. 21).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:6–12 These details of Benjamin differ from other lists (Gen. 46:21; Num. 26:38–39; 1 Chron. 8:1–3) and originate mainly in military registers (7:7, 9, 11), probably the same as for Issachar. A second Benjaminite genealogy is given in ch. 8, though for a different purpose.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:13 Drawn from Gen. 46:24 and Num. 26:48–49. The extreme brevity may reflect the limitations in the Chronicler's sources. Details for Dan and Zebulun are also missing, probably because of the fragmentary nature of records from the early monarchy.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:14–19 This section concerns the half of Manasseh that lived west of the Jordan. Details are drawn from Num. 26:29–33 and Josh. 17:1–3. This genealogy is of a different character from the preceding ones, with a particular emphasis on women (Maacah, Zelophehad, Hammolecheth), suggesting an origin in the domestic social world. Maacah is called the sister of Machir in 1 Chron. 7:15, then his wife in v. 16; but "sister/brother" often has the sense of "relative" in the OT.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:15 and Zelophehad had daughters. See Num. 26:33; 27:1–11.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:20–29 The vertical genealogy of Joshua, the most famous Ephraimite, is given in vv. 20–27 (from Num. 26:35). Into this list a historical note (1 Chron. 7:21b–24) has been inserted that probably refers to the postconquest period: the building of Lower and Upper Beth-horon fits better with the time of tribal settlement. In this case, Ephraim (v. 22) would refer not to the patriarch but to a later descendant of the same name. Gath may be Gittaim, on the Ephraimite border. Verses 28–29 draw on Joshua 16–17 for details of the settlements of Ephraim and Manasseh, since both tribes descended from Joseph.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:30–40 Genesis 46:17, Num. 26:44–46, and details from a military register (1 Chron. 7:40) provide the information for Asher. The total of fighting men for Asher (26,000, v. 40) is significantly less than that in Moses' day (Num. 26:47).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:1–40 The Tribe of Benjamin. Although Benjamin has already been considered (7:6–12), a second, more detailed genealogy of this tribe is given here that has little in common with the earlier list and serves a different function. The structure of Judah-Levi-Benjamin is completed here. The other tribes are enclosed within an ideal conception of Israel as a nation led by the royal tribe of Judah in partnership with its neighbor Benjamin, with Levi at the center to remind the people of their spiritual vocation. Although most of Benjamin sided with the north in the disruption of the kingdom under Rehoboam, the Benjaminite area around Jerusalem as far as Bethel remained loyal to the Davidic king (see 1 Kings 12:21). Judah (including Simeon) and Benjamin formed the southern kingdom, and they are regularly mentioned together in this book (2 Chron. 11:1–3, 10; 14:8; 15:2, 9; 31:1). Together they were the legitimate heirs of Israel as it existed under the united monarchy. Judah and Benjamin also formed the core of the postexilic community in Jerusalem and Judah (cf. Ezra 1:5; Neh. 11:4–9). Verses 1–28 of 1 Chronicles 8 are especially concerned with the location of the Benjaminite settlements in Jerusalem and further afield (vv. 6, 12, 13, 28, 29, 32). Most of the details in this section are probably from preexilic sources. They would have reminded the Chronicler's readers of their identity and ancient claim to the land, founded on God's promise and gift (16:17–18; 2 Chron. 20:7).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:1–7 The descendants of the famous judge Ehud (Judg. 3:15), who settled in the Benjaminite city of Geba (see 1 Kings 15:22) before their removal to Manahath (probably in Judah).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:8–27 These are the descendants of Elpaal, who led a westward expansion into the coastal plain (vv. 12–13) and settled in Jerusalem (v. 28).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:29–40 This is the genealogy of the most famous Benjaminite family, detailing the ancestry of Saul and his descendants through 15 generations. (Ner, in 1 Sam. 14:50, has the same name as Saul's ancestor.) The first section of the list is probably of early preexilic origin, since it contains names that would have been unacceptable in later times because of possible pagan connotations (Baal, 1 Chron. 8:30; Eshbaal, v. 33, is known elsewhere as Ishbosheth, 2 Sam. 2:8; and Merib-baal, 1 Chron. 8:34, is known as Mephibosheth, 2 Sam. 4:4). First Chronicles 8:35–38 extends the family line into the late preexilic time. These details are not known from other earlier sources, and were preserved among those families that prized the memory of their descent from Israel's first king.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:1–34 The Resettlement of Jerusalem. The Chronicler focuses on the worship personnel who return to inhabit Jerusalem.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:1 The summarizing conclusion to the tribal genealogies of all Israel in chs. 2–8. Judah's exile to Babylon for breach of faith (Hb. ma'al) parallels the fate of the northern tribes (see 5:25–26) and represents the culmination of the narrative of the post-Solomonic dynasty in 2 Chron. 10–36 (see esp. 2 Chron. 36:14–20). the Book of the Kings of Israel. See note on 1 Kings 14:19.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:2–34 The resettlement of Jerusalem and Judah after the exile indicates that a new chapter has opened in Israel's existence. The punishment of exile is past (2 Chron. 36:22–23), so the people should respond to God's grace by ordering their lives in the right way, in the hope of a fuller restoration than their present experience. Their obedient response includes repopulating Jerusalem (1 Chron. 9:2–17; for an account of how this was encouraged by Nehemiah see Neh. 11:1–19, which is closely related to this passage), and a renewed commitment to supporting the temple and its services, signified here by its personnel (1 Chron. 9:10–33).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:3–9 The repopulated Jerusalem includes people from Ephraim and Manasseh, as well as Judah and Benjamin, as a representative nucleus of all Israel. The Judahites are listed as descendants of the patriarch's sons Perez, Shelah (assuming the word Shilonites should have the vowels for "Shelanites"; see Num. 26:20), and Zerah.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:10–13 The priests in postexilic Jerusalem are commended for their ability and commitment to the temple ministry (v. 13). Their numbers (1,760) have grown significantly since earlier days (1,192 in Neh. 11:12–14).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:14–16 The Levitical singers and musicians include descendants of Asaph and Jeduthun, choir leaders in David's day (6:39; 25:1). Other singers lived in the villages of the Netophathites, near Bethlehem (Neh. 12:28).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:17–32 The Chronicler gives special attention to the Levitical gatekeepers, tracing their authority to their service under Phinehas (v. 20; see Num. 25:6–11) and their appointment by David (1 Chron. 9:22; 26:1–32). Along with their primary duty of safeguarding the sanctity and security of the temple (which entailed regular shifts by Levites from the villages near Jerusalem, 9:22–25), the gatekeepers were also responsible for the utensils and supplies used in the daily sacrifices (vv. 28–32).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:31 and Mattithiah … was entrusted with making the flat cakes. The responsibilities of vv. 28–31 may strike the modern reader as obscure and dull. Perhaps they seemed so to the ancient reader as well. Nevertheless, the whole work of the sanctuary depended on the faithfulness of these men; and all of God's people may take comfort from this reminder that God both notices and remembers those who faithfully perform routine tasks in service to him. The mention of these servants was probably a source of pride to their later descendants.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:35–44 The Genealogy of Saul. Saul's genealogy is repeated from 8:29–38. Its main purpose here is to introduce the Chronicler's account of Saul's reign (ch. 10). While his dynasty ended with his death (10:6), nevertheless his family line continued for many generations as a part of Israel (9:40–44).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:40 Merib-baal. See note on 8:29–40.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–2 Chron. 9:31 The United Kingdom of David and Solomon. The second major section of 1–2 Chronicles concerns the reigns of David and Solomon over the whole people and land of Israel, and overlaps the division of Chronicles into two scrolls. The rule of these two kings is presented as a unity, in that David makes the essential preparations for what Solomon completes. David is the dominant personality and human subject of interest from 1 Chronicles 11 to the end of the first book. With regard to his own rule and contributions to the kingdom, four achievements stand out in particular: (1) David conquers Jerusalem and brings the ark of the covenant there, as a precursor to the temple that Solomon will build (chs. 11; 15); (2) he secures peace for the land so that Solomon may complete his task (chs. 18–20); (3) he provides Solomon with the plans for the temple and the wealth to build it (chs. 22;

28–29); and (4) he organizes the personnel for the future temple and the kingdom that Solomon will inherit (chs. 23–27). The two kings are bound together as well in the establishment of an enduring dynasty in the line of David, in which both the temple and the kingship will testify to God's unending covenant with David (17:11–14). Chapters 10–12 recount the establishment of David's kingship over Israel in two episodes: the death of Saul and the end of his dynasty (10:1–14), and the transfer of power over the nation to David (11:1–12:40). The Chronicler presents these events in a strikingly different way from 1–2 Samuel. Presupposing his readers' familiarity with the earlier accounts, he omits most of the subsidiary episodes and details to concentrate on his central theme: David's entry into kingship inaugurated a permanent change for good in Israel's relationship with God. In short, David's rule was the instrument of God's own kingship in Israel, and he was raised to that office by the prophetic word for the salvation of the people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–12:40 David's Rise to Power over Israel. After the death of Saul, David rises to be king over all Israel. The Chronicler focuses on the unity of Israel as it acclaims David as its king, passing over most of the conflict with Saul and Ishbosheth that 2 Samuel describes.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–12 Taken mainly from 1 Sam. 31:1–13. Saul's reign is significant for the Chronicler only as a failure. It ends in disaster for Israel at the hands of the Philistines (1 Chron. 10:7), against whom Saul had originally been raised up as a military savior (1 Sam. 9:16). Saul's death, together with three of his sons, also marks the end of his royal house (1 Chron. 10:6): none of his descendants (see 8:33–40) will rule in his place over Israel. temple of Dagon (10:10). Saul's humiliation after his death contrasts with the triumph of the ark over Dagon in 1 Sam. 5:1–4.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:4 Saul took his own sword and fell upon it. See note on 2 Sam. 1:6–10 for the claim that Saul did not commit suicide but rather was killed by an Amalekite.

Saul Dies on Mount Gilboa

c. 1010 B.C.

Philistine forces advanced to Shunem from Aphek and prepared to attack the Israelites near their camp in Jezreel. When the Philistines attacked the next morning, the Israelites retreated up the slopes of Mount Gilboa. Saul and three of his sons were killed, and the Philistines triumphantly put their bodies on display in the temple of Dagon at Beth-shean. Later, men from Jabesh-gilead traveled through the night and recovered the bodies.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:6 all his house died together. See note on 1 Sam. 31:6.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:11–12 Saul had saved Jabesh-gilead at the beginning of his reign (1 Samuel 11), a fact that the men of the city remembered, giving a proper burial to Saul and his sons. However, David later reburied their bones "in the land of Benjamin in Zela, in the tomb of Kish his father" (2 Sam. 21:14).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:13–14 the LORD …put him to death. This is the Chronicler's theological explanation for the death of Saul, caused by his breach of faith (Hb. ma'al; see 2:7; 5:25; 9:1), and expressed especially in failing to keep the command of the LORD (see 1 Sam. 13:13), consulting the medium of En-dor (1 Samuel 28), and failing to seek the Lord, which here denotes not the search for a prophetic oracle (which Saul had sought; see 1 Sam. 28:6) but rather the deficiency of his basic spiritual condition (see 1 Chron. 28:9). Therefore the LORD … turned the kingdom over to David (10:14). This is the main point of this chapter. A second decisive turning point from God in the history of the kingdom occurs in 2 Chron. 10:15, when Rehoboam "did not listen to the people."

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:1–12:40 David's accession to the kingship is presented as a sequence of growing recognition, power, and popular support from "all Israel" (11:1, 4, 10; 12:38). This section is organized as an inclusio (literary "bookends"), beginning and ending with David's anointing as king at Hebron (11:1–3; 12:38–40) and incorporating material illustrating this theme from different periods of David's rise to power and his actual rule.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:1–3 From 2 Sam. 5:1–3 (see note on 2 Sam. 5:1–5), omitting reference here to the war with Ishbosheth and David's seven-year reign in Hebron as king of Judah (2 Sam. 2:1–4:12; 5:4–5; contrast 1 Chron. 3:4; 29:27). David is recognized as king by all Israel and anointed as such according to the word of the LORD by Samuel (see 1 Sam. 13:14; 15:28).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:1 your bone and flesh. Even though there was a distinct division between Judah and the rest of Israel, they still recognized each other as kin (similarly, “brothers” in 2 Sam. 2:26–27).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:4–9 From 2 Sam. 5:6–10. The conquest of Jerusalem (see note on 2 Sam. 5:6) by David and all Israel (cf. 2 Sam. 5:6, “the king and his men”) is presented as the first act of his reign, providing him with a capital and stronghold, and the tribes with a focus of national unity. With an eye to his own postexilic community, the Chronicler presents Jerusalem as the possession not just of Judah, but of “all Israel,” from the beginning.

The Chronicler’s Presentation of the Reigns of David and Solomon

In contrast to 1–2 Samuel and 1–2 Kings, the Chronicler focuses overwhelmingly on the religious significance of the united reign of David and Solomon, principally their joint role in establishing the Davidic covenant and the Jerusalem temple. Little attention is paid to the personal and political dimensions of their rule. This difference of focus largely explains why and how the Chronicler has recast his sources, adding or omitting material, and sometimes reordering the narrative.

The Presentation of David’s Reign in 1 Chronicles 11–29	Chronicles passes over David’s sins against Uriah and Bathsheba, along with his ensuing family and political troubles.	Cf. 2 Samuel 11–24
	The Chronicler’s additions and expansions focus on David’s activity for the temple. David’s wars acquire materials for the temple. Additions to the census account (2 Samuel 24) explain the choice of the temple site in 1 Chronicles 21.	1 Chron. 18:8, 11; 21:27–22:1
	Extensive additions focus on David’s preparations for the temple and its personnel. David, as much as Solomon, shaped Israel’s traditions of worship in the temple.	1 Chronicles 22–29
The Presentation of Solomon’s Reign in 2 Chronicles 1–9	Chronicles omits the account of Solomon’s forceful rise to power over his enemies (but cf. 1 Kings 2:46; 2 Chron. 1:1).	Cf. 1 Kings 1–2
	Chronicles omits reference to Solomon’s delay of temple construction in order to build his palace, as well as details of that building.	Cf. 1 Kings 7:1–12
	Chronicles omits reference to Solomon’s foreign wives and his culpability for the division of the kingdom.	Cf. 1 Kings 11
	Chronicles moves the account of Solomon’s Egyptian wife, placing it after the temple’s dedication.	Cf. 1 Kings 3; 2 Chronicles 8
	Chronicles omits many of the details of the temple’s construction and furnishings found in 1 Kings 7:13–51, concentrating instead on the temple as the place of God’s earthly presence, and focusing on the act of dedication.	2 Chronicles 3–7
	Solomon’s prayer of dedication sets a pattern for all other royal prayers. The additions in 2 Chron. 7:12–16 highlight the temple as the place of repentance.	1 Kings 8; 2 Chronicles 6–7

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:8 the Millo (lit., “the fill”). See note on 2 Sam. 5:9.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:9 for the LORD of hosts was with him. A similar theme is seen in 1 Samuel, where David's successes are due not to him but to God's favor and presence in his life.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:10–47 From 2 Sam. 23:8–39, with additional material (1 Chron. 11:41b–47). These details of David's mighty men illustrate the kind of support David received both at the beginning and at later periods of his reign. Such support is not simply of human origin but is divinely ordained (v. 10).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:12–13 For some reason the material about Shammah from 2 Sam. 23:9–11 is not included here. The Chronicler may have skipped over this material intentionally, in which case the plurals "they … their" in 1 Chron. 11:14 (see esv footnote) indicate that others (possibly including David) were with Eleazar in this battle at Pas-dammim, a location not mentioned in 2 Samuel. Other interpreters, however, think the material in 2 Sam. 23:9b–11a was omitted from 1 Chron. 11:13 because of a later copyist's error.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:15–19 The identity of these three mighty men is not known.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:18 He poured it out to the LORD. David poured out the water as an offering to Yahweh and in deference to his loyal men, who risked their lives on his behalf; see note on 2 Sam. 23:16–17.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:25–47 The original list of the thirty (vv. 26–40b = 2 Sam. 23:24–39) has been supplemented with material from a different source (1 Chron. 11:41b–47; see note on 2 Sam. 23:8–39). The places associated with these names that can be identified are all in Transjordan (1 Chron. 11:42, 44, 46), indicating a preexilic origin to this list.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:1–22 Before his reign in Hebron, David took refuge from Saul in various strongholds in the Judean desert, then in Ziklag for 16 months, under the protection of the Philistine king Achish (1 Sam. 27:6). This section provides a literary flashback to those days and places, which are grouped within the larger unit of 1 Chron. 11:1–12:40 under the theme of growing support for David from every tribe of Israel. The catchword “help” connects this section, denoting personal commitment to and partnership with David in his task (vv. 1, 17, 18, 19, 21, 22). More specifically, “help” here signifies military support and originates in God’s own support for David (v. 18).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:1–7 These verses describe the growing support for David from Saul’s own tribe of Benjamin, during his stay in Ziklag, just before Saul’s death on Mount Gilboa.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:8–15 These verses detail the support that David received from the Gadites from Transjordan, during an earlier period, possibly at Adullam (1 Sam. 22:1) or Engedi, on the shore of the Dead Sea (1 Sam. 23:29).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:8 mighty and experienced warriors, expert with shield and spear. A frequent theme here (see vv. 2, 14, 21–22) is that the most skillful and heroic warriors in Israel are pledging allegiance to David, confirming that he is the Lord’s anointed and that God’s favor is on him.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:16–18 These verses reflect the same period, when David’s life is threatened by Saul, and the loyalty of those who come to him in his stronghold cannot be assumed. The prophecy by Amasai affirms and encourages loyalty to David, declaring that he enjoys God’s support. Peace does not imply absence of battle but victory and “success” that attains a full and lasting peace and well-being (see note on John 14:27). The Spirit clothed is the Chronicler’s characteristic idiom for prophetic inspiration (2 Chron. 15:1; 20:14; 24:20; see Judg. 6:34). David united the fractious tribes around his kingship, but that unity was shattered by his intemperate grandson Rehoboam. The northern tribes rejected Rehoboam’s rule in words that ironically echoed Amasai’s declaration of support: “What portion have we in David? We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse” (2 Chron. 10:16).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:19–21 On the Philistines’ relations with David, see 1 Samuel 29.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:22 from day to day men came to David to help him. A summarizing comment on the whole chapter: from small beginnings (1 Sam. 27:2), a great army was progressively gathered to David, up to his anointing as king in Hebron. like an army of God. David did not have to seek these warriors: God was strengthening him.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:23–37 These verses list military contingents from every tribe that defected to David in Hebron, corresponding to the elders of every tribe, who anointed him (11:3). To turn the kingdom of Saul over to him refers back to 10:14 and summarizes the overall theme of chs. 10–12. according to the word of the LORD. The tribes, like their elders (11:3), act in obedience to the prophetic word declaring David to be king. Some interpreters understand these to be the actual numbers of soldiers, since elsewhere the "tens" and "hundreds" and "thousands" add up correctly (see Num. 1:46). Others conclude that the total number of troops seems overly high for such a gathering. One possibility is that the word for "thousand" (Hb. 'elep) in a military census denotes a "unit" (of undetermined size); cf. note on Num. 1:20–46. It is also possible that the word originally had the vowels of the word for "chief" (Hb. 'allup). By this second possibility, the 6,800 in 1 Chron. 12:24 would reveal that Judah supplied 800 armed troops under six commanders. The contributions from Judah and Levi (vv. 26–28) may seem surprisingly low compared to the northern and Transjordanian tribes (vv. 30–37), but these numbers may indicate those who rallied to David at a later stage than others from their tribes (since David had already been king in Hebron for several years).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:38–40 for there was joy in Israel. The three-day festival celebrated the covenant made "before the LORD" between David and the elders of Israel (11:1–3). Religious celebrations in Chronicles are regularly characterized by joy (15:25; 29:22; 2 Chron. 7:8–10; 30:23–27). Under David's leadership, God had given the nation peace, unity, prosperity, and joy.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:1–16:43 David's Transfer of the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem. The ark signified the Mosaic covenant and was the symbol and location of God's presence on earth. But it had been neglected throughout Saul's reign, being laid up in the village of Kiriath-jearim (13:3, 5). David's concern for the ark is a sign of his commitment to God and his faithful regard for Israel's religious foundation from the time of Moses. His acting on this concern leads directly to the establishment of God's covenant with him (ch. 17), and the Davidic covenant in turn becomes the new, enlarged basis of Israel's existence. The Mosaic covenant, however, always remains the foundation. The Chronicler departs from the order of his source (2 Samuel 5–6) to present David's first attempt to retrieve the ark (1 Chron. 13:5–14 = 2 Sam. 6:1–11) before the establishment of his home and family in Jerusalem and his defeat of the Philistines (1 Chron. 14:1–17 = 2 Sam. 5:11–25). The point of this repositioning of material is to show where David's true priorities lie.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:1–4 David's consultation of the leaders and the assembly of Israel shows a concern with national unity and popular participation in issues touching the nation's life. The decision to retrieve the ark is jointly taken, rather than being purely David's concern. we did not seek it. Cf. "seek my face," 2 Chron. 7:14. To "seek" the ark would mean caring for it rightly as the focus of worship. "Seeking God" will emerge as a major theme of the narrative. David's reign will mark a decisive change from the days of Saul in the people's commitment to God and to the divinely authorized emblems of Israelite faith.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:5–6 As with the decision to retrieve the ark, the mission itself involves all Israel (vv. 5–6), and not simply David's soldiers (cf. 2 Sam. 6:1). Verse 5b of 1 Chronicles 13 describes the broadest possible participation of Israelites: from the Nile of Egypt to Lebo-hamath in the far northeast. For a comparable conception of the boundaries of the Promised Land, see Gen. 15:18. On the ark of God … who sits enthroned above the cherubim, see note on 1 Sam. 4:3–4.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:7–12 Despite their zeal, David and his companions on this occasion fail to respect the sanctity of the ark. Treatment of the ark is tantamount to treatment of God himself. Transporting it by cart (v. 7), as the Philistines had done (1 Samuel 6), rather than by the Levites bearing it on poles (Ex. 25:12–15; cf. note on 2 Sam. 6:3–4), demonstrated a lack of reverence for the sacred object of God's presence and for the Law of Moses. Uzzah's action was well-intentioned, but in taking hold of the ark as a layman, he similarly transgressed against its awesome holiness (see Num. 4:15; also note on 2 Sam. 6:6–11). The outburst of divine punishment against Uzzah both angers and frightens David, causing him to temporarily abandon the mission that had begun in such high spirits (1 Chron. 13:8). David and Israel must learn that God's holiness is a dangerous thing and should not be treated lightly.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:8 On David … celebrating before God with various instruments, see note on 2 Sam. 6:5.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:13–14 Leaving the ark with Obed-edom may have been a case of David's foisting his dangerous burden on the first convenient foreigner, particularly if Gittite (a resident of Gath) denotes a Philistine. Even so, the LORD blessed the household of Obed-edom, indicating his approval of the mission itself (and Obed-edom's care of the ark), though not the way the mission was conducted. God's blessing on Obed-edom's household is recalled in 26:4–5, where Obed-edom is ranked among the Levitical gatekeepers; cf. 15:18, 24.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:1–17 Some of the events described here actually preceded the first mission to collect the ark (see 2 Sam. 5:11–25), but as with 1 Chronicles 11–12, the writer is not offering an alternative chronology to his source in 2 Samuel. The events in question (esp. 1 Chron. 14:1, 3–5) were evidently not confined to the three months that the ark was in the house of Obed-edom (13:14). Rather, these materials have been repositioned here as illustrations of the Chronicler's message that blessings accrued to David because he gave priority to seeking God (see 13:3), and that his reign was the antithesis of Saul's. Although David had not gone about the mission in quite the correct way, his basic intentions were right. The blessings that come to David include a palace, a growing family, military success, and the acclaim and fear of the surrounding nations. Each of these will serve as typical blessings on righteous kings in the subsequent narrative. A subsidiary theme of this chapter is the consolidation of David's power in and around Jerusalem.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:1–2 Hiram king of Tyre. See note on 2 Sam. 5:11. Hiram's assistance in building David's house (palace) in Jerusalem signifies a Gentile ruler's recognition of David's kingship over Israel.

Hiram will later help Solomon build another “house,” the temple (2 Chron. 2:11–16).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:3–7 See 3:5–8. Nathan (14:4) was an ancestor of Jesus (Luke 3:31; see note on Luke 3:23–38). Beeliada was also known as Eliada (2 Sam. 5:16; 1 Chron. 3:8). The Chronicler omits a reference to Hebron in his source to concentrate on Jerusalem, the seat of David’s dynastic house (signified by Solomon, 14:4). David’s family flourishes, in contrast to Saul’s (10:6).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:8–16 The first battle between David and the Philistines (vv. 8–12) may be a flashback to the time before David had conquered Jerusalem (2 Sam. 5:17, the source of 1 Chron. 14:8, refers to “the stronghold,” possibly in Adullam, 1 Sam. 22:4). The time of the second battle is uncertain. In their present context, both battle reports illustrate the threats that existed to the ark’s progress to Jerusalem. David’s success against the Philistines cleared the way for the mission to be resumed unimpeded.

c. 1000 B.C.

Soon after David was established as king over all Israel, the Philistines prepared to attack David’s forces at the nearby Valley of Rephaim. David defeated them, but they regrouped and prepared for a second attack. This time David attacked them from the rear and struck them down from Geba (or perhaps Gibeon) to Gezer.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:10 David inquired of God. See note on 1 Sam. 23:2.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:15 sound of marching. See note on 2 Sam. 5:22–25.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:17 The Chronicler offers a summarizing comment, with another implicit contrast between David and Saul: victory leading to security for Israel and fame for David, as opposed to defeat leading to occupation of Israel's land by foreigners and ignominy for Saul (10:7, 13–14). The LORD brought the fear of him upon all nations. Such fear will keep them from attacking Israel. See also 2 Chron. 14:14; 17:10; 20:29 for other examples of a fear sent by God on neighboring peoples.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:1–29 David's second attempt to bring the ark to Jerusalem is successful because, as well as preparing a suitable place to receive the holy object, this time he instructs and organizes the Levites and priests in the right way of transporting it (see note on 13:7–12). The relatively brief account of the second mission in 2 Sam. 6:12–19 has been expanded here to show it as the climax of a carefully planned religious procession. Into the account of these preparations the Chronicler has inserted lists of the Levites involved and descriptions of their musical duties (1 Chron. 15:4–10, 16–24). David emerges as the decisive figure in determining the new role of the Levites as the leaders of music and worship, once the ark has come to its permanent rest in Jerusalem and would no longer be borne about by them. Just as Moses set out the duties of the Levites for the wilderness days (see Num. 3:5–9; 4:4–33), so David does the same for the more settled period of his kingdom. At the same time, he is very solicitous about the Law of Moses as the foundation for his own innovations in worship (see 1 Chron. 15:2, 13, 15).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:1–3 David uses the three-month interval that the ark is in the house of Obed-edom (13:14) to make the necessary preparations in procedures and personnel that were lacking in the first mission that ended in debacle. The tent is not the Mosaic "tent of meeting," which was in Gibeon at the time (16:39), but a temporary lodging for the ark (see 17:1). David now understands that violation of the law governing the correct handling of the ark had scuttled the earlier attempt; hence his words here about the Levites (see Deut. 10:8; 18:5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:4–10 David's authority is expressed in summoning the priests and Levites together for their sacred task. The three main divisions of the Levites (Kohath, Merari, Gershom) are named. The Kohathites were responsible for carrying the ark (see Num. 7:9). The final three groups mentioned (1 Chron. 15:8–10) are also Kohathite families (see 6:18).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:11–15 David's instruction to the priests and Levites to consecrate themselves denotes not only ritual actions and abstinences (see Ex. 19:14–15) but also the internal attitude that should accompany the handling of holy things. "Seeking" God according to the rule is not legalism but devout regard for the word of the LORD and a safeguard against the kind of disaster that occurred in Perez-uzza (1 Chron. 15:13; cf. 13:5–11).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:16 This marks a turning point in the history of Israel's worship: the Levites are appointed, under David, to a new ministry of music and praise, which will be conducted in the presence of the ark (on the significance of their leadership of worship for Israel, see 16:4–7 and note). Solomon will follow in David's footsteps in the organization of the Levites for the temple worship (2 Chron. 8:14).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:17–24 The Levites respond to David's instructions. In contrast to the free exuberance of the earlier expedition (13:8), only Levites duly consecrated for the task may lead the procession. Obed-edom (15:18, 24; see note on 13:13–14) may have been included among the Levitical gatekeepers, despite his probable Philistine origin, on account of his care for the ark. If so, "Levite" may have been a functional description (denoting one doing a particular task) as well as a genealogical one in the early monarchy. The postexilic community took a much stricter line on genealogical descent (see Ezra 2:61–63).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:25–29 This section supplements 2 Sam. 6:12–16 (which focuses overwhelmingly on David) to emphasize the participation of all Israel (1 Chron. 15:28) in the second mission to bring back the ark. References to David’s own activity are muted (e.g., his dancing, 2 Sam. 6:14), while particular details about the Levites and God’s help for them are added (1 Chron. 15:26–28). The ark is consistently called the ark of the covenant of the Lord (vv. 25, 26, 28, 29), perhaps to stress the true focus of this chapter and the joyful solemnity of the occasion. As the daughter of Saul, David’s estranged wife Michal shows herself to be hostile to David’s concern for the ark (see 13:3). See also note on 2 Sam. 6:16–19.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:1–43 The brief account in 2 Sam. 6:17–20 of the ark’s arrival in Jerusalem and the festivities that followed is greatly expanded by details of David’s provisions for worship (1 Chron. 16:4–7, 37–42) and a psalm of praise (vv. 8–36). Worship before the ark as the primary symbol of God’s presence and power (see v. 11 and Num. 10:35) is the principal theme of this chapter. The implicit message for the Chronicler’s own audience is that such worship, diligently undertaken, will transform and embolden them as they call upon God’s strength. This chapter also leads up to the first high point of Chronicles, the dynastic promise to David (1 Chron. 17:10–14). A reciprocal relationship of divine blessing and human obedience can be seen in this arrangement:

(chs. 11–12) God raises David to kingship over Israel

(ch. 13) David’s first attempt to retrieve the ark

(ch. 14) God exalts David in Jerusalem and over the Philistines

(chs. 15–16) David’s second (successful) attempt to retrieve the ark

(ch. 17) God promises David a perpetual dynasty

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:1–3 Just as Moses blessed the people after their completion of the tabernacle (Ex. 39:43), so too does David upon fulfillment of this task. Solomon will do likewise at the dedication of the temple (2 Chron. 6:3).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:4–7 David institutionalizes what he initiated in 15:16 for the procession: a permanent, daily ministry of worship by the Levites before the ark (16:6, 37), as well as in connection with the sacrifices, held at that time in Gibeon (vv. 39–42). The musicians who took part in the procession (15:17–21) are assigned to this duty or to Gibeon (16:39, 41). Their task is to invoke, to thank, and to praise the LORD. This is a comprehensive description of worship through prayer and song, expressed above all in the Psalms.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:8–36 This psalm of praise is a composite from Ps. 105:1–15 (= 1 Chron. 16:8–22), Ps. 96:1–13 (= 1 Chron. 16:23–33), and Ps. 106:1, 47–48 (= 1 Chron. 16:34–36) that the Chronicler has carefully woven together and modified slightly at various points for his purposes. It can be seen as expressing the thoughts of praise and gratitude evoked by the successful transfer of the ark to Jerusalem, while also addressing some lively concerns of the Chronicler's own postexilic community.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:8–22 The summons to seek the LORD and his strength; seek his presence continually (v. 11) is especially appropriate before the ark, and a characteristic thought for the writer (see 22:19a). Worship for the Chronicler means transformative engagement with God. The repeated instruction to Israel to remember God's miracles in the past, and his promises of the land and protection to Abraham and Israel (16:18–22), would resonate with the small and vulnerable postexilic community, whose hold on the land could seem tenuous and under threat (see Nehemiah 4; 6).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:23–33 The celebration in worship of God's kingship over all the earth is fitting before his ark-throne (13:6) and should evoke a similar faith and hope in Israel. The psalm declares that the gods of the peoples are worthless idols, whereas Israel's God reigns and comes to judge the earth.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:34–36 This thought leads naturally to the petition for deliverance and salvation from among the nations as the climax of the psalm. At this point, the prayer speaks more to the Chronicler's generation than to David's, and expresses the longing for a greater restoration and consolidation of a scattered people to be gathered in worship before God.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:37–43 Besides ministering before the ark, the Levites are also appointed to assist at the Mosaic tabernacle at Gibeon by offering praise at the times of sacrifice. Solomon will move the tabernacle into the temple at the time of its dedication (2 Chron. 5:5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:1–27 The Dynastic Promise to David. See 2 Sam. 7:1–29 and note. David's wish to build a house or temple for Yahweh meets with refusal, but God promises that he will build a perpetual house or dynasty for David and that one of David's sons will build a temple for Yahweh. The promise to David has the nature of a covenant and is central to the message of Chronicles. The twofold manifestation of this covenant will be the Davidic dynasty and Solomon's temple, and henceforth the Chronicler will show that Israel's identity as God's people will be expressed through these two institutions. The promise to David is similarly the seedbed of the OT's messianic hope, which the NT will show is fulfilled in Jesus as the descendant of David (Rom. 1:3). The Chronicler's immediate interest, however, is more focused on Solomon as the chosen heir and temple builder (1 Chron. 17:11–14).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:1–2 David's desire to build a temple to house the ark appears as his own initiative, which Nathan the prophet supports until he is overruled by God (cf. note on 2 Sam. 7:1–3). The Chronicler omits 2 Sam. 7:1b ("the LORD had given him rest from all his surrounding enemies") primarily in order to contrast David's reign as the time of subduing Israel's enemies (see 1 Chronicles 18–20) and Solomon's as the era of peace and temple building (22:9).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:3–10a A temple does feature in God's plans for Israel, but it is not given to David to build it (see note on 2 Sam. 7:8–17). The initiative lies with God, who chose David for leadership and will give him great renown in the world (1 Chron. 17:8) and will give his people Israel a secure livelihood in the land (v. 9).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:10b–14 Rather than David building Yahweh a house, God will build … a house for David, in the form of a sure and perpetual dynasty. Your offspring after you refers to Solomon. As for the "son" who succeeds to the throne, God will establish his kingdom. The declaration he shall build a house for me, and I will establish his throne forever suggests that building the temple is the act of obedience that will confirm or ratify the promise. God's steadfast love (Hb. hesed) will never be withdrawn from him as it was from Saul, not because David's successor will be without sin (2 Sam. 7:14b, omitted by the Chronicler, reads: "When he commits iniquity, I will discipline him with the rod of men"), but because God's love for David's house and his commitment to it will surpass its failings. In fact God says of the Davidic house and kingdom that it is my house and … my kingdom: in other words, God's eternal, heavenly kingdom (see Ps. 103:19; 145:11–13) will be actually present in and expressed through the Davidic kingdom (see 1 Chron. 28:5; 2 Chron. 13:8). Hebrews 1:5 applies the words I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son to Christ, because as Messiah he inherits the role of David as representative of God's people (his "son," Ex. 4:22–23; cf. Ps. 89:26–27).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:16–27 David's prayer of wondering praise (vv. 16–22; see note on 2 Sam. 7:18–29) leads into a petition that God will confirm his covenantal promise so that David's house will be established forever. The enduring character of the Davidic covenant in the Chronicler's own (kingless) day should inspire confidence and hope in the promises to which it testifies.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:1–20:8 David's Wars. First Chronicles 18–20 deals with David's wars and the extension of his power over the surrounding nations. The Chronicler has drawn very selectively from 2 Samuel 8–21, passing over a mass of material relating to David's personal life, most notably the Bathsheba affair (2 Sam. 11:2–12:25) and the troubles that engulfed his family and throne (2 Samuel 13–20). The writer has omitted this material not in order to "whitewash" David's reputation (since other matters that reflect positively on him, e.g., his kindness to Mephibosheth, 2 Samuel 9, are also passed over), but to show how God's promises to David (esp. 1 Chron. 17:8–10b) are being fulfilled and how David as a warrior and king contributed to the preparations for building the temple. As elsewhere in Chronicles (see above on chs. 11–12; 14), the materials do not always follow a strict chronology, but are used as illustrations from traditional sources.

1010–971 B.C.

David’s many battles eventually established Israel as the dominant power in Syria and Palestine. David expanded Israel’s borders from Saul’s fledgling territory until, by the end of his reign, he controlled all of Israel, Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Other kingdoms, such as Tyre and Hamath, established treaties with him.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:1–13 From 2 Sam. 8:1–14. David's victories—over the Philistines in the southwest, the Moabites to the east of the Dead Sea, the Edomites in the southeast, and Hadadezer of Zobah in the distant northeast—brought security to Israel (see 1 Chron. 17:9) and extended its boundaries, or at least its zones of influence, to their farthest point in history (cf. note on 2 Sam. 8:3–12). The divine promise "I will subdue all your enemies" (1 Chron. 17:10; contrast 2 Sam. 7:11, "I will give you rest from all your enemies") is expressly recalled in 1 Chron. 18:1, and the victories are ascribed to Yahweh (vv. 6, 13). David dedicated the gifts he received and the spoils of war to Yahweh, that is, for the provisioning and upkeep of the temple (see 26:27; 2 Chron. 5:1). The Chronicler's addition to his source in 1 Chron. 18:8b (With it Solomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the vessels of bronze) amplifies this point and stresses that the temple, as well as the people, benefited from David's wars.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:4 On 1,000 chariots, 7,000 horsemen, see note on 2 Sam. 8:4.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:6 Gave victory is sometimes the nuance of the verb "save" (see esv footnote); cf. 11:14; 18:13.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:12 On the Valley of Salt, see note on 2 Sam. 8:13–14.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:14–17 From 2 Sam. 8:15–18 (cf. note there). As David's empire expanded, his government was organized, apparently on the model of contemporary Egyptian practice, to oversee the major spheres of national life: army, court, and official worship.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:15–17 On Jehoshaphat, Ahilud, Zadok, Ahitub, Ahimelech, Abiathar, and Benaiah, see notes on 2 Sam. 8:17; 8:18.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:1–20:3 From 2 Sam. 10:1–19; 11:1; 12:26, 30–31. The chief difference is the Chronicler's omission of the sin with Bathsheba from 1 Chron. 20:1. The Chronicler is not hiding David's sin, since it was well known, but is probably focusing on the victorious outcome of this warfare. The Ammonites lived east of Gad and had troubled Israel in Saul's day (1 Sam. 11:1–11). David had a friendship treaty with Nahash, but Hanun, suspecting David's motives, provoked a diplomatic incident. The Aramean states (1 Chron. 19:6), from which Hanun sought help, were situated farther north, from around Damascus to beyond the Euphrates. The passage moves from the fate of David's mission of consolation (19:1–5), to the mustering of the armies and the first battle (19:6–15), to the comprehensive war against the Syrians (19:16–19), to the final conquest of Ammon (20:1–3). The battles described in 19:1–15 seem to have preceded the decisive campaign in 18:5–8. David receives the crown of Ammon for his own house (20:2); this contributes to the implicit messianism of the book, since the line of David will produce One who will rule the Gentiles.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:2 On Hanun the son of Nahash, see note on 2 Sam. 10:1–5.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:6–7 On Zobah and Maacah, see note on 2 Sam. 10:6–8.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:18 For the number 7,000 here, 2 Sam. 10:18 has "700." The difference is probably due not to a discrepancy in the original manuscripts but to a scribal error in the later transmission of the text of either book.

David Defeats the Ammonites and the Syrians

c. 995 B.C.

After purposely humiliating ambassadors sent by David, the Ammonites prepared for David's response by calling for help from the king of Maacah and from Syrians living in Zobah and other regions north of Israel. When David's commander Joab defeated these forces, the Syrians called for more troops from beyond the Euphrates River and attacked David at Helam. David's forces defeated them again, and the Syrians became subject to Israel.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:1–3 The climax of these wars is Joab's destruction of the Ammonite capital, Rabbah, and David's coronation with the crown of the Ammonites' king (see 17:8). The Chronicler omits 2 Sam. 12:27–29, Joab's summons to David to come to Rabbah.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:1 the time when kings go out to battle. … But David remained at Jerusalem. See note on 2 Sam. 11:1; the Chronicler omits any mention of David's sin with Bathsheba (see note on 1 Chron. 18:1–20:8). Joab struck down Rabbah and overthrew it. Cf. note on 2 Sam. 12:26–31.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:4–8 From 2 Sam. 21:18–22. Three incidents from David's war against the Philistines in Gezer and Gath bring this unit back to where it began (1 Chron. 18:1). the giants: lit., "the Rephaim" (see Gen. 14:5). The Philistines were subdued is the Chronicler's additional comment (see 1 Chron. 17:10).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:5 Lahmi the brother of Goliath. See note on 2 Sam. 21:19, which has apparently suffered textual corruption.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:7 On Jonathan and Shimea, see note on 2 Sam. 21:21.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:1–29:30 David's Census and Preparation for the Temple. The Chronicler tells how David paves the way for Solomon to build the temple; even his sinful census (21:1–22:1) yields a plot of land for the building site.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:1–22:1 From 2 Sam. 24:1–25, with significant changes and additions by the Chronicler. The account of David's census and the plague it unleashes is moved from its location at the end of 2 Samuel (where it is only loosely connected to the narrative) to a pivotal place in Chronicles, standing between David's wars (1 Chronicles 18–20) and his temple preparations (chs. 22–29), into which it immediately leads (22:1–2). The purpose of the narrative here is not only to recount and explain David's purchase of the temple site, but especially to expound the meaning of the temple itself as the place of God's mercy and forgiveness, where sin is atoned for and its deadly consequences removed. Significantly, it is David, the principal model of "seeking God" in this work, who exemplifies the need for forgiveness (see 2 Chron. 6:36), as well as being the model penitent (see note on 1 Chron. 21:17).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:1 Satan. In 2 Sam. 24:1, it is God himself who in anger incites David against Israel, leading to the census. God's angelic "adversary" (which is the meaning of the proper name; see esv footnote on Job 1:6) is in no sense God's equal (rather, Satan's counterpart in the Bible is Michael; see Jude 9; Rev. 12:7–9). Still, the Chronicler wanted his readers to think of Satan's malice as God's means of carrying out his will (see note on 2 Sam. 24:1). Nevertheless, David himself sinned in giving in to Satan's enticement and ordering the census. This census was sinful probably because it arose from David's presumptuous military ambitions (see 1 Chron. 21:5) and pride, rather than from Yahweh's express command. In addition, David neglected to levy the poll tax for a census required by Ex. 30:12, an act of disobedience that could bring plague on the people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:3 guilt (Hb. 'ashmah; see Lev. 6:7). A key term in the Chronicler's theology (see 2 Chron. 24:18; 28:13; 33:23). This addition to 2 Sam. 24:3 emphasizes David's culpability.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:5–6 The Chronicler adds that Joab found the king's command abhorrent (again emphasizing David's sinfulness), for which reason Joab excluded the priestly tribe of Levi from the count (perhaps in deference to Num. 1:47–49), as well as Benjamin, whose territory included Jerusalem (the site of the ark) and Gibeon (the site of the tabernacle). In all Israel there were 1,100,000 men. The parallel passage in 2 Sam. 24:9 records 800,000 men in Israel and 500,000 men in Judah, which adds up to 1,300,000. It will not do to call this apparent discrepancy a "disagreement," since the Chronicler respected and drew on Samuel and Kings (see Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background); but arriving at the exact explanation is a challenge. One possible solution begins by taking the 470,000 men in Judah as part of the total of "all Israel" (in Chronicles "all Israel" often includes Judah: e.g., 1 Chron. 13:6; 28:4; 2 Chron. 11:3; 24:5; 31:1), and proceeds to notice that in 1 Chron. 21:6 the Chronicler says that Joab's figures here were incomplete, for he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the numbering. Therefore, the census was unfinished, leaving the actual number of God's people uncertain (see v. 3 and 27:23–24, where the text again emphasizes that the numbers were incomplete).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:7–13 David's confession of guilt leads him to appeal to God's mercy, which is very great (the Chronicler adds "very" to his source to underscore this point). sword. A prominent image in the choice of punishments (v. 12; see also vv. 16, 27, 30) and perhaps an ironic comment on David's attempt to muster a great army of men "who drew the sword" (v. 5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:12 three years of famine. Cf. note on 2 Sam. 24:13.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:14–16 On relented (v. 15), see notes on 1 Sam. 15:11–29 and Jonah 3:10. The Chronicler does not tell readers what the LORD saw; probably it is the impending calamity. The angel with the drawn sword over Jerusalem evokes the image of Abraham with his knife over Isaac in "the land of Moriah" (Gen. 22:2, 9–10). Uniquely in the Bible, the Chronicler will in fact identify the future temple site as Mount Moriah (2 Chron. 3:1). In both cases, the covenantal promises (Gen. 17:3–8; 1 Chron. 17:8–14) seem threatened with destruction were it not for God's merciful reversal of his command and provision of an alternative sacrifice (21:26; cf. Gen. 22:13).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:17 Compared to 2 Sam. 24:17 (see note there), David here makes a fuller and more emphatic confession of his personal responsibility and guilt in calling the census, and asks for the plague to be taken from the people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:18–27 the angel of the LORD … commanded Gad. The altar is God's initiative and provision for atonement. David's purchase of the threshing floor of Ornan for the full price (vv. 22, 24; cf. note on 2 Sam. 24:23–24) echoes Abraham's purchase of the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 23:9) and continues the Abraham-David typology.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:25 600 shekels. See note on 2 Sam. 24:23–24.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:26 David built there an altar. See note on 2 Sam. 24:25. The LORD answered him with fire from heaven, signifying God's approval of the site (see Lev. 9:24; 2 Chron. 7:1).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:28–22:1 This material is not found in 2 Samuel 24. It explains why David did not go to Gibeon to offer a sacrifice and why he concluded that God had authorized the transfer of that sanctuary to the new site in Jerusalem (see 2 Chron. 1:3–6; 5:5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:2–19 David's designation of the temple site (v. 1) leads directly into the next major unit of the work (chs. 22–29), which describes David's preparation for building the temple. Although David was prevented from taking part in the actual construction, he stands alongside Solomon in this chapter as the one who provided the materials, personnel, and conditions essential for the task. Chapter 22 has the form of a private commissioning of Solomon, while chs. 28–29 include a public commissioning "in the sight of all Israel" (28:8). Their reigns are presented as a complementary unit, both being essential for the fulfillment of the task: what David begins, Solomon completes. The presentation of events is modeled in part on the transfer of leadership from Moses to Joshua (see esp. Deut. 31:6–8, 23; Josh. 1:5, 7–9).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:2–5 David's preparation of the temple workforce included the imposition of forced labor on resident aliens (see 2 Sam. 20:24; cf. notes on 2 Chron. 2:2; 8:7–10). War booty provided some of the material (see 1 Chron. 18:8). These events belong to the last years of David's life, when Solomon was still young and inexperienced (22:5)—hence David's solicitous care.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:6–16 David's private commission to his son is intended to prepare him in mind and heart for his demanding duty. David refers back to the dynastic promise (17:7–14), amplifying some of its statements. His disqualification by Yahweh from temple building (22:8) arises chiefly from the character of his reign, a time of warfare and subduing enemies (chs. 18–20), in contrast to Solomon's reign, the promised time of peace and quiet for Israel (see also Deut. 12:10–11). The wordplay on Solomon's name (Hb. Shelomoh) and "peace" (Hb. shalom) underlines this point.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:11–13 Along with fulfilling his commission to build, David emphasizes Solomon's need to keep the Law of Moses in the ruling of his kingdom. Be strong and courageous. Fear not. See Deut. 31:7–8 and Josh. 1:9.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:14 David's provision for the temple preparation is distinct from the donation of 3,000 talents of gold and 7,000 talents of silver that he gave out of his own treasure (29:3–4).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:17–19 David's exhortation to the leaders of Israel to seek the LORD entails active obedience to the divine command: Arise and build the sanctuary of the LORD God. Solomon must already have been appointed to a co-regency with David by this time (see 1 Kings 1:28–2:12) in order for David to command Israel's leaders to assist Solomon in his task. As elsewhere in the book, the order of 1 Chronicles 22–29 is dictated more by thematic considerations than by strict chronology.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:1–27:34 Chapters 23–27 detail David's further preparations for Solomon's rule, in the provision of religious, military, and political leadership. These chapters consist mainly of lists of temple personnel and royal officials, interspersed with narrative and descriptive notes. The primary interest lies in David's organization of the Levites (23:3–32; 24:20–26:28) and the Aaronic priests (24:1–19) for temple worship and administration. David's reorganization of the Levites' work was a necessary consequence of the construction of the temple and the central place it would have in the nation's life. The structures of the temple ritual are shown to rest on royal authority.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:3 A legitimate census of the Levites, as in Num. 4:1–3. The age of commencing service (thirty … and upward) was later lowered to 20 (1 Chron. 23:24, 27). 38,000. The Hebrew word here for "thousand" may denote "groups" or "units" of indeterminate size (see note on 12:23–37).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:6–23 David organizes the Levites according to their traditional clans: the Gershonites (vv. 7–11), the Kohathites (vv. 12–20), and the Merarites (vv. 21–23).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:13b This summarizes the specific duties of the priesthood.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:24–32 David appears as the successor to Moses (see Numbers 4) in redefining the Levites' duties for the new age of the temple. As assistants of the priests, the Levites have responsibility for the temple precincts and vessels, preparing food for the offerings, and the service of music and praise that accompanies the times of sacrifice.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:1–19 David's provision for the temple services included organizing the priests into 24 divisions selected by lot. A duty roster of 24 divisions provided for two weeks of service by each division, based on a lunar calendar of 48 weeks.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:2 Nadab and Abihu died. See Lev. 10:1–3. The priesthood was hereditary, and descended through the lines of Eleazar and Ithamar.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:3 Zadok. See 1 Kings 1:8; 2:35. Ahimelech. The son of Abiathar (2 Sam. 8:17), with whom Zadok is usually paired (2 Sam. 15:35; 1 Kings 4:4).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:5–6 While David appointed the priestly divisions, duties were allocated impartially by the drawing of lots. The lots were drawn alternately between the families of Eleazar and of Ithamar for the first 16 lots; then the remaining eight assignments to duty fell automatically to the families of Eleazar.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:7 Jehoiarib appears as the ancestor of Mattathias in 1 Macc. 2:1.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:10 Hakkoz. See Ezra 2:61–63. Abijah. An ancestor of John the Baptist (Luke 1:5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:20–31 The list of Levites in 23:6–23 is updated to include another generation in six of the Levitical families. Like the Aaronic priestly families, the Levites also cast lots without distinction for their duties.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:1–31 See 23:4b. David's organization of the Levitical musicians (initiated in chs. 15–16) was to prepare them for leading worship in the temple. Like the priests, the musicians were arranged into 24 divisions for their duties, according to the number of sons of the three main family groups. Their service accompanied the regular offerings of the priests. The Chronicler was probably seeking to encourage a similar ministry among the Levitical singers of the second temple, whose service, authorized by David, would also connect the community of their day with the preexilic Davidic kingdom.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:1–8 David and the leaders of the Levites divided the musicians into the three family groups of Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman (see 6:31–47), who prophesied with musical instruments, i.e., wrote songs. In some cases, their songs seem to have become part of OT Scripture, for Asaph is named in the titles of Psalms 50 and 73–83, and Jeduthun in the titles of Psalms 39, 62, and 77. In addition, Heman here may be the same person as Heman the Ezrahite named in the title of Psalm 88 (cf. also 1 Chron. 6:33). The verb "to prophesy" (Hb. naba') indicates that their songs were prompted or guided by the Spirit of God. This shows that "prophecy" is not always a direct announcement of God's plans; it indicates that the person is operating as God's authorized spokesman, here providing the right way for God's people to sing to him (they prophesied … in thanksgiving and praise to the LORD, 25:3).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:4 The last nine names of Heman's sons have unusual Hebrew forms, and some have suggested that they are based on the first lines of various psalms, possibly applied as nicknames to these families.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:7–31 The 24 divisions of 12 members each were assigned their duties impartially by lot, as were the priests (24:5). Each group varied in age and contained both teachers and pupils (25:8).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:1–32 See 9:17–27 and 23:4a. The primary duty of the Levitical gatekeepers was to safeguard the sanctuary from trespass by unauthorized persons and from defilement by idolatrous practices (see 2 Chron. 29:3–7). They were also responsible for the temple treasuries and the maintenance of the building and its equipment (see 1 Chron. 9:22–32).

The gatekeepers played a vital role in aiding the high priest Jehoiada in opposing Athaliah (2 Chron. 23:4–8, 19), and in the reforms by Hezekiah (2 Chron. 31:14) and Josiah (2 Chron. 34:9).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:1–11 The gatekeepers included the families of Meshelemiah (vv. 1–3, 9), Obed-edom (vv. 4–8), and Hosah (vv. 10–11; see 16:38). Obed-edom is probably to be identified with the Philistine caretaker of the ark in 13:14. The inclusion within this company of one who was not an Israelite by birth suggests a certain fluidity in the early monarchy over who might count as a "Levite." The postexilic period took a much stricter line over Levitical genealogy (see Ezra 2:61–63). Asaph. A shortened form of Ebiasaph (1 Chron. 9:19).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:12–19 The assignment of duties by lot. The east gate (v. 14) was the position of greatest responsibility, requiring six gatekeepers, because it would lead directly to the temple entrance. It was known as "the king's gate" in postexilic times (9:18).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:20–28 Certain Kohathite families, the Ladanites and Amramites, had duties as treasurers. The two treasuries were located near the gates (see 9:26): one for the house of God (presumably to store the regular tithes and offerings), and another for the dedicated gifts, i.e., the spoils of war (see 18:11) and other special gifts.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:29–32 See 23:4b. Two other groups of Levites, the Izharites and the Hebronites, were assigned to serve outside Jerusalem as officers and judges among the Israelite tribes both west and east of the Jordan. The Hebronites were appointed for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king. Possibly this signifies responsibilities for religious and civil taxation and administration. These arrangements were made in the last year of David's rule (c. 970 B.C.; 26:31; see 29:27).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:1–34 The Chronicler concludes this section on David's provision of leadership for Solomon with details (derived from four lists) of the non-Levitical military and political officials serving the kingdom.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:1–15 The 12 military commanders are listed among David's "mighty men" (11:11–47) and included among the leaders of Israel who were directly involved in the temple preparations (28:1). The army depicted here is not David's more permanent force (see 2 Sam. 15:18; 23:8–39), but a citizen militia of 12 divisions, each doing a month's duty on rotation. 24,000. Probably either an ideal number or "24 units" (see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:16–22 These leaders of the tribes are probably David's appointees. Their actual role in his administration is unknown. This section may indicate that the centralization of power, together with a move away from the old tribal system of eldership during Solomon's reign (1 Kings 4:7–19), had already begun in the latter part of David's reign. The order and enumeration of the tribes differs here from 1 Chronicles 2, counting Aaron as a tribe and omitting Gad and Asher.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:23–24 Joab's failure to complete the unauthorized census (21:6) stemmed from his recognition that David's presumptuous act ran counter to God's promise of innumerable descendants to Abraham (see Gen. 15:5).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:25–34 A list of 12 administrators of the royal property (v. 31b). David is presented as one blessed with wealth. His estates included storehouses in Jerusalem and the provinces, lands for various crops, and livestock. The incomes from these sources would have met some of the expenses of his bureaucracy.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:32–34 An additional list of royal counselors (see 18:14–17). This Jonathan, David's uncle, is not otherwise known. Ahithophel is mentioned frequently in 2 Sam. 15:12–17:23.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:1–21 This section resumes in a public setting the charge and exhortation given in private by David in ch. 22. The audience (28:1) consists of the military and tribal leaders and the royal overseers listed in ch. 27, along with David's leading soldiers (see 11:10–12:40).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:2–3 David explains that his failure to build a temple was due to Yahweh's disqualification of him from that task on account of his preoccupation in warfare (v. 3; see 22:8–9). David's description of the temple as a house of rest for the ark of the covenant … for the footstool of our God (see Ps. 132:7, 8, 14) indicates that the temple will signify not only the land at rest (and thus a fitting project for the "man of rest"; 1 Chron. 22:9), but also God's own rest among his people, and thus the completion of his work (cf. Gen. 2:1–3).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:4–5 The project of temple building is a matter of God's choice, not David's. After David, Solomon is the only king in the OT said to be chosen by God (another factor that unifies the reign of these two kings in the Chronicler's presentation). Solomon is chosen to sit on Yahweh's throne (v. 5), to be his adopted son (v. 6), and to build God's temple (v. 10).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:6 Solomon … shall build my house. Cf. 17:11–14; 22:9–10.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:7, 9 The establishment of Solomon's kingdom is dependent on his obedience to Yahweh's commands. Solomon will prove obedient in the task of temple building, but will fail to serve God with a whole heart throughout his reign (see 1 Kings 11:4).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:11–19 David passes on to Solomon the temple plan that he received as a revelation from God (v. 19), just as Moses received the plan ("pattern," Ex. 25:9, 40) for the tabernacle from God. The gold and silver temple vessels (1 Chron. 28:14–17), which Solomon's craftsmen fashioned (2 Chron. 4:6–22), were removed by the Babylonians at the fall of Jerusalem (2 Chron. 36:18) then returned by the Persians at the restoration after the exile (Ezra 1:7–11). They signified the continuity of the Chronicler's generation with the preexilic temple worship, and God's covenant faithfulness to his people.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:19 in writing from the hand of the LORD. One interpretation is that David is claiming prophetic inspiration for his writing of the temple plans he has just described (cf. 2 Chron. 29:25, where "from the LORD" is lit., "by the hand of the LORD"), and thus divine authorization for the plans. It is possible, however, that David is making a stronger claim, namely, that the temple plans were given to him in written form by God (cf. Ex. 24:12; 31:18; 32:16).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:20–21 David commissions Solomon in public, just as he had previously done in private (22:11–13).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:1–9 David exhorts all of the assembly to support Solomon in his task by contributing to the temple fund, just as he has himself given generously from his own personal property. The temple is designated a palace, indicating that it is God's kingly residence among his people. The freewill offerings of the people that David calls for signify that they are consecrating themselves to Yahweh (cf. v. 5, esv footnote: it is the same expression used of the ordination of priests; Ex. 28:41). The people's response calls to mind the gifts made by the Israelites for the tabernacle in Moses' day (Ex. 35:20–29). The writer stresses their wholehearted and joyful devotion to the task.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:7 darics. The daric was a Persian coin first minted under Darius I (522–486 B.C.). The Chronicler uses this contemporary loanword to convey to his readers the value of what was given, and to indicate a sense of the leaders' generosity. The example of the people in David's day was intended to speak to the Chronicler's own generation, encouraging them in their commitment to the upkeep of the temple, its services, and its personnel. See also 2 Chron. 31:4–10.

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:10–19 David's great prayer of praise and supplication marks the climax of his reign. Israel's king praises God for his universal kingdom and recognizes him as the source of all wealth and strength (vv. 10–13). Indeed, even the generosity of David and the people in providing for the temple comes from God himself (vv. 14, 16). They depend entirely on God for their security and well-being, and even in the Promised Land they are strangers and sojourners before God (v. 15). David then reflects that God examines the human heart for uprightness or integrity (v. 17), a further indication that the Chronicler cares above all for the inner reality of faith. David concludes by praying that God will keep the people in the same purpose and mind as they have shown this day, and will give to Solomon a whole heart in obedience to God’s commandments (vv. 18–19).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:22b they made Solomon the son of David king the second time. Solomon had been rather hurriedly anointed and installed as king in response to Adonijah’s attempted coup (1 Kings 1:28–40, not mentioned in Chronicles). This second ceremony occurred when his succession was secure and widely acknowledged (1 Chron. 29:24). David himself had been anointed king on three occasions: privately before his family (1 Sam. 16:13), and twice in Hebron (2 Sam. 2:4; 5:3).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:23 The Lord has done for Solomon what he had earlier done for David (14:2), in accordance with his promise to David (1 Kings 2:24).

1 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:26–30 See 1 Kings 2:10–11. The various Chronicles mentioned in 1 Chron. 29:29 probably contained much of the material that is included in the books of Samuel and Kings, but may have included additional records as well (see note on 1 Kings 14:19). Samuel, Nathan, and Gad all played roles in the life of David (see 1 Chron. 9:22; 17:1–15; 21:9–13). The kingdoms of the countries most likely refers to the surrounding nations that David had subjugated.

Introduction to 2 Chronicles

See Introduction to 1–2 Chronicles.

For an outline for 2 Chronicles, see Outline for 1–2 Chronicles.

The beginning of what is today called 2 Chronicles comes midway in the second major section of Chronicles, on the united kingdom of David and Solomon (1 Chronicles 10–2 Chronicles 9). The Solomonic narrative (2 Chronicles 1–9) marks the successful completion of what David began (1 Chronicles 10–29). God declares the meaning of the temple as the place of repentance and restoration, and as the charter for the future of the kingdom (2 Chron. 7:11–22). The third major section (chs. 10–36) recounts the history of the kingdom from its division until the fall of Judah and the exile, ending in the invitation for the exiles to return to Judea and rebuild (36:22–23).

The Chronicler's account of Solomon's reign is basically a continuation of his narrative about David, as both father and son rule over all the land and all the people; what David begins, Solomon completes. After David, Solomon's reign (chs. 1–9) is given the most extensive treatment in Chronicles, yet there is less interest in the king himself than in the abiding achievement of his reign: the successful construction of the temple and the inauguration of its regular services. Solomon's obedience here marks the fulfillment of the Davidic covenant. The Chronicler omits many of the personal details of Solomon's life found in 1 Kings 1–11, both negative and positive, to concentrate on this theme.

2 Chronicles

Solomon Worships at Gibeon

2 CHRONICLES 1 [†] [a]Solomon the son of David established himself in his kingdom, [b]and the LORD his God was with him and made him exceedingly great.

[2]Solomon spoke to all Israel, to the [c]commanders of thousands and of hundreds, to the judges, and to all the leaders in all Israel, the heads of fathers' houses. [3]And Solomon, and all the assembly with him, went to [d]the high place that was at Gibeon, [e]for [f]the tent of meeting of God, which Moses the servant of the LORD had made in the wilderness, was there. [4][g](But David had brought up the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim to the place that David had prepared for it, for he had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem.) [5]Moreover, [h]the bronze altar that [i]Bezalel the son of Uri, son of Hur, had made, was there before the tabernacle of the LORD. And Solomon and the assembly [j]sought it [1] out. [6]And Solomon went up there to the bronze altar before the LORD, which was at the tent of meeting, [k]and offered a thousand burnt offerings on it.

Solomon Prays for Wisdom

[7][†] [l]In that night God appeared to Solomon, and said to him, "Ask what I shall give you." [8]And Solomon said to God, "You have shown great and steadfast love to David my father, [m]and have made me king in his place. [9]O LORD God, [n]let your word to David my father be now fulfilled, for you have made me king over a people as numerous [o]as the dust of the earth. [10][^]Give me now wisdom and knowledge to [p]go out and come in before this people, for who can govern this people of yours, which is so great?" [11]God answered Solomon, "Because this was in your heart, and you have not asked for [q]possessions, wealth, honor, or the life of those who hate you, and have not even asked for long life, but have asked for wisdom and knowledge for yourself that you may govern my people over whom I have made you king, [12]wisdom and knowledge are granted to you. I will also give you [q] riches, possessions, and honor, [r] such as none of the kings had who were before you, and none after you shall have the like.” [13]So Solomon came from [2] the [s] high place at Gibeon, from before [t] the tent of meeting, to Jerusalem. And he reigned over Israel.

Solomon Given Wealth

[14][†] [u] Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen. [v] He had 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, whom he stationed [w] in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. [15]And the king made silver and gold as common in Jerusalem as stone, and he made cedar as plentiful as the sycamore of the Shephelah. [16]And Solomon’s import of horses was from Egypt and Kue, and the king’s traders would buy them from Kue for a price. [17]They imported a chariot from Egypt for 600 shekels [3] of silver, and a horse for 150. Likewise through them these were exported to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Syria.

Preparing to Build the Temple

2 CHRONICLES 2 [†] [1] [x] Now Solomon purposed to build a temple for the name of the Lord, and a royal palace for himself. [2][†] [2] [y] And Solomon assigned 70,000 men to bear burdens and 80,000 to quarry in the hill country, and [z] 3,600 to oversee them. [3][^][†] [a] And Solomon sent word to Hiram the king of Tyre: [b] “As you dealt with David my father and sent him cedar to build himself a house to dwell in, so deal with me. [4]Behold, I am about to build a house for the name of the Lord my God and dedicate it to him for the burning of [c] incense of sweet spices before him, and for [d] the regular arrangement of the showbread, and for [e] burnt offerings morning and evening, [f] on the Sabbaths and the new moons and the appointed feasts of the Lord our God, as ordained forever for Israel. [5]The house that I am to build will be great, [g] for our God is greater than all gods. [6][†] [h] But who is able to build him a house, since [h] heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him? Who am I to build a house for him, except as a place to make offerings before him? [7]So now [i] send me a man skilled to work in gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and in purple, crimson, and blue fabrics, trained also in engraving, to be with the skilled workers who are with me in Judah and Jerusalem, [j] whom David my father provided. [8]Send me also cedar, cypress, and algum timber from Lebanon, for I know that [k] your servants know how to cut timber in Lebanon. And my servants will be with your servants, [9]to prepare timber for me in abundance, for the house I am to build will be great and wonderful. [10] [l] I will give for your servants, the woodsmen who cut timber, 20,000 cors [3] of crushed wheat, 20,000 cors of barley, 20,000 baths [4] of wine, and 20,000 baths of oil."

[11][†]Then Hiram the king of Tyre answered in a letter that he sent to Solomon, [m] "Because the LORD loves his people, he has made you king over them." [12]Hiram also said, "Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, [n] who made heaven and earth, who has given King David a wise son, who has discretion and understanding, [o] who will build a temple for the LORD and a royal palace for himself.

[13][^]"Now I have sent a skilled man, who has understanding, Huram-abi, [14] [p] the son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a man of Tyre. He is [q] trained to work in gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood, and in purple, blue, and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and to do all sorts of engraving and execute any design that may be assigned him, with your craftsmen, the craftsmen of my lord, David your father. [15]Now therefore the wheat and barley, oil and wine, [r] of which my lord has spoken, let him send to his servants. [16] [s] And we will cut whatever timber you need from Lebanon and bring it to you in rafts by sea to [t] Joppa, so that you may take it up to Jerusalem."

[17]Then Solomon counted all the resident aliens who were in the land of Israel, [u] after the census of them that David his father had taken, and there were found 153,600. [18] [v] Seventy thousand of them he assigned to bear burdens, 80,000 to quarry in the hill country, and 3,600 as overseers to make the people work.

Solomon Builds the Temple

2 CHRONICLES 3 [†] [w] Then Solomon began to build the house of the LORD in Jerusalem [x] on Mount Moriah, where the LORD [1] had appeared to David his father, at the place that David had appointed, [y] on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. [2][‡]He began to build in the second month of the fourth year of his reign. [3]These are Solomon's [z]measurements [2] for building the house of God: [a]the length, in cubits [3] of the old standard, was sixty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits. [4][‡]The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits long, equal to the width of the house, [4] and its height was 120 cubits. He overlaid it on the inside with pure gold. [5][b]The nave he lined with cypress and covered it with fine gold [c]and made palms and chains on it. [6][‡]He adorned the house with settings of precious stones. The gold was gold of Parvaim. [7]So he lined the house with gold—its beams, its thresholds, its walls, and its doors—[c]and he carved cherubim on the walls.

[8][‡][d]And he made the Most Holy Place. Its length, corresponding to the breadth of the house, was twenty cubits, and its breadth was twenty cubits. He overlaid it with 600 talents [5] of fine gold. [9]The weight of gold for the nails was fifty shekels. [6] And he overlaid [e]the upper chambers with gold.

[10][f]In the Most Holy Place he made two cherubim of wood [7] and overlaid [8] them with gold. [11]The wings of the cherubim together extended twenty cubits: one wing of the one, of five cubits, touched the wall of the house, and its other wing, of five cubits, touched the wing of the other cherub; [12]and of this cherub, one wing, of five cubits, touched the wall of the house, and the other wing, also of five cubits, was joined to the wing of the first cherub. [13]The wings of these cherubim extended twenty cubits. The cherubim [9] stood on their feet, [g]facing the nave. [14][‡][h]And he made the veil of blue and purple and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and he worked cherubim on it.

[15][‡][i]In front of the house he made two pillars thirty-five cubits high, with a capital of five cubits on the top of each. [16]He made chains like a necklace [10] and put them on the tops of the pillars, and he made a hundred pomegranates and put them on the chains. [17][j]He set up the pillars in front of the temple, one on the south, the other on the north; that on the south he called Jachin, and that on the north Boaz.

The Temple’s Furnishings

2 CHRONICLES 4 [†]He made [k]an altar of bronze, twenty cubits [1] long and twenty cubits wide and ten cubits high. 2[†] [l]Then he made the sea of cast metal. It was round, ten cubits from brim to brim, and five cubits high, and a line of thirty cubits measured its circumference. 3Under it were figures of gourds, [2] for ten cubits, compassing the sea all around. The gourds were in two rows, cast with it when it was cast. 4It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The sea was set on them, and all their rear parts were inward. 5Its thickness was a handbreadth. [3] And its brim was made like the brim of a cup, like the flower of a lily. [m]It held 3,000 baths. [4] 6 [n]He also made ten basins in which to wash, and set five on the south side, and five on the north side. In these they were to rinse off what was used for the burnt offering, and the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7[^][†]And he made ten golden lampstands [o]as prescribed, and set them in the temple, five on the south side and five on the north. 8 [p]He also made ten tables and placed them in the temple, five on the south side and five on the north. And he made a hundred basins of gold. 9[†]He made [q]the court of the priests [r]and the great court and doors for the court and overlaid their doors with bronze. 10 [s]And he set the sea at the southeast corner of the house.

11[†] [t] [u]Hiram also made the pots, the shovels, and the basins. [u]So Hiram finished the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of God: 12the two pillars, [v]the bowls, and the two capitals on the top of the pillars; and the two latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the top of the pillars; 13 [w]and the 400 pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars. 14 [n]He made the stands also, and the basins on the stands, 15and the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath it. 16The pots, the shovels, [x]the forks, and all the equipment for these [t] [y]Huram-abi made of burnished bronze for King Solomon for the house of the Lord. 17In the plain of the Jordan the king cast them, in the clay ground between Succoth and Zeredah. [5] 18 [z]Solomon made all these things in great quantities, for the weight of the bronze was not sought.

19[†]So Solomon made all the vessels that were in the house of God: the golden altar, [a]the tables for the bread of the Presence, 20the lampstands and their lamps of pure gold [b]to burn before the inner sanctuary, as prescribed; 21the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of purest gold; 22the snuffers, basins, dishes for incense, and fire pans, of pure gold, and the sockets [6] of the temple, for the inner doors to the Most Holy Place and for the doors of the nave of the temple were of gold.

2 CHRONICLES 5 [†] [c]Thus all the work that Solomon did for the house of the LORD was finished. And Solomon brought in the things that David his father had dedicated, and stored the silver, the gold, and all the vessels in the treasuries of the house of God.

The Ark Brought to the Temple

2[†]Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the fathers' houses of the people of Israel, in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of [d]the city of David, which is Zion. 3And all the men of Israel assembled before the king at the feast that is in the seventh month. 4And all the elders of Israel came, [e]and the Levites took up the ark. 5[†]And they brought up the ark, the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; [f]the Levitical priests brought them up. 6And King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were before the ark, sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be counted or numbered. 7[†]Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD to its place, in the inner sanctuary of the house, in the Most Holy Place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. 8The cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim made a covering above the ark and its poles. 9And the poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen [g]from the Holy Place before the inner sanctuary, but they could not be seen from outside. And they are [1] there to this day. 10[†]There was nothing in the ark except the two tablets [h]that Moses put there at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant with the people of Israel, when they came out of Egypt. 11[†]And when the priests came out of the Holy Place (for all the priests who were present had consecrated themselves, without regard to

[i] their divisions, [12]and all the Levitical [j] singers, [k] Asaph, [l] Heman, and Jeduthun, their sons and kinsmen, arrayed in fine linen, with [m] cymbals, harps, and lyres, stood east of the altar with 120 [n] priests who were trumpeters; [13]and it was the duty of the trumpeters and singers to make themselves heard in unison in praise and thanksgiving to the LORD), and when the song was raised, [o] with trumpets and cymbals and other musical instruments, in praise to the LORD,

> [p] "For he is good,
>   for his steadfast love endures forever,"

the house, the house of the LORD, was filled with a cloud, [14][^]so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud, [q] for the glory of the LORD filled the house of God.

Solomon Blesses the People

2 CHRONICLES 6 [†] [r] Then Solomon said, "The LORD has said that he would dwell in thick darkness. [2]But I have built you [s] an exalted house, a place for you to dwell in forever." [3][†]Then the king turned around and blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood. [4]And he said, "Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled what he promised with his mouth to David my father, saying, [5]'Since the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, that my name might be there, and I chose no man as prince over my people Israel; [6][^] [t] but I have chosen Jerusalem that my name may be there, [u] and I have chosen David to be over my people Israel.' [7][†] [v] Now it was in the heart of David my father to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. [8]But the LORD said to David my father, 'Whereas [v] it was in your heart to build a house for my name, you did well that it was in your heart. [9]Nevertheless, it is not you who shall build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.' [10]Now the LORD has fulfilled his promise that he made. For I have risen in the place of David my father and sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and I have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. [11]And there I have set the ark, [w]in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with the people of Israel."

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

[12][†]Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the assembly of Israel and spread out his hands. [13][x]Solomon had made a bronze platform five cubits [1] long, five cubits wide, and three cubits high, and had set it in the court, and he stood on it. [y]Then he knelt on his knees in the presence of all the assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands toward heaven, [14]and said, "O LORD, God of Israel, [z]there is no God like you, in heaven or on earth, [a]keeping covenant and showing steadfast love to your servants who walk before you with all their heart, [15][^][†] [b]who have kept with your servant David my father what you declared to him. You spoke with your mouth, and with your hand have fulfilled it this day. [16]Now therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, keep for your servant David my father what you have promised him, saying, [c]'You shall not lack a man to sit before me on the throne of Israel, [d]if only your sons pay close attention to their way, to walk in my law as you have walked before me.' [17]Now therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you have spoken to your servant David.

[18][†]"But will God indeed dwell with man on the earth? Behold, [e]heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you, how much less this house that I have built! [19]Yet have regard to the prayer of your servant and to his plea, O LORD my God, listening to the cry and to the prayer that your servant prays before you, [20][f]that your eyes may be open day and night toward this house, the place where you have promised to set your name, that you may listen to the prayer that your servant offers toward this place. [21][^]And listen to the pleas of your servant and of your people Israel, when they pray toward this place. And listen from heaven your dwelling place, [g]and when you hear, forgive.

[22][†]"If a man sins against his neighbor and is made to take an oath and comes and swears his oath before your altar in this house, [23]then hear from heaven and act and judge your servants, repaying the guilty by bringing his conduct on his own head, and vindicating the righteous by rewarding him according to his righteousness.

24[†]“If your people Israel are defeated before the enemy because they have sinned against you, and they turn again and acknowledge your name and pray and plead with you in this house, 25 [g] then hear from heaven and forgive the sin of your people Israel and bring them again to the land that you gave to them and to their fathers.

26[†] [h] “When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, if they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sin, when you afflict [2] them, 27 [g] then hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when you teach them the good way [3] in which they should walk, and grant rain upon your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

28[†] [i] “If there is famine in the land, if there is pestilence or blight or mildew or locust or caterpillar, if their enemies besiege them in the land at their gates, whatever plague, whatever sickness there is, 29whatever prayer, whatever plea is made by any man or by all your people Israel, each knowing his own affliction and his own sorrow and stretching out his hands toward this house, 30 [g] then hear from heaven your dwelling place and forgive and render to each whose heart you know, according to all his ways, [j] for you, you only, know the hearts of the children of mankind, 31that they may fear you and walk in your ways all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our fathers.

32[†]“Likewise, when a foreigner, who is not of your people Israel, comes from a far country for the sake of your great name and your mighty hand and your outstretched arm, when he comes and prays toward this house, 33hear from heaven your dwelling place and do according to all for which the foreigner calls to you, in order that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your people Israel, and that they may know that this house [k] that I have built is called by your name.

34[†]“If your people go out to battle against their enemies, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to you toward this city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, 35then hear from heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

36[†]“If they sin against you—[l] for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive to a land far or near, 37yet if they turn their heart in the land to which they have been carried captive, and repent and plead with you in the land of their captivity, saying, ‘We have sinned and have acted perversely and wickedly,’ 38if they repent with all their mind and with all their heart in the land of their captivity to which they were carried captive, and pray toward their land, which you gave to their fathers, the city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, 39then hear from heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their pleas, and maintain their cause and forgive your people who have sinned against you. 40Now, O my God, [m] let your eyes be open [n] and your ears attentive to the prayer of this place.

41[†] “And now arise, O LORD God, and go to your [o] resting place, you and the ark of your might.
Let your priests, O LORD God, be [p] clothed with salvation, and let your saints [q] rejoice in your goodness.
42 O LORD God, [r] do not turn away the face of your anointed one!
[s] Remember your steadfast love for David your servant.”

Fire from Heaven

2 CHRONICLES 7 [†] [t] As soon as Solomon finished his prayer, [u] fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices, [v] and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. 2[^]And the priests could not enter the house of the LORD, because the glory of the LORD filled the LORD’s house. 3When all the people of Israel saw the fire come down and the glory of the LORD on the temple, they bowed down with their faces to the ground on the pavement and worshiped and gave thanks to the LORD, saying, “For he is good, [w] for his steadfast love endures forever.”

The Dedication of the Temple

4[†] [x] Then the king and all the people offered sacrifice before the LORD. 5King Solomon offered as a sacrifice 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep. So the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. [6]The priests stood at their posts; [y]the Levites also, with the instruments for music to the LORD that King David had made for giving thanks to the LORD—[w]for his steadfast love endures forever—whenever David offered praises by their ministry; [1] [z]opposite them the priests sounded trumpets, and all Israel stood.

[7] [a]And Solomon consecrated the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD, for there he offered the burnt offering and the fat of the peace offerings, because the bronze altar Solomon had made could not hold the burnt offering and the grain offering and the fat.

[8][†]At that time Solomon held the feast for seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great assembly, from [b]Lebo-hamath to the [c]Brook of Egypt. [9]And on the eighth day they held a solemn assembly, for they had kept the dedication of the altar seven days and the feast seven days. [10]On the twenty-third day of the seventh month he sent the people away to their homes, joyful and glad of heart for the prosperity that the LORD had granted to David and to Solomon and to Israel his people.

If My People Pray

[11][†] [d]Thus Solomon finished the house of the LORD and the king's house. All that Solomon had planned to do in the house of the LORD and in his own house he successfully accomplished. [12][†]Then the LORD appeared to Solomon in the night and said to him: "I have heard your prayer [e]and have chosen this place for myself as a house of sacrifice. [13][†][f]When I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or command the locust to devour the land, or send pestilence among my people, [14][†]if my people who are called by my name [g]humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land. [15][†] [h]Now my eyes will be open and my ears attentive to the prayer that is made in this place. [16] [e]For now I have chosen and consecrated this house that my name may be there forever. My eyes and my heart will be there for all time. [17][†]And as for you, if you will walk before me as David your father walked, doing according to all that I have commanded you and keeping my statutes and my rules, [18]then I will establish your royal throne, as I covenanted with David your father, saying, [i] ‘You shall not lack a man to rule Israel.’

[19][†][j] “But if you [2] turn aside and forsake my statutes and my commandments that I have set before you, and go and serve other gods and worship them, [20][^][k] then I will pluck you [3] up from my land that I have given you, and this house that I have consecrated for my name, I will cast out of my sight, and I will make it [l] a proverb and a byword among all peoples. [21]And at this house, which was exalted, everyone passing by will be astonished and say, [m] ‘Why has the LORD done thus to this land and to this house?’ [22]Then they will say, ‘Because they abandoned the LORD, the God of their fathers who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on other gods and worshiped them and served them. Therefore he has brought all this disaster on them.’”

Solomon’s Accomplishments

2 CHRONICLES 8 [†][n] At the end of twenty years, in which Solomon had built the house of the LORD and his own house, [2][†]Solomon rebuilt the cities that Hiram had given to him, and settled the people of Israel in them.

[3][†]And Solomon went to Hamath-zobah and took it. [4]He built Tadmor in the wilderness and all the store cities that he built in Hamath. [5][^][†]He also built [o] Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon, [p] fortified cities [p] with walls, gates, and bars, [6]and Baalath, and all the store cities that Solomon had and all the cities for his chariots and the cities for his horsemen, and whatever Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. [7][†][q] All the people who were left of the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of Israel, [8]from their descendants who were left after them in the land, whom the people of Israel had not destroyed—these Solomon drafted [r] as forced labor, and so they are to this day. [9]But of the people of Israel Solomon made no slaves for his work; they were soldiers, and his officers, the commanders of his chariots, and his horsemen. [10]And these were the chief officers of King Solomon, 250, who exercised authority over the people.

[11][†][s] Solomon brought Pharaoh’s daughter up from the city of David to the house that he had built for her, for he said, “My wife shall not live in the house of David king of Israel, for the places to which the ark of the LORD has come are holy."

[12][†]Then Solomon offered up burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of the LORD [t]that he had built before the vestibule, [13] [u]as the duty of each day required, offering [v]according to the commandment of Moses for the Sabbaths, the new moons, and the [w]three annual feasts—the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the Feast of Weeks, and the Feast of Booths.
[14][^]According to the ruling of David his father, he appointed [x]the divisions of the priests for their service, [y]and the Levites for their offices of praise and [z]ministry before the priests [u]as the duty of each day required, and [a]the gatekeepers in their divisions at each gate, for so David [b]the man of God had commanded. [15]And they did not turn aside from what the king had commanded the priests and Levites concerning any matter and concerning the treasuries.

[16][†]Thus was accomplished all the work of Solomon from [1] the day the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid until it was finished. So the house of the LORD was completed.

[17][†]Then Solomon went to [c]Ezion-geber and [d]Eloth on the shore of the sea, in the land of Edom. [18]And Hiram sent to him by the hand of his servants ships and servants familiar with the sea, and they went to Ophir together with the servants of Solomon and brought from there [e]450 talents [2] of gold and brought it to King Solomon.

The Queen of Sheba

2 CHRONICLES 9 [†][f]Now when [g]the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to Jerusalem to test him with hard questions, having a very great retinue and camels bearing spices and very much gold and precious stones. And when she came to Solomon, she told him all that was on her mind. [2]And Solomon answered all her questions. There was nothing hidden from Solomon that he could not explain to her. [3]And when [g]the queen of Sheba had seen the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, [4]the food of his table, the seating of his officials, and the attendance of his servants, and their clothing, his cupbearers, and their clothing, and his burnt offerings that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more breath in her.

5And she said to the king, “The report was true that I heard in my own land of your words and of your wisdom, 6but I did not believe the [1] reports until I came and my own eyes had seen it. And behold, half the greatness of your wisdom was not told me; you surpass the report that I heard. 7[†]Happy are your wives! [2] Happy are these your servants, who continually stand before you and hear your wisdom! 8Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you [h] and set you on his throne as king for the LORD your God! [i] Because your God loved Israel and would establish them forever, he has made you king over them, that you may execute justice and righteousness.” 9[†]Then she gave the king 120 talents [3] of gold, and a very great quantity of spices, and precious stones. There were no spices such as those that the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

12And King Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba all that she desired, whatever she asked [l] besides what she had brought to the king. So she turned and went back to her own land with her servants.

Solomon’s Wealth

13[†] [m] Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was 666 talents of gold, 14besides that which the explorers and merchants brought. [n] And all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the land brought gold and silver to Solomon. 15[†]King Solomon made 200 large shields of beaten gold; 600 shekels [4] of beaten gold went into each shield. 16And he made 300 shields of beaten gold; [o] 300 shekels of gold went into each shield; and the king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. 17The king also made a great ivory throne and overlaid it with pure gold. 18The throne had six steps and a footstool of gold, which were attached to the throne, and on each side of the seat were armrests and two lions standing beside the armrests, [19]while twelve lions stood there, one on each end of a step on the six steps. Nothing like it was ever made for any kingdom. [20]All King Solomon’s drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold. Silver was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon. [21][†]For the king’s ships went to [p]Tarshish with the servants of Hiram. Once every three years the ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. [5]

[22][^][†]Thus King Solomon [q]excelled all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom. [23]And all the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his mind. [24]Every one of them brought his present, articles of silver and of gold, garments, myrrh, spices, horses, and mules, so much year by year. [25]And Solomon had [r]4,000 stalls for horses and chariots, and 12,000 horsemen, whom he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. [26][s]And he ruled over all the kings [t]from the Euphrates [6] to the land of the Philistines and to the border of Egypt. [27][u]And the king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stone, and he made cedar as plentiful as the sycamore of the Shephelah. [28][v]And horses were imported for Solomon from Egypt and from all lands.

Solomon’s Death

[29][†][w]Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, from [x]first to last, are they not written in the history of [y]Nathan the prophet, and in the prophecy of [z]Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of [a]Iddo [b]the seer concerning Jeroboam the son of Nebat? [30]Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years. [31]And Solomon slept with his fathers and was buried in [c]the city of David his father, and Rehoboam his son reigned in his place.

The Revolt Against Rehoboam

2 CHRONICLES 10 [†][d]Rehoboam went to Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. [2][†]And as soon as Jeroboam the son of Nebat heard of it (for he was in Egypt, [e]where he had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned from Egypt. [3]And they sent and called him. And Jeroboam and all Israel came and said to Rehoboam, [4][†][f]“Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke on us, and we will serve you.” [5]He said to them, “Come to me again in three days.” So the people went away.

[6]Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the old men, [1] who had stood before Solomon his father while he was yet alive, saying, “How do you advise me to answer this people?” [7][†]And they said to him, [g]“If you will be good to this people and please them and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.” [8]But he abandoned the counsel that the old men gave him, and took counsel with the young men who had grown up with him and stood before him. [9]And he said to them, “What do you advise that we answer this people who have said to me, ‘Lighten the yoke that your father put on us’?” [10][†]And the young men who had grown up with him said to him, “Thus shall you speak to the people who said to you, ‘Your father made our yoke heavy, but you lighten it for us’; thus shall you say to them, ‘My little finger is thicker than my father’s thighs. [11]And now, whereas my father laid on you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.’”

[12]So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king said, “Come to me again the third day.” [13]And the king answered them harshly; and forsaking the counsel of the old men, [14][†]King Rehoboam spoke to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying, “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to it. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.” [15][^]So the king did not listen to the people, for it was a turn of affairs brought about by God that the LORD might fulfill his word, [h]which he spoke by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

[16][†]And when all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, the people answered the king, “What portion have we in David? We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse. [i]Each of you to your tents, O Israel! Look now to your own house, David.” So all Israel went to their tents. [17]But Rehoboam reigned over the people of Israel who lived in the cities of Judah. [18][†]Then King Rehoboam sent [j]Hadoram, [2] who was taskmaster over the forced labor, and the people of Israel stoned him to death with stones. And King Rehoboam quickly mounted his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. [19]So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

Rehoboam Secures His Kingdom

2 CHRONICLES 11 [†] k When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled the house of Judah and Benjamin, 180,000 chosen warriors, to fight against Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam. [2]But the word of the LORD came to l Shemaiah the man of God: [3]"Say to Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, [4][†]'Thus says the LORD, You shall not go up or fight against m your relatives. Return every man to his home, for this thing is from me.'" So they listened to the word of the LORD and returned and did not go against Jeroboam.

[5][†]Rehoboam lived in Jerusalem, and he built n cities for defense in Judah. [6]He built Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, [7]Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, [8]Gath, o Mareshah, Ziph, [9]Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, [10]Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, fortified cities that are in Judah and in Benjamin. [11]He made the fortresses strong, and put commanders in them, and stores of food, oil, and wine. [12]And he put shields and spears in all the cities and made them very strong. So he held Judah and Benjamin.

Priests and Levites Come to Jerusalem

[13][†]And the priests and the Levites who were in all Israel presented themselves to him from all places where they lived. [14][^]For the Levites left p their common lands and their holdings and came to Judah and Jerusalem, q because Jeroboam and his sons cast them out from serving as priests of the LORD, [15]and he appointed his own r priests for the high places and for the goat idols and for s the calves that he had made. [16] t And those who had set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel came after them from all the tribes of Israel to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the LORD, the God of their fathers. [17][†] u They strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and for three years they made Rehoboam the son of Solomon secure, for they walked for three years in the way of David and Solomon.

Rehoboam’s Family

18[†]Rehoboam took as wife Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the son of David, and of Abihail the daughter of [v]Eliab the son of Jesse, 19and she bore him sons, Jeush, Shemariah, and Zaham. 20After her he took [w]Maacah the daughter of Absalom, who bore him [x]Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith. 21Rehoboam loved Maacah the daughter of Absalom above all his wives and concubines (he took eighteen wives and sixty concubines, and fathered twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters). 22[y]And Rehoboam appointed [x]Abijah the son of Maacah as chief prince among his brothers, for he intended to make him king. 23And he dealt wisely and distributed some of his sons through all the districts of Judah and Benjamin, in all the fortified cities, and he gave them abundant provisions and procured wives for them. [1]

Egypt Plunders Jerusalem

2 CHRONICLES 12 [†][z]When the rule of Rehoboam was established [a]and he was strong, [b]he abandoned the law of the Lord, and all Israel with him. 2[†][c]In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, because they had been unfaithful to the Lord, [d]Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem 3[†]with 1,200 chariots and 60,000 horsemen. And the people were without number who came with him from Egypt—[e]Libyans, Sukkiim, and Ethiopians. 4And he took [f]the fortified cities of Judah and came as far as Jerusalem. 5[†]Then [g]Shemaiah the prophet came to Rehoboam and to the princes of Judah, who had gathered at Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said to them, “Thus says the Lord, [h]‘You abandoned me, so I have abandoned you to the hand of Shishak.’” 6[^][†]Then the princes of [i]Israel and the king humbled themselves and said, [j]“The Lord is righteous.” 7When the Lord saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the Lord came to Shemaiah: [k]“They have humbled themselves. I will not destroy them, but I will grant them some deliverance, [l]and my wrath shall not be poured out on Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak. 8Nevertheless, they shall be servants to him, [m]that they may know my service and the service of the kingdoms of the countries.”

[9][†] [n] So Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. He took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house. He took away everything. He also took away [o] the shields of gold that Solomon had made, [10]and King Rehoboam made in their place shields of bronze and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house. [11]And as often as the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard came and carried them and brought them back to the guardroom. [12][†]And when [p] he humbled himself the wrath of the LORD turned from him, so as not to make a complete destruction. Moreover, [q] conditions were good [1] in Judah.

[13] [r] So King Rehoboam grew strong in Jerusalem and reigned. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. [14][†]And he did evil, [s] for he did not set his heart to seek the LORD.

[15][†] [t] Now the acts of Rehoboam, [u] from first to last, are they not written in the chronicles of [v] Shemaiah the prophet and of [w] Iddo [x] the seer? [2] There were continual wars between Rehoboam and Jeroboam. [16]And Rehoboam slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David, and [y] Abijah [3] his son reigned in his place.

Abijah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 13 [†] [z] In the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam, [y] Abijah began to reign over Judah. [2][†]He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was [a] Micaiah [1] the daughter of Uriel of Gibeah.

[b] Now there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. [3][†]Abijah went out to battle, having an army of valiant men of war, 400,000 chosen men. And Jeroboam [c] drew up his line of battle against him with 800,000 chosen mighty warriors. [4][†]Then Abijah stood up on Mount [d] Zemaraim that is in [e] the hill country of Ephraim and said, "Hear me, O Jeroboam and all Israel! [5][†]Ought you not to know that the LORD God of Israel [f] gave the kingship over Israel forever to David and his sons by [g] a covenant of salt? [6]Yet Jeroboam the son of Nebat, a servant of Solomon the son of David, rose up [h] and rebelled against his lord, [7]and certain [i] worthless scoundrels gathered about him and defied Rehoboam the son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was [j] young and irresolute [2] and could not withstand them.

[8][‡]"And now you think to withstand the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David, because you are a great multitude and have with you [k] the golden calves that Jeroboam made you for gods. [9][^] [l] Have you not driven out the priests of the LORD, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites, and made priests for yourselves like the peoples of other lands? Whoever comes [m] for ordination [3] with a young bull or seven rams becomes a priest of what are [n] no gods. [10]But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not forsaken him. We have priests ministering to the LORD who are sons of Aaron, and Levites for their service. [11]They offer to the LORD [o] every morning and every evening burnt offerings and incense of sweet spices, set out [p] the showbread on the table of pure gold, [q] and care for the golden lampstand that its lamps may [r] burn every evening. For we [s] keep the charge of the LORD our God, but you have forsaken him. [12]Behold, God is with us at our head, and his priests [t] with their battle trumpets to sound the call to battle against you. O sons of Israel, [u] do not fight against the LORD, the God of your fathers, for you cannot succeed."

[13][‡]Jeroboam had sent [v] an ambush around to come upon them from behind. Thus his troops [4] were in front of Judah, and the ambush was behind them. [14]And when Judah looked, behold, the battle was in front of and behind them. [w] And they cried to the LORD, and the priests [t] blew the trumpets. [15]Then the men of Judah raised the battle shout. And when the men of Judah shouted, [x] God defeated Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah. [16]The men of Israel fled before Judah, [y] and God gave them into their hand. [17]Abijah and his people struck them with great force, so there fell slain of Israel 500,000 chosen men. [18]Thus the men of Israel were subdued at that time, and the men of Judah prevailed, [z] because they relied on the LORD, the God of their fathers. [19][‡]And Abijah pursued Jeroboam [a] and took cities from him, Bethel with its villages and Jeshanah with its villages and [b] Ephron [5] with its villages. [20]Jeroboam did not recover his power in the days of Abijah. [c] And the LORD struck him down, [d] and he died. [21][‡]But Abijah grew mighty. And he took fourteen wives and had twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. [22][†]The rest of the acts of Abijah, his ways and his sayings, are written in the [e] story of the prophet [f] Iddo.

Asa Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 14 [1] [g] Abijah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David. And Asa his son reigned in his place. In his days the land had rest for ten years. [2][†] [2] And Asa did what was good and right in the eyes of the LORD his God. [3]He took away the foreign altars [h] and the high places and broke down [i] the pillars and cut down the [j] Asherim [4]and commanded Judah to seek the LORD, the God of their fathers, and to keep the law and the commandment. [5]He also took out of all the cities of Judah [h] the high places and the [k] incense altars. And the kingdom had rest under him. [6]He built [l] fortified cities in Judah, for the land had rest. He had no war in those years, [m] for the LORD gave him peace. [7][^]And he said to Judah, “Let us build these cities and surround them with [n] walls and towers, gates and bars. The land is still ours, because we have sought the LORD our God. We have sought him, [m] and he has given us peace on every side.” So they built and prospered. [8]And Asa had an army of [o] 300,000 from Judah, armed with large shields and spears, and 280,000 men from Benjamin that carried shields and drew bows. All these were mighty men of valor.

[9][†]Zerah [p] the Ethiopian came out against them with an army of a million men and 300 chariots, and came as far as [q] Mareshah. [10]And Asa went out to meet him, and [r] they drew up their lines of battle in the Valley of Zephathah at [q] Mareshah. [11][†]And Asa [s] cried to the LORD his God, “O LORD, there is none like you to help, between the mighty and the weak. Help us, O LORD our God, [t] for we rely on you, [u] and in your name we have come against this multitude. O LORD, you are our God; let not man prevail against you.” [12] [v] So the LORD defeated the Ethiopians before Asa and before Judah, and the Ethiopians fled. [13]Asa and the people who were with him pursued them as far as [w] Gerar, and the Ethiopians fell until none remained alive, for they were broken before the LORD and his army. The men of Judah [3] carried away very much spoil. [14]And they attacked all the cities around [w] Gerar, [x] for the fear of the LORD was upon them. They plundered all the cities, for there was much plunder in them. [15]And they struck down the tents of those who had livestock and carried away sheep in abundance and camels. Then they returned to Jerusalem.

Asa’s Religious Reforms

2 CHRONICLES 15 [†] [y] The Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Oded, [2]and he went out to meet Asa and said to him, “Hear me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin: [z] The LORD is with you while you are with him. [a] If you seek him, he will be found by you, [b] but if you forsake him, he will forsake you. [3] [c] For a long time Israel was without the true God, and without a teaching priest and without law, [4] [d] but when in their distress they turned to the LORD, the God of Israel, and sought him, he was found by them. [5]In those times there was no peace [e] to him who went out or to him who came in, for great disturbances afflicted all the inhabitants of the lands. [6]They were broken in pieces. Nation was crushed by nation and city by city, for God troubled them with every sort of distress. [7] [f] But you, take courage! Do not let your hands be weak, [g] for your work shall be rewarded.”

[8][^][†]As soon as Asa heard these words, [h] the prophecy of Azariah the son of Oded, he took courage and put away the detestable idols from all the land of Judah and Benjamin and from [i] the cities that he had taken in [j] the hill country of Ephraim, and he repaired the altar of the LORD [k] that was in front of the vestibule of the house of the LORD. [1] [9][†]And he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, [l] and those from Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon who were residing with them, for great numbers had deserted to him from Israel when they saw that the LORD his God was with him. [10][†]They were gathered at Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. [11]They sacrificed to the LORD on that day [m] from the spoil that they had brought 700 oxen and 7,000 sheep. [12][†] [n] And they entered into a covenant to seek the LORD, the God of their fathers, with all their heart and with all their soul, [13][†]but that whoever would not seek the LORD, the God of Israel, [o] should be put to death, whether young or old, man or woman. [14]They swore an oath to the LORD with a loud voice and with shouting and with trumpets and with horns. [15]And all Judah rejoiced over the oath, for they had sworn with all their heart and had sought him with their whole desire, and he was found by them, [p]and the LORD gave them rest all around.

[16][†] [q]Even Maacah, [r]his mother, King Asa removed from being queen mother because she had made a detestable image [s]for Asherah. Asa cut down her image, [t]crushed it, and burned it at the brook Kidron. [17][†] [u]But the high places were not taken out of Israel. Nevertheless, the heart of Asa was wholly true all his days. [18]And he brought into the house of God the sacred gifts of his father and his own sacred gifts, silver, and gold, and vessels. [19]And there was no more war until the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

Asa’s Last Years

2 CHRONICLES 16 [†] [v]In the [w]thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha king of Israel went up against Judah and built Ramah, [x]that he might permit no one to go out or come in to Asa king of Judah. [2][†]Then Asa took silver and gold from the treasures of the house of the LORD and the king’s house and sent them to Ben-hadad king of Syria, who lived in Damascus, saying, [3]“There is a covenant [1] between me and you, as there was between my father and your father. Behold, I am sending to you silver and gold. Go, break your covenant with Baasha king of Israel, that he may withdraw from me.” [4]And Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel, and they conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim, and all the [y]store cities of Naphtali. [5]And when Baasha heard of it, he stopped building Ramah and let his work cease. [6]Then King Asa took all Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha had been building, and with them he built Geba and Mizpah.

[7][†]At that time [z]Hanani [a]the seer came to Asa king of Judah and said to him, [b]“Because you relied on the king of Syria, and did not rely on the LORD your God, the army of the king of Syria has escaped you. [8]Were not [c]the Ethiopians and [d]the Libyans a huge army with very many chariots and horsemen? Yet [e]because you relied on the LORD, he gave them into your hand. [9][^][f]For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to give strong support to those [g]whose heart is blameless [2] toward him. [h]You have done foolishly in this, for from now on [i]you will have wars.” [10][†]Then Asa was angry with the seer and put him [j] in the stocks in prison, for he was in a rage with him because of this. And Asa inflicted cruelties upon some of the people at the same time.

[11][†] [k] The acts of Asa, from first to last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. [12]In the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa was diseased in his feet, and his disease became severe. Yet even in his disease he did not seek the LORD, but sought help from physicians. [13][†]And Asa slept with his fathers, dying in the forty-first year of his reign. [14]They buried him in the tomb that he had cut for himself in the city of David. They laid him on a bier [l] that had been filled with various kinds of spices prepared by the perfumer’s art, [m] and they made a very great fire in his honor.

Jehoshaphat Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 17 [†]Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his place and strengthened himself against Israel. [2]He placed forces in all the [n] fortified cities of Judah and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim [o] that Asa his father had captured. [3][†]The LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the earlier ways of his father David. He did not seek the Baals, [4]but sought the God of his father and walked in his commandments, [p] and not according to the practices of Israel. [5][^][†]Therefore the LORD established the kingdom in his hand. And all Judah [q] brought tribute to Jehoshaphat, [r] and he had great riches and honor. [6][†]His heart was courageous in the ways of the LORD. And furthermore, [s] he took the high places and the Asherim out of Judah.

[7][†]In the third year of his reign he sent his officials, Ben-hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah, [t] to teach in the cities of Judah; [8] [u] and with them the Levites, Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tobadonijah; and with these Levites, the priests Elishama and Jehoram. [9]And [t] they taught in Judah, having the Book of the Law of the LORD with them. They went about through all the cities of Judah and taught among the people.

[10][†] [v] And the fear of the LORD fell upon all the kingdoms of the lands that were around Judah, and they made no war against Jehoshaphat. [11]Some of the Philistines [w]brought Jehoshaphat presents and silver for tribute, and the Arabians also brought him 7,700 rams and 7,700 goats. 12[‡]And Jehoshaphat grew steadily greater. He built in Judah fortresses and store cities, 13and he had large supplies in the cities of Judah. He had soldiers, mighty men of valor, in Jerusalem. 14This was the muster of them by fathers' houses: Of Judah, the commanders of thousands: Adnah the commander, with 300,000 mighty men of valor; 15and next to him Jehohanan the commander, with 280,000; 16and next to him Amasiah the son of Zichri, [x]a volunteer for the service of the LORD, with 200,000 mighty men of valor. 17Of Benjamin: Eliada, a mighty man of valor, with 200,000 men [y]armed with bow and shield; 18and next to him Jehozabad with 180,000 armed for war. 19These were in the service of the king, besides [z]those whom the king had placed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.

Jehoshaphat Allies with Ahab

2 CHRONICLES 18 [†]Now Jehoshaphat [a] had great riches and honor, [b] and he made a marriage alliance with Ahab. 2 [c] After some years he went down to Ahab in Samaria. And Ahab killed an abundance of sheep and oxen for him and for the people who were with him, and induced him to go up against Ramoth-gilead. 3[†]Ahab king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat king of Judah, “Will you go with me to Ramoth-gilead?” He answered him, “I am as you are, my people as your people. We will be with you in the war.”

4[†]And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, “Inquire first for the word of the Lord.” 5Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, four hundred men, and said to them, “Shall we go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?” And they said, “Go up, for God will give it into the hand of the king.” 6But Jehoshaphat said, “Is there not here another prophet of the Lord of whom we may inquire?” 7And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is yet one man by whom we may inquire of the Lord, Micaiah the son of Imlah; but I hate him, for he never prophesies good concerning me, but always evil.” And Jehoshaphat said, “Let not the king say so.” 8Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, “Bring quickly Micaiah the son of Imlah.” 9[†]Now the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes. And they were sitting at the threshing floor [d] at the entrance of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 10And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made for himself horns of iron and said, “Thus says the Lord, ‘With these you shall push the Syrians until they are destroyed.’” 11And all the prophets prophesied so and said, “Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph. The Lord will give it into the hand of the king.”

12And the messenger who went to summon Micaiah said to him, “Behold, the words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king. Let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably.” 13But Micaiah said, [e] “As the Lord lives, [f] what my God says, that I will speak.” 14[†]And when he had come to the king, the king said to him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I refrain?” And he answered, “Go up and triumph; they will be given into your hand.” 15[†]But the king said to him, "How many times shall I make you swear that you speak to me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?" [16]And he said, "I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, [g]as sheep that have no shepherd. And the LORD said, 'These have no master; let each return to his home in peace.'" [17]And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but evil?" [18][^]And Micaiah said, "Therefore hear the word of the LORD: [h]I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right hand and on his left. [19]And the LORD said, 'Who will entice Ahab the king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?' And one said one thing, and another said another. [20]Then a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, 'I will entice him.' And the LORD said to him, 'By what means?' [21]And he said, 'I will go out, and will be [i]a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' And he said, 'You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do so.' [22]Now therefore behold, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of these your prophets. The LORD has declared disaster concerning you."

[23][†]Then Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah came near [j]and struck Micaiah on the cheek and said, "Which way did the Spirit of the LORD go from me to speak to you?" [24][†]And Micaiah said, "Behold, you shall see on that day when you go into an inner chamber to hide yourself." [25][†]And the king of Israel said, "Seize Micaiah and take him back to Amon [k]the governor of the city and to Joash the king's son, [26]and say, 'Thus says the king, [l]Put this fellow in prison and feed him with meager rations of bread and water until I return in peace.'" [27]And Micaiah said, "If you return in peace, the LORD has not spoken by me." And he said, [m]"Hear, all you peoples!"

The Defeat and Death of Ahab

[28][†]So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead. [29][†]And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes." And the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle. [30]Now the king of Syria had commanded the captains of his chariots, "Fight with neither small nor great, but only with the king of Israel.” [31]As soon as the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, “It is the king of Israel.” So they turned to fight against him. And Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD helped him; God drew them away from him. [32]For as soon as the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. [33]But a certain man drew his bow at random [1] and struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate. Therefore he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn around and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded.” [34]And the battle continued that day, and the king of Israel was propped up in his chariot facing the Syrians until evening. Then at sunset he died.

Jehoshaphat’s Reforms

2 CHRONICLES 19 [†]Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned in safety to his house in Jerusalem. [2]But [n] Jehu the son of [o] Hanani [p] the seer went out to meet him and said to King Jehoshaphat, “Should you [q] help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD? Because of this, [r] wrath has gone out against you from the LORD. [3]Nevertheless, [s] some good is found in you, for [t] you destroyed the Asheroth out of the land, and have [u] set your heart to seek God.”

[4][†]Jehoshaphat lived at Jerusalem. And he went out again among the people, from Beersheba to [v] the hill country of Ephraim, and brought them back to the LORD, the God of their fathers. [5][†]He appointed [w] judges in the land in all [x] the fortified cities of Judah, city by city, [6]and said to the judges, “Consider what you do, [y] for you judge not for man but for the LORD. He is with you in giving judgment. [7][^]Now then, let the fear of the LORD be upon you. Be careful what you do, for [z] there is no injustice with the LORD our God, [a] or partiality or taking bribes.”

[8][†]Moreover, in Jerusalem Jehoshaphat [b] appointed certain Levites and priests and heads of families of Israel, [y] to give judgment for the LORD and to decide disputed cases. They had their seat at Jerusalem. [9]And he charged them: [c] “Thus you shall do in the fear of the LORD, in faithfulness, [d] and with your whole heart: [10] [e] whenever a case comes to you from your brothers who live in their cities, concerning bloodshed, law or commandment, statutes or rules, then you shall warn them, that they may not incur guilt before the LORD and [f] wrath may not come upon you and your brothers. Thus you shall do, and you will not incur guilt. [11]And behold, Amariah the chief priest is over you [g] in all matters of the LORD; and Zebadiah the son of Ishmael, the governor of the house of Judah, in all the king's matters, and the Levites will serve you as officers. [h] Deal courageously, and may the LORD be with the upright!" [1]

Jehoshaphat's Prayer

2 CHRONICLES 20 [†]After this [i] the Moabites and Ammonites, and with them some of the Meunites, [1] came against Jehoshaphat for battle. [2]Some men came and told Jehoshaphat, "A great multitude is coming against you from Edom, [2] from beyond the sea; and, behold, they are in [j] Hazazon-tamar" (that is, [k] Engedi). [3][†]Then Jehoshaphat was afraid and set his face [l] to seek the LORD, and [m] proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. [4]And Judah assembled to seek help from the LORD; from all the cities of Judah they came to seek the LORD.

[5][†]And Jehoshaphat stood in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court, [6]and said, "O LORD, God of our fathers, are you not [n] God in heaven? You [o] rule over all the kingdoms of the nations. [p] In your hand are power and might, so that none is able to withstand you. [7]Did you not, our God, [q] drive out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel, and give it forever to the descendants of [r] Abraham your friend? [8]And they have lived in it and have built for you in it a sanctuary for your name, saying, [9] [s] 'If disaster comes upon us, the sword, judgment, [3] or pestilence, or famine, [t] we will stand before this house and before you—[u] for your name is in this house—and cry out to you in our affliction, and you will hear and save.' [10]And now behold, the men of [v] Ammon and Moab and [w] Mount Seir, whom [x] you would not let Israel invade when they came from the land of Egypt, [y] and whom they avoided and did not destroy— [11]behold, they reward us [z] by coming to drive us out of your possession, which you have given us to inherit. [12]O our God, will you not [a] execute judgment on them? For we are powerless against this great horde that is coming against us. We do not know what to do, but [b]our eyes are on you.”

[13]Meanwhile all Judah stood before the LORD, with their little ones, their wives, and their children. [14][†]And [c]the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jahaziel the son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, in the midst of the assembly. [15]And he said, “Listen, all Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem and King Jehoshaphat: Thus says the LORD to you, [d]‘Do not be afraid and do not be dismayed at this great horde, [e]for the battle is not yours but God’s. [16]Tomorrow go down against them. Behold, they will come up by the ascent of Ziz. You will find them at the end of [f]the valley, east of the wilderness of Jeruel. [17][g]You will not need to fight in this battle. Stand firm, hold your position, and see the salvation of the LORD on your behalf, O Judah and Jerusalem.’ [d]Do not be afraid and do not be dismayed. Tomorrow go out against them, [h]and the LORD will be with you.”

[18]Then Jehoshaphat [i]bowed his head with his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD, worshiping the LORD. [19]And the Levites, of the [j]Kohathites and the [k]Korahites, stood up to praise the LORD, the God of Israel, with a very loud voice.

[20][†]And they rose early in the morning and went out into [l]the wilderness of Tekoa. And when they went out, Jehoshaphat stood and said, “Hear me, Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem! [m]Believe in the LORD your God, and you will be established; believe his prophets, and you will succeed.” [21]And when he had taken counsel with the people, he appointed those who were to sing to the LORD and praise him [n]in holy attire, as they went before the army, and say,

[o]“Give thanks to the LORD,
for his steadfast love endures forever.”

[22][^]And when they began to sing and praise, the LORD set [p]an ambush against the men of [q]Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir, who had come against Judah, so that they were routed. [23]For the men of Ammon and Moab rose against the inhabitants of Mount Seir, devoting them to destruction, and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Seir, [r] they all helped to destroy one another.

The Lord Delivers Judah

[24][†]When Judah came to the watchtower of the wilderness, they looked toward the horde, and behold, there [4] were dead bodies lying on the ground; none had escaped. [25]When Jehoshaphat and his people came to take their spoil, they found among them, in great numbers, goods, clothing, and precious things, which they took for themselves until they could carry no more. They were three days in taking the spoil, it was so much. [26]On the fourth day they assembled in the Valley of Beracah, [5] for there they blessed the Lord. Therefore the name of that place has been called the Valley of Beracah to this day. [27]Then they returned, every man of Judah and Jerusalem, and Jehoshaphat at their head, returning to Jerusalem with joy, [s] for the Lord had made them rejoice over their enemies. [28]They came to Jerusalem with harps and lyres and trumpets, to the house of the Lord. [29] [t] And the fear of God came on all the kingdoms of the countries when they heard that the Lord had fought against the enemies of Israel. [30]So the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet, [u] for his God gave him rest all around.

[31][†] [v] Thus Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah. He was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi. [32]He walked in the way of Asa his father and did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the Lord. [33] [w] The high places, however, were not taken away; [x] the people had not yet set their hearts upon the God of their fathers.

[34]Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, from first to last, are written in the chronicles of [y] Jehu the son of Hanani, [z] which are recorded in the Book of the Kings of Israel.

The End of Jehoshaphat’s Reign

[35][†] [a] After this Jehoshaphat king of Judah joined with Ahaziah king of Israel, who acted wickedly. [36]He joined him in building ships to go to [b] Tarshish, and they built the ships in Ezion-geber. [37]Then Eliezer the son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, [c]“Because you have joined with Ahaziah, the LORD will destroy what you have made.” And the ships were wrecked and were not able to go to Tarshish.

Jehoram Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 21 [†] [d]Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and Jehoram his son reigned in his place. 2[†]He had brothers, the sons of Jehoshaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah; all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat king of [e]Israel. [1] 3Their father gave them great gifts of silver, gold, and valuable possessions, together with [f]fortified cities in Judah, but he gave the kingdom to Jehoram, because he was the firstborn. 4When Jehoram had ascended the throne of his father and was established, he killed all his brothers with the sword, and also some of the princes of [e]Israel. 5 [g]Jehoram was [h]thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6[†] [i]And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for [j]the daughter of Ahab was his wife. And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. 7[^][†]Yet the LORD was not willing to destroy the house of David, because of the covenant that he had made with David, and since he had promised to give [k]a lamp to him and to his sons forever.

8[†]In his days Edom revolted from the [l]rule of Judah and set up a king of their own. 9Then Jehoram passed over with his commanders and all his chariots, and he rose by night and struck the Edomites who had surrounded him and his chariot commanders. 10So Edom revolted from [m]the rule of Judah to this day. At that time Libnah also revolted from his rule, because he had forsaken the LORD, the God of his fathers.

11[†]Moreover, he made high places in the hill country of Judah and led the inhabitants of Jerusalem [n]into whoredom and made Judah go astray. 12And a letter came to him from Elijah the prophet, saying, “Thus says the LORD, the God of David your father, [o]‘Because you have not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat your father, or [p]in the ways of Asa king of Judah, 13 [i]but have walked in the way of the kings of Israel and have enticed Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem [n]into whoredom, [q]as the house of Ahab led Israel into whoredom, and also you [r] have killed your brothers, of your father’s house, who were better than you, 14behold, the LORD will bring a great plague on your people, your children, your wives, and all your possessions, 15and you yourself will have a severe sickness [s] with a disease of your bowels, until your bowels come out because of the disease, day by day.’”

16 [t] And the LORD stirred up against Jehoram the anger [2] of the Philistines and of [u] the Arabians who are near the Ethiopians. 17And they came up against Judah and invaded it and carried away all the possessions they found that belonged to the king’s house, and also his sons and his wives, so that no son was left to him except [v] Jehoahaz, his youngest son.

18And after all this the LORD struck him [w] in his bowels with an incurable disease. 19In the course of time, at the end of two years, his bowels came out because of the disease, and he died in great agony. His people made no fire in his honor, [x] like the fires made for his fathers. 20 [y] He was thirty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And he departed [z] with no one’s regret. [a] They buried him in the city of David, but not in the tombs of the kings.

Ahaziah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 22 [†] [b] And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king in his place, for the band of men that came with [c] the Arabians to the camp had killed all the older sons. So Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah reigned. 2Ahaziah was twenty-two [1] years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Athaliah, [d] the granddaughter of Omri. 3He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother was his counselor in doing wickedly. 4He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as the house of Ahab had done. For after the death of his father they were his counselors, to his undoing. 5[†]He even followed their counsel and went with Jehoram the son of Ahab king of Israel to make war against Hazael king of Syria at Ramoth-gilead. And the Syrians wounded Joram, 6and he returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that he had received at Ramah, when he fought against Hazael king of Syria. And Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Joram the son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was wounded.

7 But it was ordained by God that the downfall of Ahaziah should come about through his going to visit Joram. For when he came there, [e] he went out with Jehoram to meet Jehu the son of Nimshi, [f] whom the LORD had anointed to destroy the house of Ahab. 8 [g] And when Jehu was [h] executing judgment on the house of Ahab, he met the princes of Judah and the sons of Ahaziah's brothers, who attended Ahaziah, and he killed them. 9 [†] [i] He searched for Ahaziah, and he was captured while hiding in Samaria, and he was brought to Jehu and put to death. [j] They buried him, for they said, "He is the grandson of Jehoshaphat, [k] who sought the LORD with all his heart." And the house of Ahaziah had no one able to rule the kingdom.

Athaliah Reigns in Judah

10 [†] [l] Now when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the royal family of the house of Judah. 11 [^] But Jehoshabeath, [2] the daughter of the king, took Joash the son of Ahaziah and stole him away from among the king's sons who were about to be put to death, and she put him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus Jehoshabeath, the daughter of King Jehoram and wife of Jehoiada the priest, because she was a sister of Ahaziah, hid him [3] from Athaliah, so that she did not put him to death. 12 And he remained with them six years, hidden in the house of God, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

Joash Made King

2 CHRONICLES 23 [†] [m] But in the seventh year Jehoiada took courage and entered into a covenant with the commanders of hundreds, Azariah the son of Jeroham, Ishmael the son of Jehohanan, Azariah the son of Obed, Maaseiah the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri. 2 And they went about through [n] Judah and gathered the Levites from all the cities of Judah, and the heads of fathers' houses of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. 3 [†] And all the assembly made a covenant with the king in the house of God. And Jehoiada [1] said to them, "Behold, the king's son! Let him reign, [o] as the LORD spoke concerning the sons of David. 4 [†] This is the thing that you shall do: [p] of you priests and Levites who come off duty on the Sabbath, one third shall be gatekeepers, [5][†]and one third shall be at the king's house and one third at the Gate of the Foundation. And all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD. [6]Let no one enter the house of the LORD except the priests [q] and ministering Levites. They may enter, for they are holy, but all the people shall keep the charge of the LORD. [7]The Levites shall surround the king, each with his weapons in his hand. And whoever enters the house shall be put to death. Be with the king when he comes in and when he goes out."

[8][†]The Levites and all Judah did according to all that Jehoiada the priest commanded, and they each brought his men, who were to go off duty on the Sabbath, with those who were to come on duty on the Sabbath, for Jehoiada the priest did not dismiss [r] the divisions. [9][†]And Jehoiada the priest gave to the captains the spears and the large and small shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of God. [10]And he set all the people as a guard for the king, every man with his weapon in his hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house. [11][^][†]Then they brought out the king's son and put the crown on him and gave him [s] the testimony. And they proclaimed him king, and Jehoiada and his sons anointed him, and they said, [t] "Long live the king."

Athaliah Executed

[12]When Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she went into the house of the LORD to the people. [13][†]And when she looked, there was the king standing by his pillar at the entrance, and the captains and the trumpeters beside the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and blowing trumpets, and the singers with their musical instruments leading in the celebration. And Athaliah tore her clothes and cried, "Treason! Treason!" [14]Then Jehoiada the priest brought out the captains who were set over the army, saying to them, "Bring her out between the ranks, and anyone who follows her is to be put to death with the sword." For the priest said, "Do not put her to death in the house of the LORD." [15]So they laid hands on her, [2] and she went into the entrance of [u] the horse gate of the king's house, and they put her to death there.

Jehoiada's Reforms

[16][†]And Jehoiada made a covenant between himself and all the people and the king that they should be the LORD's people. [17]Then all the people went to the house of Baal and tore it down; his altars and his images they broke in pieces, [v]and they killed Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. [18]And Jehoiada posted watchmen for the house of the LORD under the direction of [w]the Levitical priests and the Levites [x]whom David had organized to be in charge of the house of the LORD, to offer burnt offerings to the LORD, [y]as it is written in the Law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, [z]according to the order of David. [19]He stationed [a]the gatekeepers at the gates of the house of the LORD so that no one should enter who was in any way unclean. [20]And he took the captains, the nobles, the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching [b]through the upper gate to the king's house. And they set the king on the royal throne. [21]So all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been put to death with the sword.

Joash Repairs the Temple

2 CHRONICLES 24 [†] [c]Joash [1] was seven years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah of Beersheba. [2][†] [d]And Joash did what was right in the eyes of the LORD all the days of Jehoiada the priest. [3][†]Jehoiada got for him two wives, and he had sons and daughters.

[4][^][†]After this Joash [e]decided to [f]restore the house of the LORD. [5][†]And he gathered the priests and the Levites and said to them, "Go out to the cities of [g]Judah and gather from all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that you act quickly." But the Levites did not act quickly. [6]So the king summoned Jehoiada the chief and said to him, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring in from Judah and Jerusalem [h]the tax levied by Moses, the servant of the LORD, and the congregation of Israel for [i]the tent of testimony?" [7]For [j]the sons of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken into the house of God, and had also used all [k]the dedicated things of the house of the LORD for the Baals.

[8][†]So the king commanded, and they made a chest and set it outside the gate of the house of the LORD. [9]And [l]proclamation was made throughout Judah and Jerusalem to bring in for the LORD [h]the tax that Moses the servant of God laid on Israel in the wilderness. [10]And all the princes and all the people rejoiced and brought their tax and dropped it into the chest until they had finished. [2] [11]And whenever the chest was brought to the king's officers by the Levites, when they saw that there was much money in it, the king's secretary and the officer of the chief priest would come and empty the chest and take it and return it to its place. Thus they did day after day, and collected money in abundance. [12]And the king and Jehoiada gave it to those who had charge of the work of the house of the LORD, and they hired masons and carpenters to restore the house of the LORD, and also workers in iron and bronze to repair the house of the LORD. [13][†]So those who were engaged in the work labored, and the repairing went forward in their hands, and they restored the house of God to its proper condition and strengthened it. [14]And when they had finished, they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada, and with it [m]were made utensils for the house of the LORD, both for the service and for the burnt offerings, and dishes for incense and vessels of gold and silver. And they offered burnt offerings in the house of the LORD regularly all the days of Jehoiada.

[15][†]But Jehoiada grew old and full of days, and died. He was 130 years old at his death. [16]And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, and toward God and his house.

[17]Now after the death of Jehoiada the princes of Judah came and paid homage to the king. Then the king listened to them. [18]And they abandoned the house of the LORD, the God of their fathers, and served [o]the Asherim and the idols. And [p]wrath came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this guilt of theirs. [19][q]Yet he sent prophets among them to bring them back to the LORD. [r]These testified against them, but they would not pay attention.

Joash's Treachery

[20][^][s]Then the Spirit of God clothed Zechariah [t]the son of Jehoiada the priest, and he stood above the people, and said to them, "Thus says God, [u]'Why do you break the commandments of the LORD, so that you cannot prosper? [v]Because you have forsaken the LORD, he has forsaken you.’” [21]But [w]they conspired against him, [x]and by command of the king they stoned him with stones in the court of the house of the LORD. [22]Thus Joash the king did not remember the kindness that Jehoiada, Zechariah’s father, had shown him, but killed his son. And when he was dying, he said, “May the LORD see [y]and avenge!” [3]

Joash Assassinated

[23][†]At the end of the year [z]the army of the Syrians came up against Joash. They came to Judah and Jerusalem and destroyed all the princes of the people from among the people and sent all their spoil to the king of Damascus. [24]Though the army of the Syrians had come with few men, [a]the LORD delivered into their hand a very great army, [v]because Judah [4] had forsaken the LORD, the God of their fathers. Thus they [b]executed judgment on Joash.

[25]When they had departed from him, leaving him [c]severely wounded, [d]his servants conspired against him because of the blood of [e]the son [5] of Jehoiada the priest, and killed him on his bed. So he died, and they buried him in the city of David, [f]but they did not bury him in the tombs of the kings. [26]Those who conspired against him were Zabad the son of Shimeath the Ammonite, and Jehozabad the son of Shimrith the Moabite. [27]Accounts of his sons and of the many oracles against him and of [g]the rebuilding [6] of the house of God are written in the [h]Story of the Book of the Kings. And Amaziah his son reigned in his place.

Amaziah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 25 [†] [i]Amaziah was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. [2][†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, [j]yet not with a whole heart. [3]And as soon as the royal power was firmly his, he killed his servants who had struck down the king his father. [4]But he did not put their children to death, according to what is written in the Law, in the Book of Moses, where the LORD commanded, [k]“Fathers shall not die because of their children, nor children die because of their fathers, but each one shall die for his own sin.”

Amaziah’s Victories

[5][‡]Then Amaziah assembled the men of Judah and set them by fathers’ houses under commanders of thousands and of hundreds for all Judah and Benjamin. He mustered those [l]twenty years old and upward, and found that they were [m]300,000 choice men, fit for war, [n]able to handle spear and shield. [6]He hired also 100,000 mighty men of valor from Israel for 100 talents [1] of silver. [7]But [o]a man of God came to him and said, “O king, do not let the army of Israel go with you, for the LORD is not with Israel, with all these Ephraimites. [8]But go, act, be strong for the battle. Why should you suppose that God will cast you down before the enemy? [p]For God has power to help or to cast down.” [9]And Amaziah said to the man of God, “But what shall we do about the hundred talents that I have given to the army of Israel?” The man of God answered, “The LORD is able to give you much more than this.” [10]Then Amaziah discharged the army that had come to him from Ephraim to go home again. And they became very angry with Judah and returned home in fierce anger. [11][‡]But Amaziah took courage and led out his people and went to the [q]Valley of Salt and struck down [r]10,000 men of Seir. [12]The men of Judah captured another 10,000 alive and took them to the top of a rock and threw them down from the top of the rock, and they were all dashed to pieces. [13]But the men of the army whom Amaziah sent back, not letting them go with him to battle, raided the cities of Judah, [s]from Samaria to Beth-horon, and struck down 3,000 people in them and took much spoil.

Amaziah’s Idolatry

[14]After Amaziah came from striking down the Edomites, [t]he brought the gods [r]of the men of Seir and set them up as his gods and worshiped them, making offerings to them. [15]Therefore the LORD was angry with Amaziah and sent to him a prophet, who said to him, “Why have you sought the gods of a people [u]who did not deliver their own people from your hand?”
[16][^]But as he was speaking, the king said to him, “Have we made you a royal counselor? Stop! Why should you be struck down?” So the prophet stopped, but said, “I know that [v] God has determined to destroy you, because you have done this and have not listened to my counsel.”

Israel Defeats Amaziah

[17][‡] [w] Then Amaziah king of Judah took counsel and sent to Joash the son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, “Come, let us look one another in the face.” [18]And Joash the king of Israel sent word to Amaziah king of Judah, [x] “A thistle on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son for a wife,’ and a wild beast of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thistle. [19][^]You say, ‘See, I [2] have struck down Edom,’ and [y] your heart has lifted you up in boastfulness. But now stay at home. Why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?”

[20]But Amaziah would not listen, for it was of God, in order that he might give them into the hand of their enemies, [z] because they had sought the gods of Edom. [21]So Joash king of Israel went up, and he and Amaziah king of Judah faced one another in battle at Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah. [22]And Judah was defeated by Israel, and every man fled to his home. [23]And Joash king of Israel captured Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Joash, son of [a] Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh, and brought him to Jerusalem and broke down the wall of Jerusalem for 400 cubits, [3] from [b] the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate. [24]And he seized all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God, in the care of [c] Obed-edom. He seized also the treasuries of the king’s house, also hostages, and he returned to Samaria.

[25][‡] [d] Amaziah the son of Joash, king of Judah, lived fifteen years after the death of Joash the son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel. [26]Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, from first to last, are they not written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel? [27]From the time when he turned away from the Lord they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish and put him to death there. [28]And they brought him upon horses, and he was buried with his fathers in the city of David. [4]

Uzziah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 26 [†]And all the people of Judah took Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amaziah. [2][†]He built Eloth and restored it to Judah, after the king slept with his fathers. [3][†]Uzziah was [e] sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. [4]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, according to all that his father Amaziah had done. [5][†]He set himself to seek God [f] in the days of Zechariah, [g] who instructed him in the fear of God, and as long as he sought the LORD, God made him prosper.

[6][†]He went out and [h] made war against the Philistines and broke through the wall of Gath and the wall of Jabneh and the wall of Ashdod, and he built cities in the territory of Ashdod and elsewhere among the Philistines. [7]God helped him [i] against the Philistines and against the Arabians who lived in Gurbaal and against the [j] Meunites. [8]The Ammonites [k] paid tribute to Uzziah, and his fame spread even to the border of Egypt, for he became very strong. [9][†]Moreover, Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at [l] the Corner Gate and at [m] the Valley Gate and at [n] the Angle, and fortified them. [10]And he built towers in the wilderness and [o] cut out many cisterns, for he had large herds, both in the Shephelah and in the plain, and he had farmers and vinedressers in the hills and in the fertile lands, for he loved the soil. [11][†]Moreover, Uzziah had an army of soldiers, fit for war, in divisions according to the numbers in the muster made by Jeiel the secretary and Maaseiah the officer, under the direction of Hananiah, one of the king's commanders. [12]The whole number of the heads of fathers' houses of mighty men of valor was 2,600. [13]Under their command was an army of [p] 307,500, who could make war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy. [14]And Uzziah prepared for all the army shields, spears, helmets, [q] coats of mail, bows, and stones for slinging. [15]In Jerusalem he made machines, invented by skillful men, to be on the towers and the corners, to shoot arrows and great stones. And his fame spread far, for he was marvelously helped, till he was strong.

Uzziah’s Pride and Punishment

16[^][†]But when [r] he was strong, [s] he grew proud, to his destruction. For he was unfaithful to the LORD his God and entered the temple of the LORD to burn incense on the altar of incense. 17But [t] Azariah the priest went in after him, with eighty priests of the LORD who were men of valor, 18and they withstood King Uzziah and said to him, [u] “It is not for you, Uzziah, to burn incense to the LORD, [v] but for the priests, the sons of Aaron, who are consecrated to burn incense. Go out of the sanctuary, for you have done wrong, and it will bring you no honor from the LORD God.” 19Then Uzziah was angry. Now he had a censer in his hand to burn incense, and when he became angry with the priests, [w] leprosy [1] broke out on his forehead in the presence of the priests in the house of the LORD, by the altar of incense. 20And Azariah the chief priest and all the priests looked at him, and behold, he was leprous in his forehead! And they rushed him out quickly, and he himself hurried to go out, because the LORD had struck him. 21[†] [x] And King Uzziah was a leper to the day of his death, and being a leper lived [y] in a separate house, for he was excluded from the house of the LORD. And Jotham his son was over the king’s household, governing the people of the land.

22[†]Now the rest of the acts of Uzziah, from first to last, [z] Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz wrote. 23And Uzziah slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the burial field that belonged to the kings, for they said, “He is a leper.” And Jotham his son reigned in his place.

Jotham Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 27 [†] [a] Jotham was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jerushah the daughter of Zadok. 2[†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD according to all that his father Uzziah had done, [b] except he did not enter the temple of the LORD. But the people still followed corrupt practices. 3[†]He built the upper gate of the house of the LORD and did much building on the wall of [c] Ophel. 4Moreover, he built cities in the hill country of Judah, and forts and towers on the wooded hills. 5He fought with the king of the Ammonites and prevailed against them. And the Ammonites gave him that year 100 talents [1] of silver, and 10,000 cors [2] of wheat and 10,000 of barley. The Ammonites paid him the same amount in the second and the third years. [6][^]So Jotham became mighty, because he ordered his ways before the LORD his God. [7][‡] [d]Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars and his ways, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah. [8]He was [e]twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. [9]And Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David, and Ahaz his son reigned in his place.

Ahaz Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 28 [‡] [f]Ahaz was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. And he did not do what was right in the eyes of the LORD, as his father David had done, [2][‡]but he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel. He even made [g]metal images for [h]the Baals, [3][^][‡]and [i]he made offerings in the [j]Valley of the Son of Hinnom and [k]burned his sons as an offering, [1] according to [l]the abominations of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. [4]And he sacrificed and [i]made offerings on the high places and on the hills and under every green tree.

Judah Defeated

[5][‡] [m]Therefore the LORD his God gave him into the hand of the king of Syria, who defeated him and took captive a great number of his people and brought them to Damascus. He was also given into the hand of the king of Israel, who struck him with great force. [6]For [n]Pekah the son of Remaliah killed 120,000 from Judah in one day, all of them men of valor, because they had forsaken the LORD, the God of their fathers. [7]And Zichri, a mighty man of Ephraim, killed Maaseiah the king’s son and Azrikam the commander of the palace and Elkanah the next in authority to the king.

[8][‡]The men of Israel took captive 200,000 [o]of their relatives, women, sons, and daughters. They also took much spoil from them and brought the spoil to Samaria. [9]But a prophet of the LORD was there, whose name was Oded, and he went out to meet the army that came to Samaria and said to them, “Behold, because the LORD, the God of your fathers, [p] was angry with Judah, he gave them into your hand, but you have killed them in a rage [q] that has reached up to heaven. 10And now you intend to subjugate the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, as your slaves. Have you not sins of your own against the LORD your God? 11Now hear me, and send back the captives [o] from your relatives whom you have taken, for the fierce wrath of the LORD is upon you.”

12Certain chiefs also of the men of Ephraim, Azariah the son of Johanan, Berechiah the son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah the son of Shallum, and Amasa the son of Hadlai, stood up against those who were coming from the war 13and said to them, “You shall not bring the captives in here, for you propose to bring upon us guilt against the LORD in addition to our present sins and guilt. For our guilt is already great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel.” 14So the armed men left the captives and the spoil before the princes and all the assembly. 15[^]And [r] the men who have been mentioned by name rose and took the captives, and with the spoil they clothed all who were naked among them. They clothed them, gave them sandals, [s] provided them with food and drink, and anointed them, and carrying all the feeble among them on donkeys, they brought them to their kinsfolk at Jericho, [t] the city of palm trees. Then they returned to Samaria.

16[‡] [u] At that time King Ahaz sent to the king [2] of Assyria for help.
17For the Edomites had again invaded and defeated Judah and carried away captives. 18 [v] And the Philistines had made raids on [w] the cities in the Shephelah and the Negeb of Judah, and had taken Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, Gederoth, Soco [x] with its villages, Timnah with its villages, and Gimzo with its villages. And they settled there. 19For the LORD humbled Judah because of Ahaz king of Israel, for he had made [y] Judah act sinfully [3] and had been very unfaithful to the LORD. 20So [z] Tiglath-pileser [4] king of Assyria came against him and afflicted him instead of strengthening him. 21 [a] For Ahaz took a portion from the house of the LORD and the house of the king and of the princes, and gave tribute to the king of Assyria, but it did not help him.

Ahaz's Idolatry

[22][†]In the time of his distress he became yet more faithless to the Lord—this same King Ahaz. [23]For [b]he sacrificed to the gods of Damascus that had defeated him and said, [c]"Because the gods of the kings of Syria helped them, I will sacrifice to them that they may help me." But they were the ruin of him and of all Israel. [24]And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God and [d]cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, and he shut up the doors of the house of the Lord, and he made himself [e]altars in every corner of Jerusalem. [25]In every city of Judah he made high places to [f]make offerings to other gods, provoking to anger the Lord, the God of his fathers. [26][†][g]Now the rest of his acts and all his ways, from first to last, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. [27]And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city, in Jerusalem, for [h]they did not bring him into the tombs of the kings of Israel. And Hezekiah his son reigned in his place.

Hezekiah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 29 [†][j]Hezekiah began to reign when he was twenty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abijah [1] the daughter of [k]Zechariah. [2]And he did what was right in the eyes of the Lord, according to all that David his father had done.

Hezekiah Cleanses the Temple

[3][†]In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he [l]opened the doors of the house of the Lord and repaired them. [4][†]He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east [5]and said to them, "Hear me, Levites! Now [m]consecrate yourselves, and consecrate the house of the Lord, the God of your fathers, and carry out the filth from the Holy Place. [6][†]For our fathers have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the Lord our God. They have forsaken him and [n]have turned away their faces from the habitation of the Lord and turned their backs. [7]They also [o]shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps and have not burned incense or offered burnt offerings in the Holy Place to the God of Israel. [8][^][†]Therefore [p]the wrath of the LORD came on Judah and Jerusalem, and he has made them [q]an object of horror, of astonishment, [r]and of hissing, as you see with your own eyes. [9][†]For behold, [s]our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons and our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this. [10]Now [t]it is in my heart [u]to make a covenant with the LORD, the God of Israel, in order that his fierce anger may turn away from us. [11]My sons, do not now be negligent, [v]for the LORD has chosen you to stand in his presence, to minister to him and to be his ministers and make offerings to him."

[12][†]Then the Levites arose, [w]Mahath the son of Amasai, and Joel the son of Azariah, of the sons of [x]the Kohathites; and of the sons of [x]Merari, Kish the son of Abdi, and Azariah the son of Jehallelel; and of the [x]Gershonites, Joah the son of Zimmah, and Eden the son of Joah; [13]and of the sons of [y]Elizaphan, Shimri and Jeuel; and of the sons of [z]Asaph, Zechariah and Mattaniah; [14]and of the sons of [a]Heman, Jehuel and Shimei; and of the sons of [b]Jeduthun, Shemaiah and Uzziel. [15]They gathered their brothers and [c]consecrated themselves and went in as the king had commanded, [d]by the words of the LORD, [e]to cleanse the house of the LORD. [16][†]The priests went into the inner part of the house of the LORD to cleanse it, and they brought out all the uncleanness that they found in the temple of the LORD into the court of the house of the LORD. And the Levites took it and carried it out to [f]the brook Kidron. [17]They began to consecrate [g]on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they came to the vestibule of the LORD. Then for eight days they consecrated the house of the LORD, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished. [18][†]Then they went in to Hezekiah the king and said, "We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and the table for the showbread and all its utensils. [19]All the utensils [h]that King Ahaz discarded in his reign when he was faithless, we have made ready and consecrated, and behold, they are before the altar of the LORD."

Hezekiah Restores Temple Worship

20[†]Then Hezekiah the king rose early and gathered the officials of the city and went up to the house of the LORD. 21And they brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats [i] for a sin offering for the kingdom and for the sanctuary and for Judah. And he commanded the priests, the sons of Aaron, to offer them on the altar of the LORD. 22So they slaughtered the bulls, and the priests received the blood [j] and threw it against the altar. And they slaughtered the rams, and their blood was thrown against the altar. And they slaughtered the lambs, and their blood was thrown against the altar. 23[†]Then the goats for the sin offering were brought to the king and the assembly, [k] and they laid their hands on them, 24and the priests slaughtered them and made a sin offering with their blood on the altar, [l] to make atonement for all Israel. For the king commanded that the burnt offering and the sin offering should be made for all Israel.

25[†] [m] And he stationed the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, harps, and lyres, [n] according to the commandment of David and of Gad [o] the king's seer and of [p] Nathan the prophet, for the commandment was from the LORD through his prophets. 26The Levites stood with [q] the instruments of David, [r] and the priests with the trumpets. 27Then Hezekiah commanded that the burnt offering be offered on the altar. And when the burnt offering began, [s] the song to the LORD began also, and the trumpets, accompanied by the instruments of David king of Israel. 28The whole assembly worshiped, and the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded. All this continued until the burnt offering was finished. 29When the offering was finished, [t] the king and all who were present with him bowed themselves and worshiped. 30And Hezekiah the king and the officials commanded the Levites to sing praises to the LORD with the words of David and of Asaph the seer. And they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed down and worshiped.

31[†]Then Hezekiah said, [u] "You have now consecrated yourselves to [2] the LORD. Come near; bring sacrifices and thank offerings to the house of the LORD." And the assembly brought sacrifices and thank offerings, and all who were [v] of a willing heart brought burnt offerings. 32The number of the burnt offerings that the assembly brought was 70 bulls, 100 rams, and 200 lambs; all these were for a burnt offering to the LORD. [33]And the consecrated offerings were 600 bulls and 3,000 sheep. [34]But the priests were too few and could not flay all the burnt offerings, so until other priests had consecrated themselves, [w] their brothers the Levites helped them, until the work was finished— [x] for the Levites were more upright in heart than the priests in consecrating themselves. [35]Besides the great number of burnt offerings, there was [y] the fat of the peace offerings, and there were [z] the drink offerings for the burnt offerings. Thus the service of the house of the LORD was restored. [36]And Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced because God had provided for the people, for the thing came about suddenly.

Passover Celebrated

2 CHRONICLES 30 [†]Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem to keep the Passover to the LORD, the God of Israel. [2][†]For the king and his princes and all the assembly in Jerusalem had taken counsel to keep the Passover [a] in the second month— [3]for they could not keep it [b] at that time [c] because the priests had not consecrated themselves in sufficient number, nor had the people assembled in Jerusalem— [4]and the plan seemed right to the king and all the assembly. [5]So they decreed to make a proclamation throughout all Israel, [d] from Beersheba to Dan, that the people should come and keep the Passover to the LORD, the God of Israel, at Jerusalem, for they had not kept it as often as prescribed. [6][†] [e] So couriers went throughout all Israel and Judah with letters from the king and his princes, as the king had commanded, saying, “O people of Israel, [f] return to the LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, that he may turn again to the remnant of you who have escaped from the hand of [g] the kings of Assyria. [7] [h] Do not be like your fathers and your brothers, who were faithless to the LORD God of their fathers, so that he made them a desolation, as you see. [8] [i] Do not now be stiff-necked as your fathers were, but yield yourselves to the LORD and come to his sanctuary, which he has consecrated forever, and serve the LORD your God, [j] that his fierce anger may turn away from you. [9][^]For [f] if you return to the LORD, your brothers and your children [k] will find compassion with their captors and return to this land. For [l] the LORD your God is gracious and merciful and will not turn away his face from you, [m] if you return to him."

10 [e] So the couriers went from city to city through the country of [n] Ephraim and Manasseh, and as far as Zebulun, but [o] they laughed them to scorn and mocked them. 11[‡]However, [p] some men of Asher, of Manasseh, and of Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem. 12The hand of God was also on Judah to give them one heart to do what the king and the princes commanded [q] by the word of the LORD.

13And many people came together in Jerusalem to keep the Feast of Unleavened Bread [r] in the second month, a very great assembly. 14[‡]They set to work and removed [s] the altars that were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for burning incense they took away [t] and threw into the brook Kidron. 15 [u] And they slaughtered the Passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the second month. [v] And the priests and the Levites were ashamed, [w] so that they consecrated themselves and brought burnt offerings into the house of the LORD. 16 [x] They took their accustomed posts according to the Law of Moses [y] the man of God. The priests threw the blood that they received from the hand of the Levites. 17[‡]For there were many in the assembly who had not consecrated themselves. Therefore the Levites had to slaughter the Passover lamb for everyone who was not clean, to consecrate it to the LORD. 18[‡]For a majority of the people, [z] many of them from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, yet they ate the Passover otherwise [a] than as prescribed. For Hezekiah had prayed for them, saying, "May the good LORD pardon everyone 19[^] [b] who sets his heart to seek God, the LORD, the God of his fathers, even though not according to the sanctuary's rules of cleanness." [1] 20And the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people. 21And the people of Israel who were present at Jerusalem kept [c] the Feast of Unleavened Bread seven days with great gladness, and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day by day, singing with all their might [2] to the LORD. 22And Hezekiah spoke [d] encouragingly to all the Levites who showed good skill in the service of the LORD. So they ate the food of the festival for seven days, sacrificing [e] peace offerings and giving thanks to the LORD, the God of their fathers.

[23][†]Then the whole assembly agreed together to keep the feast [f] for another seven days. So they kept it for another seven days with gladness. [24]For Hezekiah king of Judah [g] gave the assembly 1,000 bulls and 7,000 sheep for offerings, and the princes gave the assembly 1,000 bulls and 10,000 sheep. And the priests [h] consecrated themselves in great numbers. [25]The whole assembly of Judah, and the priests and the Levites, [i] and the whole assembly that came out of Israel, and the sojourners who came out of the land of Israel, and the sojourners who lived in Judah, rejoiced. [26][^]So there was great joy in Jerusalem, for [j] since the time of Solomon the son of David king of Israel there had been nothing like this in Jerusalem. [27]Then [k] the priests and the Levites arose and [l] blessed the people, and their voice was heard, and their prayer came to [m] his holy habitation in heaven.

Hezekiah Organizes the Priests

2 CHRONICLES 31 [†]Now when all this was finished, all Israel who were present went out to the cities of Judah and [n] broke in pieces the [o] pillars and cut down [p] the Asherim and broke down the high places and the altars throughout all Judah and Benjamin, and in Ephraim and Manasseh, until they had destroyed them all. Then all the people of Israel returned to their cities, every man to his possession.

[2][^][†]And Hezekiah appointed [q] the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, division by division, each according to his service, the priests and the Levites, [r] for burnt offerings and peace offerings, to minister in the gates of the camp of the Lord and to give thanks and praise. [3][†] [s] The contribution of the king from his own possessions was for the burnt offerings: the burnt offerings of morning and evening, and the burnt offerings for the Sabbaths, the new moons, and the appointed feasts, [t] as it is written in the Law of the Lord. [4]And he commanded the people who lived in Jerusalem to give [u] the portion due to the priests and the Levites, that they might give themselves to the Law of the Lord. [5][†]As soon as the command was spread abroad, the people of Israel gave in abundance the firstfruits of grain, wine, oil, honey, and of all the produce of the field. And they brought in abundantly [v] the tithe of everything. [6]And the people of Israel and Judah who lived in the cities of Judah also brought in the tithe of cattle and sheep, and [w]the tithe of the dedicated things that had been dedicated to the LORD their God, and laid them in heaps. [7][†]In the third month they began to pile up the heaps, and finished them in the seventh month. [8]When Hezekiah and the princes came and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel. [9]And Hezekiah questioned the priests and the Levites about the heaps. [10]Azariah the chief priest, who was [x]of the house of Zadok, answered him, “Since they began to bring the contributions into the house of the LORD, we have eaten and had enough and have plenty left, [y]for the LORD has blessed his people, so that we have this large amount left.”

[11][†]Then Hezekiah commanded them to prepare [z]chambers in the house of the LORD, and they prepared them. [12]And they faithfully brought in the contributions, the tithes, and the dedicated things. The chief officer [a]in charge of them was Conaniah the Levite, with [b]Shimei his brother as second, [13][b]while Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, [b]Mahath, and Benaiah were overseers assisting Conaniah and Shimei his brother, by the appointment of Hezekiah the king and [x]Azariah the chief officer of the house of God. [14]And Kore the son of Imnah the Levite, keeper of the east gate, was over the freewill offerings to God, to apportion the contribution reserved for the LORD and the most holy offerings. [15][b]Eden, Miniamin, Jeshua, Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah were faithfully assisting him in [d]the cities of the priests, to distribute the portions to their brothers, old and young alike, by divisions, [16][†]except those enrolled by genealogy, males from three years old and upward—all who entered the house of the LORD [e]as the duty of each day required—for their service according to their offices, by their divisions. [17]The enrollment of the priests was according to their fathers’ houses; that of the Levites [f]from twenty years old and upward was according to their offices, by their divisions. [18]They were enrolled with all their little children, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, the whole assembly, for they were faithful in keeping themselves holy. [19]And for the sons of Aaron, the priests, who were in the fields of common land belonging to their cities, there were men in the several cities who were [g]designated by name to distribute portions to every male among the priests and to everyone among the Levites who was enrolled.

[20][†]Thus Hezekiah did throughout all Judah, [h]and he did what was good and right and faithful before the Lord his God. [21]And every work that he undertook in the service of the house of God and in accordance with the law and the commandments, seeking his God, he did with all his heart, and prospered.

Sennacherib Invades Judah

2 CHRONICLES 32 [†] [i]After these things and these acts of faithfulness, Sennacherib king of Assyria came and invaded Judah and encamped against the fortified cities, thinking to win them for himself. [2]And when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come and intended to fight against Jerusalem, [3]he planned with his officers and his mighty men to stop the water of the springs that were outside the city; and they helped him. [4]A great many people were gathered, and they stopped all the springs and [j]the brook that flowed through the land, saying, “Why should the kings of Assyria come and find much water?” [5][†]He set to work resolutely and built up [k]all the wall that was broken down and raised towers upon it, [1] and outside it he built another wall, and he strengthened the [l]Millo in the city of David. He also made weapons and shields in abundance. [6]And he set combat commanders over the people and gathered them together to him in the square at the gate of the city and spoke [m]encouragingly to them, saying, [7] [n]“Be strong and courageous. [o]Do not be afraid or dismayed before the king of Assyria and all the horde that is with him, [p]for there are more with us than with him. [8][^]With him is [q]an arm of flesh, [r]but with us is the Lord our God, to help us and to fight our battles.” And the people took confidence from the words of Hezekiah king of Judah.

Sennacherib Blasphemes

[9][†]After this, Sennacherib king of Assyria, who was besieging Lachish with all his forces, sent his servants to Jerusalem to Hezekiah king of Judah and to all the people of Judah who were in Jerusalem, saying, [10]“Thus says Sennacherib king of Assyria, ‘On what are you trusting, that you endure the siege in Jerusalem? [11]Is not Hezekiah misleading you, that he may give you over to die by famine and by thirst, when he tells you, “The LORD our God will deliver us from the hand of the king of Assyria”? [12] [s] Has not this same Hezekiah taken away his high places and his altars and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, “Before one altar you shall worship, and on it you shall burn your sacrifices”? [13]Do you not know what I and my fathers have done to all the peoples of other lands? Were the gods of the nations of those lands at all able to deliver their lands out of my hand? [14]Who among all the gods of those nations that my fathers devoted to destruction was able to deliver his people from my hand, that your God should be able to deliver you from my hand? [15][^]Now, therefore, do not let Hezekiah deceive you or mislead you in this fashion, and do not believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to deliver his people from my hand or from the hand of my fathers. How much less will your God deliver you out of my hand!’”

[16]And his servants said still more against the LORD God and against his servant Hezekiah. [17][^]And he wrote letters to cast contempt on the LORD, the God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying, “Like the gods of the nations of the lands who have not delivered their people from my hands, so the God of Hezekiah will not deliver his people from my hand.” [18][†]And they shouted it with a loud voice in the language of Judah to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to frighten and terrify them, in order that they might take the city. [19]And they spoke of the God of Jerusalem as they spoke of the gods of the peoples of the earth, which are the work of men’s hands.

The LORD Delivers Jerusalem

[20][†]Then Hezekiah the king and Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, prayed because of this and cried to heaven. [21][†]And the LORD sent an angel, who cut off all the mighty warriors and commanders and officers in the camp of the king of Assyria. So he returned with [t] shame of face to his own land. And when he came into the house of his god, some of his own sons struck him down there with the sword. [22]So the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of Sennacherib king of Assyria and from the hand of all his enemies, and he provided for them on every side. [23][†]And many [u] brought gifts to the LORD to Jerusalem and precious things to Hezekiah king of Judah, so that he was exalted in the sight of all nations from that time onward.

Hezekiah’s Pride and Achievements

24[†] [v]In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death, and he prayed to the LORD, and he answered him and gave him a sign. 25But Hezekiah [w]did not make return according to the benefit done to him, for [x]his heart was proud. Therefore [y]wrath came upon him and Judah and Jerusalem. 26But Hezekiah [z]humbled himself for the pride of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the wrath of the LORD did not come upon them in the days of Hezekiah.

27[†]And Hezekiah had very great riches and honor, and he made for himself treasuries for silver, for gold, for precious stones, for spices, for shields, and for all kinds of [a]costly vessels; 28storehouses also for the yield of grain, wine, and oil; and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and sheepfolds. 29He likewise provided cities for himself, and flocks and herds in abundance, for God had given him very great possessions. 30This same Hezekiah [b]closed the upper outlet of the waters of [c]Gihon and directed them down to the west side of the city of David. And Hezekiah prospered in all his works. 31[†]And so in the matter of the envoys of the princes of Babylon, [d]who had been sent to him to inquire about [e]the sign that had been done in the land, God left him to himself, [f]in order to test him and to know all that was in his heart.

32[†]Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah and his good deeds, behold, they are written [g]in the vision of Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz, [h]in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 33And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the [i]upper part of the tombs of the sons of David, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did him honor at his death. And Manasseh his son reigned in his place.

Manasseh Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 33 [†][j]Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. 2[†]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to [k]the abominations of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. [3]For he rebuilt the high places [l]that his father Hezekiah had broken down, and he erected altars to the Baals, and made [m]Asheroth, and worshiped all the host of heaven and served them. [4]And he built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, [n]"In Jerusalem shall my name be forever." [5]And he built altars for all the host of heaven in [o]the two courts of the house of the LORD. [6][p]And he burned his sons as an offering [q]in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, and [r]used fortune-telling and omens and sorcery, and dealt with [s]mediums and with necromancers. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. [7][^]And [t]the carved image of the idol that he had made he set in the house of God, of which God said to David and to Solomon his son, "In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, [n]I will put my name forever, [8]and I will no more remove the foot of Israel from the land [u]that I appointed for your fathers, if only they will be careful to do all that I have commanded them, all the law, the statutes, and the rules given through Moses." [9]Manasseh led Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem astray, to do more evil than the nations whom the LORD destroyed before the people of Israel.

Manasseh's Repentance

[10][†]The LORD spoke to Manasseh and to his people, but they paid no attention. [11][†][v]Therefore the LORD brought upon them the commanders of the army of the king of Assyria, who captured Manasseh with hooks and [w]bound him with chains of bronze and brought him to Babylon. [12][^][†]And when he was in distress, he entreated the favor of the LORD his God [x]and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers. [13]He prayed to him, and [y]God was moved by his entreaty and heard his plea and brought him again to Jerusalem into his kingdom. [z]Then Manasseh knew that the LORD was God.

[14][†]Afterward he built an outer wall for the city of David west of [a]Gihon, in the valley, and for the entrance into [b]the Fish Gate, and carried it around [c]Ophel, and raised it to a very great height. He also put commanders of the army in all the fortified cities in Judah. [15][†]And [d]he took away the foreign gods and the idol from the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the house of the LORD and in Jerusalem, and he threw them outside of the city. [16]He also restored the altar of the LORD and offered on it sacrifices of peace offerings and of thanksgiving, and he commanded Judah to serve the LORD, the God of Israel. [17] [e]Nevertheless, the people still sacrificed at the high places, but only to the LORD their God.

[18][†]Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and [f]his prayer to his God, and the words of [g]the seers who spoke to him in the name of the LORD, the God of Israel, behold, they are in the [h]Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. [19]And his prayer, and how [y]God was moved by his entreaty, and all his sin and his faithlessness, and the sites [i]on which he built high places and set up the [i]Asherim and the images, before [x]he humbled himself, behold, they are written in the Chronicles of the Seers. [1] [20]So Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in his house, and Amon his son reigned in his place.

Amon’s Reign and Death

[21][†][j]Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. [22]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as Manasseh his father had done. Amon sacrificed to all the images [k]that Manasseh his father had made, and served them. [23]And he did not humble himself before the LORD, [l]as Manasseh his father had humbled himself, but this Amon incurred guilt more and more. [24]And his servants conspired against him and put him to death in his house. [25]But the people of the land struck down all those who had conspired against King Amon. And the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his place.

Josiah Reigns in Judah

2 CHRONICLES 34 [†] [m]Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. [2][^][†]And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, and walked in the ways of David his father; and he did not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. [3][†]For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet a boy, he began to seek the God of David his father, and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of the high places, the [n]Asherim, and the carved and the metal images. 4And they chopped down the altars of the Baals in his presence, and he cut down the [o]incense altars that stood above them. And he broke in pieces the [n]Asherim and the carved and the metal images, and he made dust of them and [o]scattered it over the graves of those who had sacrificed to them. 5[p]He also burned the bones of the priests on their altars and cleansed Judah and Jerusalem. 6[†]And in the [q]cities of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali, in their ruins [1] all around, 7he broke down the altars and beat the [n]Asherim and the images [r]into powder and cut down all the incense altars throughout all the land of Israel. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

The Book of the Law Found

8[†][s]Now in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had cleansed the land and the house, he sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, and Maaseiah the [t]governor of the city, and Joah the son of Joahaz, [u]the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God. 9They came to [v]Hilkiah the high priest and gave him the money that had been brought into the house of God, which the Levites, the keepers of the threshold, had collected from [q]Manasseh and Ephraim and from all the remnant of Israel and from all Judah and Benjamin and from the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 10And they gave it to the workmen who were working in the house of the LORD. And the workmen who were working in the house of the LORD gave it for repairing and restoring the house. 11They gave it to the carpenters and the builders to buy quarried stone, and timber for binders and [w]beams for the buildings that the kings of Judah had let go to ruin. 12And the men did the work faithfully. Over them were set Jahath and Obadiah the Levites, of the sons of Merari, and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to have oversight. [x]The Levites, all who were skillful with instruments of music, 13were over [y]the burden-bearers and directed all who did work in every kind of service, and some of the Levites were scribes and officials and gatekeepers.

[14][†]While they were bringing out the money that had been brought into the house of the LORD, [y]Hilkiah the priest found the Book of the Law of the LORD given through Moses. [15]Then Hilkiah answered and said to Shaphan the secretary, "I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the LORD." And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan. [16]Shaphan brought the book to the king, and further reported to the king, "All that was committed to your servants they are doing. [17]They have emptied out the money that was found in the house of the LORD and have given it into the hand of the overseers and the workmen." [18]Then Shaphan the secretary told the king, "Hilkiah the priest has given me a book." And Shaphan read from it before the king.

[19][†]And when the king heard the words of the Law, [z]he tore his clothes. [20]And the king commanded Hilkiah, Ahikam the son of Shaphan, Abdon the son of Micah, Shaphan the secretary, and Asaiah the king's servant, saying, [21][^]"Go, inquire of the LORD for me and for those who are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that has been found. For great is [a]the wrath of the LORD that is poured out on us, because our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD, to do according to all that is written in this book."

Huldah Prophesies Disaster

[22][†]So Hilkiah and those whom the king had sent [2] went to Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Tokhath, son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe (now she lived in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter) and spoke to her to that effect. [23]And she said to them, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: 'Tell the man who sent you to me, [24]Thus says the LORD, Behold, I will bring disaster upon this place and upon its inhabitants, all the curses that are written in the book that was read before the king of Judah. [25]Because they have forsaken me and [b]have made offerings to other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands, therefore [a]my wrath will be poured out on this place and will not be quenched. [26]But to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, [27][†]because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before God when you heard his words against this place and its inhabitants, and you have humbled yourself before me and have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, declares the LORD. [28][†]Behold, I will gather you to your fathers, and you shall be gathered to your grave in peace, and your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring upon this place and its inhabitants.'" And they brought back word to the king.

[29] [c] Then the king sent and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. [30][†]And the king went up to the house of the LORD, with all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem and the priests and the Levites, all the people both great and small. And he read in their hearing all the words of the Book of the Covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. [31]And the king [d] stood in his place [e] and made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant that were written in this book. [32][†]Then he made all who were present in Jerusalem and in Benjamin join in it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. [33]And Josiah took away [f] all the abominations from all the territory that belonged to the people of Israel and made all who were present in Israel serve the LORD their God. All his days they did not turn away from following the LORD, the God of their fathers.

Josiah Keeps the Passover

2 CHRONICLES 35 [†] [g] Josiah kept a Passover to the LORD in Jerusalem. And they slaughtered the Passover lamb [h] on the fourteenth day of the first month. [2]He appointed the priests to their offices [i] and encouraged them in the service of the house of the LORD. [3][†]And he said to the Levites [j] who taught all Israel and who were holy to the LORD, "Put the holy ark in the house that Solomon the son of David, king of Israel, built. You need not carry it on your shoulders. Now serve the LORD your God and his people Israel. [4][^]Prepare yourselves [k] according to your fathers' houses by your divisions, [l] as prescribed in the writing of David king of Israel [m] and the document of Solomon his son. [5]And [n] stand in the Holy Place [o] according to the groupings of the fathers' houses of your brothers the lay people, and according to the division of the Levites by fathers' household. [6]And slaughter the Passover lamb, and [p] consecrate yourselves, and prepare for your brothers, to do according to the word of the LORD by Moses."

[7][†]Then Josiah contributed to the lay people, as Passover offerings for all who were present, lambs and young goats from the flock to the number of 30,000, and 3,000 bulls; [q] these were from the king's possessions. [8]And his officials contributed willingly to the people, to the priests, and to the Levites. [r] Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, the chief officers of the house of God, gave to the priests for the Passover offerings 2,600 Passover lambs and 300 bulls. [9]Conaniah also, and Shemaiah and Nethanel his brothers, and Hashabiah and Jeiel and Jozabad, the chiefs of the Levites, gave to the Levites for the Passover offerings 5,000 lambs and young goats and 500 bulls.

[10]When the service had been prepared for, the priests [s] stood in their place, [t] and the Levites in their divisions according to the king's command. [11] [u] And they slaughtered the Passover lamb, and the priests [v] threw the blood that they received from them [w] while the Levites flayed the sacrifices. [12]And they set aside the burnt offerings that they might distribute them according to the groupings of the fathers' houses of the lay people, to offer to the LORD, as it is written in the Book of Moses. And so they did with the bulls. [13] [x] And they roasted the Passover lamb with fire according to the rule; and they [y] boiled the holy offerings in pots, in cauldrons, and in pans, and carried them quickly to all the lay people. [14]And afterward they prepared for themselves and for the priests, because the priests, the sons of Aaron, were offering the burnt offerings and the fat parts until night; so the Levites prepared for themselves and for the priests, the sons of Aaron. [15]The singers, the sons of Asaph, were in their place [z] according to the command of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun the king's [a] seer; [b] and the gatekeepers were at each gate. They did not need to depart from their service, for their brothers the Levites prepared for them.

[16]So all the service of the LORD was prepared that day, to keep the Passover and to offer burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah. [17]And the people of Israel who were present kept the Passover at that time, [c] and the Feast of Unleavened Bread seven days. [18][†] [d] No Passover like it had been kept in Israel since the days of Samuel the prophet. None of the kings of Israel had kept such a Passover as was kept by Josiah, and the priests and the Levites, and all Judah and Israel who were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [19]In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah this Passover was kept.

Josiah Killed in Battle

[20][†] [e] After all this, when Josiah had prepared the temple, Neco king of Egypt went up to fight at [f] Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Josiah went out to meet him. [21]But he sent envoys to him, saying, “What have we to do with each other, king of Judah? I am not coming against you this day, but against the house with which I am at war. And God has commanded me to hurry. Cease opposing God, who is with me, lest he destroy you.” [22]Nevertheless, Josiah did not turn away from him, but [g] disguised himself in order to fight with him. He did not listen to the words of Neco from the mouth of God, but came to fight in the plain of [h] Megiddo. [23]And the archers shot King Josiah. And the king said to his servants, [i] “Take me away, for I am badly wounded.” [24]So his servants took him out of the chariot and carried him in his second chariot and brought him to Jerusalem. And he died and was buried in the tombs of his fathers. [j] All Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah. [25] [k] Jeremiah also uttered a lament for Josiah; and all [l] the singing men and singing women have spoken of Josiah in their laments to this day. They made these a rule in Israel; behold, they are written in the Laments. [26]Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and his good deeds according to what is written in the Law of the Lord, [27]and his acts, first and last, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

Judah’s Decline

2 CHRONICLES 36 [†] [m] The people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah and made him king in his father’s place in Jerusalem. [2]Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. [3]Then the king of Egypt deposed him in Jerusalem and [n] laid on the land a tribute of a hundred talents of silver and a talent [1] of gold. [4]And the king of Egypt made Eliakim his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jehoiakim. But Neco took Jehoahaz his brother and carried him to Egypt.

[5][†] [o] Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. [6] [p] Against him came up Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon [q] and bound him in chains [r] to take him to Babylon. [7] [s] Nebuchadnezzar also carried part of the vessels of the house of the LORD to Babylon and put them in his palace in Babylon. [8] [t] Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and the abominations that he did, and what was found against him, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah. And Jehoiachin his son reigned in his place.

[9][†] [u] Jehoiachin was eighteen [2] years old when he became king, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. [10]In [v] the spring of the year King Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, [w] with the precious vessels of the house of the LORD, and made his brother [x] Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem.

[11][†] [y] Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. [12]He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. He did not humble himself before [z] Jeremiah the prophet, who spoke from the mouth of the LORD. [13] [a] He also rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God. [b] He stiffened his neck and hardened his heart against turning to the LORD, the God of Israel. [14]All the officers of the priests and the people likewise were exceedingly unfaithful, following all the abominations of the nations. And they polluted the house of the LORD that he had made holy in Jerusalem.

[15]The LORD, the God of their fathers, [c] sent persistently to them by his messengers, because he had compassion on his people and on his dwelling place. [16][^] [d] But they kept mocking the messengers of God, [e] despising his words and scoffing at his prophets, [f] until the wrath of the LORD rose against his people, until there was no remedy.

Jerusalem Captured and Burned

[17][†] [g] Therefore he brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans, who killed their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary and had no compassion on young man or virgin, old man or aged. He gave them all into his hand. [18] [h] And all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king and of his princes, all these he brought to Babylon. [19][†] [i] And they burned the house of God and broke down the wall of Jerusalem and burned all its palaces with fire and destroyed all its precious vessels. [20]He [j] took into exile in Babylon those who had escaped from the sword, [k] and they became servants to him and to his sons until the establishment of the kingdom of Persia, [21][^]to fulfill the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had [l] enjoyed its Sabbaths. All the days that it lay desolate [m] it kept Sabbath, to fulfill seventy years.

The Proclamation of Cyrus

[22][†] [n] Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, [o] that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, [p] the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, so that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom and also put it in writing: [23][^]“Thus says Cyrus king of Persia, ‘The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whoever is among you of all his people, may the LORD his God be with him. Let him go up.’”

Study Notes for 2 Chronicles

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:1–2:18 Solomon's Temple Preparations. God provides Solomon with the wealth, material, and workers to build the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:1–6 Solomon's journey to the Mosaic tabernacle and altar at Gibeon, like David's mission to retrieve the ark (1 Chron. 13:1–16:43), is presented as a public enterprise that involves all Israel (cf. 1 Kings 2:4). Like David, Solomon maintains continuity with the Mosaic covenant as the foundation of his own reign. Sought it out (cf. esv footnote, "him," i.e., Yahweh) continues the parallel with David (see 1 Chron. 13:3). Solomon begins his reign as David instructed him (1 Chron. 22:19), by worshiping God and seeking guidance. Bezalel is the master craftsman of the tabernacle, assisted by Oholiab (see Ex. 31:1–11). See note on 2 Chron. 2:11–16.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:7–13 Solomon's faithful seeking leads to a nighttime appearance of God (in a dream, according to 1 Kings 3:5), in which God invites Solomon to ask in prayer for whatever he desires (cf. John 15:7). Solomon's request that God will fulfill his promise to David (see 1 Chron. 17:23) looks forward to the completion of the temple (2 Chron. 6:17), while his request for wisdom and knowledge is focused not on selfish ambition but on the need to govern God's people wisely (see note on 1 Kings 3:11–14). God grants Solomon's request and also promises him riches, possessions, and honor that he did not request. This theme is taken up again at the end of the Solomon narrative (2 Chron. 8:1–9:28). numerous as the dust of the earth. God's covenant promise to Abraham (Gen. 13:16) was being fulfilled in Solomon's day.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 1:14–17 From 1 Kings 10:27–29, and repeated with some modifications at 2 Chron. 9:25–28. This section demonstrates the fulfillment of God's promise of wealth (1:12; see note on 1 Kings 10:26–29).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:1 a temple for the name of the LORD. See Deut. 12:5. God's "name" in association with a place signifies his actual presence there among his people, where God may be met and petitioned. Yet in no sense is God contained or limited by his localized presence: see 2 Chron. 2:6. The Chronicler's temple theology embraces both the actual or real presence of God and his majestic transcendence. It is a forerunner to the doctrine of the incarnation of God in Christ (see John 2:21). royal palace. Linked here with the temple, perhaps to indicate the close connection between the two "houses" of the Davidic covenant (see 1 Chron. 17:14). While the Chronicler mentions Solomon's palace a number of times (2 Chron. 2:12; 7:11; 8:1; 9:3–4, 11), he passes over the account of its construction (1 Kings 7:1–12).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:2 Solomon used the forced labor of Canaanites living in the land (see vv. 17–18; cf. notes on 8:7–10; 1 Chron. 22:2–5) for the construction work. Subject peoples were often conscripted to such work in the ancient world.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:3–10 Solomon's letter to Hiram, king of Tyre (who had earlier assisted David; 1 Chron. 14:1), is considerably expanded from 1 Kings 5:3–6 to describe the purpose of the temple for regular and seasonal worship according to the Law of Moses, to express the supremacy and transcendence of Israel's God (2 Chron. 2:5–6), and to request a skilled craftsman (v. 7), along with different kinds of timber (v. 8). The Hebrew for skilled (khakam) also means "wise." Its use here consciously echoes Solomon's request for wisdom (1:10) and the wisdom and knowledge Solomon needs for building the temple (2:5–6). The skills called for here recall Oholiab's work on the tabernacle, under the direction of Bezalel (Ex. 31:1–11).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:6 heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him. See note on 1 Kings 8:27–30.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 2:11–16 Hiram's letter of reply includes a Gentile's acknowledgment of Yahweh as Creator, and of God's gift of wisdom to Solomon (v. 12), which is especially focused on the task of temple building (cf. note on 1 Kings 5:9–12). Huram-abi is likened to Oholiab (the mothers of both men are said to be descended from Dan; see Ex. 31:6; cf. note on 1 Kings 7:13–14), while Solomon the temple builder is implicitly compared to Bezalel, who directed the building of the tabernacle (see 2 Chron. 1:5). The reference in 2:16 to Joppa (not mentioned in 1 Kings 5:9) may reflect Ezra 3:7. Timber from Lebanon for the second temple was floated to that port.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:1–5:1 Solomon's Building of the Temple. The temple is to be a fit place for God to dwell among his people.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:1–17 The Chronicler's actual account of the construction of the temple is much briefer than his source (1 Kings 6). The architectural details of 1 Kings 6:4–20a are passed over, as are the descriptions of the intricate carvings or stonework in 1 Kings 6:29–36. Instead, the Chronicler leads his readers in their imagination through the vestibule (2 Chron. 3:4) into the ornate nave or Holy Place (vv. 5–7), then on to the Most Holy Place (vv. 8–13), partitioned off by the veil (v. 14). The numerous references to gold (vv. 4–10) and cherubim (vv. 7, 10–14) highlight the splendor of the temple as the heavenly King's earthly palace. As its structure and furnishings indicate, it stood in continuity with the Mosaic tabernacle, at the same time exceeding it in beauty and opulence. The temple measured about 90 feet by 30 feet (27 m by 9.1 m; v. 3), so it was not particularly large compared to many modern church buildings, and it did not function as a place of congregational worship. Only priests would have been admitted to the temple itself, and only the high priest could enter the Most Holy Place, and only on the Day of Atonement.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:2 See 1 Kings 6:1. Depending on which chronology is followed, this may have been in either 966 or 959 B.C.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:4 120 cubits. The Septuagint and other ancient versions of the OT suggest that the vestibule was actually 20 cubits (30 feet/9.1 m) high. The Hebrew text lacks the word "cubits," so precise identification of the height is uncertain.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:6 Parvaim. Possibly a place in northeastern Arabia.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:8–13 The Most Holy Place was the secret, cube-shaped room in which the ark of the covenant would be finally deposited (5:7). The cherubim were angelic beings that combined human and animal features (cf. Ezek. 10:14; 41:18–19) and served as throne-guards to the ark. On the construction of the temple, see note on 1 Kings 6:14–35.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:14 The Most Holy Place was separated from the rest of the sanctuary by a veil as well as by doors (4:22). The inclusion of the veil signified the continuity of the temple with the Mosaic tabernacle (Ex. 26:31–35). Herod's temple was similarly arranged (Matt. 27:51); the tearing of the veil at the death of Christ indicated that the "shadow" of the Mosaic institutions had now given way to the final sacrifice of Christ, with all its benefits (see Heb. 9:11–12; 10:1).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 3:15–17 thirty-five cubits high. Probably the combined heights of the pillars (see note on 1 Kings 7:15–21; cf. 1 Kings 7:15; 2 Kings 25:17). Jachin ("he establishes"); Boaz ("in him is strength"). The names may signify that Yahweh establishes his covenant through the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:1–5:1 The temple's furnishings communicated the same message as that signified by the structure of the building: the presence of the holy God in the midst of his people, and his gracious provision of atonement and forgiveness. For the Chronicler's own generation, the fact that these vessels had been returned from their Babylonian captivity (Ezra 1:3–11; 6:5) was a sign as well that they were still God's covenant people and the heirs of his promises to David and Solomon.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:1 Solomon's altar stood outside the temple. Perhaps it stood in front of the temple entrance, just as Moses' altar had stood before the entrance of the tabernacle (Ex. 40:6), though it may have stood in the northeast corner, opposite the bronze sea basin in the southeast corner.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:2–6 On various details of the temple, cf. notes on 1 Kings 7:23–47. The sea was a large, circular water tank, located outside the southeast corner of the temple (2 Chron. 4:10) and used by the priests for their ceremonial cleansing before they entered the temple (v. 6). It corresponded to the bronze basin that had stood between the entrance to the tabernacle and the Mosaic altar (Ex. 30:18–21). 3,000 baths. First Kings 7:26 reads "two thousand baths." The difference may be due to a copyist's error. The twelve oxen probably signified the tribes of Israel, especially as they were encamped around the four sides of the tabernacle in the wilderness (see Num. 2:1–31).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:2 ten cubits … thirty cubits. See note on 1 Kings 7:23.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:7–8 In contrast to the tabernacle, with its one seven-branched lampstand and table (Ex. 25:31–36), Solomon's temple had ten of each (but cf.1 Kings 7:48, which mentions only one table). The tables were apparently for the "bread of the Presence" (2 Chron. 4:19; see 1 Chron. 9:32), a perpetual bread offering to Yahweh, through which Israel consecrated itself to God (Ex. 25:30).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:9 the court of the priests. A feature that also corresponds to the tabernacle; see Ex. 27:9–19.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:11b–22 The bronze vessels and furnishings were located in the temple entrance and court, while those in the interior (the place of greater holiness) were made of gold. The golden altar was for the burning of incense (see Ex. 30:1–10; 1 Chron. 28:18). The Most Holy Place was separated from the nave (the Holy Place) by inner doors … of gold as well as the veil (2 Chron. 3:14).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 4:19 Solomon made all the vessels. See note on 1 Kings 7:48–51.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:1 A summary statement, again recalling that the temple was the joint enterprise of Solomon and David (see 1 Chron. 17:8; 22:2–16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:2–7:22 The Dedication of the Temple. The Chronicler's account of the dedication of the temple is notably longer than his description of the building work (77 verses compared to 40), since he is more concerned with the meaning of the temple than with its physical structure. This interest is conveyed through the two theophanies (5:14; 7:1–3), Solomon's great prayer of dedication (6:14–42), and God's message to Solomon (7:12–22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:2–3 Just as David had summoned all the leaders of Israel to retrieve the ark from Kiriath-jearim (1 Chronicles 13; 15), Solomon also assembled them for the ark's final journey from its tent in the city of David (see 1 Chron. 16:1). the feast that is in the seventh month. The Feast of Booths (see Lev. 23:33–43). The temple was completed in the eighth month of Solomon's eleventh year (see 1 Kings 6:38 = 959 or 952 B.C.), and the dedication took place 11 months later. The Israelites had been instructed to live in temporary shelters during this feast, to commemorate the exodus. It was observed annually in the seventh month of the Jewish calendar (September–October).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:5 Moses' tent of meeting and its holy vessels were brought up from Gibeon (1:3) to join the ark. Similarly, the Levitical priests Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun (5:12; see 1 Chron. 16:37, 42) were united for this ceremony. Henceforth, all of Israel's worship would be focused on the Jerusalem temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:7–9 The priests completed the transfer of the ark, since only they could enter the Most Holy Place. And they are there to this day. A comment from an early author, whose work was used by the author of Kings (see note on 1 Kings 8:8) and the Chronicler. The ark was apparently destroyed along with the first temple and was never replaced.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:10 The ark had once contained the jar of manna and Aaron's rod (Heb. 9:4; see Ex. 16:32–34; Num. 17:10–11), but now held only the two tablets inscribed with the Ten Commandments.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 5:11–14 The Chronicler inserts a lengthy sentence (vv. 11b–13) into his source (1 Kings 8:10) to describe a highly festive scene, suggesting that the cloud of God's glory (see Ex. 13:21–22) that filled the temple came in response to the Levites' and priests' worship. The Chronicler's own generation should draw a similar lesson, that God will surely be present when his people offer praise and thanksgiving. The appearance of the cloud and the inability of the priests even to stand to minister in God's presence signified that God in his majesty was taking up residence in his temple. There is an evident parallel here, and in 2 Chron. 7:3, with the appearance of the glory cloud in the tabernacle and over the tent of meeting (cf. Ex. 40:34–35). The visible manifestation of God's glory and presence was known in later Judaism as the "Shekinah," and it provides the background to John's comment about the incarnate Son: "we have seen his glory" (John 1:14). The praise of 2 Chron. 5:13b appears again in 20:21b. God's steadfast love (Hb. hesed) in particular denotes his covenant commitment to David (1 Chron. 17:13), which has finally resulted in this temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:1–42 The Chronicler follows his source quite closely in his presentation of Solomon's prayer of dedication for the temple (see 1 Kings 8:12–50a). Yet whereas the earlier version finishes with an appeal to the exodus under Moses as the basis of God's relationship with Israel (1 Kings 8:50b–53), the Chronicler focuses instead on the Davidic covenant (2 Chron. 6:41–42, from Ps. 132:8–10). For the Chronicler's own postexilic generation, the temple signified God's promise to David of an enduring kingdom, however restricted Israel's present circumstances might seem. As the focal point of God's presence on earth, the temple also stood as a constant visible encouragement to prayer, as indicated by the different circumstances of need envisioned by Solomon in his prayer (2 Chron. 6:12–42).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:1–2 God was present in the thick darkness of the cloud on Mount Sinai (see Ex. 20:21), and has now graciously come to dwell in the Most Holy Place of the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:3–11 Solomon's accession to the throne, the completion of the temple, and the placing of the ark are all due to God's fulfilling his promise to David (see 1 Chron. 17:23–24). Human obedience to God's commands is the means of ratifying or accepting God's promises, as well as a condition for experiencing the reality of the promises in the present (see 2 Chron. 6:14–17), yet God himself provides the grace for his people to obey.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:7 On the name of the LORD, see notes on 1 Kings 8:17 and Acts 10:48.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:12–13 The prayer of dedication is offered from a specially constructed platform before the altar of burnt offerings, in front of the temple entrance.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:15 On God's promises to David, cf. 1 Chron. 17:11–14 and 22:9–10.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:18–21 The infinite God cannot be contained within space (heaven and the highest heaven), let alone any man-made structure, yet he has made the temple the point of contact and immediate communication with his people. Prayer in or toward the temple will come before God in his heavenly dwelling place because his name is on the temple (vv. 20, 34, 38), which signifies both his spiritual presence in that place and his ownership of it and is thus an invitation to pray there in confident faith. (See note on 2:1.) The NT equivalent is prayer offered in Jesus' name (see John 14:13–14).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:22–40 Solomon offers some representative situations in which Israelites and even foreigners (v. 32) should offer prayer at or toward the temple, seeking forgiveness, vindication, and divine help.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:22–23 See Ex. 22:7–12; Num. 5:11–31; and note on 1 Kings 8:31–32. The Law of Moses provided for oaths to be taken in the sanctuary to determine guilt or innocence if there were no witnesses to an offense.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:24–25 See Lev. 26:17; Deut. 28:25; and note on 1 Kings 8:33–40. National defeat is included among the curses for covenant breaking. Exile is one possible punishment.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:26–27 heaven is shut up … no rain. See Lev. 26:19; Deut. 28:23–24; 2 Chron. 7:13; and note on 1 Kings 8:33–40.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:28–31 See Deut. 28:21 and note on 1 Kings 8:33–40. The emphasis is on God’s intimate knowledge of and concern for each individual among his people.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:32–33 See note on 1 Kings 8:41–43. Your mighty hand and your outstretched arm calls to mind God’s deliverance in the exodus (Ex. 3:19–20). Solomon envisions Gentiles making pilgrimage to pray at the temple because of what they have heard about this event. On the temple as a place of prayer for all nations, see also Isa. 2:2–4 and Zech. 8:20–23.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:34–35 God’s help in answer to prayer made in time of war is depicted in 13:14–15; 14:11; 18:31; 20:5–23; 32:20–22. See note on 1 Kings 8:44–45.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:36–39 See note on 1 Kings 8:46–51. Exile from the Promised Land is presented as the climax of punishments on account of sin (see 2 Chron. 36:15–20). there is no one who does not sin. Cf. Prov. 20:9; Eccles. 7:20; Rom. 3:23. Solomon prays that Yahweh will respond to the heartfelt repentance of his people in exile and their intercession toward the house that I have built for your name. Bodily posture was a part of prayer, especially for exiles like Daniel, who consciously prayed in the direction of Jerusalem (Dan. 6:10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 6:41–42 In place of the ending to this prayer in 1 Kings 8:50b–53 (an appeal to God's mercy shown in the exodus), the Chronicler inserts a version of Ps. 132:8–10, which concerns the transfer of the ark into the temple. It functions here as a prayer that God will once again come in power and grace for the Chronicler's generation and their temple, as he had done for the people and temple of Solomon's day. Verse 42 of 2 Chronicles 6 is a prayer for the Davidic descendants, the recipients of God's covenant promise of steadfast love for David. For the Chronicler, this enduring covenant is now the basis of the relationship between God and his people.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:1–22 God's twofold answer to Solomon's prayer (through the appearance of the glory of the Lord in vv. 1–3 and the words from God in vv. 12–22) takes readers to the heart of the Chronicler's message of repentance and restoration. The Chronicler is acutely aware of Israel's sinfulness (6:36), knowing that this will result in exile; but against this bleak fact he highlights Yahweh's undeserved restorative mercy and forgiveness toward his people, for which the temple is the visible symbol. The assurance that the temple is indeed the divinely sanctioned place of atonement and prayer should encourage the Chronicler's own postexilic generation to respond accordingly, confident that God will grant a greater measure of restoration and blessing. Ultimately, salvation will come not through a material building but through the One whom the temple foreshadows (John 2:19–21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:1b–3 An addition to 1 Kings 8. A parallel with David (see 1 Chron. 21:26) and Moses is intended here: just as a divine fire consumed the burnt offering in the newly erected Mosaic tabernacle, and "the glory of the LORD" was visible to the people (see Lev. 9:23–24), the fire … from heaven that consumed the sacrifice signaled acceptance of the temple and the priests' ministry there, while the glory of the LORD appeared on the temple, and the people worshiped. For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever. Variations on this refrain from Psalm 136 occur several times in the book (see 1 Chron. 16:34; 2 Chron. 5:13; 7:6; 20:21) and may indicate a link between the author and the temple singers.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:4–10 The dedication of the temple at the Feast of Tabernacles (see 5:3) entailed vast numbers of sacrifices (7:5) and involved the whole nation in its broadest extent (v. 8). Unity, joy, and gratitude to God are the keynotes of this festival.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:8 Lebo-hamath to the Brook of Egypt designates the whole of Solomon’s empire (see note on 1 Kings 8:65–66).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:11–22 God’s reply to Solomon’s prayer is presented immediately after the account of the dedication, although in fact 13 years had elapsed, in which time the palace was also completed (v. 11; see 1 Kings 7:1; 9:10). Yahweh’s appearance at night (2 Chron. 7:12) corresponds to his first appearance to Solomon at Gibeon, at the beginning of his reign (1:7).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:12b–16 The Chronicler’s addition to 1 Kings 9:3–4 provides a succinct summary of the central message of the book: the meaning of the temple and the response that God looks for in his people.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:12b The temple is for sacrifice as well as prayer. The OT understanding of worship regularly joins sacrifices (of atonement, dedication, or thanksgiving) with prayer as the material expression of the worshiper’s inner disposition.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:13 A summary reference to the divine punishments mentioned in Solomon’s prayer (6:26, 28).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:14 if my people. God’s purpose above all is to forgive his penitent people and heal their land. The specific vocabulary of this verse (humble themselves, pray, seek, turn) describes different aspects of heartfelt repentance and will recur throughout chs. 10–36. “Heal their land” includes deliverance from drought and pestilence as well as the return of exiles to their rightful home (6:38). For the Chronicler, this includes the restoration of the people to their right relationship with God. Cf. Jer. 25:5; 26:3.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:15–16 The invitation to prayer and repentance (v. 14) is sealed with the strong assurance of God’s presence and attention in the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:17–18 A summons to Solomon to be obedient to the Law of Moses as the grounds for establishing his throne. a man to rule Israel. See Mic. 5:2. Messianic hopes for the continuation of the Davidic line continued to be affirmed in the Chronicler’s time, even though the last Davidic king had been deposed in 586 B.C.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 7:19–22 The statement if you turn aside and forsake my statutes is addressed to the people ("you" in v. 19 is plural; see notes on 1 Kings 9:6; 9:7–8). While the temple signified God's will to forgive and restore, the stubborn rejection of his statutes and commandments would lead to God's rejection of both people and temple (see Deut. 29:24–28). The decisive factor, as shown throughout the rest of the book, is whether the call to repentance is heeded.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:1–18 This section generally follows 1 Kings 9:10–28, with a significant variation and addition (see 2 Chron. 8:2–4, 12–16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:1–16 Solomon's Other Accomplishments. Solomon's further conquests and building projects are revealed, as well as his attention to matters of worship, both for himself and for the people. The success of Solomon's various building projects are seen as blessings that follow his obedience in building the temple (which, along with his palace, took twenty years to complete).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:2 According to 1 Kings 9:11–14, Solomon had actually given these cities to Hiram, perhaps as collateral for a loan (1 Kings 9:14; cf. notes on 1 Kings 9:10–13; 9:10; 9:11). The Chronicler would then be describing their subsequent reversion to Israelite control.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:3–4 Hamath-zobah lay about 120 miles (193 km) north of Damascus (see 1 Chron. 18:3), while Tadmor lay about 125 miles (201 km) to the northeast. Control over these commercial cities represented the farthest extent of Solomon's power. First Kings does not mention these campaigns.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:5 Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon were located on a ridge above the Valley of Aijalon northwest of Jerusalem. They were crucial to the security of the city and provided access to the international coastal highway (see also note on 1 Kings 9:17–19).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:7–10 In keeping with an ancient practice of controlling enemies, Solomon drafted the descendants of the Canaanites into forced labor for his construction projects throughout the nation. According to 1 Kings 5:13–18, Solomon imposed a less rigorous demand on the Israelites.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:11 Solomon's Egyptian wife, Pharaoh's daughter, was kept in a separate house and away from the ark, probably on account of her paganism (see 1 Kings 11:7–8). See Solomon's Temple and Palace Complex.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:12–15 The Chronicler expands the brief note in 1 Kings 9:25, detailing the pattern of daily, weekly, monthly, and annual sacrifices and feasts instituted in the temple by Solomon, along with his organization of the temple personnel. Solomon's fidelity to the instructions of Moses (2 Chron. 8:13) and David (vv. 14–15) is emphasized.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:16 So the house of the LORD was completed. The completion of the temple did not come with its building or dedication but with the institution of its regular services. Solomon proved himself faithful in his commission, and the subsequent details of his reign (8:17–9:28) represent God's blessing on his obedience (see 1:12).

c. 971–931 B.C.

Solomon's reign marked the zenith of Israel's power and wealth in biblical times. His father, David, had bestowed upon him a kingdom that included Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Solomon would later bring the kingdom of Hamath under his dominion as well, and his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter sealed an alliance with Egypt. His expansive kingdom controlled important trade routes between several major world powers, including Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia (Asia Minor).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:17–9:31 Solomon's International Relations and Renown. Solomon's reputation and influence extend beyond the borders of Israel.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 8:17–18; 9:10–11 Ezion-geber. See note on 1 Kings 9:26–28. Israel forms the land bridge (and the trade routes) connecting the Mediterranean lands with the kingdoms on the Red Sea and beyond, into Asia. Solomon profited from his control of these routes, and from his maritime partnership with Hiram, the king of Tyre. The Tyreans (a people of Phoenician stock) were renowned for their seamanship. Ophir was probably in southwest Arabia or the Horn of Africa.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:1–9, 12 This section closely follows 1 Kings 10:1–13. Sheba, or Saba, corresponds roughly to modern Yemen and was a mercantile kingdom that traded in luxury goods from East Africa and India. The queen's visit may have had commercial trade purposes (see 2 Chron. 9:1, 9) prompted by Solomon's naval activities in the south of the Red Sea, but her visit is presented primarily as a quest for wisdom (vv. 1, 6). Solomon is acknowledged as excelling in both wisdom and wealth (see 1:12). The Gentile queen recognizes that Solomon's greatness is from Yahweh (9:8; see 2:12) and that Solomon sits on God's throne as his king (cf. 1 Kings 10:9, "the throne of Israel"). For the Chronicler, the Davidic kingdom is the earthly expression of God's eternal kingdom (see 1 Chron. 17:14; 28:5; 2 Chron. 13:8). Recognition (esp. from a Gentile monarch) that God was the actual King of Israel could only encourage the postexilic community, when no descendant of David was on the throne.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:7 Happy are these your servants. See note on 1 Kings 10:8.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:9–12 On the queen's gift of 120 talents of gold, see note on 1 Kings 10:10–13.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:13–28 This section closely follows 1 Kings 10:14–28. The Chronicler's presentation of Solomon concludes with a description of the king at the zenith of his wealth and international renown (a far cry from the difficult conditions of the postexilic days; see Ezra 9:7; Neh. 9:36–37).

c. 950 B.C.

Solomon’s firm control of important trade routes linking Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Anatolia (Asia Minor) provided him with incalculable wealth. Partnering with King Hiram of Tyre, Solomon also launched his own trading expeditions to Ophir to acquire valuable and exotic goods. The queen of Sheba’s visit to Solomon attests to his great fame throughout the ancient world. Solomon further augmented his wealth by buying horses from Kue and chariots from Egypt and selling them to the kings of Syria and the Hittites.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:13–14 Solomon's annual revenues in gold (equal to about 22 tons) would have been derived from both tribute and trade (see note on 1 Kings 10:14–25).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:15–16 The House of the Forest of Lebanon was Solomon's palace, which contained great quantities of cedar (see 1 Kings 7:2). The gold shields were lost as booty to Pharaoh Shishak by Solomon's son Rehoboam (2 Chron. 12:9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:21 Tarshish is usually identified with Tartessus in Spain, but here the Chronicler seems to use it more generically, in the sense of "the ends of the earth" (cf. Ps. 72:10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:22–28 Solomon is presented as supreme over all the kings of the earth, in keeping with the promises made at the beginning of his reign (1:12). Verses 25–28 of ch. 9 are a partial repetition of 1:14–17, and thus form an inclusio (literary "bookends") around the Chronicler's portrayal of Solomon (cf. note on 1 Kings 10:26–29).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 9:29–31 This is from 1 Kings 11:41–43, but with additional reference to Ahijah the Shilonite (see 1 Kings 11:29–40) and Iddo the seer (traditionally identified with the unknown prophet in 1 Kings 13). Although the Chronicler omits the accounts of Solomon's apostasy and the rebellions he faced in his declining years (1 Kings 11), the allusion to the words of these prophets directs the reader to the account in Kings, where a more critical portrayal of Solomon is preserved. As with his presentation of David, the Chronicler's focus here is on the positive achievement of Solomon's reign and its abiding significance for his community. Solomon slept with his fathers. See notes on 1 Kings 2:10 and 11:43.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–36:23 The Kingdom of Judah down to the Exile. The post-Solomonic narrative in Chronicles deals almost exclusively with the kingdom of Judah, following the division of the kingdom under Rehoboam. In contrast to 1–2 Kings, the history of the northern kingdom is considered by the Chronicler only as it touches upon that of Judah, such as in war (e.g., 2 Chronicles 13; 16; 18) or in moves toward unity (chs. 29–30). The Chronicler never disputed that the northern tribes belonged to Israel but insisted that legitimacy and leadership lay with the Davidic monarchy and the tribe of Judah.

When Solomon’s son Rehoboam arrived at Shechem for his coronation after his father’s death, he refused to lighten his father’s heavy tax burden on the people, and the 10 northern tribes revolted and set up Jeroboam as their king. The northern kingdom would now be known as Israel and the southern kingdom as Judah. Five years later, Shishak (also called Sheshonq) king of Egypt invaded Judah and Israel and captured a number of towns. Rehoboam avoided Jerusalem’s destruction by paying off Shishak with many of the treasures Solomon had placed in the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–12:16 Rehoboam. The reign of Rehoboam (931–915 B.C.) is dominated by the division of the kingdom and the consequences thereof. While Rehoboam is judged negatively for his failures as a leader, the Chronicler also uses his example to show how repentance and obedience may lead to the restoration of blessing.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–19 From 1 Kings 12:1–19. The division of the kingdom was a complex matter, to which Solomon (2 Chron. 10:4, 10, 11) and Jeroboam (13:6–7) both contributed through their disobedience, but here the focus is on Rehoboam's folly in alienating the northerners. At the same time, the author notes that this was a turn of affairs brought about by God (10:15), indicating that God remained in control of his kingdom and that the northerners' rebellion was understandable; it was, in fact, in accordance with the prophetic word (v. 15, which presupposes the reader's knowledge of 1 Kings 11:29–39). It was the northerners' later idolatry that made their continuing rebellion reprehensible (2 Chron. 13:8–10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1–5 Rather than simply make Rehoboam king (as he no doubt expected), the tribal leaders wished to negotiate the terms of his kingship, including relief from the forced labor imposed by Solomon.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:1 Shechem. See note on 1 Kings 12:1.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:2 Jeroboam. See 1 Kings 11:26–40.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:4 Your father made our yoke heavy. See note on 1 Kings 12:4.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:7 Speak good words appears to be a technical term meaning "make an agreement" (see 2 Kings 25:28–29).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:10 My little finger. See note on 1 Kings 12:10–11.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:14–15 I will discipline you with scorpions. The attempt to browbeat the people with threats backfired, not least because the course of events was determined by God's will and the prophetic word (cf. notes on 1 Kings 12:14; 12:15).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:16 This poetic fragment announcing rejection of the house of David contrasts pointedly with the poetic declaration of loyalty in

1 Chron. 12:18. It was apparently the rallying cry of the northern tribes against Judah (see 2 Sam. 20:1).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 10:18 Hadoram was Solomon's taskmaster, also called "Adoram" (see note on 1 Kings 12:18) or "Adoniram" (1 Kings 4:6; 5:14).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:1–12:16 The Chronicler's account of Rehoboam's rule over the southern kingdom is much longer and more complex than that given in Kings (1 Kings 14:21–31). As the first king of Judah after the division of the kingdom, Rehoboam serves to illustrate several of the key themes that will recur throughout the subsequent history of the Davidic monarchy: the blessings that flow from repentance and obedience to the prophetic word; conversely, the punishment that follows disobedience to God's law; the function of the faithful Levites in strengthening the kingdom; and the constant presence of the prophetic word to guide and rebuke. Rehoboam's reign shows how the principles and promises of judgment and restoration in 2 Chron. 7:13–14 are being enacted in the life of the kingdom, even when the king falls short of the ideal compared to his people (12:14).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:1–4 This is from 1 Kings 12:21–24. Rehoboam's attempt to reunite the kingdom by force is averted by the prophet Shemaiah (see 2 Chron. 12:5, 7), who informs him that the division is from God (11:4; see 10:15).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:4 your relatives. Despite their rebellion (for which they had good reason at this point), the northern tribes did not cease to be part of "all Israel." they listened to the word of the LORD. See note on 1 Kings 12:24.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:5–23 This information has no parallel in Kings but is derived from another source or sources (see note on 12:15–16). It illustrates the blessings that come to Judah following Rehoboam's and the people's obedience to the word of Yahweh (11:4), while Jeroboam leads the northerners into apostasy.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:5–12 The fortified cities covered the eastern, southern, and western approaches to Judah, and were thus probably intended as a defense against Egypt, Jeroboam’s ally. Yet they did not prove effective against Shishak (12:4).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:13–17 Jeroboam instituted his own syncretistic cult in Bethel and Dan to deter his people from going to sacrifice in Jerusalem and possibly defecting to Rehoboam (1 Kings 12:26–33). The Chronicler condemns him for his goat idols as well as golden calves (2 Chron. 11:15; see Lev. 17:7), and for driving out the legitimate priesthood (2 Chron. 11:14; 13:9). The exemplary attitude is shown by those Levites who took the costly step of abandoning their lands to move to Judah, and those laypeople who followed them to Jerusalem to offer sacrifice (11:16). Israel’s true unity was centered on the temple worship (see 15:9). The theme of the Levites’ “strengthening the kingdom” is frequent in Chronicles (see 19:8–11; 20:14–17; 29:25–30), and the task remained equally relevant in the Chronicler’s own day (1 Chron. 9:2).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:17 Rehoboam’s and Judah’s commitment to faithful worship and obedience to God’s law lasted only three years (12:1).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 11:18–23 The growth of Rehoboam’s family is a sign of God’s blessing on him, although these details must refer to the whole of his 17-year reign, and not just the three-year period of faithfulness to God’s law. His family is of strong Davidic lineage: the father of Mahalath was Jerimoth, presumably the son of one of David’s concubines (1 Chron. 3:9), while Maacah was probably the granddaughter of David’s son Absalom, through his daughter Tamar (2 Sam. 14:27).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:1 After a faithful beginning, Rehoboam seems to have descended into pride and a reliance on his own strength instead of dependence on God. That he and his people abandoned the law of the LORD is equated with abandoning God himself (v. 5): there is no effective relationship with God without obedience to his revealed will. The NT makes the same point positively when Jesus equates love for him with obedience to his commandments (John 14:21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:2 unfaithful (Hb. ma‘al). A key term for the Chronicler. See note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8. The Egyptian invasion follows hard on the heels of national apostasy and is explicitly identified by the writer as God’s punishment for sin; but not every instance of distress or suffering in Chronicles is understood this way (e.g., 2 Chron. 20:1–12; 32:1, where Judah suffers foreign invasion after its kings have acted faithfully; similarly 13:8). Shishak is Sheshonq I, who ruled from 945–924 B.C. His campaign through Judah and Israel is commemorated in inscriptions on the temple at Karnak. fifth year. 925 B.C. (see note on 1 Kings 14:25–26).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:3 Sukkiim. Soldiers probably of Libyan origin, mentioned in Egyptian records of the thirteenth and twelfth centuries B.C.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:5 You abandoned me, so I have abandoned you. See 1 Chron. 28:9; 2 Chron. 15:2.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:6–8 humbled themselves. See 7:14. The partial deliverance that Judah experienced was intended to teach its people a fuller devotion to God. For the Chronicler's own generation, it would have called to mind their own circumstances: subject to the Persian kings, yet free to worship Yahweh in his temple (see Ezra 9:8–9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:9–11 Resumes the account from 1 Kings 14:26–28 (see note on 1 Kings 14:25–26). The treasures of the temple and palace were surrendered as tribute to avert an attack on the city.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:12 when he humbled himself the wrath of the LORD turned from him. This is the key point concerning Rehoboam's reign that the Chronicler wishes to make for his readers.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:14 The writer's overall estimate of Rehoboam is negative: whereas 1 Kings 14:22 (see note there) blames the people for "doing evil," the Chronicler makes this charge against Rehoboam and adds that he did not set his heart to seek the LORD (cf. 2 Chron. 11:16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 12:15–16 These verses generally follow 1 Kings 14:29–31 but specify that historical records from Shemaiah and Iddo contributed to the Chronicler's sources (see note on 1 Kings 14:19). The Chronicler's use of such sources accounts for much of the material in his work that is additional to 1–2 Kings.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:1–14:1 Abijah. The Chronicler's account of Abijah's reign is much longer than that given in 1 Kings 15:1–8 (where he is called Abijam). It is, in fact, mainly the development of the statement in 1 Kings 15:7 that "there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam" through the detailed record of one incident, a battle between these kings in the hill country of Ephraim. In the estimation of 1 Kings 15:3, Abijah, like his father Rehoboam, “was not wholly true to the LORD.” The Chronicler would probably agree (since it appears from 2 Chron. 14:3–5; 15:8, 16 that idolatrous worship was practiced throughout Judah during Abijah’s reign), but he refrains from explicit comment on the king’s own piety to concentrate instead on what God accomplished through his reign. The Chronicler notes that in contrast to Jeroboam’s kingdom and cult, the Davidic monarchy is the object of God’s enduring promise (13:5, 8); the Jerusalem priesthood is legitimate and faithful (13:10–11); and the men of Judah trust in God (13:13, 18). It is for these reasons that the southern kingdom enjoys God’s protection and blessing, even if Abijah himself (like his father) falls somewhat short of the ideal.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:2 three years. 915–912 B.C. Micaiah. Also spelled Maacah. See 11:20.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:3 To judge from Abijah’s words in v. 8, Jeroboam probably instigated this war, seeking to reunite the kingdom by force, as Rehoboam had tried to do (11:1–4). On the size of the armies, see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37. However the numbers should be understood, Judah is outnumbered two to one by Israel.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:4 Mount Zemaraim. Probably on the northern border of Benjamin, on the frontier between the two kingdoms; see Josh. 18:22. Abijah’s speech is one of several royal addresses in Chronicles that serve to convey the author’s concerns—in this case, his condemnation of the northern kingdom for its apostasy and continuing rebellion.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:5–8a Abijah condemns Jeroboam and the northerners for opposing God’s grant of perpetual kingship over Israel to David and his sons. The term covenant of salt denotes a permanent provision; see Num. 18:19. Jeroboam’s kingship is dismissed as rebellion against his master, Solomon, while the Davidic kingdom is nothing less than the kingdom of the LORD (see 2 Chron. 9:8).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:8b–12 Abijah condemns the northerners for their religious unfaithfulness in making calf idols (see Hos. 8:6) and driving out the Aaronic priests and Levites in favor of their own appointees. Judah, by contrast, has the legitimate priesthood and temple worship, so Israel should not fight against the LORD. For the Chronicler’s own audience, Abijah’s speech may have functioned as a sermonic appeal to the different tribes to be united around the temple, under the leadership of the Davidic family.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:13–19 This battle report echoes older OT narratives in which God fights for and with his people (cf. v. 14 with Josh. 6:20). Judah's reliance on God (2 Chron. 13:14, 18) is the key factor in its success.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:19 Bethel was one of the locations of Jeroboam's calf cult (see v. 8 and 1 Kings 12:28–29).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:21 Large families are a conventional sign in Chronicles of God's blessing on those who rely on him (see 1 Chron. 28:5; 2 Chron. 11:18–21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 13:22 the story of the prophet Iddo. Cf. notes on 12:15–16 and 1 Kings 14:19.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:2–16:14 Asa. The Chronicler's account of Asa's reign (910–869 B.C.) is also much longer and more complex than that given in the earlier history (1 Kings 15:9–24). It describes a reign that begins well but ends badly, as trust in God and obedience to the prophetic word give way to a dependence on human alliances and the rejection of the prophetic word.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:2–8 Asa begins his reign in an exemplary way by rooting out idolatry and commanding Judah to seek the LORD (see 1 Chron. 22:19). High places were local sites usually associated with pagan worship (see Deut. 12:2–3). Asherim. Poles representing the fertility goddess Asherah. The subsequent building projects, large army, and peace are typical blessings for faithfulness and obedience in Chronicles (see 2 Chron. 11:5–12; 13:3; 17:10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:9 Zerah the Ethiopian. Lit., "the Cushite," from modern Sudan (see 12:3; 16:8). Not otherwise known, but possibly a general in the service of Pharaoh Osorkon I, son of Shoshenq I (12:2). A million men is literally "a thousand thousands" and represents an enormous number. An alternative way to understand this is "a thousand units" (see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37). This is more than double the army following Asa (2 Chron. 14:8). Mareshah. One of Rehoboam's fortified cities on Judah's southwestern border (11:8).

Zerah Attacks Judah

898 B.C.

At some point during Asa’s long and prosperous reign over Judah, Zerah the Ethiopian led a vast army from the south to attack Judah at a valley near Mareshah. Asa’s army routed Zerah’s forces and pursued them to Gerar until none of them remained. Perhaps as punishment for Philistia allowing Zerah’s army to pass through their nation, Asa’s men then plundered many towns in the region around Gerar before returning to Jerusalem.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 14:11–15 Asa’s prayer reflects the situation envisioned in 6:34–35. Many of the motifs of sacred warfare found in ch. 13 are expressed here as well and will recur in ch. 20: a prayer (or speech) is made by the king before battle, expressing trust in God (see 13:4–12; 20:5–12); Judah faces overwhelming odds (see 13:3; 20:2); and Yahweh strikes the enemy (see 13:15–16; 20:22–23). The fear of the LORD was upon them (see 1 Chron. 14:17; 2 Chron. 20:29). The plunder was used for sacrifices (15:11).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:1–7 Azariah is not otherwise known. His speech is intended to encourage Asa to continue his reforms and lead the people into covenant renewal. If you seek him. See 1 Chron. 28:9. The theme of "seeking the LORD" recurs throughout 2 Chronicles 15 (vv. 4, 12, 13, 15). Verses 3–6 call to mind the unstable time of the judges, marked by cycles of apostasy and return to God (see Judges 3), and the absence of effective spiritual leadership (see Judg. 17:5–6).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:8 Cities that he had taken in … Ephraim implies that there had been conflict between Judah and Israel prior to the thirty-sixth year of Asa's reign (16:1; c. 875 B.C.).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:9 The Chronicler highlights a number of occasions when northerners are reunited with their fellow Israelites in Judah, always in the context of worship and seeking God (cf. 11:16; 30:11, 18, 25; 35:18).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:10 the third month of the fifteenth year. Probably May/June 895 B.C. The assembly may have taken place during the Festival of Weeks (or Pentecost) (see Ex. 23:16 ["Feast of Harvest"]; Lev. 23:15–21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:12 Effectively a renewal of the Sinai covenant (Exodus 19–20; 24), allowing the people to affirm their total commitment to Yahweh (with all their heart and with all their soul). Covenant renewal in connection with reform is also featured in 2 Chron. 23:16; 29:10; 34:31–32. The implication of these popular acts of religious commitment would have been clear to the Chronicler's own community.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:13 whoever would not seek the LORD … should be put to death. See Deut. 13:6–10 and 17:2–7.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:16 The queen mother played an important role within the family politics of the court as an adviser of the king and teacher of the royal children. The brook Kidron, or the "Kidron Valley," was just outside Jerusalem and was used as a refuse dump for idolatrous objects (29:16; 30:14). An inscription found at the site of Khirbet El-Qom, near modern Hebron, reads: "Blessed be Uriyahu by Yahweh and by his Asherah; from his enemies he saved him!" The inscription dates to the second half of the eighth century

B.C. It reflects the constant struggle in Judah between true servants of Yahweh and those who were syncretists and idolaters.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 15:17 The high places were not taken out of Israel probably refers to those cities that had previously belonged to the northern kingdom and were then under Asa's control ("out of Israel" is the Chronicler's addition to 1 Kings 15:14a); in Judah, by contrast, Asa's reforms had been much more successful (2 Chron. 14:3, 5). the heart of Asa was wholly true all his days (cf. 1 Kings 15:14). This is the overall assessment of his reign, despite the decline of his last years (see note on 2 Chron. 16:13–14).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:1–14 Asa's last five years are marked by spiritual and physical decline, stemming from his unfaithful response to a military threat from the northern kingdom. He reverses the pattern of his earlier life: a covenant or treaty with Ben-hadad of Syria or Aram (vv. 2–6), in contrast to his covenant with Yahweh (15:12); he rejects the words of Hanani and mistreats him (16:7–10), in contrast to his response to Azariah (15:1–8); he fails to "seek the LORD" in his illness (16:12–13), in contrast to 14:4, 7 and 15:15.

War between Israel and Judah

As Israel and Judah battled each other to determine their permanent border, King Baasha of Israel attempted to restrict access to Judah by moving the border down to Ramah. Rather than fight with Baasha himself, King Asa of Judah bribed Ben-hadad of Syria to attack the northern border of Israel and force Baasha to withdraw from Ramah. Once Baasha withdrew, Asa carried away the building supplies of Ramah and used them to fortify Mizpah (further north) and Geba (near the pass at Michmash).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:1 The thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa would be c. 876 or 875 B.C. As it stands, the text raises a problem, since Baasha had already been dead 10 years by this time (see 1 Kings 15:33; 16:8; and note on 1 Kings 15:17). One possible explanation is that the text here has suffered from a copying error. Letters from the Hebrew alphabet were originally used to denote numbers, and here (and in 2 Chron. 15:19) a scribe might have confused two similar-looking letters (י or yod for 10 and ל or lamedh for 30, letters that looked more alike in early handwritten Hebrew script than they do in modern typography). If so, then perhaps the original said that this was the “sixteenth year of the reign of Asa”—i.e., 896 or 895 B.C. Ramah lay about 5 miles (8 km) north of Jerusalem, and commanded the main road to and from the city.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:2–5 silver and gold. See note on 1 Kings 15:18–19. There is (or “Let there be”) a covenant. By entering into an alliance with Ben-hadad (at the expense of the temple and his palace), Asa countered the threat from Baasha, but his action reflected a lack of faith in Yahweh, who had delivered him from a greater threat (2 Chron. 16:8). Foreign alliances are condemned in 19:2; 20:35–37; 22:5; 28:16–21.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:7–9 The rebuke by Hanani contrasts with Azariah’s exhortation (15:2–7). Asa, who had once relied on Yahweh (14:11; 16:8), has relied instead on the king of Syria and will now face future wars (v. 9; contrast 15:15, 19). Hanani implies that Asa could have defeated Syria as well as Israel (16:7), had he trusted in God. During the reign of Asa’s son Jehoshaphat, Judah will in fact be at war with Syria (18:30). the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth. God continuously watches and evaluates everyone’s inner thoughts, attitudes, and convictions (heart). Similar wording appears in Zech. 4:10.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:10 Asa was angry with the seer. Asa’s response is the first act of persecution of a prophet by a king recorded in the OT (see 18:26; 24:21; 25:16; 36:16). Put him in the stocks calls to mind the persecution of Jeremiah (Jer. 20:2).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:11–12 the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. See 12:15; 13:22; and note on 1 Kings 14:19. The Chronicler does not specify whether Asa’s foot disease is divine punishment for his lack of faith and his abuse of Hanani, though this may be implied. (An explicit connection between sickness and divine punishment is made in 2 Chron. 21:16–20; 26:16– 23.) The primary concern here is Asa's response: he did not seek the LORD (cf. 14:4, 7; 15:12). He is not criticized so much for seeking help from physicians (or "healers"), but for doing so apart from "the LORD, [his] healer" (Ex. 15:26), and his promises of "healing" in 2 Chron. 7:14 (see 30:20).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 16:13–14 forty-first year. Asa ruled 912–871 B.C. Funeral reports in Chronicles are often used to pass a theological judgment on a reign. a very great fire. See 21:19; Jer. 34:5. The honor shown Asa at his funeral indicates that he was held in high esteem by the people. The Chronicler also seems to have taken a generally positive view of his reign, despite the decline of his last five years (or his last 25 years; see note on 2 Chron. 16:1.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:1–21:1 Jehoshaphat. Jehoshaphat's reign (871–849 B.C.) probably included three years as co-regent with Asa during his illness (see 20:31; 2 Kings 3:1; 8:16). The Chronicler's account of his reign is much longer than that given in Kings, where Jehoshaphat plays a subordinate role to the northern kings Ahab (1 Kings 22:4–5, 29–33) and Jehoram (2 Kings 3:4–27). The Chronicler passes over the Jehoram narrative and assigns Jehoshaphat a central significance in his own right, as one who strengthens his kingdom spiritually and militarily (2 Chron. 17:1–19), organizes its system of courts (19:1–11), and demonstrates exemplary faith and leadership in the face of a terrible military threat (20:1–29). At the same time, Jehoshaphat is criticized for his alliances with the apostate northern kingdom (19:1–3; 20:37). Like his predecessors, Jehoshaphat is thus a mixture of good and bad qualities, with a preponderance of good.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:1–6 Jehoshaphat's actions at the start of his reign are directed toward reforming the nation's religious life and strengthening its military capabilities, no doubt in view of the border conflicts with the northern kingdom that marked the previous reigns. As long as he continues in this attitude of faith in God and loyalty to the ways of David (vv. 3–6), his kingdom will enjoy security and prosperity. On later occasions, however, Jehoshaphat will be drawn into alliances through marriage or military and commercial arrangements with the northern kingdom, and all of these will lead to potentially disastrous consequences.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:3–4 The Chronicler's characteristic theme of "seeking God" is accompanied by obedience to God's commandments. This is the first mention of the Baals in Chronicles. Under Ahab and his Tyrean wife Jezebel (contemporaries of Jehoshaphat), the northern kingdom adopted Canaanite Baal worship (1 Kings 16:31), leading to conflict with Elijah (1 Kings 19).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:5 The LORD established the kingdom in his hand, continuing the promise made to David (see 1 Chron. 17:11). God acts in and through his people's obedience to fulfill his word.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:6 Reform of worship is characteristic of faithful kings in Chronicles (see 14:3, 5; 15:8; 34:4).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:7–9 In the third year of his reign. Probably the first year of his reign alone (870 B.C.), following a three-year co-regency with his father (see 16:12; 20:31). Jehoshaphat's reforms were not limited to worship but also included a mission by his officials, along with a number of Levites and priests, to instruct the nation in the Law of Moses. It was God's intention from Israel's beginning that his people be thoroughly conversant with the law (see Deut. 6:6–9). Besides administering sacrifices, it was the duty of priests in particular to instruct the people in the law (see Lev. 10:11; Deut. 33:10; Jer. 18:18; Mal. 2:7). On the role of the Levites in teaching the law, see Neh. 8:7–9.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:10–11 See 1 Chron. 14:17 and 2 Chron. 14:14. The blessings of peace with the neighboring nations, and tribute from them, are presented as a consequence of the people's faithfulness to the law. The significance of this for the Chronicler's own relatively weak and impoverished community is clear. Arabians probably refers to tribes living to the south and southwest of Judah, close to the Philistines (see 21:16–17; 26:6–7).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 17:12–19 The description of Jehoshaphat's military forces looks forward to the account of his alliance with Ahab in ch. 18. Large armies are regularly a sign of God's blessing in Chronicles, but the author will show that they are no certain defense if priorities are wrong and faith is misplaced (cf. Ps. 33:16–19). The details seem to be drawn from a military census list. thousands. These may be actual numbers, or they may indicate military units (actual size uncertain); see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:1–27 The account of Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahab is taken with few changes from 1 Kings 22:1–40, but the additional comments in 2 Chron. 18:1–2 and in 19:1–3 give it an altogether different significance. Jehoshaphat, rather than Ahab (and the divine punishment he received for spurning the prophetic word), is the focus here. The Chronicler is concerned to show that Jehoshaphat is equally subject to the prophetic word, but that by repentance and a conscientious return to God's way, he may escape divine wrath. As with his father Asa (see 16:3), Jehoshaphat seeks an alliance with the northern kingdom that is based not on righteous grounds but on political expediency that may draw Judah into destruction. In his account of Hezekiah's reign (chs. 29–30), the Chronicler will indicate how a true and beneficial unity among the tribes of Israel can be achieved.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:1–2 The Chronicler's introduction alludes to the marriage of Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram to Ahab's daughter Athaliah (see 21:6), some years before the battle Ahab initiated against Syria to recapture Ramoth-gilead. The statement that Jehoshaphat had great riches and honor is an indication of divine blessing on his reign and casts his alliance with Ahab into a yet more reprehensible light. The marriage between the royal houses was intended to seal peace between the kingdoms after 50 years of hostilities. Such an alliance, however, would require Jehoshaphat to "help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD" (19:2). Ahab's great feast for Jehoshaphat and his persuasive words induced (Hb. sut) or enticed him to take part in the battle (see also 1 Chron. 21:1; 2 Chron. 32:11, 15). The same Hebrew word is found in 18:31 ("God drew them away from him") as the positive counterbalance to the evil into which Ahab draws Jehoshaphat.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:3 Ramoth-gilead was southeast of the Sea of Galilee (probably Tell Ramith, near the modern Jordanian city of Ramtha; see Deut. 4:43). The Syrians captured it during the reign of Ben-hadad (c. 860–843 B.C.). Jehoshaphat's words indicate his commitment to the treaty with Ahab.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:4–14 Jehoshaphat (in contrast to Ahab) is at least concerned to seek the word of the LORD concerning the advisability of the mission (vv. 4, 6, 7). Ahab's four hundred men were called prophets (cf. also note on 1 Kings 22:6–7), but they were also government officials, probably connected with the Baal and Asherah worship that Jezebel had introduced into the northern kingdom (see 1 Kings 18:19). Their words (2 Chron. 18:5, 11) and symbolic actions (v. 10; see Jer. 27:2–7) are unequivocal and exactly what Ahab wants to hear. Jehoshaphat, however, does not recognize them as prophets of Yahweh and so persists in his request (2 Chron. 18:6). Micaiah the son of Imlah is one of the authentic prophets of Yahweh (in a kingdom where they had recently been persecuted; see 1 Kings 18:4). His initial words to Ahab (2 Chron. 18:14) were apparently spoken in an ironic tone, as Ahab's reaction (v. 15) suggests.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:9–11 sitting at the threshing floor. See note on 1 Kings 22:10–12.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:14 Go up and triumph. See note on 1 Kings 22:15–16.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:15–22 Ahab's insistence on hearing what Micaiah had really received from Yahweh is answered with a report of two visions. The first concerns the outcome of the battle (v. 16), while the second makes the remarkable claim that God put a lying spirit in the mouth of Ahab's prophets (vv. 18–22); see notes on 1 Sam. 16:14 and 1 Kings 22:24. The sense here is that, as a follower of false gods (see 1 Kings 16:30–33), Ahab is fittingly deceived by their spokesmen, his prophets. God's action has the nature of a test. The irony of the situation is that Ahab is told the truth (2 Chron. 18:16, 18–22) but does not recognize it as such, even though he had insisted that Micaiah tell him the truth (v. 15). His repudiation of Micaiah's message and his treatment of the prophet (v. 26) indicate his contempt for the truth.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:23–27 Zedekiah … struck Micaiah on the cheek. Zedekiah had claimed to speak in the name of Yahweh (v. 10), but he shows by his violent and contemptuous conduct his scant concern for the truth. Ahab's treatment of Micaiah foreshadows Jeremiah's suffering (Jer. 37:14–16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:24 you shall see … inner chamber. See note on 1 Kings 22:25.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:25 Amon … Joash. See note on 1 Kings 22:26.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:28–34 Ahab is enticed into battle, as the spirit had promised (v. 20). His decision to disguise himself, while rather cynically directing Jehoshaphat to wear his royal robes, indicates his dominant role in the alliance and perhaps also represents a contrived attempt to evade Micaiah's word of doom. But events turn out the opposite of what Ahab intended: Jehoshaphat is delivered in battle as a consequence of his desperate prayer (v. 31b, and the LORD helped him; God drew them away from him is the Chronicler's own addition to the text; see note on vv. 1–2), while Ahab dies from an apparently random arrow (v. 33), clear evidence of God’s sovereign direction of events.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 18:29 I will disguise myself. See note on 1 Kings 22:30.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:1–3 This is the Chronicler’s own addition to 1 Kings 22. Jehu the son of Hanani had ministered in the days of Baasha, king of Israel (1 Kings 16:1–3). His denunciation of Jehoshaphat for his alliance with the ungodly Ahab echoes his criticism of the wicked Baasha (1 Kings 16:7). Love here denotes not emotion but the commitment to support a treaty. God’s wrath is a matter of immense seriousness, yet may be averted or mitigated by repentance (see 2 Chron. 12:7; 32:25–26). Jehu’s acknowledgment that some good is found in Jehoshaphat recognizes his basic commitment to seek God and looks forward to his subsequent actions of repentance and reform (19:4–11).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:4–11 Jehoshaphat (whose name means “Yahweh judges”) institutes a judicial reform that embraces both religious and civil matters. Jehoshaphat’s primary concern is to appoint judges of integrity and impartiality, who are exhorted to perform their office in the fear of the LORD (vv. 7, 9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:4 he went out again. A continuation of the religious teaching mission described in 17:7–9, this time involving the king himself. From Beersheba to the hill country of Ephraim describes the limits of Judah from south to north.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:5–7 Jehoshaphat’s action in appointing judges in the fortified cities of Judah and his words of admonition to them are inspired by the instructions in Deut. 16:18–17:13. Israel’s judges must act out of a sense of sacred duty (you judge not for man but for the LORD) and must reflect Yahweh’s concern for justice and impartiality.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 19:8–11 These are legal reforms for Jerusalem involving certain priests, Levites, and heads of families as judges. The Jerusalem court would have supplemented the existing local courts in the land and probably dealt with the more difficult disputed cases. The presiding justices Amariah the chief priest and Zebadiah … the governor are responsible for the interests of the temple and the crown, respectively. The Chronicler is careful to show through Jehoshaphat's reforms that, along with inculcating personal faith and obedience to Yahweh (v. 4), the judicial system has a vital role in ensuring that the nation's life is righteous and just, so that the people do not incur guilt and wrath.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:1–30 This is the Chronicler's own material, describing a victory over Judah's enemies in which the sovereign God alone acts for his people. In contrast to earlier battles (chs. 13; 14), Judah's part is simply to pray for God's help, trust in his word, worship him (20:18–22), and then watch thankfully while the Divine Warrior destroys the enemy. The narrative draws together a wide range of religious themes and practices, especially those centered on the temple, and also alludes to many earlier scriptural texts and themes. Jehoshaphat's faith is presented here in the most positive light (although the Chronicler will go on to show a further lapse in vv. 35–37), and the rest of the nation (conceived here as a sacred assembly) similarly acts in an exemplary way. The significance of the narrative for the Chronicler's own postexilic community seems clear: although Judah was a small and oppressed outpost of the Persian Empire, recourse to the temple in prayer and trust in the prophetic word (v. 20) was its sure defense in the most testing circumstances, including the dangers posed by its hostile neighbors (cf. Ezra 4; Nehemiah 4).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:1–2 After this. The invasion followed Jehoshaphat's religious and judicial reforms (ch. 19), and so was not an instance of divine punishment (cf. 12:2) but rather an opportunity to exercise faith (see 32:1). The Moabites and Ammonites lived east of the Dead Sea. The Meunites are equated with the people of Mount Seir (20:10, 22, 23), on the southern border of Judah (see Deut. 2:1; 2 Chron. 26:7). Engedi lies on the midpoint of the Dead Sea's western shore. great multitude. See 13:8; 14:9; 32:7. Judah was apparently outnumbered by the coalition of enemy nations.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:3–4 to seek the LORD. See 1 Chron. 22:19. "Seeking the LORD" was characteristic of Jehoshaphat at his best (see 2 Chron. 17:4; 18:4; 19:3). The fast was an expression of the special intensity of the people's prayer (see Judg. 20:26; Ezra 8:21–23).

The Moabite Alliance Attacks Judah

Early in Jehoshaphat’s reign over Judah, the Moabites rebelled and gained independence from Israel. Soon after this they formed a coalition with the Ammonites and the Meunites to attack Judah. When they had crossed the Dead Sea and were making their way up the ascent of Ziz at Hazazon-tamar (Engedi), Jehoshaphat’s army prepared to meet them in battle. Before the battle could begin, however, the Lord caused the Moabites and the Ammonites to turn and attack the Meunites, and the coalition was routed.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:5–12 Jehoshaphat's prayer in the house of the LORD begins by calling to mind God's universal sovereignty (v. 6), his gift of the land to Abraham's descendants (v. 7), and the sanctuary that testifies to God's promise to hear his people's prayers and save them (v. 9, a clear allusion to the circumstances envisioned in Solomon's dedicatory prayer in 6:14–42). In the juridical style of the so-called psalms of lament (see Psalms 44; 74), Jehoshaphat then complains to God against the injustice of the invaders, acknowledging that Judah is powerless against them, but steadfastly trusting God to execute judgment on them.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:14–19 The prophecy of Jahaziel, given by the Spirit of the LORD in answer to Jehoshaphat's prayer, exhorts the people not to be afraid (see v. 3) and informs them that God and not Judah will do the fighting. The people must confront the enemy, but as prayerful spectators, not combatants. Verse 17 is based very closely on Ex. 14:13–14 ("Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the LORD. … The LORD will fight for you, and you only have to be silent"), pointing to a fundamental similarity between these two miraculous deliverances. Judah's response must not be mere passivity: Tomorrow go down against them is "fighting talk," but Judah's part in this instance is not to take up arms but to exercise faith and to offer prayer and praise (see Eph. 6:10–18). The Levites' ministry of leading praise appropriately concludes the great gathering for prayer.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:20–23 The wilderness of Tekoa lies about 12 miles (19 km) south of Jerusalem. Jehoshaphat's call to faith is based on Isa. 7:9. Believe here means the active and obedient trust that God rewards (see Heb. 11:6), acting on the revealed word of his prophets, including Jahaziel. The singers whom Jehoshaphat appointed to go out before the army were evidently Levites (in holy attire; see 1 Chron. 16:29), declaring words from Psalm 136 as their battle song (see 1 Chron. 16:34; 2 Chron. 5:13). Their song of praise invokes God to move against their enemies (20:22; see 1 Chron. 16:35). Ambush may denote either angelic agents (see 2 Chron. 32:21) or men (see Judg. 9:25), in which case there were mutual suspicions among the coalition forces, leading to panic and their own destruction (2 Chron. 20:23; see Judg. 7:22; 1 Sam. 14:20).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:24–30 Verse 24 calls to mind Israel's sight of the dead Egyptians in Ex. 14:30 (see note on 2 Chron. 20:14–19). Valley of Beracah. "Beracah" means "blessing." There may be a recollection of this event in the prophecy in Joel 3:2, 12 ("the Valley of Jehoshaphat"). The return to Jerusalem takes the form of a triumphal procession, which ends appropriately in the temple, where the people had first sought God's deliverance (2 Chron. 20:5). the fear of God. See 1 Chron. 14:17; 2 Chron. 14:14; 17:10; also note on Acts 9:31. God gave him rest all around. See 1 Chron. 22:9 and 2 Chron. 14:6.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:31–34 Adapted from 1 Kings 22:41–45 (cf. note on 1 Kings 22:43–46). Some have claimed that 2 Chron. 20:33 is inconsistent with 17:6, which says that Jehoshaphat "took the high places … out of Judah," but both statements can be true if 17:6 refers to Jehoshaphat's official actions and 20:33 indicates that the people's commitment to Jehoshaphat's reforms was not wholehearted in every place (cf. 1 Kings 22:43). The Chronicler explains why: the people had not yet set their hearts upon the God of their fathers (2 Chron. 20:33).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 20:35–37 Adapted and expanded from 1 Kings 22:48–49. Jehoshaphat repeats his error of making an alliance (this time, a commercial one) with the northern king, Ahab's son Ahaziah. The Chronicler has added the prophetic denunciation by Eliezer.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:1–20 The Chronicler's account of Jehoram's reign is considerably expanded over the description given in 2 Kings 8:16–24. The dominant concern here, and in the accounts of his successor Ahaziah (2 Chron. 22:1–9) and the usurper Athaliah (22:10–23:21), is the disastrous influence of the house of Ahab on the Davidic dynasty and Judah. While the Chronicler's portrayal of Jehoram is unremittingly negative, he highlights God's promise to David (21:7) as the grounds for hope in the most troubled days. Again, the Chronicler's own community may take this example from history and apply it to their own circumstances.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:1 Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers. See notes on 1 Kings 2:10 and 11:43; cf. 1 Kings 22:50.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:2–22:12 Jehoram and Ahaziah. God demonstrates his faithfulness to his promise to preserve David's house, even when the spirit of Ahab is manifested in specific Davidic kings.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:2–6 Jehoram reigned c. 849–842 B.C., including a co-regency with his father from 853 (see 2 Kings 1:17 and note on 2 Kings

8:16). His marriage to Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab, implicated him in the evil ways of that kingdom. Once in sole possession of the throne, Jehoram demonstrated his true character through the murder of his brothers and other possible rivals (a policy that Athaliah would later repeat; see 2 Chron. 22:10). Alliance with the ungodly would bring the dynasty to the brink of destruction.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:6 he walked in the way of the kings of Israel. See note on 2 Kings 8:18.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:7 Because of the covenant that he had made with David is the Chronicler's comment added to his source (see 1 Chron. 17:14). a lamp to him and to his sons forever. A metaphor of persistence and permanence in the darkest times, perhaps suggested by the constantly burning temple lamps (2 Chron. 13:11). As the subsequent narrative shows, the Davidic line will be brought perilously close to extinction through murder and war (21:4, 17; 22:10), until it hangs by the slenderest thread. Against all odds, the dynasty will be preserved in God's grace, but Jehoram must still bear the punishment of his own wickedness (21:10–20; cf. notes on 2 Kings 8:19; 8:20–22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:8–10 This is taken from 2 Kings 8:20–22, with the additional comment that the revolts happened because Jehoram had forsaken the LORD, the God of his fathers (see 1 Chron. 28:9). Libnah was a Judahite city on the border with Philistia.

Edom and Libnah Revolt

848 B.C.

Perhaps emboldened by Moab's rebellion from Israel a few years earlier, Edom revolted against the rule of King Jehoram (also called Joram) of Judah. Jehoram led his army to Edom to put down the rebellion, but his efforts failed. At the same time, the western priestly town of Libnah revolted against Judah, apparently because of Jehoram's idolatrous practices. Philistines and Arabians also attacked Judah and plundered the royal palace, carrying away all its possessions and many of Jehoram's wives and sons.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 21:11–20 This is the Chronicler's own material. In contrast to his father Jehoshaphat, who sought to suppress the heathenish high places (17:6), Jehoram actually promotes their construction, probably as a consequence of his marriage alliance with the northern kingdom. Whoredom was a traditional term among the prophets for apostasy into idolatry (see Ezek.

16:16; Hos. 4:17–18). As always in Chronicles, the errant king is subject to prophetic rebuke; here, it takes the singular form of a letter … from Elijah the prophet. The last years of Elijah's ministry overlapped with the beginning of Jehoram's reign (2 Kings 1:17). As he had opposed Ahab (1 Kings 17–18), Elijah now condemns Ahab's spiritual successor (2 Chron. 21:6, 13) for leading Judah into idolatry and for murdering his own brothers. The destruction of Jehoram's own family is decreed, to be fulfilled at the hands of the Philistines and of the Arabians, while Jehoram himself is condemned to a fatal bowel disease. On disease as divine punishment, see 16:12; 26:19–21; and note on John 9:2. Jehoram's exclusion from burial in the tombs of the kings is a final indication that he belonged to the ways of Ahab rather than David.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:1–9 The Chronicler's account of Ahaziah's brief reign (842–841 B.C.) is adapted from 2 Kings 8:24–29; 9:21, 28; 10:13–14. The main interest lies with the malignant influence of the house of Ahab over the young and ineffectual king. Ahaziah's mother Athaliah is a daughter of Ahab (see 2 Chron. 18:1; 22:2) and his counselor in doing wickedly (the Chronicler's addition to the text). As queen mother, she held an official position in the court as a royal adviser. Her role was supplemented by other officials from the house of Ahab, who were Ahaziah's counselors, to his undoing (v. 4b, the Chronicler's addition).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:5–9 Ahaziah's decision to join Jehoram (a variant spelling of Joram), king of Israel, in his bid to recapture Ramoth-gilead from Hazael, king of Syria, comes at the behest of his "Ahabite" counselors. Some years previously, Jehoshaphat had allied himself with Joram's father Ahab in an identical mission, ending in Ahab's death (ch. 18). Joram was wounded at Ramoth-gilead, and withdrew to Jezreel to recuperate. Ahaziah came to visit his ally there, only to fall into the hands of Jehu, Joram's commander, whom God had chosen to destroy the house of Ahab (see 1 Kings 19:15–17). Jehu's violent coup is described in detail in 2 Kings 9:1–28. The Chronicler assumes his readers' acquaintance with this narrative and focuses instead on Ahaziah's fate, which he remarks was ordained by God (see 2 Chron. 10:15; 24:20). Ahaziah falls under the same judgment as the house of Ahab, insofar as he followed the ways of that apostate dynasty.

841 B.C.

During a battle with Syria at Ramoth-gilead, King Joram (also called Jehoram) of Israel was wounded and went to Jezreel to recover. While he was there, Jehu, one of Joram’s commanders, came from Ramoth-gilead to carry out the Lord’s judgment on Joram’s family. When Joram and King Ahaziah of Judah went out in their chariots to meet Jehu, Jehu mortally wounded Joram with an arrow and chased Ahaziah to Beth-haggan, where he wounded him as well. It appears that Ahaziah then fled to Megiddo, where he died (2 Kings 9:27).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:9 In contrast to Joram, whose body was left exposed on Naboth's field (2 Kings 9:26), Ahaziah is granted a decent burial out of respect for his grandfather Jehoshaphat.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 22:10–12 Athaliah is nothing more than a violent usurper who attempts to secure the throne for herself by massacring rivals from the royal family, including her own relatives. Like Jehoram (21:4), she brings the Davidic dynasty to the brink of destruction. But while she rules the land for six years (probably 841–835 B.C.), she does so without legitimacy: no statements at the beginning or end of her rule make her reign official. The contrasting figure to her is Ahaziah's sister Jehoshabeath, who courageously conceals the infant heir Joash throughout those years. The Chronicler adds the comment that Jehoshabeath is also the wife of Jehoiada the high priest, which helps explain how the child could be concealed in the temple buildings throughout Athaliah's rule. Mention of Jehoiada here also prepares the way for the following account of Athaliah's overthrow by the high priest.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:1–24:27 Joash. Joash's rule marks not only the restoration of the throne to the rightful Davidic king but also Judah's return to its covenant commitment to be the Lord's people (23:16). Thanks largely to Jehoiada and his watchful concern for the nation's life, these reforms are successful for a while, but things go awry once the old high priest has died. Joash is the first in a sequence of three kings (followed by Amaziah and Uzziah) whose reigns begin on a relatively positive note but end in failure or ignominy because they reject godly counsel.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:1–21 This is drawn mainly from 2 Kings 11:4–20, with numerous changes to reflect the Chronicler's particular concerns.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:1b–2 This is the Chronicler's addition, mentioning the role of the Levites and the heads of fathers' houses, as well as military figures, in the uprising (cf. note on 2 Kings 11:4). Other references to the Levites in their key role of defending the king and the sanctity of the temple have been added in 2 Chron. 23:5–8.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:3 The assembly was the representative body of leaders of the people. Wise kings sought the advice and support of this body in their undertakings (see 1 Chron. 13:2; 29:1; 2 Chron. 30:2). The covenant with the king probably included the arrangements under which Joash would rule, including Jehoiada's supervisory regency until Joash reached adulthood (see 24:4). Let him reign, as the LORD spoke concerning the sons of David. The Chronicler's addition affirms that the coup was in keeping with God's promise to preserve David's line (see 1 Chron. 17:14; 2 Chron. 6:10; 21:7).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:4 This is the thing that you shall do. See note on 2 Kings 11:5–8.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:5–6 The Chronicler adds that all the people participated in the coup, though he is careful to note that they remained in the courts and did not enter the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:8 The coup was timed for the changing of the temple and palace guards on the Sabbath, to bring the maximum number of armed men into the temple precincts without arousing suspicion.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:9 the spears and … shields. See note on 2 Kings 11:10.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:11 Along with his coronation and anointing, Joash is presented with the testimony, which several interpreters understand to be the terms of his covenant with the assembly (v. 3), while others think it is a copy of the laws of God (perhaps the book of Deuteronomy) as specified in Deut. 17:18 (see note on 2 Kings 11:12).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:13–15 The pillar is probably either Boaz or Jachin, the pillars at the temple entrance (3:17; see note on 2 Kings 11:14). The Chronicler has added the reference to the singers with their musical instruments leading in the celebration, who are evidently Levites (see 1 Chron. 23:5; 25:6). Athaliah's cry of Treason! shows that, as well as being blind to her own position as a violent usurper, she had no inkling that any of the house of David had survived. Jehoiada's instruction to remove her from the temple precincts for execution is in order to avoid defiling the sacred site any more; yet ironically, his own son will not be spared this fate (2 Chron. 24:21–22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 23:16–21 The climax of these dramatic events is the ceremony of covenant renewal led by Jehoiada, in which the high priest, king, and people commit themselves afresh to be the LORD's people (cf. note on 2 Kings 11:17). Effectively, this meant the reaffirmation of the Law of Moses as the rule for the kingdom and the removal of pagan practices and cultic personnel. The temple of Baal in Jerusalem may have been built for Athaliah as part of the marriage alliance with the northern kingdom, much as Solomon had provided shrines for his foreign wives (1 Kings 11:7–8). Verses 18b–19 of 2 Chronicles 23 are the Chronicler's addition, affirming that, as part of the covenant renewal, temple worship was also brought into proper conformity with the stipulations of Moses and David.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:1–27 Loosely adapted from 2 Kings 11:21–12:21, this is supplemented with the Chronicler's own material (see 2 Chron. 24:27). Joash's reign (835–796 B.C.) falls into two parts: a faithful period, while Jehoiada the priest was alive (vv. 1–16), followed by apostasy ending in judgment (vv. 17–27). Throughout 2 Chronicles, the religious character of a king can be readily gauged by his attitude toward the temple, and this is most evident in the case of Joash: in his faithful period, he is devoted to the restoration of the temple (vv. 4, 5, 12), but in his apostasy, he abandons it for idolatry (v. 18).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:2 Joash did what was right. See note on 2 Kings 12:2–3.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:3 The Chronicler's addition. got for him two wives. Jehoiada acts to ensure that the Davidic line will continue after its near destruction.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:4 restore. Literally, "to renew." The temple had been despoiled by Athaliah and her family (v. 7) and probably neglected before that time.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:5–6, 9 repair the house of your God. See note on 2 Kings 12:4–5. Kings refers to three sources of revenue (cf. 2 Kings 12:4), but the Chronicler specifies instead only the census tax imposed by Moses for the construction and maintenance of the tabernacle (see Ex. 30:16). The typological correspondence and continuity between the Mosaic tabernacle and the temple is one of the Chronicler's characteristic themes (see notes on 2 Chronicles 3–4). Verses 5–6 of ch. 24 offer a rare note of criticism of the priests and Levites for failing to perform their task.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:8–11 Joash's initiative allowed the people to bring their tax directly to the temple. all the people rejoiced and brought their tax.

See 1 Chron. 29:6–9. The Chronicler wants his readers to see the temple not as a burden but as a joyful duty (see Ex. 36:4–7).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:13–14 The repairs were made according to the original design, and the surplus funds were used for the temple vessels (see 2 Kings 12:13–14). vessels of gold and silver. Second Kings 12:13 says that vessels of gold and silver were not made while the temple was being repaired, while 2 Chron. 24:14 specifies that when they had finished those repairs, they used the rest of the money to make these vessels. The Chronicler specifies that Joash's revival of temple worship lasted all the days of Jehoiada, and did not extend into his later years of apostasy following Jehoiada's death (see note on vv. 1–27).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:15–22 This section is found only in Chronicles. Jehoiada's age at death, 130, exceeds that of Aaron (123, Num. 33:39) and Moses (120, Deut. 34:7). His burial among the kings is unique for a high priest. the king listened to them. Without Jehoiada's influence, Joash succumbs to the evil counsel of certain leaders who identified with the old ways of the house of Ahab. As always in Chronicles, God's punishment for apostasy is not immediate but is preceded by the prophetic summons to repentance (see 2 Chron. 36:15). The speech by Zechariah is characteristic of the Chronicler's vocabulary and theology (cf. 1 Chron. 28:9; 2 Chron. 7:19, 22; 15:2). His dying words are an appeal for divine justice. Jesus may have used this incident as an illustration of the judgment coming on his own violent and unbelieving generation (see note on Matt. 23:35).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 24:23–27 This follows the outline of 2 Kings 12:17–21 (see notes on 2 Kings 12:17–18; 12:20), but is mainly the Chronicler's own material. Defeat by the smaller Syrian army is a reversal of Judah's earlier experience (see 2 Chron. 14:8–9) and a sign of divine judgment. Joash's fate is a case of "measure for measure." As Joash had supported those who conspired to kill Zechariah (24:21), now his own officials conspired to do the same to him in revenge for Zechariah's death. His exclusion from the tombs of the kings is in pointed contrast with Jehoiada (v. 16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:1–28 Amaziah. This section is drawn mainly from 2 Kings 14:2–20, with a long interpolation (2 Chron. 25:5–16) accounting for Amaziah's defeat by Israel. His reign (796–767 B.C.) is divided into a period of relative obedience and blessing, followed by outright apostasy and judgment. Yet throughout his reign, Amaziah is basically halfhearted and divided in his loyalty to God, so his final failure is one of steady degeneration rather than radical reversal. Amaziah's reign included a long co-regency (792–767 B.C.) with his son Uzziah as a result of his capture by the Israelite (northern) king Joash (v. 23).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:2 yet not with a whole heart. Second Kings 14:4 mentions Amaziah's failure to remove the high places.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:5–16 This provides the background and aftermath to the comment in 2 Kings 14:7 on the war against Edom. Amaziah's decision to hire mercenaries from the northern kingdom (2 Chron. 25:6) is denounced by an unnamed prophet because the LORD is not with Israel (on account of its continuing idolatry; see 2 Kings 13:11), and because a king should trust in God rather than his army (2 Chron. 25:8). Encouraged by the thought of material gain, Amaziah heeds the prophet's call to dismiss the mercenaries and proceeds to a bloodthirsty victory against the men of Seir (an alternative name for Edom, Gen. 32:3). Amaziah's worship of the captured Edomite gods (perhaps to placate their presumed displeasure) only provokes Yahweh's anger. Again, the possibility of repentance is offered by God's prophet (see 2 Chron. 25:19), but Amaziah seals his fate by silencing godly counsel in favor of his own advisers (v. 17).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:11 Valley of Salt. See note on 2 Kings 14:7.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:17–24 wild beast … trampled down the thistle. See note on 2 Kings 14:9–10. Israelite (northern) king Joash interprets Amaziah's invitation as a veiled challenge to battle, perhaps in order to avenge the rampage of the Israelite mercenaries against the towns of Judah (2 Chron. 25:13). The Chronicler's added comment in v. 20 that Amaziah's refusal to heed Joash's blunt advice was of God points to God's sovereign control over human decisions as much as actions (see 10:15; 22:7). Amaziah is sorely rewarded for his pride (25:19; see Prov. 16:18) as well as his idolatry. Obed-edom. See 1 Chron. 13:14 and 26:15.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 25:25–28 The Chronicler adds that the conspiracy against Amaziah (see note on 2 Kings 14:19) began when he turned away from the LORD, which may be a reference to his apostasy in 2 Chron. 25:14 and 20. Perhaps an alliance of priests and military leaders, similar to the one that overthrew Athaliah for Joash (ch. 23), collaborated to repay Amaziah for despoiling the temple and for his defeat by Israel.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:1–23 Uzziah. See 2 Kings 15:2–7. The Chronicler reproduces most of this section of 2 Kings, but splices it with a lengthy passage of his own material (2 Chron. 26:5–20a) illustrating God's blessing on Uzziah's reign (792–740 B.C.) and recounting the cause of his downfall. As with his presentation of Joash and Amaziah, the Chronicler has divided Uzziah's reign into two parts: a period of faithfulness and blessing, followed by sin and punishment. The language ("to seek God," "prosper," "God helped him," "fame") and the motifs of blessing (military success, building projects, armed forces) are all characteristic of the Chronicler's style and thought, and they carry a sober message. The chapter is essentially a sermon on the dangers of pride: Uzziah's God-given success leads him into presumption, seeking an office of spiritual leadership that could never be rightly his.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:1 Uzziah is also called by the variant form "Azariah" in 2 Kings 15:1, 6–7; 1 Chron. 3:12 (but cf. 2 Kings 15:13, 30, 32, 34, where he is called Uzziah). The Chronicler's preference for "Uzziah" may be in order to avoid confusion with the chief priest Azariah in 2 Chron. 26:17–20.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:2 the king slept with his fathers. See notes on 1 Kings 2:10 and 2 Kings 14:22.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:3 The reign of Uzziah included co-regencies with his father Amaziah (796–767 B.C.) and his son Jotham (750–733). Uzziah's reign saw the beginning of Isaiah's prophetic ministry (Isa. 1:1; 6:1).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:5 Zechariah acted as a religious adviser to Uzziah, as Jehoiada had done for Joash (24:2). Nothing else is known about this Zechariah. He is not the same as the Zechariah of 24:20–21 or the author of the canonical book Zechariah, who began his ministry in 520 B.C.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:6–8 Uzziah's victories over the Philistines in the west and southwest were reinforced by building settlements in these conquered territories. The Arabians (or "Arabs") and Meunites (see 20:1) were nomadic groups in the south.

Judah’s Resurgence during Uzziah’s Reign

c. 767–740 B.C.

A power vacuum created by Assyria’s attack and withdrawal from Syria allowed King Azariah (also called Uzziah) of Judah to recover land that had once belonged to Judah. Azariah recovered Elath on the Red Sea, captured some Philistine towns, and fought against the Arabians at Gurbaal and against the Meunites.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:9–10 Corner Gate. See 25:23. Uzziah stands out as an enthusiastic promoter of farming throughout the wilderness of Judah and the Negeb, the foothills of the Shephelah (west of Jerusalem), and the coastal plain.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:11–15 On the roles of armies as a mark of blessing on righteous kings, see 1 Chron. 12:23–40; 2 Chron. 13:3–4; 14:8; 17:12–19. Verse 13 of ch. 26 could be interpreted as "300 units (or commanders) with 7,500 men" (see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37). Machines or "inventions" are implements of war from which men hurled projectiles in defense of the city. Murals from the siege of Lachish (701 B.C.) show defenders on the city walls shooting arrows and hurling stones from behind wooden frames on which shields have been hung.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:16–20 Unfaithful translates Hebrew ma'al (see note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8). It carries the sense of affronting God's holiness (as in a violated oath; see Lev. 6:1–7) or failing to accord him his due in worship. Uzziah impugned God's holiness by trespassing on the temple, which was for the priests and Levites only, and by seeking to offer incense, a duty reserved for the priests alone (see Ex. 30:1–10; Num. 16:40). In his pride, he wished to have spiritual as well as political authority over the people. Uzziah's presumptuous act recalls Korah's rebellion (Num. 16:1–40). Azariah's rebuke still offers Uzziah the chance to repent and leave, and it is only in the course of his angry, impenitent outburst against the priests that the king is struck with a skin disease.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:21–23 Because he was a leper to the day of his death (cf. note on 2 Kings 15:5), King Uzziah was not buried in the normal royal tombs of Jerusalem but in a field. A stone plaque was found in Jerusalem, on the Mount of Olives, from the Second Temple period that bears the inscription, "Here were brought the bones of Uzziah, king of Judah. Do not open!" It may be that the king's bones were moved to the Mount of Olives many centuries after his death.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:21 Because of his leprosy, Uzziah had to withdraw from his royal duties (see Lev. 13:46; Num. 5:1–4), and Jotham became co-regent.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 26:22 Isaiah the prophet … wrote. Not the canonical book bearing his name, but another work by this prophet, who received his call in the year of Uzziah's death (Isa. 6:1); see note on 2 Chron. 32:32–33.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:1–9 Jotham. The account of Jotham's reign (750–735 B.C., including 10 years as co-regent with Uzziah) is expanded from 2 Kings 15:33–38 to show that his military success and power were due to his faithfulness to God (2 Chron. 27:6). Jotham is presented in a wholly positive way, in contrast to his father Uzziah (v. 2b) and his son Ahaz (ch. 28), of whom the Chronicler has nothing good to say.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:2 Corrupt practices probably refers to worship at the high places (see note on 2 Kings 15:34–35).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:3b–6 This is the Chronicler's addition. Ophel. The higher part of the area in between the Temple Mount and the city of David (33:14; Neh. 3:26). Ammonites. See 2 Chron. 26:8. The cessation of tribute after three years may reflect the rising power of Syria (Aram) in the lands across the Jordan. Jotham became mighty. The same Hebrew verb is used of Uzziah (26:16), but unlike his father, Jotham does not succumb to pride.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 27:7 His wars may include the initial stages of confrontation with the Syro-Ephraimite coalition (see 2 Kings 15:37).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:1–27 Ahaz. The Chronicler's account of Ahaz's reign (735–715 B.C.) incorporates the introduction and conclusion from 2 Kings 16, and follows the same topics, but otherwise the details are different. The Chronicler amplifies the negative assessment of Ahaz in 2 Kings, showing how his apostasy led Judah astray and brought it to ruin. The charge that Ahaz was "very unfaithful" (Hb. ma'ol ma'al, 2 Chron. 28:19; see v. 21) exceeds even that made against Saul (1 Chron. 10:13). Yet the dark picture of Judah's decline is mitigated somewhat by the action of its northern kinsmen, who show a measure of repentance and responsiveness to the prophetic word (2 Chron. 28:8–15).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:1 he did not do what was right. See note on 2 Kings 16:1–4.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:2 metal images for the Baals. The Chronicler's addition (see 24:7). Baal worship was especially associated with Ahab's dynasty (1 Kings 16:31).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:3 Valley of the Son of Hinnom. See 33:6 and Jer. 7:31. The Canaanite practice of child sacrifice is condemned in the strongest of terms in Lev. 20:1–5.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:5–7 See 2 Kings 16:5–7 and Isa. 7:1–6. The Chronicler spells out that the attacks by Syria and Israel were acts of divine judgment because Ahaz and the people had forsaken the LORD. Although the coalition failed to capture Jerusalem, they evidently overran the countryside around the city, and the captives taken to Damascus were a harbinger of the exile to come (2 Chron. 36:20). On the numbers, see note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37.

c. 740–732 B.C.

As the Assyrian Empire expanded westward, Syria and Israel sought to compel Judah and the other nearby states to form an anti-Assyrian alliance. Judah refused, leading Syria and Israel to attack Jerusalem. Syria also wrested Elath from Judah and gave it to the Edomites. The Edomites may have also raided Judah and taken captives at this time (see 28:17). The Philistines, who may have been part of the anti-Assyrian alliance, attacked Judah as well, capturing several cities in the Shephelah and the Negeb (see 28:18).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:8–15 Just as Syria has done (v. 5), Israel removes its captives with the intention of enslaving them. The intervention by Oded indicates that the northern tribes still belong to “the Israel of God,” even though they are “in rebellion against the house of David” (10:19). The northern and southern tribes are relatives (lit., “brothers”), and both divisions of the people have aroused God to anger by their unfaithfulness (28:9, 11). The way back for both sides lies through repentance, which the leaders of Ephraim demonstrate in their response to Oded’s words. Their admission of guilt (v. 13) refers primarily to the charges of rebellion made by Abijah in 13:4–12.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:16–21 Ahaz’s appeal here to Tiglath-pileser III of Assyria for help against the Edomites and Philistines encroaching on Judah’s southern borders (see 2 Kings 16:6–7a) misfired. Although Judah received relief from its enemies (including the Syro-Ephraimite coalition, 2 Kings 16:9), it would end up as vassal to Assyria for 30 years (see Isa. 7:17; 8:7–8). Ahaz’s misstep was in seeking help from the ungodly, rather than from God (see 1 Chron. 5:20; 12:18; 2 Chron. 25:8).

Judah after the Fall of Israel

c. 722 B.C.

During the reign of King Ahaz of Judah, both Israel and Judah had become vassals (semi-independent subjects) of Assyria. Later, however, King Hoshea of Israel rebelled, causing the Assyrians to completely annex Israel as a province of the empire. Philistia was annexed into the empire as well, leaving Judah, Ammon, Moab, and Edom as the remaining vassals in the region.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:22–27 See 2 Kings 16:10–18. Judah reaches its lowest point before the exile through Ahaz's desecration of the temple and his suppression of worship according to the Law of Moses (2 Chron. 28:24; see 29:7, 18–19) in favor of pagan practices. The blasphemous worship of false gods is now officially promoted by a Davidic king. Although this will be reversed somewhat by the reforming kings Hezekiah (chs. 29–32) and Josiah (chs. 34–35), Judah is set on a course that will culminate in destruction and exile (see 28:5). Ahaz is denied burial in the royal tombs as a mark of God's judgment on his wickedness (see 21:20; 24:25; 26:23).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 28:26 On the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel, see note on 1 Kings 14:19.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:1–32:33 Hezekiah. The Chronicler devotes more attention to Hezekiah's reign (715–687 B.C.) than to that of any other king since David and Solomon. His account has little in common with 2 Kings 18–20, which concentrates mainly on Hezekiah's role in the Assyrian crisis of 701 B.C. The Chronicler, by contrast, is primarily interested in presenting Hezekiah as a restorer and reformer of Judah's worship. Most of his account is devoted to describing the cleansing of the temple and the restoration of worship after Ahaz's apostasy, followed by a national celebration of Passover (2 Chronicles 29–31). For the Chronicler, Hezekiah's successful resistance to Sennacherib and the prosperity of his kingdom (ch. 32) are a consequence of his religious reforms. The Chronicler's presentation of Hezekiah combines traits of both David and Solomon, especially in organizing the priests and Levites for their work and worship, and in presiding over the great rededication of the temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:3 Hezekiah opened the doors of the house of the LORD, reversing his father's action (28:24).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:4–5 The appeal to the Levites to consecrate themselves recalls David's summons to the priests and Levites in the sacred mission to retrieve the ark (1 Chron. 15:11–15). The filth denotes pagan cult objects that had been installed in the sanctuary, which were to be removed and burned in the Kidron Valley (2 Chron. 29:16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:6 Unfaithful (Hb. ma'al) and forsaken are key terms in the Chronicler's theological vocabulary, accounting for punishment and exile.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:8 an object of horror, of astonishment, and of hissing. See Jer. 29:18.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:9–10 Hezekiah recalls the terrible consequences of Ahaz's apostasy and announces his intention to make a covenant with the LORD to avert his fierce anger. No ceremony of covenant renewal is described (see 15:12; 23:16), but it is clear by their response that the people took this appeal to heart.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:12–14 The list of Levites who lead the work of purification closely parallels the list in 1 Chron. 15:5–10, except that representatives of the Levitical singers (Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun) have replaced Hebron and Uzziel.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:16–17 the brook Kidron. See 15:16; 30:14. The work of cleansing the temple took two weeks, until the sixteenth day of the first month, two days past the proper date of Passover (see Num. 9:1–11 and note on 2 Chron. 30:2–4).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:18–19 All the utensils that King Ahaz discarded in his reign … we have made ready and consecrated. See note on 1 Chron. 28:11–19.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:20–22 The restoration of worship following the cleansing of the temple begins with a sin offering for all Israel as the appointed means in the Law of Moses for removing every kind of evil and defilement from the people (see Lev. 4:1–5:13).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:23 Laid their hands on them calls to mind the scapegoat ritual of the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:20–22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:25–30 The burnt offering that is accompanied by the Levites' singing and music signifies the people's act of consecrating themselves afresh to Yahweh (v. 31). the song to the LORD. See 1 Chron. 16:7.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 29:31–36 The sacrifices and thank offerings that the people bring to the temple are individual (rather than regular, communal) expressions of worship and thanksgiving.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:1–27 The account of Hezekiah's Passover is not mentioned in 2 Kings. Hezekiah demonstrates his commitment to the Law of Moses by pressing on to this celebration immediately after the reconsecration of the temple. At the same time, the ceremony is unorthodox in its date (cf. note on 2 Chron. 30:2–4) and in the participation of the ceremonially unclean (vv. 18–20). The Passover is also the occasion in which people from the north and south are reunited (at least in principle) in true worship at the temple, in contrast to earlier attempts to secure a false unity through force of arms (see 11:1–4; 13:8) or ungodly alliances (see 18:1; 19:2; 20:35).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:1 all Israel and Judah. The destruction of the northern kingdom in 725–722 B.C. by Assyria and the deportation of much of its population (2 Kings 17:5–6) allowed Hezekiah to make this invitation at the beginning of his reign (715 B.C.).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:2–4 The Passover was delayed until the second month, in an application of the principle in Num. 9:9–13 providing for those who were ceremonially unclean or absent on a journey. This is an early example of the Law of Moses' being interpreted to cover new situations. Hezekiah's consultation of the assembly in decision making aligns him with David (1 Chron. 13:1–5) and Solomon (2 Chron. 1:2–5).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:6–9 The letters of invitation are similar in content and language to Hezekiah's speech to the priests and Levites (29:5–11). More than an invitation to participate in a festival (30:8b), they are really a summons to repentance (return to the LORD), so that God will avert his anger and the captives of the Assyrians will be returned (v. 9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:11 humbled themselves. See 7:14.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:14 the brook Kidron. See 29:16–17.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:17 the Levites had to slaughter the Passover lamb for everyone. A new, permanent change in their duties (see 35:5–6). It had previously been the responsibility of the elders to slaughter the Passover lamb (Ex. 12:21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:18–20 Although the northerners who ate the Passover were ceremonially unclean and thus deficient according to the letter of the law, their genuine repentance and Hezekiah's intercession were enough to override this deficiency. And the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people in fulfillment of the promise in 7:14. "Healing" here is probably a metaphor for forgiveness and spiritual cleansing so that the people could come before God in keeping with Hezekiah's prayer (see Ps. 41:4; Jer. 30:17).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 30:23–27 The feast was extended for another week, just as the temple dedication had been, and the great joy of this occasion recalls the time of Solomon (7:9–10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:1 all Israel. The festival united the Israelites of the north and south and sparked a popular movement to eradicate pagan worship from Ephraim and Manasseh, as well as Judah and Benjamin.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:2–21 The final stage in Hezekiah's reforms is the restoration of the temple services, which had evidently lapsed when Ahaz closed the temple (28:24). This requires the reorganization of the priests and Levites for the offering of sacrifices and praise (31:2) and the reinstatement of tithes and offerings to support the temple personnel (vv. 4–19). The Chronicler is at pains to demonstrate that the people support the temple generously (v. 5) and that Hezekiah makes effective provisions for the faithful collection and distribution of the gifts (vv. 11–19). The consequence of Hezekiah's faithful leadership is blessing on the people and his own reign (vv. 10, 21). The account stands as an evident example and encouragement to the Chronicler's own community (see Neh. 10:35–39).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:3 Hezekiah leads with the example of his own generosity, as David had done before (1 Chron. 29:2–5).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:5–6 The firstfruits were for the priests (Num. 18:12–13) and the tithes were for the Levites (Num. 18:21, 24).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:7 The amassing of food lasts from the grain harvest in the third month (May–June, the Feast of Weeks or Pentecost) until the fruit and vine harvest in the seventh month (September–October, the Feast of Ingathering or Tabernacles). On these occasions and at Passover, all Israelite men were to come to the temple (Ex. 23:16–17).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:11–15 Hezekiah's provision of storerooms and appointing of Levites to be in charge of them recalls David's arrangements (1 Chron. 23:28; 28:12). Conaniah and Shimei, with their 10 assistants, are responsible for the storerooms, while Kore and his six assistants arrange for distribution in the priests' cities (see 1 Chron. 6:54–60).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:16–18 Distribution was made to priests and their families, including provision for males from three years old, i.e., the age by which all of them had been weaned.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 31:20–21 The summarizing evaluation of Hezekiah echoes the praise of the king in 2 Kings 18:3, 5–7a but reflects the Chronicler's characteristic vocabulary and concept of the exemplary king: seeking his God, with all his heart, and prospered. This recalls David's exhortation of Solomon (see 1 Chron. 22:13, 19; 28:9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:1–23 The Chronicler's account of Sennacherib's invasion (701 B.C.) greatly condenses and simplifies the record given in 2 Kings 18–19 (see note on 2 Kings 18:13). That earlier account depicts a rather more ambivalent (but still fundamentally positive) portrait of Hezekiah (see 2 Kings 18:14–16, 21, 23). The Chronicler omits these details to present Hezekiah at his faithful best, but his principal concern is to highlight the uniqueness and supremacy of Israel's God, and his ability to deliver his people from their enemies (note Sennacherib's constant taunting use of this verb in 2 Chron. 32:11, 13, 14, 15, 17).

Hezekiah Fortifies Jerusalem

c. 702 B.C.

In anticipation of an Assyrian attack, King Hezekiah of Judah fortified Jerusalem, repairing broken sections of the wall and redirecting the flow of water from the Gihon Spring into the city. He also outfitted his army with weapons and shields and appointed battle commanders over the people. Archaeological evidence suggests he also enclosed the western hill of the city with a new wall and built the Temple Mount around Solomon's temple.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:1–8 After these things. Like Jehoshaphat (20:1), Hezekiah's faithful acts are followed by an aggressive invasion, an event that becomes an occasion for testing the king's faith and resourcefulness. Hezekiah's response includes taking practical measures for the defense of Jerusalem (32:2–6a) and encouraging the people not to fear the strength of men (arm of flesh; see Jer. 17:5) but to have confidence in God's help (see 2 Chron. 14:11). Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid echoes David's charge to Solomon (1 Chron. 22:13), based in turn on Moses' words to Joshua (Deut. 31:6; Josh. 1:9).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:1–4, 30 Toward the end of the eighth century B.C., Hezekiah built a new water system for Jerusalem, which incorporated part of the earlier system. A tunnel was constructed that brought water directly from the Gihon Spring to the Pool of Siloam. Two teams cut toward each other, one from the spring and one from the pool. The Siloam Inscription, which was discovered in the tunnel in 1880, describes the final moments of the meeting of the two teams.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:5 he built another wall. In the 1970 excavation of Jerusalem in the Jewish Quarter of the Old City, archaeologist Nahman Avigad discovered a wall 21 feet (6.4 m) thick from the eighth to seventh centuries B.C. It was probably erected by Hezekiah to protect the city against the invading Assyrians. The city wall was also extended to accommodate the growth in population caused by the influx of refugees from the north. the Millo. See note on 2 Sam. 5:9.

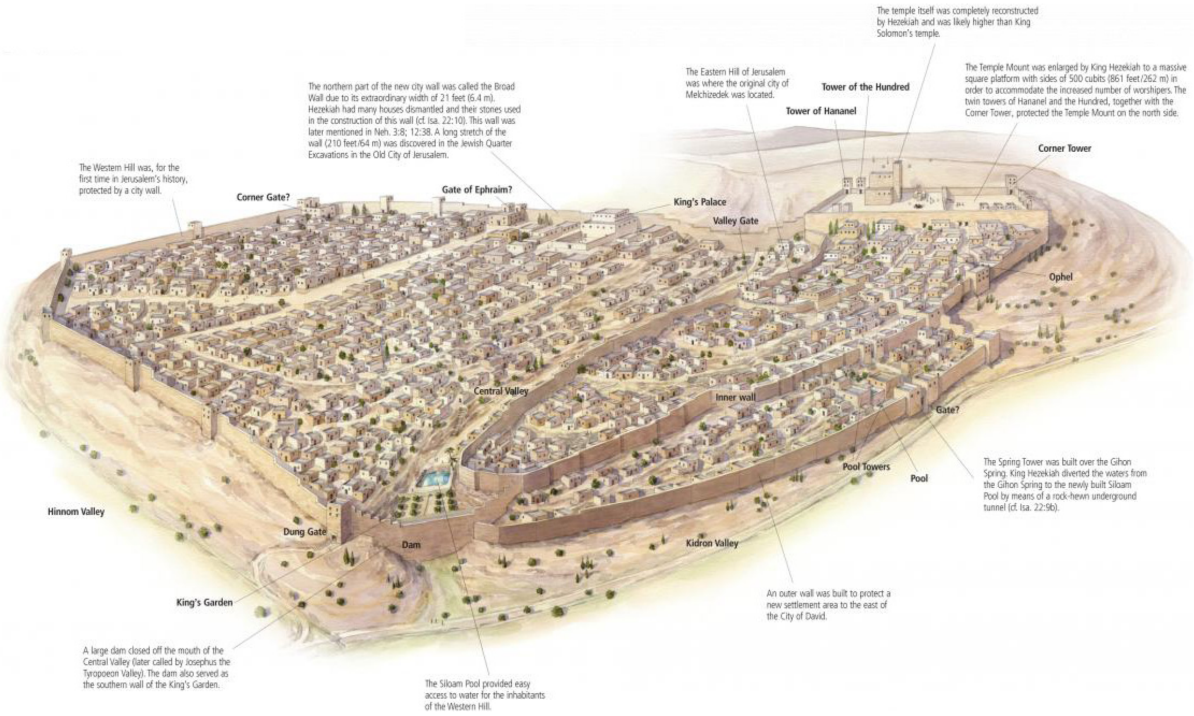
Jerusalem in the Time of Hezekiah (c. 725–686 B.C.)

During the reign of King Hezekiah, the city of Jerusalem expanded more than ever before. Many refugees from the Assyrian invasion settled on the Western Hill, as the ancient city built by King Solomon on the Eastern Hill was not able to absorb them. New city walls encircled both hills, and thus Jerusalem became a city that was "bound firmly together" (Ps. 122:3).



The temple itself was completely reconstructed by Hezekiah and was likely higher than King Solomon's temple.
The Temple Mount was enlarged by King Hezekiah to a massive square platform with sides of 500 cubits (861 feet/262 m) in order to accommodate the increased number of worshipers. The twin towers of Hananel and the Hundred, together with the Corner Tower, protected the Temple Mount on the north side.
The Eastern Hill of Jerusalem was where the original city of Melchizedek was located.

The northern part of the new city wall was called the Broad Wall due to its extraordinary width of 21 feet (6.4 m). Hezekiah had many houses dismantled and their stones used in the construction of this wall (cf. Isa. 22:10). This wall was later mentioned in Neh. 3:8; 12:38. A long stretch of the wall (210 feet/64 m) was discovered in the Jewish Quarter Excavations in the Old City of Jerusalem.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:9–16 Sennacherib … was besieging Lachish. See note on 2 Kings 18:17. See 2 Kings 18:19–25, 27–35; 19:9–13 (and notes), which the address of Sennacherib's servants summarizes. The speech follows the familiar pattern of psychological warfare, attempting to separate a people from their leader and to intimidate them into submission. Moreover, the people are constantly challenged on their confidence in the Lord, whom the Assyrians consider no more able to deliver than the gods of the lands they had conquered. The blasphemy and hubris of Sennacherib and his officers (2 Chron. 32:17, 19) are an affront to Yahweh's honor and invite his reply.

701 B.C.

During the reign of Hezekiah of Judah, Sennacherib of Assyria came and attacked cities along the western edge of Judah, and he sent officials to besiege Jerusalem and convince Hezekiah to surrender. The Cushite king Tirhakah advanced from Egypt to support Hezekiah (2 Kings 19:9; Isa. 37:9) but apparently failed. The siege of Jerusalem was broken when the angel of the Lord killed 185,000 Assyrians in a single night. Sennacherib withdrew and returned to Nineveh in Assyria, where his own sons killed him.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:18 The language of Judah was Hebrew; Aramaic was then the international language of the Near East (see 2 Kings 18:26–35).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:20 Hezekiah the king and Isaiah the prophet. The Chronicler omits the details of Hezekiah's prayer and Isaiah's prophecy of salvation (see 2 Kings 19:15–34) to focus on his familiar point that God has promised to hear his people's prayer in times of distress (cf. 2 Chron. 6:24–25). cried to heaven. Cf. note on 2 Kings 19:1–2.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:21 See 2 Kings 19:35–37. with shame of face. The Chronicler's addition, highlighting the element of confrontation between the arrogant Assyrian king and God himself (see Ps. 34:4–7; 35:4–5). Although Sennacherib's army withdrew shortly afterward, his murder did not occur until 20 years later, in 681 B.C. (see notes on 2 Kings 19:35–36; 19:37).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:23 Hezekiah recalls Solomon in the esteem and gifts he receives from foreigners (9:23–24).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:24–33 The conclusion to the Chronicler's account of Hezekiah's reign mentions his other achievements and his prayers, as well as his lapse into sinful pride.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:24–26, 31 See 2 Kings 20:1–19. These events preceded Sennacherib's invasion by a few years. The sign was the miraculous backward movement of the shadow, signifying the extension of Hezekiah's life in answer to prayer. Related to this incident was the king's proud display of his wealth before the Babylonian envoys. This incurred God's wrath, but Hezekiah and the people's humble repentance (see 2 Chron. 7:14) is said to have spared Jerusalem in the days of Hezekiah (see 2 Kings 20:16–18). Even a good king such as Hezekiah could contribute to Judah's fate; like Josiah (2 Chron. 34:28), however, he was spared from seeing it in his days.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:24 In those days. See note on 2 Kings 20:1.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:27–30a Riches and honor are standard signs of divine blessing on faithful reigns (see 1 Chron. 29:28; 2 Chron. 1:11; 17:5). Hezekiah's tunnel with the renowned Siloam Inscription (discovered in 1880) was part of the engineering work referred to in 32:30a (see vv. 3–4).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:31 the envoys of the princes of Babylon. See note on 2 Kings 20:12.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 32:32–33 the acts of Hezekiah and his good deeds. See note on 2 Kings 20:20. the vision of Isaiah the prophet … in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. Not the canonical book of Isaiah's prophecy but a historical work now lost (see notes on 1 Kings 14:19; 2 Chron. 26:22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:1–20 Manasseh. See 2 Kings 21:1–10, 17–18. Chronicles differs most markedly from Kings by including a section describing Manasseh's imprisonment in Babylon and his religious reforms (2 Chron. 33:11–17), and by omitting 2 Kings 21:11–15, where Manasseh is condemned as a primary cause of the exile (but see note on 2 Chron. 33:10). The reason for the difference lies in their respective aims: Kings presents Manasseh as the worst of Judah's kings whose sins make the exile inevitable, while Chronicles uses him to illustrate the possibility of forgiveness and restoration, even for "the foremost of sinners" (see 1 Tim. 1:15). Both accounts are highly selective in their treatment of the longest reign in Judah's history, and the additional material in Chronicles should not be considered fictional. The Chronicler would certainly agree with 2 Kings that Manasseh's sins contributed to the final outcome of exile, just as the king's own punishment (2 Chron. 33:11) anticipates what will happen to the people. Manasseh's repentance and reforms may also explain why the exile did not come in his day: they had the effect of postponing, but not entirely removing, the consequences of Israel's unfaithfulness, on which God had pronounced judgment (v. 10).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:1 fifty-five years. 697–642 B.C., including probably a co-regency of 10 years with Hezekiah.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:2–9 These verses largely reproduce 2 Kings 21:2–9 (see notes). Manasseh sets about reversing all the reforms his father had instituted, promoting idolatry and succumbing to the depravity of child sacrifice and sorcery.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:10 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and to his people alludes to 2 Kings 21:10 and is intended as a summary of the prophecy of judgment in 2 Kings 21:11–15. But they paid no attention is based on 2 Kings 21:9a. In their rejection of God's word, Manasseh and his people prefigure the last generation of the kingdom (2 Chron. 36:15–16).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:11 Manasseh's imprisonment in Babylon is not attested to outside the Bible. But this account is often associated with the widespread rebellion in 652–648 B.C. by Shamash-shum-ukin, king of Babylon, against his younger brother and overlord Ashurbanipal, king of Assyria. Once he had taken Babylon, Ashurbanipal turned his attention to the western part of his empire and its vassal states, which included Judah. Manasseh may have joined in the rebellion, or at least have been suspected of supporting it.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:12–13 The description of Manasseh's prayer and God's response is strongly influenced by the thought and vocabulary of 7:14. Knew that the LORD was God is similar to a very common expression by Ezekiel, the prophet of the exile: "you/they will know that I am the LORD" (e.g., Ezek. 5:13; 7:27; 13:21).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:14 Manasseh's building projects and military measures can be understood in light of Assyria's need for a buffer-state in the southwest against Egypt, following the suppression of Shamash-shum-ukin's rebellion. Building projects and armies are regular marks of blessing on faithful kings (see 11:5–12; 14:6–8; 17:12–19; 26:9–15).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:15–16 Manasseh's religious reform was directed at removing his earlier pagan innovations (vv. 3, 7). The reform centered on the temple, and little if any of it extended beyond Jerusalem. Verse 17 makes it clear that the people continued in their familiar ways. Manasseh removed the idols (v. 15), but it is not stated that he destroyed them, as Josiah did (34:4–7). Amon would later put them back to use.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:18–20 The Chronicler has considerably expanded the concluding formula in 2 Kings 21:17–18 to emphasize that Manasseh's prayer and his humble repentance constitute the chief significance of his reign. Faithlessness is the key Hebrew theological term ma'al (see note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 33:21–25 Amon. See 2 Kings 21:19–24. The Chronicler has added to the account of Amon's brief reign (642–640 B.C.) the charge that, in contrast to his father, Amon did not humble himself, but rather incurred guilt more and more. His revival of Manasseh's idolatry (2 Chron. 33:22) contributed to God's wrath against Judah (see 19:10; 24:18; 28:25; 36:16), as well as serving as a prelude to Josiah's reform (ch. 34).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:1–35:27 Josiah. See 2 Kings 22:1–23:30a. The considerable space that the Chronicler devotes to Josiah's reign (640–609 B.C.) is a mark of his importance as an example of godly leadership. From his youth (2 Chron. 34:3), Josiah demonstrates faithfulness to God. Like the other great kings before him, he promotes reform according to the Law of Moses and instructions of David, eliminating idolatry and restoring the temple (34:3–13, 33). Although the inexorable shadow of exile hangs over his reign (34:23–28), Josiah persists in leading his people into a renewal of their relationship with God and in reestablishing the Law of Moses as the basis of the nation's future life (34:29–32). The climax of his reformation (as it was for Hezekiah) is the celebration of a Passover unexcelled in its inclusive breadth and faithfulness (35:18). Josiah is evidently a model for faithful living for the Chronicler's own restoration community, centered on the temple and governed by the same law (see Neh. 8:1–8).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:2 did not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. See note on 2 Kings 22:2.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:3–7 Josiah's decisive move against pagan worship is made as soon as he has come of age by turning 20 (see Num. 1:3). The reform includes both Judah and the territories of the former northern kingdom, where the decline of Assyrian power after the death of Ashurbanipal in 627 B.C. allowed Josiah to pursue his religious and political concerns.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:6–7 A fortress at Mesad Havashyahu on the Mediterranean Sea has been discovered that dates to the last third of the seventh century B.C. Several Hebrew ostraca found there indicate that the site was under Judean control. Josiah's control thus extended not only to the north, as far as Naphtali, but also westward to the coast.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:8–13 When he had cleansed (v. 8) or "in order to cleanse." The repair of the temple in 622 B.C. was part of the continuing process of reform that Josiah had initiated. he sent Shaphan. See note on 2 Kings 22:3–7. The Chronicler adds that contributions came from Manasseh and Ephraim and from all the remnant of Israel, as well as Judah, pointing to the unity that now existed among the people and their shared interest in the temple (see 1 Chron. 9:3). The Chronicler further states that the repair work was done under Levitical supervision (see 2 Chron. 24:8–12; 29:12–19).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:14 the Book of the Law. This is usually understood to be a scroll of Deuteronomy or a portion of it. Its discovery in the course of temple repair is itself a reward for faithfulness because it becomes the springboard of further reform (2 Chron. 34:29–33; cf. note on 2 Kings 22:8).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:19–21 those who are left in Israel and in Judah. Another added reference to the northern kingdom to stress the unity of Israel (see v. 9). great is the wrath of the LORD … because our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD. See note on 2 Kings 22:11–13.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:22–24 Huldah. See note on 2 Kings 22:14–16. all the curses. An allusion to the covenant curses in Deuteronomy 27–29 (cf. 2 Kings 22:16, “all the words”).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:27 humbled yourself before me. This is the Chronicler’s addition, alluding to 7:14, emphasizing Josiah’s exemplary spiritual character (see 34:1–3).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:28 gathered to your grave in peace. The promise is not negated by Josiah’s death in battle; Huldah’s prophecy means that the destruction and exile will not occur during Josiah’s lifetime (cf. note on 2 Kings 22:20).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:30–31 the king went up to the house of the LORD. See note on 2 Kings 23:2–3.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 34:32–33 Josiah imposes on the people a pledge of obedience to the Mosaic covenant, which they maintain in all the territory … of Israel (i.e., in both the north and south)—but only while Josiah lives (all his days they did not turn away). When Josiah dies, so too does the people’s commitment to their covenant (see notes on ch. 36).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:1–19 See 2 Kings 23:21–23. Just as Josiah encouraged and instructed the priests and Levites “in the service of the house of the LORD,” the detailed account of his Passover serves as an encouragement and model to the Chronicler’s own generation in their use of the temple for worship and spiritual renewal. The Passover was the most significant pilgrimage festival in the postexilic community for reaffirming their identity and vocation as Yahweh’s people (see Ezra 6:19–22; cf. note on 2 Kings 23:22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:1 the first month. The regular month for celebration (Num. 28:16), in contrast to Hezekiah’s delayed observance (2 Chron. 30:2).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:3–6 Put the holy ark in the house that Solomon … built (v. 3). The ark may have been removed during the reigns of Manasseh and Amon, or in the course of Josiah’s renovation works. Josiah directs the Levites in their new duties of slaughtering and skinning the Passover lambs (see v. 11).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:7–9 Josiah and his officials emulate David (1 Chron. 29:2–5) and Solomon (2 Chron. 7:5) in their generosity.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:18 No Passover like it. Josiah’s Passover surpassed all other centralized celebrations (including Hezekiah’s unorthodox Passover; 30:2–4, 18–20) in its faithful commitment to worship as authorized by Moses and David, and in its broad inclusion of all Judah and Israel (cf. note on 2 Kings 23:22).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 35:20–27 Josiah’s death occurred in the course of confronting Pharaoh Neco II at Megiddo in 609 B.C., when the Egyptian king was bringing his army north to help the Assyrians against Babylon. Apparently Josiah decided to seek favor with Babylon by opposing the Egyptians (see note on 2 Kings 23:28–30), but this indicated a turning away from trust in the Lord. Josiah’s failure to listen to the words of Neco from the mouth of God (2 Chron. 35:22) contrasts with his attention to God’s words from the Book of the Law and from Huldah the prophetess (34:19, 26–27). Here God spoke even through an Egyptian king, warning Josiah against meddling in a war between Babylon and Egypt (cf. Prov. 26:17). The manner of his death is also uncomfortably like Ahab’s (2 Chron. 18:29–34). Nevertheless, Josiah’s reign is judged very positively, as his burial and the mourning for him attest. the Laments. Not the biblical book of Lamentations.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:1–21 The Last Four Kings. See 2 Kings 23:31–25:21. The Chronicler presents the reigns of the last four kings of Judah quite summarily, as the history of the nation accelerates toward an outcome that has been inevitable since Manasseh’s reign. With Josiah’s death, the covenant is abandoned by king and people alike. The Chronicler treats the last four reigns essentially as a unit: he omits the names of the queen mothers and the customary death notices, so that there is no strict separation between each of the reigns, and the common fate of these kings is exile, as it will be for the people. Another common theme is the temple vessels (2 Chron. 36:7, 10, 18; see note on 1 Chron. 28:11–19). As well as the kings (2 Chron. 36:5, 9, 11–12), the whole nation from its leaders down shares in the mounting collective guilt (v. 14) that finally overwhelms it in destruction. Yet the exile is a positive time of purification, and the book concludes on a surprising upswing in a new act of God’s grace declared through a pagan king (vv. 22–23).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:1–4 Pharaoh Neco II asserted control over Judah after Josiah’s death. The “people of the land” who made Jehoahaz king (see 23:13; 26:1; 33:25) probably hoped he would continue Josiah’s opposition to Egypt. Neco preempted this risk by deposing him in favor of Eliakim, whom he renamed Jehoiakim as a mark of his authority over him. The tribute that Neco imposed on the land was a tax exacted from those who had supported Jehoahaz (2 Kings 23:35). Inscription 88 of the Arad Ostraca, dating to c. 600 B.C., is fragmentary but appears to be a letter from a king who has just been enthroned. The king is apparently warning the military commander of Arad of a possible military encounter with Egypt. Arad at this time guarded the southern end of Judah. The excavator identified the king who wrote this letter as Jehoahaz, who ruled Judah for three months in 609 B.C. (Cf. note on 2 Kings 23:31–35.)

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:5–8 Jehoiakim’s reign (609–598 B.C.) was marked by a return to idolatry (Jer. 25:1–7) and the king’s persecution of the prophets (Jer. 26:20–24; 36:20–31). Nebuchadnezzar, following his defeat of Neco at Carchemish (605 B.C.), besieged Jerusalem (2 Kings 24:1) and carried off some of its citizens and some of the temple vessels to Babylon (2 Chron. 36:7; Dan. 1:1–2). This may have been the occasion when Nebuchadnezzar bound him in chains to take him to Babylon, making Jehoiakim into his vassal. Jehoiakim later rebelled against the Babylonians, and in 598 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar again besieged Jerusalem, just after Jehoiakim’s death.

It appears that there were three separate deportations of Judeans to Babylon under the rule of Nebuchadnezzar (see also Jer. 52:28–30). The first came in 597 B.C. during the reign of Jehoiachin, when Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem and carried away many of the treasures of the temple and the royal palace. The second occurred after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., when the walls of the city were leveled and the temple was completely destroyed. The third appears to have occurred around 582 B.C. while King Nebuchadnezzar was reasserting his control over the general region of Palestine (see note on Jer. 52:28–30).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:9–10 The reign of Jehoiachin lasted only for the duration of the siege, before he was exiled to Babylon. Brother here denotes "relative" (Zedekiah was Jehoiachin's uncle).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:11–16 Zedekiah's reign (597–586 B.C.) culminated in rebellion, a siege of almost two years, the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple, and the deportation of its leading citizens (see Jer. 52:28–30 and note for additional information about Jerusalem's final days). This reign is presented as the zenith of disobedience to God, with the king leading the way and the people becoming exceedingly unfaithful (Hb. ma'al; see note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8). Their mocking rejection of the prophets (see Jer. 25:4) meant the refusal to repent, so now there was no remedy (lit., "no healing"; see 2 Chron. 7:14) against God's wrath (see 34:25 and note on 2 Kings 24:18–25:7).

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:17–21 Excavations on the Ophel hill in Jerusalem have revealed some domestic structures belonging to Judeans just before Nebuchadnezzar's destruction in 586 B.C. One four-room house sits at the base of the massive stone-stepped structure. It is called the “house of Ahiel” because an inscription with his name was found in the house. See also note on 2 Kings 25:9–10.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:19–21 they burned the house of God. See notes on 2 Kings 25:8–12; 25:9–10. The land lying desolate while the exiles pay for their sins is a covenant curse (Lev. 26:34–35, 43) but also an opportunity for the land to recuperate and prepare to receive a purified people back (see Lev. 26:44–45). seventy years. See Jer. 25:11; 29:10.

2 CHRONICLES—NOTE ON 36:22–23 Restoration. From Ezra 1:1–3a. Israel’s history has resumed through God’s gracious initiative. to build him a house. The words of Cyrus recall David’s temple commission to Solomon (1 Chron. 22:6, 18–19) and God’s dynastic promise to David (1 Chron. 17:12; 22:10; 2 Chron. 6:9–10). Let him go up is an invitation to a restored people around a restored temple (1 Chron. 9:2–34) to respond to the Davidic covenant with obedient faith and worship.

Introduction to Ezra

Author and Title

Ezra 1–6 recounts events long before Ezra's time, and the book does not state who wrote this section. Ezra is the main figure in chapters 7–10; part of this section clearly comes from his own hand, since it is written in the first person. This part is often called the Ezra Memoir (7:27–9:15). The final author of the whole book is unknown. Some scholars think it was written by the same person who wrote 1–2 Chronicles (also unknown) because its narrative continues directly from the end of 2 Chronicles and because they have common themes. It is also widely thought that the author of Ezra (whether the Chronicler or not) wrote the book of Nehemiah as well. In ancient times, the two books were counted as one, as is known from the earliest Jewish references to them. As is the case with a number of other books in the OT canon, the author had various sources at his disposal. Besides the "Ezra Memoir," parts of Nehemiah are written in the first person, implying a record left by him. The narrative refers to letters and other documents to which (or to copies of which) the author must have had access.

Relationship of Ezra–Nehemiah to 1–2 Chronicles

1–2 Chronicles	Ezra–Nehemiah
Chronicles ends with the Cyrus Edict.	Ezra begins with the Cyrus Edict.
Chronicles emphasizes Jerusalem and the temple.	Ezra–Nehemiah emphasizes Jerusalem and the temple.
Chronicles has a priestly focus.	Ezra is more focused on the law itself.
Chronicles is more focused on Davidic leadership, suggesting composition around the time of Zerubbabel; cf. Zechariah 4 (520–515 B.C.).
Chronicles omits Solomon's downfall due to intermarriage.	Nehemiah appeals to Solomon as a negative example (Neh. 13:26).
	Ezra–Nehemiah contains unique first-person memoirs.

Date

The events narrated in Ezra cover almost a century. Jews had been taken into exile in Babylon by King Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C., but in 539 King Cyrus of Persia overthrew the Babylonian king, Nabonidus. By doing so, he took control of a vast empire, including the territory of the former kingdoms of Israel and Judah. In 538 B.C., Cyrus issued a decree that the Jewish exiles were free to return to their ancestral home. Ezra 1–6 covers the return of the first wave of exiles, who came with their leaders, Zerubbabel and the priest Jeshua (see map for the route), in 538–535 B.C. (the preparations plus the journey itself would have taken many months, perhaps more than a year; cf. 7:9). These chapters continue the narrative up to the time when they rebuilt the temple at Jerusalem (516 B.C.), where Solomon's temple had stood until it was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar. Chapters 7–10 cover a time more than half a century later, beginning with Ezra's arrival in Jerusalem in 458 B.C. The book provides little information about the intervening period.

These dates do not reveal when the book was actually written. As already noted, it belongs closely with Nehemiah. Thus, it must be dated after the latest events in that book, or between 433 and 424 B.C. at the earliest (see note on Neh. 13:6).

Theme

The theme of Ezra is faithfulness to the Lord, both in worship (hence the importance of building the new temple) and in keeping the Torah, the Mosaic law (7:6).

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

The Jewish community was struggling to maintain its identity as the people of the Lord, as it faced internal and external pressures. The community was located in Jerusalem and in towns and villages in the territory of the former kingdom of Judah. Its position was somewhat insecure for at least two reasons. First, the community was composed of those who had been away in exile for a long period—70 years according to Jeremiah (Jer. 25:11). (This may be reckoned, as a round number, either from the first wave of exiles in 605 B.C. to the return in 538–535, or from the destruction of the temple in 586 to the building of the new one in 516; see notes on Jer. 25:11; Dan. 9:2; Zech. 1:12.) They returned as strangers to a land that had a population consisting of Jews who had not been taken into exile, along with persons of other ethnic origins who had begun to settle there. In addition, leaders in Samaria (the old northern capital) who now held power in the Persian province Beyond the River (see note on Ezra 4:1–2) resented the resurgence of Jerusalem as a separate administrative and political center. The returnees therefore had to press their claim to ancient entitlements in the land against local opposition. They were able to do so by virtue of providential help from a succession of Persian kings, though this support was variable. The persistence of opposition from enemies is clear in Ezra 4 and Nehemiah 4; 6.

Second, the Jewish community was insecure because of the severe moral and religious challenge presented by the need to remain a distinctive people faithful to the Lord. The time that elapses in the narrative of Ezra and Nehemiah allows this challenge to appear. When Ezra arrives in Jerusalem, he finds the people intermarrying with non-Jews (Ezra 9–10), which poses a threat to the community because it implies a loosening of the covenantal bond between the Lord and his people. This explains the strong emphasis in both books on keeping strictly separate from the so-called peoples of the land, who, because they do not hold to the religion of the Lord, are morally identified with the old inhabitants of the land whom Israel was long ago commanded to drive out (9:1; see also Deut. 7:1–5). Ezra is often blamed for exclusivism in his attitude towards the mixed marriages. But the issue is essentially religious, and also a matter of survival. It has to be balanced by the openness of the community to non-Jews, who were welcome to adopt the religion of the Lord (Ezra 6:21). In this respect Ezra is no different from the book of Ruth. Marriages to such converts, and to their children, were not part of Ezra's concern in Ezra 9–10, but only marriages that were leading to apostasy (as is clear in Neh. 13:23–24). The problem was acute, however. Under Ezra's leadership the people agree to face up to this danger, but the same issue reemerges late in Nehemiah’s time (Neh. 13:23–29), about 15 years after Ezra’s arrival, when Ezra is apparently no longer on the scene. Finally, another challenge to faithfulness came from economic pressures, which emerge clearly when Nehemiah requires sustained manpower to complete the city wall (Nehemiah 5).

Several issues occasioned the writing of both books. Zerubbabel and Jeshua rebuilt the temple, since this is the first and indispensable mark that the Lord is once again the center of worship in Jerusalem, the ancient Davidic capital. The prophets Haggai and Zechariah also helped to bring this project to fruition (Ezra 5:1). Ezra, “a scribe skilled in the Law of Moses” (7:6), called the community back to covenant loyalty and thus to obedience to the Mosaic law contained in the Pentateuch. Nehemiah rebuilt the city walls so that the community could enjoy security against possible outright attack by enemies who might take advantage of any weakening in the imperial protection of Judah.

These separate missions were closely associated. Ezra, though responsible for the law, is also charged by the Persian authorities with gifts for the temple, so that he continues the provision for the temple originally made by King Cyrus through Zerubbabel. The books also make it clear that the work of Ezra and Nehemiah overlapped, since Nehemiah 8 indicates that Ezra leads the great covenant-renewal ceremony that followed the completion of the city walls. Again, at the dedication of the wall, each plays a part in the ceremony (Neh. 12:33, 38). And most importantly, this ceremony concludes in the temple, so that the projects of the temple and the securing of the city are finally seen to be one.

The author of Ezra and Nehemiah balances these various concerns. There is a note of thankfulness to God for his faithfulness in restoring the community despite enormous odds. Indeed, this repopulation of the ancient Promised Land after exile was nothing less than a fulfillment of prophecy (see Isa. 40:1–11; Jer. 25:11). But there is also regret that the community is prone to failure in its vocation as a faithful people. The author records a number of great gatherings of the people for the purpose of celebration (Ezra 3:1–13; 6:19; Nehemiah 8), or of communal repentance (Ezra 10; Nehemiah 9). The pervasive concern is the need for the community to remain absolutely faithful to the Lord, because of the conviction that its very life depends on it. The knowledge that the Lord has already judged his people with a great exile is very present in the author’s mind.

A telling insight into the purpose of the two books is given by the prayers of Ezra in Ezra 9:8–9 and in Nehemiah 9:32–37 (the latter may or may not be Ezra's). The second prayer, besides expressing thanksgiving and confession, acknowledges that the members of the community are still suffering because of their sins, and are slaves even in their own land. While the author of Ezra–Nehemiah sees God's providential hand in the benign attitude of the Persian kings, he also knows that the community's situation is as yet far short of full deliverance. This combination of confession and petition is at the heart of his message. The book aims not only to encourage the community to persevere in hope but also to bring them again to repentance, so that the ancient promises of freedom in service to the Lord alone might be more fully realized among them.

Key Themes

1. The Lord is faithful to his promises, and his mercy exceeds his anger (9:13).

2. The Lord works providentially by all means, especially through powerful rulers, to bring about his greater purposes (e.g., 6:22).

3. The exiles—being the remnant of Israel, or the "holy race" (9:2, 8)—are bound by covenant to guard their identity and character as the people of the Lord by obeying his law.

4. Belonging to the people of the Lord, however, is not essentially by membership in a “race” but by willing acceptance of his covenant, and thus it is open to people of any nation (6:21).

5. Allegiance to the Lord is demonstrated by due attention to worship. In Ezra, this is shown especially in the building of the temple and in the proper ordering of its work, as evidenced in the institution of priests, Levites, gatekeepers, musicians, and other temple servants in their duties (2:36–58; 3:10–11).

6. The keynote of worship is joy (6:22).

History of Salvation Summary

The exile was not the end of the story for God’s ancient people, nor of their calling to bring light to the world. Ezra stresses God’s providence and mercy in moving imperial rulers to favor his people, and in raising up new shepherds to serve them (Jer. 23:3–4), especially Ezra and other priests and Levites. Nevertheless, not all the promises of the prophets have come to pass (Ezra 9:8–9); God will do still more through them. The people really have a new chance to live as God’s distinctive people. (For an explanation of the “History of Salvation,” see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

The author’s primary impulse is to record the historical facts surrounding the two returns to Palestine—sometimes in the form of lists and inventories, sometimes in the form of narrative or story. But this documentary aim is combined with a religious impulse to choose events from the era that teach religious lessons about God’s covenant faithfulness and the need for his people to maintain high standards of holiness in their communal and personal lives.

The primary form of Ezra is historical narrative, specifically a story that narrates the return of groups of people to their homeland after exile. But the flow of the story is interrupted by a variety of documentary material—lists of people and supplies, transcripts of official documents, the genealogy of Ezra, royal and other official letters, memoirs, and prayer. Sometimes the material tells a story; at other times it resembles a daily newspaper or modern archived material.

Ezra is the central character in this story of starting over. He is a decisive character whose arrival with the second wave of returnees causes sparks to fly. Characters of secondary importance include three Persian kings (Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes), Zerubbabel (who leads the first return and the rebuilding of the temple), the workers who rebuild the temple, and the Israelites who marry foreign women with pagan worship practices.

The Persian Empire at the Time of Ezra

c. 458 B.C.

During the time of Ezra the Persian Empire had reached its greatest extent, engulfing nearly the entire Near East. In 539 B.C. the Persians under Cyrus the Great defeated the Babylonians and absorbed their territory into the empire, including the lands of Israel and Judah (known as Beyond the River). The next year Cyrus allowed the people of Judah to return home under the leadership of Zerubbabel and rebuild the temple of the Lord. Later, around 458 B.C., another group of Judean exiles returned under Ezra's leadership.

Ezra

The Proclamation of Cyrus

EZRA 1 [†] [a] In the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, [b] that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, so [c] that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom and also put it in writing:

[2][†]“Thus says Cyrus king of Persia: The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and [d] he has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. [3][†]Whoever is among you of all his people, may his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and rebuild the house of the LORD, the God of Israel—[e] he is the God who is in Jerusalem. [4]And let each survivor, in whatever place he sojourns, be assisted by the men of his place with silver and gold, with goods and with beasts, besides freewill offerings for the house of God that is in Jerusalem.”

[5][^][†]Then rose up the heads of the fathers’ houses of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites, [f] everyone whose spirit [g] God had stirred to go up to rebuild the house of the LORD that is in Jerusalem. [6][†]And all who were about them [h] aided them with vessels of silver, with gold, with goods, with beasts, and with costly wares, besides all that was freely offered. [7] [i] Cyrus the king also brought out the vessels of the house of the LORD that [j] Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and placed in the house of his gods. [8]Cyrus king of Persia brought these out in the charge of [k] Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them out to [l] Sheshbazzar the prince of Judah. [9][†]And this was the number of them: [m] 30 basins of gold, 1,000 basins of silver, 29 censers, [10]30 bowls of gold, 410 bowls of silver, and 1,000 other vessels; [11]all the vessels of gold and of silver were 5,400. All these did Sheshbazzar bring up, when the exiles were brought up from Babylonia to Jerusalem.

The Exiles Return

EZRA 2 [†] [n] Now these were the people of the province who came up out of the captivity of those exiles [o] whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried captive to Babylonia. They returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his own town. [2][†]They came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, [p] Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, and Baanah.

The number of the men of the people of Israel: [3] [q] the sons of Parosh, 2,172. [4]The sons of Shephatiah, 372. [5]The sons of Arah, 775. [6]The sons of Pahath-moab, namely the sons of Jeshua and Joab, 2,812. [7]The sons of Elam, 1,254. [8]The sons of Zattu, 945. [9]The sons of Zaccai, 760. [10]The sons of Bani, 642. [11]The sons of Bebai, 623. [12]The sons of Azgad, 1,222. [13]The sons of Adonikam, 666. [14]The sons of Bigvai, 2,056. [15]The sons of Adin, 454. [16]The sons of Ater, namely of Hezekiah, 98. [17]The sons of Bezai, 323. [18]The sons of Jorah, 112. [19]The sons of Hashum, 223. [20]The sons of Gibbar, 95. [21]The sons of Bethlehem, 123. [22]The men of Netophah, 56. [23]The men of Anathoth, 128. [24]The sons of Azmaveth, 42. [25]The sons of Kiriath-arim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, 743. [26]The sons of Ramah and Geba, 621. [27]The men of Michmas, 122. [28]The men of Bethel and Ai, 223. [29]The sons of Nebo, 52. [30]The sons of Magbish, 156. [31]The sons of [r] the other Elam, 1,254. [32]The sons of Harim, 320. [33]The sons of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, 725. [34]The sons of Jericho, 345. [35]The sons of Senaah, 3,630.

[36][†]The priests: the [s] sons of Jedaiah, of the house of Jeshua, 973. [37]The sons of Immer, 1,052. [38]The [t] sons of Pashhur, 1,247. [39]The sons of Harim, 1,017.

[40]The Levites: the sons of [u] Jeshua and Kadmiel, of the sons of Hodaviah, 74. [41]The singers: the sons of [v] Asaph, 128. [42]The sons of the [w] gatekeepers: the sons of Shallum, the sons of Ater, the sons of Talmon, the sons of Akkub, the sons of Hatita, and the sons of Shobai, in all 139.

[43][†] [x] The temple servants: the sons of Ziha, the sons of Hasupha, the sons of Tabbaoth, [44]the sons of Keros, the sons of Siaha, the sons of Padon, [45]the sons of Lebanah, the sons of Hagabah, the sons of Akkub, [46]the sons of Hagab, the sons of Shamlai, the sons of Hanan, [47]the sons of Giddel, the sons of Gahar, the sons of Reaiah, [48]the sons of Rezin, the sons of Nekoda, the sons of Gazzam, [49]the sons of Uzza, the sons of Paseah, the sons of Besai, [50]the sons of Asnah, the sons of Meunim, the sons of Nephisim, [51]the sons of Bakbuk, the sons of Hakupha, the sons of Harhur, [52]the sons of Bazluth, the sons of Mehida, the sons of Harsha, [53]the sons of Barkos, the sons of Sisera, the sons of Temah, [54]the sons of Neziah, and the sons of Hatipha.

[55][†] [y]The sons of Solomon's servants: the sons of Sotai, the sons of Hassophereth, the sons of Peruda, [56]the sons of Jaalah, the sons of Darkon, the sons of Giddel, [57]the sons of Shephatiah, the sons of Hattil, the sons of Pochereth-hazzebaim, and the sons of Ami.

[58]All the temple servants and the sons of Solomon's servants were 392.

[59][†]The following were those who came up from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer, [z]though they could not prove their fathers' houses or their descent, whether they belonged to Israel: [60]the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, and the sons of Nekoda, 652. [61]Also, of the sons of the priests: the sons of Habaiah, the sons of Hakkoz, and the sons of [a]Barzillai (who had taken a wife from the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called by their name). [62]These sought their registration among those enrolled in the genealogies, but they were not found there, and [b]so they were excluded from the priesthood as unclean. [63]The [c]governor told them that they were not [d]to partake of the most holy food, until there should be a priest to consult [e]Urim and Thummim.

[64][†] [f]The whole assembly together was 42,360, [65]besides their male and female servants, of whom there were 7,337, and they had 200 male and female [g]singers. [66]Their horses were 736, their mules were 245, [67]their camels were 435, and their donkeys were 6,720.

[68] [h]Some of the heads of families, when they came to the house of the Lord that is in Jerusalem, made freewill offerings for the house of God, to erect it on its site. [69][†]According to their ability they gave to [i]the treasury of the work 61,000 darics [1] of gold, 5,000 minas [2] of silver, and 100 priests' garments.

[70] [j]Now the priests, the Levites, some of the people, the singers, the gatekeepers, and the temple servants lived in their towns, and all the rest of Israel [3] in their towns.

Rebuilding the Altar

EZRA 3 [†] [k] When the seventh month came, and the children of Israel were in the towns, the people gathered as one man to Jerusalem. [2][^][†]Then arose Jeshua the son of Jozadak, with his fellow priests, and [l] Zerubbabel the son of [m] Shealtiel with his kinsmen, and they built the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt offerings on it, [n] as it is written in the Law of Moses the [o] man of God. [3][†]They set the altar in its place, [p] for fear was on them because of the peoples of the lands, and [q] they offered burnt offerings on it to the LORD, burnt offerings morning and evening. [4][†] [r] And they kept the Feast of Booths, [s] as it is written, [t] and offered the daily burnt offerings by number according to the rule, as each day required, [5]and after that the regular burnt [u] offerings, the offerings at the new moon [v] and at all the appointed feasts of the LORD, and the offerings of everyone who made a freewill offering to the LORD. [6][†]From the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the LORD. But the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet laid. [7]So they gave money to the masons and the carpenters, [w] and food, drink, and oil to the Sidonians and the Tyrians [x] to bring cedar trees from Lebanon to the sea, to Joppa, [y] according to the grant that they had from Cyrus king of Persia.

Rebuilding the Temple

[8][†]Now in the second year after their coming to the house of God at Jerusalem, in the second month, [z] Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel and [z] Jeshua the son of Jozadak made a beginning, together with the rest of their kinsmen, the priests and the Levites and all who had come to Jerusalem from the captivity. They [a] appointed the Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to [b] supervise the work of the house of the LORD. [9][†]And [z] Jeshua with his sons and his brothers, and Kadmiel and his sons, the sons of Judah, together [b] supervised the workmen in the house of God, along with the [c] sons of Henadad and the Levites, their sons and brothers.

[10][^][†]And when the builders laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the priests in their vestments came forward with trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, to praise the LORD, [d]according to the directions of David king of Israel. [11][^]And they sang responsively, praising and giving thanks to the LORD,

[e]"For he is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel."

And all the people shouted with a great shout when they praised the LORD, because the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid. [12][†]But many of the priests and Levites and heads of fathers' houses, [f]old men who had seen the first house, wept with a loud voice when they saw the foundation of this house being laid, though many shouted aloud for joy, [13]so that the people could not distinguish the sound of the joyful shout from the sound of the people's weeping, for the people shouted with a great shout, and the sound was heard far away.

Adversaries Oppose the Rebuilding

EZRA 4 [†]Now when [g]the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the returned exiles were building a temple to the LORD, the God of Israel, [2]they approached Zerubbabel and the heads of fathers' houses and said to them, "Let us build with you, for we worship your God as you do, and we have been sacrificing to him ever [h]since the days of [i]Esarhaddon king of Assyria [j]who brought us here." [3][†]But Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the rest of the heads of fathers' houses in Israel said to them, [k]"You have nothing to do with us in building a house to our God; but we alone will build to the LORD, the God of Israel, [l]as King Cyrus the king of Persia has commanded us."

[4][†]Then [m]the people of the land discouraged the people of Judah and made them afraid to build [5]and bribed counselors against them to frustrate their purpose, all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia.

[6][†]And in the reign of [n]Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

The Letter to King Artaxerxes

[7][†]In the days of Artaxerxes, Bishlam and [o]Mithredath and Tabeel and the rest of their associates wrote to Artaxerxes king of Persia. The letter was written [p]in Aramaic and translated. [1] [8]Rehum the commander and Shimshai the scribe wrote a letter against Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the king as follows: [9][†]Rehum the commander, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their associates, the [q]judges, the [r]governors, the officials, the Persians, the men of Erech, the Babylonians, the men of Susa, that is, the [s]Elamites, [10][†]and the rest of the nations whom the great and noble [t]Osnappar deported and settled in the cities of Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River. [11][†](This is a copy of the letter that they sent.) “To Artaxerxes the king: Your servants, the men of the province Beyond the River, send greeting. And now [12][†]be it known to the king that the Jews who came up from you to us have gone to Jerusalem. They are rebuilding that rebellious and wicked city. They are [v]finishing the walls and repairing the foundations. [13][†]Now be it known to the king that if this city is rebuilt and the walls finished, they will not pay [w]tribute, custom, or toll, and the royal revenue will be impaired. [14]Now because we eat the salt of the palace and it is not fitting for us to witness the king’s dishonor, therefore we send and inform the king, [15]in order that search may be made in the book of the records of your fathers. You will find in the book of the records and learn that this city is a rebellious city, hurtful to kings and provinces, and that sedition was stirred up in it from of old. That was why this city was laid waste. [16]We make known to the king that if this city is rebuilt and its walls finished, you will then have no possession in the province Beyond the River.”

The King Orders the Work to Cease

[17]The king sent an answer: “To Rehum the commander and Shimshai the scribe and the rest of their associates who live in Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River, greeting. And now [18]the letter that you sent to us has been [x]plainly read before me. [19]And I made a decree, and search has been made, and it has been found that this city from of old has risen against kings, and that rebellion and sedition have been made in it. [20][†]And mighty kings have been over Jerusalem, [y] who ruled over the whole province Beyond the River, to whom [z] tribute, custom, and toll were paid. 21Therefore make a decree that these men be made to cease, and that this city be not rebuilt, until a decree is made by me. 22And take care not to be slack in this matter. Why should damage grow to the hurt of the king?”

23Then, when the copy of King Artaxerxes’ letter was read before Rehum and Shimshai the scribe and their associates, they went in haste to the Jews at Jerusalem and by force and power made them cease. 24[†]Then the work on the house of God that is in Jerusalem stopped, and it ceased until the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia.

Rebuilding Begins Anew

EZRA 5 [†]Now the prophets, [a] Haggai and [b] Zechariah the son of Iddo, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel who was over them. 2 [c] Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel and [d] Jeshua the son of Jozadak arose and began to rebuild the house of God that is in Jerusalem, and the prophets of God were [e] with them, supporting them.

3[†]At the same time [f] Tattenai the governor of the province Beyond the River and Shethar-bozenai and their associates came to them and spoke to them thus: [g] “Who gave you a decree to build this house and to finish this structure?” 4They [1] also asked them this: “What are the names of the men who are building this building?” 5But [h] the eye of their God was on the elders of the Jews, and they did not stop them until the report should reach Darius and then an answer be returned by letter concerning it.

Tattenai’s Letter to King Darius

6[†]This is a copy of the letter that [f] Tattenai the governor of the province Beyond the River and Shethar-bozenai and his associates, the [i] governors who were in the province Beyond the River, sent to Darius the king. 7They sent him a report, in which was written as follows: “To Darius the king, all peace. 8[†]Be it known to the king that we went to the province of Judah, to the house of the great God. It is being built with huge stones, and timber is laid in the walls. This work goes on diligently and prospers in their hands.

[9][†]Then we asked those elders and spoke to them thus: [g]‘Who gave you a decree to build this house and to finish this structure?’ [10]We also asked them their names, for your information, that we might write down the names of their leaders. [2] [11][†]And this was their reply to us: ‘We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the house that was built many years ago, [j]which a great king of Israel built and [k]finished. [12][†][l]But because our fathers had angered the God of heaven, he [m]gave them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this house and carried away the people to Babylonia. [13][†][n]However, in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon, Cyrus the king made a decree that this house of God should be rebuilt. [14][†][o]And the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple that was in Jerusalem and brought into the temple of Babylon, these Cyrus the king took out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered to one whose name was [p]Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor; [15]and he said to him, “Take these vessels, go and put them in the temple that is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its site.” [16][†]Then this [p]Sheshbazzar came and [q]laid the foundations of the house of God that is in Jerusalem, and from that time until now it has been in building, and it is [r]not yet finished.’ [17]Therefore, if it seems good to the king, [s]let search be made in the royal archives there in Babylon, to see whether a decree was issued by Cyrus the king for the rebuilding of this house of God in Jerusalem. And let the king send us his pleasure in this matter.”

The Decree of Darius

EZRA 6 [†]Then Darius the king made a decree, and [t]search was made in Babylonia, in the house of the archives where the documents were stored. [2]And in Ecbatana, the citadel that is [u]in the province of Media, a scroll was found on which this was written: “A record. [3][†]In the first year of Cyrus the king, Cyrus the king issued a decree: Concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, let the house be rebuilt, the place where sacrifices were offered, and let its foundations be retained. Its height shall be sixty cubits [1] and its breadth sixty cubits, [4][†][v]with three layers of great stones and one layer of timber. Let the cost be paid from the royal treasury. [5]And also [w] let the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple that is in Jerusalem and brought to Babylon, be restored and brought back to the temple that is in Jerusalem, each to its place. You shall put them in the house of God."

[6][^][†]"Now therefore, [x] Tattenai, governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, [y] and your [2] associates the governors who are in the province Beyond the River, keep away. [7][†]Let the work on this house of God alone. Let the governor of the Jews and the elders of the Jews rebuild this house of God on its site. [8][†]Moreover, [z] I make a decree regarding what you shall do for these elders of the Jews for the rebuilding of this house of God. The cost is to be paid to these men in full and without delay from the royal revenue, the tribute of the province from Beyond the River. [9]And whatever is needed—bulls, rams, or sheep for burnt offerings to the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine, or oil, as the priests at Jerusalem require—let that be given to them day by day without fail, [10]that they may offer pleasing sacrifices to the God of heaven [a] and pray for the life of the king and his sons. [11][†]Also I make a decree that if anyone alters this edict, a beam shall be pulled out of his house, and he shall be impaled on it, and [b] his house shall be made a dunghill. [12]May the God [c] who has caused his name to dwell there overthrow any king or people who shall put out a hand to alter this, or to destroy this house of God that is in Jerusalem. I Darius make a decree; let it be done with all diligence."

The Temple Finished and Dedicated

[13][†]Then, according to the word sent by Darius the king, [x] Tattenai, the governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates did with all diligence what Darius the king had ordered.
[14][†] [d] And the elders of the Jews built and prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. They finished their building by decree of the God of Israel and [e] by decree of Cyrus and [f] Darius and [g] Artaxerxes king of Persia; [15][†]and this house was finished on the third day of the [h] month of Adar, in the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king.

[16][†]And the people of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the returned exiles, celebrated the [i]dedication of this house of God with joy. [17]They offered at the dedication of this house of God 100 bulls, 200 rams, 400 lambs, and as a sin offering for all Israel [j]12 male goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. [18][†]And they set the priests [k]in their divisions and the Levites [l]in their divisions, for the service of God at Jerusalem, [m]as it is written in the Book of Moses.

Passover Celebrated

[19][†] [n]On the fourteenth day of the first month, the returned exiles kept the Passover. [20] [o]For the priests and the Levites had purified themselves together; all of them were clean. [p]So they slaughtered the Passover lamb for all the returned exiles, for their fellow priests, and for themselves. [21][†]It was eaten by the people of Israel who had returned from exile, and [q]also by every one who had joined them and separated himself [r]from the uncleanness of the peoples of the land to worship the Lord, the God of Israel. [22]And they kept the Feast of Unleavened Bread [s]seven days with joy, for the Lord had made them joyful [t]and had turned the heart of [u]the king of Assyria to them, so that he aided them in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

Ezra Sent to Teach the People

EZRA 7 [†]Now after this, [v]in the reign of [v]Artaxerxes king of Persia, [w]Ezra the son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, [2]son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, [3]son of Amariah, son of Azariah, son of Meraioth, [4]son of Zerahiah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, [5]son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the chief priest— [6][†]this Ezra went up from Babylonia. He was a scribe [x]skilled in the Law of Moses that the Lord, the God of Israel, had given, and the king granted him all that he asked, [y]for the hand of the Lord his God was on him.

[7]And there went up also to Jerusalem, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king, some of the people of Israel, and [z]some of the priests and [a]Levites, the singers and gatekeepers, and the temple [b]servants. [8]And

Ezra [1] came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king. [9][†]For on the first day of the first month he began to go up from Babylonia, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, [c] for the good hand of his God was on him. [10][†]For Ezra had set his heart to study the Law of the LORD, and to do it [d] and to [e] teach his statutes and rules in Israel.

[11][†]This is a copy of the letter that King Artaxerxes gave to Ezra the priest, the scribe, a man learned in matters of the commandments of the LORD and his statutes for Israel: [12][†]“Artaxerxes, [f] king of kings, to Ezra the priest, the [g] scribe of the Law of the God of heaven. Peace. [2] [h] And now [13][†] [i] I make a decree that anyone of the people of Israel or their priests or Levites in my kingdom, who freely offers to go to Jerusalem, may go with you. [14][†]For you are sent by the king [j] and his seven counselors to make inquiries about Judah and Jerusalem according to the Law of your God, which is in your hand, [15][†]and also to carry the silver and gold that the king [j] and his counselors have freely offered to the God of Israel, [k] whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, [16] [l] with all the silver and gold that you shall find in the whole province of Babylonia, and [m] with the freewill offerings of the people and the priests, vowed willingly for the house of their God that is in Jerusalem. [17][†]With this money, then, you shall with all diligence buy bulls, rams, and lambs, with their grain offerings and their drink offerings, and [n] you shall offer them on the altar of the house of your God that is in Jerusalem. [18]Whatever seems good to you and your brothers to do with the rest of the silver and gold, you may do, according to the will of your God. [19][†]The vessels that have been given you for the service of the house of your God, you shall deliver before the God of Jerusalem.
[20]And whatever else is required for the house of your God, which it falls to you to provide, you may provide it out of the king’s treasury.

[21][†]“And I, Artaxerxes the king, make a decree to all the treasurers in the province Beyond the River: Whatever Ezra the priest, the scribe of the Law of the God of heaven, requires of you, let it be done with all diligence, [22][†]up to 100 talents [3] of silver, 100 cors [4] of wheat, 100 baths [5] of wine, 100 baths of oil, and salt without prescribing how much.
[23][†]Whatever is decreed by the God of heaven, let it be done in full for the house of the God of heaven, lest his wrath be against the realm of the king and his sons. [24]We also notify you that it shall not be lawful to impose [o] tribute, custom, or toll on anyone of the priests, the Levites, the singers, the doorkeepers, the temple servants, or other servants of this house of God.

[25]"And you, Ezra, according to the wisdom of your God that is in your hand, [p] appoint magistrates and judges who may judge all the people in the province Beyond the River, all such as know the laws of your God. [q] And those who do not know them, you shall teach. [26]Whoever will not obey the law of your God and the law of the king, let judgment be strictly executed on him, whether for death or for banishment or for confiscation of his goods or for imprisonment."

[27][^][†] [r] Blessed be the LORD, the God of our fathers, [s] who put such a thing as this into the heart of the king, to beautify the house of the LORD that is in Jerusalem, [28] [t] and who extended to me his steadfast love before the king and his counselors, and before all the king's mighty officers. I took courage, for the hand of the LORD my God was on me, and I gathered leading men from Israel to go up with me.

Genealogy of Those Who Returned with Ezra

EZRA 8 [†]These are the heads of their fathers' houses, and this is the genealogy of those who went up with me from Babylonia, in the reign of Artaxerxes the king: [2]Of the sons of Phinehas, Gershom. Of the sons of [u] Ithamar, Daniel. Of the sons of David, [v] Hattush. [3]Of the sons of Shecaniah, who was of the sons of [w] Parosh, Zechariah, with whom were registered 150 men. [4] [x] Of the sons of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai the son of Zerahiah, and with him 200 men. [5]Of the sons of Zattu, [1] Shecaniah the son of Jahaziel, and with him 300 men. [6]Of the sons of Adin, Ebed the son of Jonathan, and with him 50 men. [7]Of the sons of Elam, Jeshaiah the son of Athaliah, and with him 70 men. [8]Of the sons of Shephatiah, Zebadiah the son of Michael, and with him 80 men. [9]Of the sons of Joab, Obadiah the son of Jehiel, and with him 218 men. [10]Of the sons of Bani, [2] Shelomith the son of Josiphiah, and with him 160 men. [11] [y] Of the sons of Bebai, Zechariah, the son of Bebai, and with him 28 men. [12]Of the sons of Azgad, Johanan the son of Hakkatan, and with him 110 men. [13]Of the sons of Adonikam, those who came later, their names being Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them 60 men. [14]Of the sons of Bigvai, Uthai and Zaccur, and with them 70 men.

Ezra Sends for Levites

[15][†]I gathered them to the river that runs to [z]Ahava, and there we camped three days. As I reviewed the people and the priests, I found there [a]none of the sons of Levi. [16]Then I sent for Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and [b]Meshullam, leading men, and for Joiarib and Elnathan, who were men of insight, [17][†]and sent them to Iddo, the leading man at the place Casiphia, telling them what to say to Iddo and his brothers and [3] the temple servants at the place Casiphia, namely, to send us ministers for the house of our God. [18][†]And [c]by the good hand of our God on us, they brought us a man of discretion, of the sons of [d]Mahli the son of Levi, son of Israel, namely Sherebiah with his sons and kinsmen, 18; [19]also [e]Hashabiah, and with him Jeshaiah of [f]the sons of Merari, with his kinsmen and their sons, 20; [20][†][g]besides 220 of the temple servants, whom David and his officials had set apart to attend the Levites. These were all [h]mentioned by name.

Fasting and Prayer for Protection

[21][†][i]Then I proclaimed a fast there, at the river [j]Ahava, that we might humble ourselves before our God, [k]to seek from him a safe journey for ourselves, our children, and all our goods. [22][†]For I was ashamed to ask the king for a band of soldiers and horsemen to protect us against the enemy on our way, since we had told the king, [l]“The hand of our God is for good on [m]all who seek him, and the power of his wrath is against all who forsake him.” [23][†]So we fasted and implored our God for this, and he listened to our entreaty.

Priests to Guard Offerings

[24][†]Then I set apart twelve of the leading priests: [e]Sherebiah, [e]Hashabiah, and ten of their kinsmen with them. [25]And I weighed out to them the [n]silver and the gold and the vessels, the offering for the house of our God that the king and his [o]counselors and his lords and all Israel there present had offered. [26][†][p]I weighed out into their hand 650 talents [4] of silver, and silver vessels worth 200 talents, [5] and 100 talents of gold, [27]20 bowls of gold worth 1,000 darics, [6] and two vessels of fine bright bronze as precious as gold. [28][†]And I said to them, [q]"You are holy to the LORD, and [r]the vessels are holy, and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering to the LORD, the God of your fathers. [29][†]Guard them and keep them until you weigh them before the chief priests and the Levites and the heads of fathers' houses in Israel at Jerusalem, [s]within the chambers of the house of the LORD." [30]So the priests and the Levites [p]took over the weight of the silver and the gold and the vessels, to bring them to Jerusalem, to the house of our God.

[31][^][†]Then we departed from the river Ahava [t]on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem. [u]The hand of our God was on us, and he delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambushes by the way.
[32][†][v]We came to Jerusalem, and there we remained three days. [33][†]On the fourth day, within the house of our God, the silver and the gold and the vessels were [w]weighed into the hands of [x]Meremoth the priest, son of Uriah, and with him was Eleazar the son of Phinehas, and with them were the Levites, [y]Jozabad the son of Jeshua and Noadiah the son of [z]Binnui.
[34]The whole was counted and weighed, and the weight of everything was recorded.

[35][†]At that time [a]those who had come from captivity, the returned exiles, offered burnt offerings to the God of Israel, [b]twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, and as a sin offering twelve male goats. All this was a burnt offering to the LORD. [36][†][c]They also delivered the king's commissions to the king's [d]satraps [7] and to the governors of the province Beyond the River, and they aided the people and the house of God.

Ezra Prays About Intermarriage

EZRA 9 [†]After these things had been done, the officials approached me and said, "The people of Israel and the priests and the [e]Levites have not separated themselves from the peoples of the lands [f]with their abominations, from the [g]Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites. 2 [h]For they have taken some of their daughters to be wives for themselves and for their sons, so that the [i]holy race [1] has [j]mixed itself with the peoples of the lands. And in this faithlessness the hand of the officials and chief men has been foremost.” 3[†]As soon as I heard this, I [k]tore my garment and my cloak and pulled hair from my head and beard and [l]sat appalled. 4[†]Then all who [m]trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the faithlessness of the returned exiles, gathered around me while I sat [n]appalled until the evening sacrifice. 5And at the [n]evening sacrifice I rose from my fasting, with my garment [k]and my cloak torn, and fell upon my knees [o]and spread out my hands to the Lord my God, 6[†]saying:

“O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift my face to you, my God, for our iniquities [p]have risen higher than our heads, and our [q]guilt has [r]mounted up to the heavens. 7[†] [s]From the days of our fathers to this day we have been in great [q]guilt. And for our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been given into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, to plundering, [t]and to utter shame, as it is today. 8[†]But now for a brief moment favor has been shown by the Lord our God, to leave us a [u]remnant and to give us a [v]secure hold [2] within his holy place, that our God may [w]brighten our eyes and grant us a little reviving in our slavery. 9[†] [x]For we are slaves. Yet our God has not forsaken us in our slavery, [y]but has extended to us his steadfast love before the kings of Persia, to grant us some reviving to set up the house of our God, to repair its ruins, and to give us protection [3] in Judea and Jerusalem.

10[†]“And now, O our God, what shall we say after this? For we have forsaken your commandments, 11[†]which you commanded by your servants the prophets, saying, ‘The land that you are entering, to take possession of it, is a land impure with the impurity of the peoples of the lands, with their abominations that have filled it from end to end with [z]their uncleanness. 12 [a]Therefore do not give your daughters to their sons, neither take their daughters for your sons, and never seek their peace or prosperity, that you may be strong and eat the good of the land [b]and leave it for an inheritance to your children forever.’ [13]And after all that has come upon us for our evil deeds and for [c]our great guilt, seeing that you, our [d]God, have punished us less than our iniquities deserved and have given us such a [e]remnant as this, [14]shall we break your commandments again and [f]intermarry with the peoples who practice these abominations? Would you not be angry with us [g]until you consumed us, so that there should be no [e]remnant, nor any to escape? [15][†]O LORD, the God of Israel, you are just, for we are left a [e]remnant that has escaped, as it is today. Behold, we are before you in our [h]guilt, [i]for none can stand before you because of this.”

The People Confess Their Sin

EZRA 10 [†][j]While Ezra prayed and [k]made confession, weeping and [l]casting himself down [m]before the house of God, a very great assembly of men, women, and children, gathered to him out of Israel, for the people wept bitterly. [2][^][†]And Shecaniah the son of Jehiel, of the sons of Elam, addressed Ezra: [n]“We have broken faith with our God and have married foreign women from the peoples of the land, but even now there is hope for Israel in spite of this. [3][^][†]Therefore [o]let us make a covenant with our God to put away all these wives and [p]their children, according to the counsel of my lord [1] and of [q]those who tremble at the commandment of our God, and let it be done [r]according to the Law. [4][†]Arise, for it is your task, and we are with you; [s]be strong and do it.” [5][†]Then Ezra arose and made the leading priests and Levites and all Israel [t]take an oath that they would do as had been said. So they took the oath.

[6][†]Then Ezra withdrew [u]from before the house of God and went to the [v]chamber of [w]Jehohanan the son of [x]Eliashib, where he spent the night, [2] neither [y]eating bread nor drinking water, for he was mourning over the faithlessness of the exiles. [7][†]And a proclamation was made throughout Judah and Jerusalem to all the returned exiles that they should assemble at Jerusalem, [8][†]and that if anyone did not come within three days, by order of the officials and the elders all his property should be forfeited, and he himself banned from the congregation of the exiles.

[9][†]Then all the men of Judah and Benjamin assembled at Jerusalem within the three days. It was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month. And all the people sat in the open square before the house of God, trembling because of this matter and because of the [z] heavy rain. 10[†]And Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, “You have broken faith and married foreign women, and so increased the guilt of Israel. 11[†]Now then [a] make confession to the Lord, the God of your fathers and do his will. [b] Separate yourselves from the peoples of the land and from the foreign wives.” 12[†]Then all the assembly answered with a loud voice, “It is so; we must do as you have said. 13But the people are many, and it is a time of heavy rain; we cannot stand in the open. Nor is this a task for one day or for two, for we have greatly transgressed in this matter. 14[†]Let our officials stand for the whole assembly. Let all in our cities who have taken foreign wives come [c] at appointed times, and with them the elders and judges of every city, [d] until the fierce wrath of our God over this matter is turned away from us.” 15[†]Only Jonathan the son of Asahel and Jahzeiah the son of Tikvah opposed this, and [e] Meshullam and [f] Shabbethai the Levite supported them.

16[†]Then the returned exiles did so. Ezra the priest selected men, [3] heads of fathers’ houses, according to their fathers’ houses, each of them designated by name. On the first day of the tenth month they sat down to examine the matter; 17and by the first day of the first month they had come to the end of all the men who had married foreign women.

Those Guilty of Intermarriage

18[†]Now there were found some of the sons of the priests who had married foreign women: Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah, some of the sons of [g] Jeshua the son of Jozadak and his brothers. 19They [h] pledged themselves to put away their wives, and their guilt offering was [i] a ram of the flock for their guilt. [4] 20[j] Of the sons of Immer: Hanani and Zebadiah. 21[k] Of the sons of Harim: Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Uzziah. 22Of the sons of Pashhur: Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and Elasah.

23Of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (that is, Kelita), Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer. 24Of the singers: Eliashib. Of the gatekeepers: Shallum, Telem, and Uri.

[25]And of Israel: of the sons of Parosh: Ramiah, Izziah, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Hashabiah, [5] and Benaiah. [26]Of the sons of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elijah. [27]Of the sons of Zattu: Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad, and Aziza. [28]Of the sons of Bebai were Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai. [29]Of the sons of Bani were Meshullam, Malluch, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Jeremoth. [30]Of the sons of Pahath-moab: Adna, Chelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui, and Manasseh. [31]Of the [l] sons of Harim: Eliezer, Isshijah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, [32]Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah. Study Notes for Ezra

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:1–2:70 Cyrus's Decree and the Return of Exiles from Babylon. With the eye of faith, Ezra describes monumental political changes in the world as God's special favor for his people.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:1–11 King Cyrus of Persia decrees that Jewish exiles may return to Jerusalem and rebuild the ruined temple.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:1–4 The Decree. In the famous Cyrus Cylinder, the king boasts that those "of the holy cities beyond the Tigris whose sanctuaries had been in ruins over a long period … I returned to their places." Ezra 1 reflects that proclamation as it affected the Jews.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:1 the first year of Cyrus. The narrative of Ezra continues from Chronicles (see 2 Chron. 36:22–23). The year of the decree is 538 B.C. (for more on the date and occasion, see Introduction: Date). that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled. See Jer. 25:11–14; 32:36–38. The whole book of Ezra is the story of God's work to fulfill his promises by bringing his people back from exile and establishing them once again in their land. The prophet Jeremiah had foretold an exile lasting 70 years, after which time Babylon would be punished and Judah restored. the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia. This acknowledgment of God's hand behind the events of the book is the perspective through which all those events are to be viewed (cf. Ezra 1:5; 3:11; 5:5; 6:22; 7:6, 9; 8:18, 22; 10:14). On Cyrus's role, see also Isa. 44:28; 45:1. Cyrus's proclamation is only the beginning of a series of events that will fulfill the prophecy. It is first made orally, and carried through the vast Persian Empire (see map; also Est. 1:22), and then set down in writing, giving it the status of a solemn decree.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:2 The name God of heaven is used elsewhere for the Lord when Jews relate to non-Jews (see 5:12). Cyrus uses diplomatic language typical of the time, yet what he says corresponds to the message of the book of Ezra.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:3–4 he is the God who is in Jerusalem. No doubt this is Cyrus's real view, although he is not necessarily claiming that there is only one God; he may be allowing for other gods (cf. the statement of Darius the king in 6:12). go up to Jerusalem. The phrase implies worship (cf. Ps. 122:1). The focus of the decree is the rebuilding of the temple more than the returning of the exiles in itself. Cyrus both urges Jews to return and obliges the people of his kingdom to supply them with what they need for the temple and its worship. See also Ex. 12:35–36.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:5–11 The Exiles Respond to the Decree. The exiles' leaders gather money and materials for the temple. Cyrus brings the items taken from the temple in 586 B.C. for the people to take back to Jerusalem.

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:5 Those exiles whose spirit God had stirred (as he had stirred up Cyrus, v. 1) respond to the decree. The response is spearheaded by the leadership of the people, namely, the heads of the fathers' houses (extended families) and priests. It is not haphazard, but an action of the exiled community as a whole. The three tribes—Judah, Benjamin, and the Levites (Levi)—are those that had constituted the former kingdom of Judah, and had thus been taken off to Babylon in 586 B.C. No mention is made here or elsewhere of any large-scale return of the other tribes, though a few people from other tribes are sometimes mentioned or implied (see 1 Chron. 9:3; 2 Chron. 11:16; cf. Luke 2:36). The OT gives no further information on the fate of the other "lost tribes."

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:6–11 People help the exiles as commanded by their king, and Cyrus gives back the vessels of the house of the LORD (v. 7), once stolen from the temple (2 Kings 25:13–17). These are handed over to Sheshbazzar (Ezra 1:8), one of the early leaders of the returning exiles. The title prince of Judah (v. 8) simply means that he was a leading member of the exiled community. In 5:14–16 the initiation of the temple's reconstruction is attributed to Sheshbazzar, and there he is called "governor."

EZRA—NOTE ON 1:9 And this was the number of them: 30 basins of gold, 1,000 basins of silver, 29 censers. This detailed catalog of vessels used in the temple in Jerusalem is a testimony to God's faithfulness in preserving not only a remnant of the people but also the materials they would need to reinstate temple worship in Jerusalem. God had not forgotten his promises.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:1–70 The Exiles Live Again in Their Ancestral Homes. This long chapter documents the exiles' return from Babylon to resettle in their former homes in Jerusalem and Judah. (The information from ch. 2 is given again in Neh. 7:6–73 in connection with a covenant renewal under Nehemiah.) It shows that the exiled Judeans responded to Cyrus's decree and took it as a fulfillment of prophecy. The return is not just the end of the exile but also a reoccupation of the ancient homeland.

Judea under Persian Rule

Under Persian rule, the lands of Israel (now called Samaria) and Judah (now called Judea) were minor provinces within the satrapy called Beyond the River. It appears that Edomites encroached upon Judea's southern border after the fall of Jerusalem to the Babylonians, and this territory was now called Idumea. These regional boundaries remained more or less the same throughout the Persian period. Returning Judeans settled mostly in the province of Judea, but a few settled in the plain of Ono and Idumea as well.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:2b–70 Those who returned are divided into ordinary Israelites (vv. 2b–35) and servants of the temple, including priests and Levites (vv. 36–58). (The same division recurs in vv. 59–63, regarding legitimacy.) The balance shows a clear interest in the temple and its staffing. This return is about reestablishing the worship of Yahweh there.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:2b–35 The laity is described partly according to kinship divisions (vv. 2b–19) and partly according to place (vv. 20–35), without a real distinction in the form (the men of and the sons of seem interchangeable). The numbers may come from a census. The list shows an interest in the legitimate membership of the covenant people, as well as the legitimate reclaiming of ancestral land. The places that are named are in the territories of Judah and Benjamin (cf. 1:5), north and south of Jerusalem; a large proportion of the territories are actually in Benjamin (cf. Josh. 18:21–27). Some of them recall the first conquest of Canaan by Joshua (e.g., Bethel and Ai).

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:2a The leaders of the community are named, with Zerubbabel, the main figure, and Jeshua, the priest, given pride of place (see also Hag. 1:12–14; Zech. 3:1–10; 4:7–10). Zerubbabel descended from King Jehoiachin (cf. 1 Chron. 3:16–19, where he is called Jeconiah), who was exiled in 597 B.C. and later given a place of honor in the Babylonian court (2 Kings 24:15; 25:27–30). Haggai recalls his royal lineage (Hag. 2:23; cf. Jer. 22:24). The other names in Ezra 2:2 are mostly unknown. (The Nehemiah who later rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem came almost a century after these first returnees; the Mordecai of the book of Esther was also much later, and did not return to Jerusalem. Rehum may be the same as in 4:8.) Some exiles may have taken Babylonian names, as occurs in the book of Daniel (e.g., Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego; see Dan. 1:7).

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:36–58 The temple officials are divided according to function, headed by the priests and Levites. The priests (vv. 36–39) are the most important group, for they are set apart for worship at the altar; the Levites are attendants, some of them singers and gatekeepers (vv. 40–42; see also 1 Chron. 6:33–43; 9:17–18). Three of the priestly names given here (Jedaiah, Immer, Pashhur) also appear in 1 Chron. 9:10–13 in that list of those who returned from exile (cf. also Jer. 20:1–6). The number of Levites is surprisingly low compared to the priests.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:43–54 The temple servants (Hb. netinim, a term appearing only in Ezra, Nehemiah, and 1 Chron. 9:2) were a further, lower class of officials appointed by King David to help the Levites (cf. Ezra 8:20). There may be a connection between them and the Gibeonites, whom Joshua made servants of the sanctuary (Josh. 9:23, 27). Here, however, they are apparently not slaves, and in Neh. 10:28 they are named among those who take the covenant oath.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:55–58 The sons of Solomon's servants may be connected with foreigners whom Solomon originally drafted for building the temple (1 Kings 9:20–21). They are numbered here along with the temple servants (Ezra 2:43), and like them are not regarded as slaves. Presumably they all returned voluntarily from Babylon.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:59–63 This section considers the legitimacy of claims to citizenship and membership in the priesthood. whether they belonged to Israel. It was important in this returning community to establish credentials. People were coming back after a long exile to claim inheritance and property. In the case of priests, it was paramount that only those with the correct pedigree should officiate at the altar. Such claims needed evidence, and the record inevitably contained gaps. The claims entered here are not permanently refused, but held over, pending further inquiry.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:64–70 The conclusion of the chapter gives numbers of the whole assembly (vv. 64–66), then gives the number of their livestock, and closes with a picture of full resettlement (v. 70). The crucial importance of the temple project to the whole returning enterprise is signaled in vv. 68–69, where some heads of families, i.e., key people in the community, give of their own substance to initiate the rebuilding (cf. Ex. 36:2–7). The location of the former temple is regarded as a holy place, such that it can already be called the house of the LORD that is in Jerusalem.

EZRA—NOTE ON 2:69 darics. A daric was a gold coin used throughout the Persian Empire. Introduced by Darius I at the end of the sixth century B.C., it weighed about 0.3 ounces (8.5 grams). Beginning in the second half of the fifth century B.C., these coins with Hebrew letters on them appear in Judah. Several of them bear the name of the Persian province Yehud (i.e., Judah), which probably indicates that the province had some freedom to mint its own coins.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:1–6:22 The Returned Exiles Rebuild the Temple on Its Original Site. The book of Ezra spans several generations, as the returnees rebuild and encounter resistance, and finally receive renewed imperial authorization for their efforts.

Jerusalem at the Time of Zerubbabel

538–515 B.C.

Among the first tasks undertaken upon the exiles’ return was the rebuilding of the altar and the temple. Almost immediately the altar was set up, and regular burnt offerings were resumed. About a year later the foundations of the temple were laid, but opposition from other local governors halted the completion of the temple for over 20 years. Finally, in 515 B.C. (during the reign of Darius) the temple was completed. The city walls, however, would not be rebuilt until about 70 years later under the leadership of Nehemiah.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:1–13 The Foundations of the Temple Are Laid. In this section the altar is rebuilt on its former site, and foundations are laid for the new temple.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:1 According to Israel's calendar of pilgrimage feasts, the seventh month, Tishri (roughly September), was the month of the great Day of Atonement (Lev. 23:26–32), followed by the Feast of Booths (or Tabernacles; Lev. 23:33–43), which celebrated the exodus from Egypt. Thus in the first year of the return, the people make their first pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:2 built the altar. On this occasion, the broken altar had first to be repaired so that sacrifices could once again be made. The leading roles of Jeshua and Zerubbabel are again emphasized, with some stress on the role of the priests.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:3 in its place. There may have been visible remains of the original altar (as perhaps implied by Jer. 41:4–5); in any case, its exact location was evidently known. The altar has absolute priority, as it had at the first entry into the land, many years before (Deut. 27:1–8). The haste to erect it is perhaps heightened by the fear of the peoples of the lands. This phrase refers to residents of Judah, and perhaps neighboring areas, who were not part of the group returning from exile. Some may have had Jewish origins, but they present themselves as a distinct group, and they would soon oppose the work. The exiles' fear is another echo of their first occupation of the land, when fear had at first overwhelmed the Israelites (Num. 14:1–3). On this occasion, despite their fear, they are resolute. Burnt offerings were to be offered daily on the altar, morning and evening, as Moses commanded in Ex. 29:38–42.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:4–7 The people keep the Feast of Booths, with its proper sacrifices (see Num. 29:12–38).

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:6 they began to offer. The perspective shifts to the regular sacrificial worship (see 2 Chron. 2:4), since the particular acts of worship in the seventh month are essentially portrayed as a renewal and a beginning. The next task is to rebuild the temple, and the preparations recall those made by King Solomon half a millennium earlier (Ezra 3:7; cf. 1 Kings 5:13–18; 1 Chron. 22:4, 15; 2 Chronicles 2).

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:8 Work begins on the temple itself, with the laying of its foundation in the second year of the return (c. 537 B.C.). The second month, Ziv (1 Kings 6:1)—the same time of year when Solomon had begun his temple (2 Chron. 3:2)—is in the spring. The time of the return from exile is dated with the formula after their coming to the house of God at Jerusalem. Even though the temple still lies in ruins, the place could be called "the house of God" because of its consecration for worship (see Jer. 41:5). The narrator stresses that it is those who have come from the captivity who do this. The priests and Levites are emphasized, and the qualifying age for Levitical service is mentioned (cf. 1 Chron. 23:24).

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:9 The names are those of "Levites," as specified in v. 8. Thus Jeshua is not the high priest of that name, nor are these Levite sons of Judah members of the tribe of Judah; this "Judah" is probably another form of "Hodaviah," named along with Kadmiel in 2:40.

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:10–11 all the people shouted with a great shout. The laying of the foundations occasions praise, which echoes the celebrations of King David when he prepared for the building of Solomon's temple (cf. 1 Chronicles 16, esp. vv. 7, 34, 37).

EZRA—NOTE ON 3:12–13 But many … wept with a loud voice. Sadness is mixed with this rejoicing, for some of the very old remembered the former temple and believed that this new one would not match the former temple's glory. The picture of mitigated celebration is a small symbol of the whole event of the return, which was in itself a triumph yet fell far short of the great hopes the people might have had (cf. Hag. 2:2–9).

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:1–24 Enemies Stall the Project by Conspiring against It. The rebuilding project encounters opposition from other groups in the region, and the work ceases.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:1–2 the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin. The returned exiles found themselves in a Persian province, called Beyond the River (v. 11; i.e., beyond the Euphrates from the perspective of the Persian power centers). Its administrative center was in Samaria, the capital of the former northern kingdom of Israel. Its population was composed largely of the descendants of peoples settled there by Esarhaddon king of Assyria (reigned c. 681–669 B.C.) in c. 671–670 (see 2 Kings 17:24–33; Isa. 7:8), long after Assyria conquered the northern kingdom in 722 and began to resettle the land with exiles from other lands. Apparently Samaria was a hotbed of unrest for decades. Let us build with you, for we worship your God as you do. Indeed, these peoples' ancestors had been taught the religion of Yahweh by a priest sent for that purpose (2 Kings 17:24–28), though the same account tells that they worshiped other gods as well (2 Kings 17:29–41), and they are identified as "adversaries" (Ezra 4:1).

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:3 Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the rest of the heads of fathers' houses present a united answer declining the offer of help (vv. 1–2): we alone will build to the LORD. Their stated ground for declining the help is that the decree of Cyrus applied only to the returning exiles. No doubt they understood that the actual intent behind the request was to frustrate the project.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:4–5 The real attitude of these residents, now called the people of the land, emerges. They showed their determined opposition all the days of Cyrus (from the time the opposition began in 538 or 537 B.C.; Cyrus died in 530) even until the reign of Darius (reigned 522–486). Therefore, the opposition continued over a period of about 20 years, up to the completion of the temple in 516 B.C. The discouragement apparently involved turning local officials against the project. Even though the project actually had the full authority of King Cyrus behind it, local enemies would exploit the distance of Jerusalem from the imperial center to their own advantage.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:6–23 This section interrupts the historical narrative (1:1–4:5) and mentions two later examples of hostility from the people of the land (4:6 and 4:7–23), showing that persistent and recurring hostility to the returning Jews occurred for a century or more after Cyrus's decree. The narrative resumes at v. 24. The technique employed was familiar practice in ancient history writing. Its purpose here is to show that the problems faced by the new community were not isolated but were deeply rooted in its situation.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:6 This verse jumps forward to later events during the reign of Ahasuerus (reigned 486–464 B.C.), otherwise known as Xerxes, who appears in the book of Esther (cf. Est. 1:1).

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:7–23 While the author is on the topic of the opposition by the people of the land, he jumps forward yet further to another hostile episode, when a formal letter of complaint was sent by leaders in the province to King Artaxerxes I (reigned 464–423 B.C.).

Ezra 4:24–6:12	Work on the temple stopped from 536–520; Darius finally gives order to rebuild it

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:7–8 The letter form follows known practice in the Persian period: formal address, greetings, information, and request. The precise occasion of this action against the community is not known, but it presupposed that the people had made an attempt to rebuild the city walls sometime before the mission of Nehemiah, who arrived in 445 B.C. (still in the reign of Artaxerxes) and completed the rebuilding of the walls despite strenuous attempts to stop the work at that time too (Nehemiah 4; 6). The present letter was written in Aramaic, which had been the official imperial language under the Babylonians and was still used in diplomacy. The letter might have been translated into Persian (for the benefit of the king), or into Hebrew (therefore implying that the author knew of a Hebrew copy). But when the letter is introduced in the book of Ezra (Ezra 4:7b), the language changes from Hebrew to Aramaic, and continues in Aramaic until 6:18, returning to Hebrew from 6:19 to the end. Citing the letters in Aramaic gives authenticity to Ezra’s account (cf. also 7:12–26); it is not entirely clear, however, why Ezra’s own narrative in this section also uses Aramaic (e.g., 4:23–5:5; 6:13–18). Perhaps it was natural, given that the letters were in Aramaic. In any case, the reader comes away confident that the author was fluent enough in Aramaic to understand the royal letters.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:9 The officials give their credentials as leaders and also stress that their rights in the land have imperial warrant because of the older Assyrian resettlements.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:10 The Assyrian king Osnappar is probably Ashurbanipal (668–627 B.C.); he continued the resettlement of Israel, which his predecessors began (see vv. 1–2).

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:11 Beyond the River. The name of the Persian province, which apparently included Jerusalem, until the decree of Cyrus returned the land to the Jews.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:12 that rebellious and wicked city. Jerusalem had in fact often been more acquiescent to the empire than the biblical writers thought proper (note the highly critical view of the kings Ahaz and Manasseh in 2 Kings 16–21), though there had been some switching of loyalties during the last days of the kingdom (2 Kings 18:7; 24:1, 20). The letter plays on the empire's ready suspicions of rebellion. They are finishing the walls and repairing the foundations. By the time of this letter, considerable repair work had already been done on the wall around Jerusalem.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:13–16 The threat of an independence movement in Jerusalem is exaggerated. The imperial records would include those of Assyria and Babylon, empires to which the Persians regarded themselves legitimate successors.

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:20 mighty kings. A possible reference to the relatively powerful united monarchy under David and Solomon. The king's response (vv. 17–22) gave license to the enemies of the exiles to stop the work by force, an action that might underlie the news later heard by Nehemiah that the walls of Jerusalem lay in ruins (Neh. 1:3).

EZRA—NOTE ON 4:24 The word then picks up the story from v. 5, before the long interlude of vv. 6–23, bringing the narrative back to the period principally in view (soon after the first return). The story now records the outcome of the mission to prevent the building of the temple. It is implied that the work had ceased soon after it began, i.e., within about two years after c. 537 B.C. (see 3:8). It resumed in the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia, which is 520 B.C. The period of inactivity therefore lasted around 15 years.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:1–17 The Work Is Resumed, and Local Officials Seek Confirmation of Cyrus's Decree. After a period of inactivity, the leaders resume work on rebuilding the temple, and provincial officials inquire into its legitimacy.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:1–2 The prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, are also known from their books, which contain prophecies made in the second year of King Darius, 520 B.C. (Hag. 1:1; 2:1; Zech. 1:1, 7; cf. note on Ezra 4:24; cf. also 6:14). Haggai proclaims that the people were in trouble because they had lost sight of their top priority of rebuilding the temple (Hag. 1:4–6). Verses 1–2 of Ezra 5 bring out the connection between the prophetic work and the renewed action, following the discouragement recorded in 4:4–5, 24. In beginning again, Zerubbabel and Jeshua are simply reimplementing Cyrus's decree, recognizing it as the will and purpose of God.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:3–5 The officials Tattenai and Shethar-bozenai are much more neutral than the officials named in 4:8–10. Clearly they have no knowledge of Cyrus's decree, no doubt because the work had long stopped, and they presumably came to power only after the exiles first arrived. They are interested only in the proper authorization of this important thing that was happening under their jurisdiction, and they do not actually interfere with the work's progress. The author knows that a higher authority, the eye of … God (5:5), was watching over the builders' activity and that God was protecting them (cf. Ps. 33:18).

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:6 The copy of the letter has a formal opening similar to the one in 4:7–16.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:8 The province of Judah lay within the Persian province Beyond the River, of which Tattenai was governor in Samaria. (Texts from the reign of Darius I dating 520–519 B.C. name the local governor of the province "Beyond the River" as Tattanu [cf. Tattenai; vv. 3, 6; 6:6, 13].) The expression the house of the great God is a diplomatic way of referring to the temple and the God of Israel, and does not imply that the writers of the letter believe in him. The use of huge stones and timber recalls the building of the first temple (1 Kings 6:36; 7:12) and was a common practice in the ancient Near East.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:9–10 The officials' concern for administrative propriety is reflected in their inquiries about both the original authorization and the names of those who are to be held responsible for the action being undertaken.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:11–17 The letter now reports the reply of the Jewish leaders. (Quotation was also a feature of known formal Persian letters.)

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:11 The letter writers probably got their information from the returned exiles themselves, since it reflects their understanding of the situation. We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth. They do not hesitate to say that they are serving not a local deity but the one true God of the whole world. They give this answer instead of giving their individual names when asked (v. 10). The great king of Israel is Solomon.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:12 This verse sums up the message of 1–2 Kings.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:13–15 These verses essentially repeat information found in 1:2–4. The report stops short of claiming that Cyrus had also commanded that the building be funded by donations from Babylon (1:4). This was perhaps more than Tattenai (or even the exiles) wished to urge at this point.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:13 Cyrus the king made a decree. See 1:1–4.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:14 Sheshbazzar was introduced as "the prince of Judah" in 1:8, being the one who had received directly from King Cyrus the charge to rebuild the temple. Here he is called governor, a name applied to Tattenai himself in 5:3; it seems that the term could be used somewhat loosely, since Judah would not have had a "governor" on a par with the governor of the entire province Beyond the River (v. 6, etc.). Darius's reply also refers to a "governor of the Jews" (6:7), a name given to Zerubbabel in Hag. 1:1.

EZRA—NOTE ON 5:16–17 it has been in building. The period when building had ceased was irrelevant both to the information Tattenai was giving and to the request he was making. The author therefore omits here the specific work of Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Haggai, and Zechariah (though their names were no doubt among those asked for by the governor, and sent with the letter; see v. 10). Tattenai, following the Jews' own account, wants to make a link between the original authorization and the present building activity, and so portrays Sheshbazzar as having laid the foundations of the temple, since it was done under his authority, though that achievement is attributed to the work initiated by Zerubbabel and Jeshua in 3:8–10.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:1–22 King Darius Discovers and Reaffirms Cyrus's Decree, and the Work Is Completed. A record of Cyrus's decree is discovered, and King Darius confirms that the Jews are to be allowed to continue the work.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:1–2 The search for Cyrus's decree is made first in Babylonia, where Cyrus had declared himself king in 539 B.C. and where many exiled Jews lived. But the scroll containing the record of the decree was found in Ecbatana (v. 2), a summer residence of the Persian kings, where Cyrus may have gone soon after his triumph over Babylon. The province of Media (v. 2) was formerly the seat of an empire itself, but Cyrus had made it part of the Persian realm. Leather scrolls are known to have been used in Persia for official documents in Aramaic. The document now discovered is called a record (v. 2) and is apparently a memorandum concerning the decree rather than the decree itself (which would probably have been written on a clay tablet).

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:3–5 This record is not identical with the decree as recorded in 1:2–4. It makes new stipulations about the building, its location, its size, and its materials. This may be because a copy of the original decree had been found (see note on 6:1–2), and additional instructions may have been added to it for a particular recipient or destination. Moreover, different copies of Cyrus's original decree may have been made, varying in wording according to the purpose for each copy (the one in 1:2–4 included wording for public proclamation, while this version in 6:3–5 was an official version for royal archives). The size of the temple might be specified in order to limit it, since public funds were being used to pay for it. The absence of a length dimension is odd, and the greater breadth than Solomon's temple is unexpected (1 Kings 6:2), especially in view of Ezra 3:12.

Zerubbabel's Temple

The rebuilding of Jerusalem's temple was done in stages (c. 536–516 B.C.). First, the altar was built, so that sacrifices could again be made (Ezra 3:2–3). The second phase was the laying of the foundation of the temple. This elicited mixed reactions from the people. Some rejoiced that the foundation was laid, while others, especially the elder priests, were sad, presumably because the quality of construction was inferior to that of the previous temple. Due to the opposition of the local population and the lack of motivation among the Jews, it took 20 years to complete the construction of the temple building.

The only information given in the biblical record about the architecture of the temple is the dimensions, which were sixty cubits (90 feet/27 m) high and wide (Ezra 6:3). As there is no mention of the length of the building, these dimensions must refer to the facade of the temple, i.e., the Porch.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:4 The prescription of three layers of great stones and one layer of timber exactly follows the construction of the older temple (1 Kings 6:36; 7:12), which was modeled after temples in other lands (cf. 1 Kings 5:1–12). While the original decree had required people in Babylon to support the cost of the exiles’ project (Ezra 1:4), this record requires that the cost be met from the royal treasury.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:6–12 Darius now instructs Tattenai and his fellow officials to allow the work to continue.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:7 Governor of the Jews refers to Zerubbabel (Hag. 1:1). Nothing is known of what became of the first governor, Sheshbazzar.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:8–10 Darius not only confirms Cyrus's decree but also provides for costs to be met from taxes raised in Beyond the River itself (v. 8). He also provides for materials for sacrifice in perpetuity (v. 9), with the political stipulation that the Jews pray for the life of the king and his sons (v. 10)—showing that Darius's generosity was part of his policy to sustain Persian power.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:11–12 Darius makes in effect a further decree, backed up with a typical threatened sanction (v. 11). The final warning borrows language from the Jews' own way of speaking about God's presence in Jerusalem (the God who has caused his name to dwell there, v. 12; cf. Deut. 12:5); Darius strikingly acknowledges the efficacy of the God of Jerusalem in his own place (although, like Cyrus in Ezra 1:3, he might not be claiming that there is only one true God).

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:13–22 Darius's decree is implemented, the temple is completed and dedicated, and Passover is kept.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:13 Tattenai and his fellow officials respond quickly to Darius's decree.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:14 the elders of the Jews built and prospered. That is, they were successful in their building. Their success came through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. This passage emphasizes that God—here represented as speaking through his prophets—is the real influence behind events. The God of Israel has also given a decree that the work should proceed. But the actions of the kings of Persia on the Jews' behalf, in the decree of Cyrus and Darius and Artaxerxes king of Persia, are also acknowledged. The inclusion here of Artaxerxes, who ruled after the events of this chapter, anticipates his decree in support of Ezra's mission (7:11–26).

Kings of Persia Mentioned in Ezra–Nehemiah

Cyrus	539–530 B.C.
Darius I	522–486
Xerxes (Ahasuerus)	485–464
Artaxerxes I	464–423

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:15 The month of Adar (February/March) was the last month of the year, and the dedication of the temple falls fittingly in it, just before the celebrations of the new year that would follow. The sixth year of the reign of Darius was 515 B.C., almost exactly 70 years after the destruction of the first temple (586), thus fulfilling the prophecy of 70 years of exile (one way of reading Jer. 25:11–12; 29:10; see Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background, and note on Jer. 25:11).

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:16–17 the people of Israel. Even though the returned exiles consisted of only three tribes (see note on 1:5), they are taken to represent all 12 tribes, the number of the tribes of Israel (6:17). The other divisions, the priests and the Levites and the laity, are a typical way of describing the whole community in Ezra. with joy. See note on vv. 19–22. The dedication (Hb. hanukkah) of this house (v. 17) follows its completion, and is celebrated with lavish sacrifices, as Solomon's temple had been (see 1 Kings 8:62–64). (The later Jewish holiday of Hanukkah, however, was based not on this dedication but on the rededication of the temple under the Maccabees in 164 B.C.; see Intertestamental Events Timeline.) The sin offering for all Israel (Ezra 6:17) recalls the sin offering prescribed for the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:15–16) and is appropriate at this rededication following God's former judgment on his people. Here again the symbolic unity of Israel is emphasized.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:18 The priests and Levites are set in their divisions, i.e., according to the roster for duty in the temple, as King David had once done (1 Chronicles 23–27). The phrase as it is written in the Book of Moses applies to the general assignment of the priests and Levites to their respective duties (Numbers 3; 8) rather than to the system of divisions outlined in Chronicles.

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:19–22 (The narrative returns to Hebrew in v. 19; see note on 4:7–8.) The Passover is kept on its appointed date, followed immediately by the Feast of Unleavened Bread (6:22), which lasts for seven days (Lev. 23:5–6). The priests and Levites had purified themselves and were clean (Ezra 6:20); i.e., they had made the necessary ritual preparations. The participants are the people of Israel, the returned exiles again representing the whole, and the people of the land who had joined them (see note on v. 21). the LORD had made them joyful (v. 22). He had fulfilled his prophecies and answered his people's prayers. There is spontaneous joy when God's people see evidence that he is working in the world. The reference to the king of Assyria (v. 22) at first seems odd because kings of Persia have supported the Jews in Ezra. The reference here, however, is based on the continuity of the various empires. The king of Persia now ruled over the territorial empire of the Assyrians, and thus he could be called "king of Assyria" (cf. Herodotus, History 1.178, in a discussion of Cyrus's conquests, where Babylon is called the strongest city "in Assyria"). This wording emphasizes the turn in fortunes, under God, since the Assyrians had been used as God's agent of punishment centuries before (Neh. 9:32; Isa. 10:5–11).

EZRA—NOTE ON 6:21 Remarkably, the returning Jews are joined by every one who had … separated himself from the uncleanness of the peoples of the land to worship the LORD. This shows that the community was essentially religious, rather than based merely on physical birth and lineage, and that outsiders could convert into it.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:1–8:36 Ezra the Priest Comes to Jerusalem to Establish the Law of Moses. The narrative now skips to a time 57 years later (see note on 7:1–7), when Ezra the scribe is commissioned by King Artaxerxes to establish the Torah of Moses in the Jerusalem community. This section recounts Ezra's commission, his journey, and his companions.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:1–28 King Artaxerxes Gives Ezra Authority to Establish the Mosaic Law. This section describes how Artaxerxes gave Ezra the authority to establish the Mosaic law in the province of Yehud (i.e., Judah), to appoint magistrates to administer that law, and to provide for the further adornment of the temple.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:1–7 Ezra is introduced first as a priest, his lineage going back to Aaron the chief priest (v. 5), the brother of Moses (cf. Ex. 4:14; 28:1–2). He comes in the reign of Artaxerxes (Ezra 7:1), in the seventh year (v. 7), i.e., 458 B.C.—57 years after the temple dedication.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:6–7 Ezra is also a scribe skilled in the Law of Moses. No doubt God raised up a scribe with expert knowledge of the law because, after 70 years of exile, the people badly need instruction in how to live according to the Law of Moses. Ezra has apparently asked the king for permission and resources to go to Jerusalem (v. 7). Artaxerxes is supportive, again at the prompting of God, who gives favor to Ezra: and the king granted him all that he asked, for the hand of the LORD his God was on him (see notes on 1:1; 6:14). He comes with a new wave of migrants, priests, laity, and Levites, including singers and gatekeepers (7:7; see note on 2:36–58). The return of exiles did not happen all at once.

The Hand of God in Ezra and Nehemiah

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c89

Ezra 7:6	The king granted Ezra all that he asked	for the hand of the Lord his God was on him
Ezra 7:9	Ezra began to go up from Babylon and came to Jerusalem	for the good hand of his God was on him
Ezra 7:28	Ezra took courage before the king and his men, and gathered leading men from Israel to go with him	for the hand of the Lord his God was on him
Ezra 8:18	Ezra is sent ministers for the house of God	by the good hand of their God on them
Ezra 8:22	On all who seek God	the hand of their God is for good
Ezra 8:31	God delivered them from the hand of the enemy and from ambushes by the way	[for] the hand of their God was on them
Neh. 2:8	King Artaxerxes granted what Nehemiah asked	for the good hand of his God was upon him

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:9 the first month … the fifth month. The journey from Babylon to Jerusalem had taken nearly four months. It was about 900 miles (1,448 km). This was a slow pace, probably because the caravan included children and elderly people. (And 8:31 indicates that there was an 11-day delay before departure.)

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:10 Ezra's mission was to teach God's statutes and rules, i.e., the extensive laws of God given to Moses in addition to the Ten Commandments (see Deut. 4:1; 5:1), under the general rubric of the Law (Hb. torah) of the LORD. These are contained throughout Exodus to Deuteronomy, especially in Exodus 20–23, Leviticus, and Deuteronomy 12–26. Readers are told nothing of how this mission came to be in Ezra's heart. The terms study, do, and teach (indeed, the whole account of Ezra 7–10) present Ezra as the ideal priest in Israel, whose task is to lead God's people in worship and holiness of life (see Deut. 33:10): his ministry stems from a faithful life (cf. Mal. 2:1–9; 1 Tim. 4:6–16).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:11–28 This section tells how Artaxerxes supports Ezra by commissioning him and providing further for the temple. The text of the letter (vv. 12–26) is in Aramaic (see note on 4:7–8).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:11 The king's decree is in the form of a letter addressed to Ezra, which could be used to enforce the king's command.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:12 The title king of kings was used by kings of Persia and expresses their sovereignty over many subject peoples. Ezra is called the scribe of the Law of the God of heaven, which possibly refers to a kind of responsibility for Jewish affairs that he already held in Babylon.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:13 The decree echoes that of Cyrus in authorizing any Jews who wish to go to Jerusalem (see 1:3).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:14 The commission to make inquiries about Judah and Jerusalem according to the Law of your God no doubt reflects Ezra's own priority, and perhaps his belief that the law is not being properly kept.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:15–20 Artaxerxes turns to the needs of the temple, perhaps showing his own perception of Ezra's task, in accordance with Cyrus's original decree in 538 B.C., 80 years earlier (see note on 1:1).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:15–16 The king and his counselors give money for the temple and permit Ezra to gather further resources in the whole province of Babylonia, perhaps from non-Jews as well as Jews.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:17–18 The provision specifies the temple worship but also leaves extensive discretion to Ezra in his expenditure.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:19–20 vessels … for the service of the house of your God. Artaxerxes adds these to the temple treasures originally returned by Cyrus, apparently as his own gift, and, finally, allows Ezra to take whatever he needs from the king's treasury (v. 20), i.e., from public funds.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:21 The decree now specifically addresses the royal treasury officials in Beyond the River, compelling them to make provision for Ezra up to specified limits.

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:22 The talent was 75 pounds (34 kg), and the amount of silver specified has been estimated at between a quarter and a third of all the annual taxation raised in "Beyond the River." The wheat, wine, and oil would have been used for cereal offerings, for drink offerings, and for the lamp kept lit in the temple (Ex. 27:20; 29:2). With a "cor" at 6 bushels (220 liters) and a "bath" at 6 gallons (23 liters), the quantities would have supplied the temple's needs for perhaps two years. Salt, supplied without limit, was for preservation and seasoning (Ex. 30:35; Lev. 2:13).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:23 In making these provisions (v. 22), the king may actually intend to ward off the wrath of God against the king and his sons, i.e., his own kingdom, present and future (see also 6:10).

EZRA—NOTE ON 7:27 Blessed be the LORD … who put such a thing as this into the heart of the king. See note on 1:1. to beautify the house of the LORD. The author uses the same terms as Isa. 60:7 (see note), indicating that he sees this event as fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:1–36 Ezra Journeys to Jerusalem with a New Wave of Returnees, Bearing Royal Gifts for the Temple. This section gives a more extended account of Ezra's return to Jerusalem. Readers learn of those who returned with Ezra (vv. 1–14), of how he recruited additional priests (vv. 15–20), of their prayer for the journey (vv. 21–23), and of Ezra's provision for the temple (vv. 24–36).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:1–14 The party that returned with Ezra was a considerable addition to the community in Judah. It is numbered here according to the heads of their fathers' houses, i.e., heads of families (v. 1). Their genealogy refers to their formal registration in the list of those returning (as in v. 3, registered, which translates the same Hb. word). There are two priestly divisions, namely, Phinehas (v. 2; son of Eleazar, Num. 25:7) and Ithamar (Ezra 8:2; see Ex. 28:1). These were the remaining sons of Aaron following the judgment on Nadab and Abihu (Lev. 10:1–7). Ezra himself was of the line of Phinehas (Ezra 7:5). Daniel (8:2) is otherwise unknown, and is not the Daniel who was carried off to Babylon in 605 B.C. (see Dan. 1:1, 6; also note on Dan. 1:1–2), for this is now 458 (see note on Ezra 7:1–7). A third division is a line of David (8:2; for Hattush, see 1 Chron. 3:22). Ezra's party therefore aims to replenish the priesthood, and perhaps also to renew the claims of the Davidic house to rule in Judah.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:15 The party camps outside Babylon at the river that runs to Ahava, no doubt one of the network of canals extending from the Euphrates. Ezra discovers that, though he had priests with him, there were none of the sons of Levi, i.e., the lower order of clergy, the Levites (see 2:40).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:17 Nothing is known of Iddo or of Casiphia, to which Ezra's delegation (v. 16) is sent. But it was apparently a place where Levites and temple servants (see 2:43–54; 1 Chron. 9:2) might be expected to be found, and perhaps where they continued to be trained for the day when there would be a temple again in Jerusalem.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:18–19 Mahli and Merari belong to the same Levitical family, Merari being a son of Levi (Num. 3:33).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:20 The number of those who respond to Ezra's call is small, but symbolically important for the nation's future.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:21 a fast. The custom of fasting grew in importance in the exile as part of a spirit of penitence (see Neh. 9:1; Est. 4:3). humble ourselves. This implied a deliberate penitential attitude, as in the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:31). Yet the prayer (Ezra 8:22–23) chiefly expresses the people's trust in God as they sought to demonstrate his reality to the Persian king. The king's ongoing support, they know, may depend on his belief in the reality and power of the God of Israel.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:22 On the power of his wrath, see 6:10 and 7:23. Contrast Ezra's policy in 8:22 with Nehemiah's (Neh. 2:9).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:23 and he listened to our entreaty. God's oversight of the events of history is the background against which this entire book is written (cf. v. 31; also note on 1:1).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:24–36 Ezra entrusts the offerings that he has gathered for the temple to the priests who are with him (see 7:15–16, 22).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:26 The amounts of silver and gold are extraordinarily large, the silver weighing around 25 tons (22 metric tons) and the gold 3.75 tons (3.4 metric tons).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:28 The priests themselves are holy to the LORD (Ex. 29:1), namely, set aside for his service, and the precious metals and vessels have been donated into the holy sphere, and so they are also holy (see Ex. 30:26–29 for consecrated utensils).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:29–30 The holy vessels are rightly entrusted to the priests; they remain in priestly possession until handed over to their counterparts in the temple itself.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:31 The group sets out on the twelfth day of the first month (Nisan, March/April); the plan to leave on the first day (7:9) had been delayed by the need to send for more Levites. he delivered us from the hand of the enemy. Whether there were actual attacks on the group is not said, but God's protection on the journey makes this departure from Babylon resemble the ancient exodus of Israel from Egypt (e.g., Ex. 17:8–13; cf. notes on Ezra 1:1; 8:21; 8:22; 8:23).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:32 We came to Jerusalem. This was on the first day of the fifth month (Ab, July/August; cf. 7:9), so the journey of roughly 900 miles (1,448 km) lasted nearly four months (see note on 7:9).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:33–34 After a three-day rest, the treasures for the temple are handed over to the priests as planned (vv. 28–30).

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:35 For these exiles it is a first chance to see and worship at the rebuilt temple, and their sacrifices resemble those made at its first dedication (see 6:16–17). twelve bulls. See note on 6:16–17.

EZRA—NOTE ON 8:36 to the king's satraps and to the governors. A "satrap" was a governor of a "satrapy" (province), such as Beyond the River. The double expression here (satraps, governors) is a loose way of referring to the governing officials in general, who continue to have good relations with the community in Judah.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:1–10:44 Ezra Discovers and Confronts the Problem of Intermarriage. Ezra discovers that the Jewish community has mixed with idolatrous non-Jewish groups in religion and in marriage, and he leads the community in an act of repentance and in a systematic separation from the foreign women and their children.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:1–15 Ezra Discovers the Problem of Marriage to Idolaters, and Prays. Ezra hears the news of the marriages to adherents of other religions, and he prays for the people.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:1–2 For the peoples of the lands, see note on 3:3. They are further identified as idolatrous nations, for the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, … and the Amorites are among the seven nations that Israel was commanded by Moses to drive out of the land (see Deut. 7:1–5). The Ammonites and Moabites were nations east of the river Jordan, outside the Promised Land, who were regarded as especially hostile to Israel (Deut. 23:3–4). And in Lev. 18:3, Egypt is regarded as morally equal to Canaan. The peoples of the land who keep themselves distinct from the returned temple-community are thus portrayed as the same in principle and in character as these ancient enemies. These are specifically wives (Ezra 9:2) of foreign nations who had not abandoned their worship of other gods, for 6:21 makes it clear that such people could join the people of Israel if they were willing to follow the Lord God alone (see note on 6:21). Their abominations (9:1) refers to these peoples' worship of other gods and the associated practices that Yahweh, God of Israel, regarded as particularly wicked (Deut. 12:31). It is implied that the foreigners' religions in Ezra's day were just as idolatrous as in ancient times, and thus it is clear that the issue is not ethnic purity (cf. Ezra 6:21). Intermarriage with the indigenous population carried the danger of religious apostasy, and therefore was expressly forbidden by the law (Deut. 7:3). The holy race (Ezra 9:2) is literally "holy seed/offspring" and alludes to the "offspring" of Abraham, who bore the ancient promise of covenant and land (Gen. 12:1–3; 15:5; 17:7–8). The "holy seed" was also seen in prophecy as the surviving remnant that would be brought to life again after the terrible judgment of the exile (Isa. 6:13). The involvement of all classes of the community—the priests, the Levites, and the people of Israel (Ezra 9:1), as well as the officials and chief men (v. 2)—shows that the problem included all the people. The term faithlessness (Hb. ma'al, v. 2) is an extremely strong expression for abandonment of the faith, especially by leaders (see 1 Chron. 10:13, where it is translated "breach of faith").

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:3 Ezra expresses his deep dismay by performing ritual acts of mourning. His severe reaction results from the fact that the "holy race" has compromised its newly won salvation by returning to the sins that had brought judgment in the first place.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:4 trembled at the words of the God of Israel. An expression for pious eagerness to obey God, and respect for his holiness (cf. Isa. 66:2).

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:6–7 Ezra confesses sin on behalf of the covenant community, beginning with the historic sins of Israel that had led to the Babylonian exile.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:6 our iniquities … our guilt. These two strong terms (Hb. ʽawon, "iniquity," and ʼashmah, "guilt") are each repeated twice here. Ezra recognizes the justice of the punishment of exile.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:7 the days of our fathers. That is, the time before the exile (see Zech. 1:4). The terms sword, captivity, plundering, and shame sum up the disasters experienced by the people because they failed to keep the covenant, and bring to mind the covenantal consequences for disobedience noted in Lev. 26:14–39 and Deut. 28:15–68 (cf. 2 Kings 17:20; Jer. 24:9–10).

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:8 for a brief moment favor. Ezra refers to the time since Cyrus's edict. This was nearly a century, but was short in the sweep of Israel's history. The idea of a remnant could be attached to notions of God's judgment, for it can refer to a small remnant left afterward, or to the subject of renewed punishment (see Isa. 6:13a; 10:22; Jer. 24:8). But prophets also spoke positively of a remnant of Israel who would repent and be restored after the purifying judgment of exile, and who would continue to bear the identity and destiny of Israel (see Isa. 10:20–21; Jer. 24:4–7 also has the idea, though not the term). Ezra applies the term to the returned exiles (as does Nehemiah [Neh. 1:2]). his holy place. This refers narrowly to the temple and more broadly to the land of Judah.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:9 we are slaves … in our slavery. The idea that the exiles remain slaves is unexpected after their restoration to the land, but acknowledges that they are still under the foreign authority of Persia (see Neh. 9:36–37). Therefore, the favorable view of Persia thus far does not prevent the exiles' aspiration to complete freedom. Even so, though they are under this foreign authority, God has shown steadfast love, the special quality of faithful love that characterizes his attachment to Israel in the covenant, and that he expects in return (Hos. 6:6).

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:10–12 Ezra alludes to Deut. 7:1–5 and the present community's breach of its prohibition of intermarriage.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:11 impure … impurity … uncleanness. Ezra uses language from the "holiness" vocabulary to stress the incompatibility of the indigenous people's way of life and worship with that mandated by the holy God of Israel.

EZRA—NOTE ON 9:15 Ezra knows that God is both just and merciful. (For God as "just," or "righteous," see also Deut. 32:4; Ps. 119:137.) The very existence of the postexilic remnant proves his mercy; yet equally God would be justified in bringing renewed judgment on the sinful people. The prayer serves as a petition for mercy, and it prompts Ezra and his close associates to turn the people from their sin.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:1–17 The People Agree to Dissolve the Marriages. Ezra prays, and the people confess their sin (vv. 1–2). They agree to do God's will (vv. 3–5). Ezra seeks an answer (vv. 6–8), which is for them to separate from their wives (vv. 9–12), and the people obey (vv. 13–17).

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:1 Ezra's own report of the events (7:27–9:15) now gives way to a different narrative voice, though the account continues without a break. a very great assembly. Under God, Ezra's public prayer and demonstration of grief bring a large number of people to repentance, as shown by the statement that they wept bitterly. The term "assembly" is used for a formal gathering of Israel as a religious community.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:2 Shecaniah speaks for the whole gathering, perhaps by prearrangement. Jehiel. See also v. 26; Shecaniah's own father may have had a mixed marriage. broken faith. See note on 9:1–2 concerning "faithlessness." The word translated married is not the usual one, but means literally "we have given a home"; Shecaniah's words may imply that these illicit relationships were not marriages in the full sense.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:3 Shecaniah's belief that "there is hope for Israel" (v. 2) is dependent on making a covenant with God, meaning in this instance a solemn and binding promise to put away the foreign wives and their children. As with the term for "marriage," this is not the usual expression for "divorce," and may also imply that these were not proper marriages. The word means simply "bring out." In effect, this meant excommunicating them from the community of returned exiles. The text does not make clear any other details concerning matters of ongoing support and protection for these wives and their children (cf. v. 44), or concerning what happened to them (but see note on vv. 18–44). Because this represents a different situation in a different context as compared to 1 Cor. 7:12–14 (where Paul tells Christians not to divorce their unbelieving spouses), and because this example was recorded here in Ezra for descriptive rather than normative reasons, there would be no justification for anyone to take similar actions today. In Ezra's context, members of God's people had defied God's law in taking these wives, while Paul gives his instructions to people who probably converted after their marriage. the counsel of my lord (i.e., Ezra). Ezra may have already outlined a plan for taking care of the foreign wives and their children, even though it is not recorded here. according to the Law. That is, Deut. 7:1–5 (see note on Ezra 9:1–2). those who tremble. See note on 9:4.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:4 be strong and do it. This is like the charge to Joshua at the first entry of Israel into the land (Josh. 1:6–7), and relates both to overcoming enemies and to keeping the law.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:5 The oath is in effect the same as the covenant (v. 3). All three main sections of the community take this oath.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:6 Jehohanan the son of Eliashib. Both names are common and appear in several lists in Ezra and Nehemiah (see Ezra 10:24, 27, 36; Neh. 12:10, 13). It is not always possible to know whether the same name refers to the same person. This family evidently had a caretaking role in the temple (see Neh. 13:4).

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:7 assemble at Jerusalem. Such assemblies normally occurred during the three regular pilgrimage feasts (Passover, Pentecost, Tabernacles); this was a special gathering, since the survival of the community was at stake.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:8 banned from the congregation. Anyone who refused to participate in the plan to renounce the foreign wives and children would share their excommunication.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:9 The ninth month, Chislev, is roughly December, the time of the so-called early rains. The people are trembling partly for fear of God (as in 9:4), and partly because they are cold and wet in the heavy rain.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:10 The terms of Ezra's accusation have appeared already in 9:1–2, 4, 6–7; 10:2. increased the guilt of Israel. The return from exile had signified that all of Israel's past sins had been forgiven (Isa. 40:1–2). Ezra now points to renewed sin, beyond that which had previously been forgiven, and thus the possibility of the renewed wrath of God.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:11 Make confession is based on Hebrew words that could also be translated in other contexts as "give thanks or praise" (Hb. natan + todah; cf. Josh. 7:19 and esv footnote). Some overlap of these meanings is not surprising because rightful confession is itself a kind of worship of God.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:12–15 The people as a whole respond with a solemn admission of their guilt and with resolution to act to address the problem, as in the making of a covenant (see also Ex. 19:8; 24:3, 7). They then propose a practical means of conducting the procedure.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:14 wrath of our God. See note on v. 10.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:15 opposed this. This probably means that these men opposed the entire resolution to put away the foreign wives. But the verse contains some ambiguity in Hebrew, and some interpreters think these men opposed the proposed means of proceeding because they wished to act more swiftly.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:16–17 This summary account of the proceedings shows that it was undertaken by duly appointed authorities in the community, and thus it was not merely Ezra's doing. examine the matter (v. 16). The need for rigorous inquiry was an established part of the duties of judges (see Deut. 17:4). The whole inquiry took three months.

EZRA—NOTE ON 10:18–44 List of Those Who Were Implicated. The list of around a hundred names is surprisingly short, and may suggest a more limited problem than one might have expected. Either the list has been abbreviated or in fact those involved were few. In the latter case, the severe reaction of Ezra and the community recognizes the extreme danger that the whole community could face by the actions of only a few in this fundamental area of its covenantal life (compare the notion of purging "the evil from your midst," Deut. 17:7). The list is divided, typically for Ezra, into priests (Ezra 10:18), Levites (v. 23), and Israel (vv. 25–43). The guilt offering (v. 19) was presumably to be brought by each person in the list. The extensive inquiry must have considered each case separately. In some cases, a wife and her children might actually have adopted the religion of Israel, as anticipated and permitted in 6:21. The inquiry might have come down to an examination of such people’s beliefs. Those who were turned away probably returned to their non-Jewish families.

Introduction to Nehemiah

Author and Title

Nehemiah is the central figure in the book, and it contains some of his own records, but he is not the author of the whole book. The author is probably the same as the author of Ezra (see Introduction to Ezra).

Date

For the key background dates to the book of Nehemiah, see Introduction to Ezra. Nehemiah arrived in Jerusalem in 445 B.C., 13 years after Ezra arrived. He returned for a further visit sometime between 433 and 423 B.C. He may have made several journeys between Persian capitals and Jerusalem in this period of 20 years.

Theme

The theme of Nehemiah is the Lord’s protection of his people and the need for their faithfulness in keeping the Torah (the Mosaic law) and their faithfulness in worship.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

The purpose and background of Nehemiah are the same as that for Ezra (see Introduction to Ezra).

Key Themes

1. The Lord hears prayer (1:4–6).
2. The Lord works providentially, especially through powerful rulers, to bring about his greater purposes (e.g., 2:8).
3. The Lord protects his people; therefore, they do not need to be afraid (4:14).
4. The Lord is merciful and faithful to his promises despite his people's persistence in sin (9:32–35).
5. Worship is at the center of the life of God's people, and it includes the willing, joyful giving of their resources (10:32–39).
6. God's people need to be on their guard against their own moral weakness (ch. 13).

History of Salvation Summary

After the exile, God is renewing his people in the land, in order to carry out what he promised to Abraham. God's people must renew their commitment to covenant faithfulness, laying hold of God's forgiveness and seeking to practice purity in their corporate and private lives. God in his mercy raised up Ezra the priest and teacher, and Nehemiah the governor, to lead his people in the hard work that this renewal requires. The public ceremonies of chapters 8–10 enact this renewal, confessing past unfaithfulness and recognizing that everything—including the fulfilling of Israel's mission to bring light to the world—depends on God's grace and steadfast commitment to his promises (9:32–38). (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

Nehemiah is a sequel to Ezra. Two main actions occur: the rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem and the recommitment of the returned exiles to fulfill their covenant obligations. There is something for virtually everyone—a general's diary, a governor's report, a civil record, a management handbook, and a memoir—all in one short book. The events covered span approximately 13 years. Part of the liveliness of the book stems from the striking character of Nehemiah, who emerges from the pages as a godly and decisive leader.

The book of Nehemiah displays the same mixture of narrative and documentary material (lists, inventories, genealogies) as Ezra, but it possesses a stronger narrative flair. The rebuilding of the city wall becomes a full-fledged conflict story, replete with suspense and heroism. The covenant-renewal ceremony (chs. 8–9) is one of the grand dramas in the Bible. The title character, Nehemiah, is such a commanding figure that the overall story is also a hero story. But documentary material continually interrupts the flow of the narrative, showing the historical impulse of the author. Since much of the book is cast in first-person narrative, the book also has the flavor of a memoir.

The Persian Empire at the Time of Nehemiah

c. 450 B.C.

During the time of Nehemiah, the Persian Empire had reached its greatest extent, engulfing nearly the entire Near East. In 539 B.C. the Persians under Cyrus the Great defeated the Babylonians and absorbed the lands of Israel and Judah (known as Beyond the River) into his empire. The next year he allowed the people of Judah (now called Jews) to return home and rebuild the temple of the Lord. Several waves of returning Jews continued to resettle in Judea, and Nehemiah was granted permission to rebuild Jerusalem's ruined walls around 445 B.C.

Nehemiah

Report from Jerusalem

NEHEMIAH 1 [†]The words of [a]Nehemiah the son of Hacaliah.

Now it happened in the month of [b]Chislev, [c]in the twentieth year, as I was in [d]Susa the citadel, [2][†]that [e]Hanani, one of my brothers, came with certain men from Judah. And I asked them concerning the Jews who escaped, who had survived the exile, and concerning Jerusalem. [3]And they said to me, “The remnant there in the province who had survived the exile is in great trouble and [f]shame. [g]The wall of Jerusalem is broken down, [h]and its gates are destroyed by fire.”

Nehemiah’s Prayer

[4][†]As soon as I heard these words I [i]sat down and wept and mourned for days, and I continued fasting and praying before the [j]God of heaven. [5][†]And I said, “O Lord God of heaven, [k]the great and awesome God who keeps covenant and steadfast love with those who love him and keep his commandments, [6][†][l]let your ear be attentive and your eyes open, to hear the prayer of your servant that I now pray before you day and night for the people of Israel your servants, [m]confessing the sins of the people of Israel, which we have sinned against you. Even [n]I and my father’s house have sinned. [7][†][o]We have acted very corruptly against you and have not kept the commandments, the statutes, and the rules [p]that you commanded your servant Moses. [8][†]Remember the word that you commanded your servant Moses, saying, ‘If you are unfaithful, [q]I will scatter you among the peoples, [9][r]but if you return to me and keep my commandments and do them, [s]though your outcasts are in the uttermost parts of heaven, from there I will gather them and bring them [t]to the place that I have chosen, to make my name dwell there.’ [10][†][u]They are your servants and your people, whom you have redeemed by your great power and by your strong hand. [11][^][†]O Lord, [l]let your ear be attentive to the prayer of your servant, and to the prayer of your servants who delight to fear your name, and give success to your servant today, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man."

Now I was [v] cupbearer to the king.

Nehemiah Sent to Judah

NEHEMIAH 2 [†]In the month of Nisan, [w] in the twentieth year of King [x] Artaxerxes, when wine was before him, [y] I took up the wine and gave it to the king. Now I had not been sad in his presence. [2][†]And the king said to me, "Why is your face sad, seeing you are not sick? This is nothing but [z] sadness of the heart." Then I was very much afraid. [3][†]I said to the king, [a] "Let the king live forever! Why should not my face be sad, [b] when the city, the place of my fathers' graves, lies in ruins, and its gates have been destroyed by fire?" [4][†]Then the king said to me, "What are you requesting?" So I prayed [c] to the God of heaven. [5][†]And I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, that you send me to Judah, to the city of my fathers' graves, that I may rebuild it." [6]And the king said to me ([d] the queen sitting beside him), "How long will you be gone, and when will you return?" So it pleased the king to send me [e] when I had given him a time. [7][†]And I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, let letters be given me [f] to the governors of the province Beyond the River, that they may let me pass through until I come to Judah, [8][†]and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of [g] the fortress of the temple, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy." And the king granted me what I asked, [h] for the good hand of my God was upon me.

Nehemiah Inspects Jerusalem's Walls

[9][†]Then I came to [i] the governors of the province Beyond the River and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent with me officers of the army and horsemen. [10][†]But when [j] Sanballat the Horonite and [k] Tobiah the Ammonite servant heard this, it displeased them greatly that someone had come to seek the welfare of the people of Israel.

[11][†][l] So I went to Jerusalem and was there three days. [12]Then I arose in the night, I and a few men with me. And I told no one what my God had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem. There was no animal with me but the one on which I rode. [13][†]I went out by night by [m]the Valley Gate to the Dragon Spring and to [n]the Dung Gate, and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem [o]that were broken down [p]and its gates that had been destroyed by fire. [14]Then I went on to [q]the Fountain Gate and to [r]the King's Pool, but there was no room for the animal that was under me to pass. [15]Then I went up in the night [s]by the valley and inspected the wall, and I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned. [16]And the officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing, and I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, and the rest who were to do the work.

[17][†]Then I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in, [t]how Jerusalem lies in ruins with its gates burned. Come, let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer [u]suffer derision." [18][^][†]And I told them [v]of the hand of my God that had been upon me for good, and also of the words that the king had spoken to me. And they said, "Let us rise up and build." [w]So they strengthened their hands for the good work. [19][†]But when Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite servant and [x]Geshem the Arab heard of it, [y]they jeered at us and despised us and said, "What is this thing that you are doing? [z]Are you rebelling against the king?" [20][†]Then I replied to them, [a]"The God of heaven will make us prosper, and we his servants will arise and build, but you have no portion or right or claim [1] in Jerusalem."

Rebuilding the Wall

NEHEMIAH 3 [†]Then [b]Eliashib the high priest rose up with his brothers the priests, and they built [c]the Sheep Gate. They consecrated it and [d]set its doors. They consecrated it as far as the Tower of the Hundred, as far as the [e]Tower of Hananel. [2]And next to him [f]the men of Jericho built. And next to them [1] Zaccur the son of Imri built.

[3][†]The sons of Hassenaah built [g]the Fish Gate. [h]They laid its beams and [d]set its doors, its bolts, and its bars. [4][†]And next to them [i]Meremoth the son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz repaired. And next to them [j]Meshullam the son of Berechiah, son of Meshezabel repaired. And next to them Zadok the son of Baana repaired. 5[†]And next to them [k]the Tekoites repaired, but their nobles would not stoop to serve their Lord. [2]

6Joiada the son of Paseah and Meshullam the son of Besodeiah [l]repaired the Gate of Yeshanah. [3] [h]They laid its beams and [d]set its doors, its bolts, and its bars. 7[†]And next to them repaired Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jadon the Meronothite, the men of Gibeon and of Mizpah, the seat of [m]the governor of the province Beyond the River. 8[†]Next to them Uzziel the son of Harhaiah, goldsmiths, repaired. Next to him Hananiah, one of the perfumers, repaired, and they restored Jerusalem as far as [n]the Broad Wall. 9[†]Next to them Rephaiah the son of Hur, [o]ruler of half the district of [4] Jerusalem, repaired. 10Next to them Jedaiah the son of Harumaph repaired opposite his house. And next to him Hattush the son of Hashabneiah repaired. 11Malchijah the son of Harim and Hasshub the son of Pahath-moab repaired another section and [p]the Tower of the Ovens. 12Next to him Shallum the son of Hallohesh, [q]ruler of half the district of Jerusalem, repaired, he and his daughters.

13[†]Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repaired [r]the Valley Gate. They rebuilt it and [s]set its doors, its bolts, and its bars, and repaired a thousand cubits [5] of the wall, as far as [t]the Dung Gate.

14Malchijah the son of Rechab, ruler of the district of [u]Beth-haccherem, repaired [t]the Dung Gate. He rebuilt it and [s]set its doors, its bolts, and its bars.

15[†]And Shallum the son of Col-hozeh, ruler of the district of Mizpah, repaired [v]the Fountain Gate. He rebuilt it and covered it and [s]set its doors, its bolts, and its bars. And he built the wall of [w]the Pool of Shelah of [x]the king’s garden, as far as [y]the stairs that go down from the city of David. 16[†]After him Nehemiah the son of Azbuk, ruler of half the district of Beth-zur, repaired to a point opposite [z]the tombs of David, as far as [a]the artificial pool, and as far as the house of the mighty men. 17After him the Levites repaired: Rehum the son of Bani. Next to him Hashabiah, ruler of half the district of Keilah, repaired for his district. 18After him their brothers repaired: Bavvai the son of Henadad, ruler of half the district of Keilah. 19Next to him Ezer the son of Jeshua, ruler of Mizpah, repaired another section opposite the ascent to the armory at [b]the buttress. [6] 20After him

Baruch the son of Zabbai repaired another section from the buttress to the door of the house of [c] Eliashib the high priest. [21]After him [d] Meremoth the son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz repaired another section from the door of the house of Eliashib to the end of the house of Eliashib. [22]After him the priests, the men of [e] the surrounding area, repaired. [23][†]After them Benjamin and Hasshub repaired opposite their house. After them Azariah the son of Maaseiah, son of Ananiah repaired beside his own house. [24]After him Binnui the son of Henadad repaired another section, from the house of Azariah to the buttress [25]and to [f] the corner. Palal the son of Uzai repaired opposite the buttress and the tower projecting from the upper house of the king at [g] the court of the guard. After him Pedaiah the son of Parosh [26][†] [h] and the temple servants living on [i] Ophel repaired to a point opposite [j] the Water Gate on the east and the projecting tower. [27]After him [k] the Tekoites repaired another section opposite the great projecting tower as far as the wall of Ophel.

[28]Above [l] the Horse Gate the priests repaired, each one opposite his own house. [29][†]After them Zadok the son of Immer repaired opposite his own house. After him Shemaiah the son of Shecaniah, the keeper of the East Gate, repaired. [30]After him Hananiah the son of Shelemiah and Hanun the sixth son of Zalaph repaired another section. After him [m] Meshullam the son of Berechiah repaired opposite [n] his chamber. [31]After him Malchijah, one of the goldsmiths, repaired as far as the house of the temple servants and of the merchants, opposite the Muster Gate, [7] and to the upper chamber of the corner. [32][†]And between the upper chamber of the corner and [o] the Sheep Gate the goldsmiths and the merchants repaired.

Opposition to the Work

NEHEMIAH 4 [†] [1] Now when [q] Sanballat heard that we were building the wall, he was angry and greatly enraged, and he jeered at the Jews. [2]And he said in the presence of his brothers and of the army of [r] Samaria, “What are these feeble Jews doing? Will they restore it for themselves? [2] Will they sacrifice? Will they finish up in a day? Will they revive the stones out of the heaps of rubbish, and burned ones at that?” [3] [q] Tobiah the Ammonite was beside him, and he said, “Yes, what they are building— [s] if a fox goes up on it he will break down their stone wall!” [4][†] [t]Hear, O our God, for we are despised. [u]Turn back their taunt on their own heads and give them up to be plundered in a land where they are captives. [5] [v]Do not cover their guilt, and let not their sin be blotted out from your sight, for they have provoked you to anger in the presence of the builders.

[6][†]So we built the wall. And all the wall was joined together to half its height, for the people had a mind to work.

[7][†] [3] But when [q]Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabs and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard that the repairing of the walls of Jerusalem was going forward and that the breaches were beginning to be closed, they were very angry. [8] [w]And they all plotted together to come and fight against Jerusalem and to cause confusion in it. [9][†]And we prayed to our God and set a guard as a protection against them day and night.

[10][†]In Judah it was said, [4] “The strength of those who bear the burdens is failing. There is too much rubble. By ourselves we will not be able to rebuild the wall.” [11]And our enemies said, “They will not know or see till we come among them and kill them and stop the work.” [12]At that time the Jews who lived near them came from all directions and said to us ten times, “You must return to us.” [5] [13][†]So in the lowest parts of the space behind the wall, in open places, I stationed the people by their clans, with their swords, their spears, and their bows. [14][†]And I looked and arose and said to the nobles and to the officials and to the rest of the people, [x]“Do not be afraid of them. Remember the Lord, [y]who is great and awesome, [z]and fight for your brothers, your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your homes.”

The Work Resumes

[15][†]When our enemies heard that it was known to us [a]and that God had frustrated their plan, we all returned to the wall, each to his work. [16][†]From that day on, half of my servants worked on construction, and half held the spears, shields, bows, and [b]coats of mail. And the leaders stood behind the whole house of Judah, [17][†]who were building on the wall. Those who carried burdens were loaded in such a way that each labored on the work with one hand and held his weapon with the other. [18]And each of the builders had his sword strapped at his side while he built. The man who sounded the trumpet was beside me. [19]And I said to [c] the nobles and to the officials and to the rest of the people, “The work is great and widely spread, and we are separated on the wall, far from one another. [20][‡]In the place where you hear the sound of the trumpet, rally to us there. [d] Our God will fight for us.”

[21][‡]So we labored at the work, and half of them held the spears from the break of dawn until the stars came out. [22]I also said to the people at that time, “Let every man and his servant pass the night within Jerusalem, that they may be a guard for us by night and may labor by day.” [23][‡]So neither I nor my brothers nor my servants nor the men of the guard who followed me, none of us took off our clothes; [e] each kept his weapon at his right hand. [6]

Nehemiah Stops Oppression of the Poor

NEHEMIAH 5 [‡]Now there arose [f] a great outcry of the people and of their wives [g] against their Jewish brothers. [2][‡]For there were those who said, “With our sons and our daughters, we are many. So let us get grain, that we may eat and keep alive.” [3][‡]There were also those who said, “We are mortgaging our fields, our vineyards, and our houses to get grain because of the famine.” [4]And there were those who said, “We have borrowed money for [h] the king’s tax on our fields and our vineyards. [5][‡]Now [i] our flesh is as the flesh of our brothers, our children are as their children. Yet [j] we are forcing our sons and our daughters to be slaves, and some of our daughters have already been enslaved, but it is not in our power to help it, for other men have our fields and our vineyards.”

[6]I was very angry when I heard [f] their outcry and these words. [7][^][‡]I took counsel with myself, and I brought charges against the nobles and the officials. I said to them, [k] “You are exacting interest, each from his brother.” And I held a great assembly against them [8][‡]and said to them, “We, as far as we are able, [l] have bought back our Jewish brothers who have been sold to the nations, but you even sell your brothers that they may be sold to us!” They were silent and could not find a word to say. [9][‡]So I said, “The thing that you are doing is not good. Ought you not to walk [m] in the fear of our God [n] to prevent the taunts of the nations our enemies? 10[‡]Moreover, I and my brothers and my servants are lending them money and grain. Let us abandon this exacting of interest. 11[‡]Return to them this very day their fields, their vineyards, their olive orchards, and their houses, and the percentage of money, grain, wine, and oil that you have been exacting from them." 12Then they said, "We will restore these and [o] require nothing from them. We will do as you say." And I called the priests and [p] made them swear [q] to do as they had promised. 13[‡] [r] I also shook out the fold [1] of my garment and said, "So may God shake out every man from his house and from his labor who does not keep this promise. So may he be shaken out and emptied." [s] And all the assembly said "Amen" and praised the LORD. And the people did as they had promised.

Nehemiah's Generosity

14[‡]Moreover, from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from [t] the twentieth year to [u] the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes the king, twelve years, [v] neither I nor my brothers ate the food allowance of the governor. 15[‡]The former governors who were before me laid heavy burdens on the people and took from them for their daily ration [2] forty shekels [3] of silver. Even their servants lorded it over the people. But I did not do so, [w] because of the fear of God. 16[‡]I also persevered in the work on this wall, and we acquired no land, and all my servants were gathered there for the work. 17[‡]Moreover, there were [x] at my table 150 men, Jews and officials, besides those who came to us from the nations that were around us. 18[‡] [y] Now what was prepared at my expense [4] for each day was one ox and six choice sheep and birds, and every ten days all kinds of wine in abundance. Yet for all this [v] I did not demand the food allowance of the governor, because the service was too heavy on this people. 19[‡] [z] Remember for my good, O my God, all that I have done for this people.

Conspiracy Against Nehemiah

NEHEMIAH 6 [‡]Now when [a] Sanballat and Tobiah and [b] Geshem the Arab and the rest of our enemies heard that I had built the wall and that there was no breach left in it ([c]although up to that time I had not set up the doors in the gates), [2][^][†]Sanballat and Geshem sent to me, saying, “Come and let us meet together at Hakkephirim in the plain of [d]Ono.” But they intended to do me harm. [3][†]And I sent messengers to them, saying, “I am doing a great work and I cannot come down. Why should the work stop while I leave it and come down to you?” [4][†]And they sent to me four times in this way, and I answered them in the same manner. [5][†]In the same way Sanballat for the fifth time sent his servant to me with an open letter in his hand. [6][†]In it was written, “It is reported among the nations, and Geshem [1] also says it, that you and [e]the Jews intend to rebel; that is why you are building the wall. And according to these reports you wish to become their king. [7]And you have also set up prophets to proclaim concerning you in Jerusalem, ‘There is a king in Judah.’ And now the king will hear of these reports. So now come and let us take counsel together.” [8][†]Then I sent to him, saying, “No such things as you say have been done, for you are inventing them out of your own mind.” [9][†]For they all wanted to frighten us, thinking, “Their hands will drop from the work, and it will not be done.” But now, O God, [2] strengthen my hands.

[10][†]Now when I went into the house of Shemaiah the son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel, who was [f]confined to his home, he said, “Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple. Let us close the doors of the temple, for they are coming to kill you. They are coming to kill you by night.” [11][†]But I said, “Should such a man as I run away? And what man such as I could go into the temple and live? [3] I will not go in.” [12][†]And I understood and saw that God had not sent him, [g]but he had pronounced the prophecy against me because Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him. [13][†]For this purpose he was hired, that I should be afraid and act in this way and sin, and so they could give me a bad name in order to taunt me. [14][†][h]Remember Tobiah and Sanballat, O my God, according to these things that they did, and also [i]the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who wanted to make me afraid.

The Wall Is Finished

[15][†]So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty-two days. [16]And [j] when all our enemies heard of it, all the nations around us were afraid and fell greatly in their own esteem, [k] for they perceived that this work had been accomplished with the help of our God. [17][†]Moreover, in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, and Tobiah’s letters came to them. [18][†]For many in Judah were bound by oath to him, because he was the son-in-law of Shecaniah the son of [l] Arah: and his son Jehohanan had taken the daughter of [m] Meshullam the son of Berechiah as his wife. [19]Also they spoke of his good deeds in my presence and reported my words to him. And Tobiah sent letters to make me afraid.

NEHEMIAH 7 [†]Now when the wall had been built [n] and I had set up the doors, and the gatekeepers, the singers, and the Levites had been appointed, [2][†]I gave [o] my brother Hanani and Hananiah the governor of [p] the castle charge over Jerusalem, for he was [q] a more faithful and God-fearing man than many. [3][†]And I said to them, “Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened until the sun is hot. And while they are still standing guard, let them shut and bar the doors. Appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, some at their guard posts and some in front of their own homes.” [4][†]The city was wide and large, but the people within it were few, and no houses had been rebuilt.

Lists of Returned Exiles

[5][†]Then my God put it into my heart to assemble the nobles and the officials and the people to be enrolled by genealogy. And I found the book of the genealogy of [r] those who came up at the first, and I found written in it:

[6][^][†] [s] These were the people of the province who came up out of the captivity of those exiles whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried into exile. They returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his town. [7]They came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, [t] Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, Baanah.

The number of the men of the people of Israel: [8]the sons of Parosh, 2,172. [9]The sons of Shephatiah, 372. [10]The sons of Arah, [u]652. [11]The sons of Pahath-moab, namely the sons of Jeshua and Joab, 2,818. [12]The sons of [v]Elam, 1,254. [13]The sons of Zattu, 845. [14]The sons of Zaccai, 760. [15]The sons of [w]Binnui, 648. [16]The sons of Bebai, 628. [17]The sons of Azgad, 2,322. [18]The sons of Adonikam, 667. [19]The sons of Bigvai, 2,067. [20]The sons of Adin, 655. [21]The sons of Ater, namely of Hezekiah, 98. [22]The sons of Hashum, 328. [23]The sons of [x]Bezai, 324. [24]The sons of Hariph, 112. [25]The sons of [y]Gibeon, 95. [26]The men of Bethlehem and Netophah, 188. [27]The men of Anathoth, 128. [28]The men [z]of Beth-azmaveth, 42. [29]The men of [a]Kiriath-jearim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, 743. [30]The men of Ramah and Geba, 621. [31]The men of Michmas, 122. [32]The men of Bethel and Ai, 123. [33]The men of the other Nebo, 52. [34]The sons of [b]the other Elam, 1,254. [35]The sons of Harim, 320. [36]The sons of Jericho, 345. [37]The sons of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, 721. [38]The sons of Senaah, 3,930.

[39]The priests: the sons of [c]Jedaiah, namely the house of Jeshua, 973. [40]The sons of [d]Immer, 1,052. [41]The sons of [e]Pashhur, 1,247. [42]The sons of [f]Harim, 1,017.

[43]The Levites: the sons of Jeshua, namely of Kadmiel of the sons of [g]Hodevah, 74. [44]The singers: the sons of Asaph, 148. [45]The gatekeepers: the sons of Shallum, the sons of Ater, the sons of Talmon, the sons of Akkub, the sons of Hatita, the sons of Shobai, 138.

[46]The temple servants: the sons of Ziha, the sons of Hasupha, the sons of Tabbaoth, [47]the sons of Keros, the sons of [h]Sia, the sons of Padon, [48]the sons of Lebana, the sons of [i]Hagaba, the sons of [i]Shalmai, [49]the sons of Hanan, the sons of Giddel, the sons of Gahar, [50]the sons of Reaiah, the sons of Rezin, the sons of Nekoda, [51]the sons of Gazzam, the sons of Uzza, the sons of Paseah, [52]the sons of Besai, the sons of Meunim, the sons of [j]Nephushesim, [53]the sons of Bakbuk, the sons of Hakupha, the sons of Harhur, [54]the sons of [k]Bazlith, the sons of Mehida, the sons of Harsha, [55]the sons of Barkos, the sons of Sisera, the sons of Temah, [56]the sons of Neziah, the sons of Hatipha.

[57]The sons of Solomon's servants: the sons of Sotai, the sons of Sophereth, the sons of [l] Perida, [58]the sons of Jaala, the sons of Darkon, the sons of Giddel, [59]the sons of Shephatiah, the sons of Hattil, the sons of Pochereth-hazzebaim, the sons of [m] Amon.

[60]All the temple servants and the sons of Solomon's servants were 392.

[61] [n] The following were those who came up from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, [o] Addon, and Immer, but they could not prove their fathers' houses nor their descent, whether they belonged to Israel: [62]the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, the sons of Nekoda, 642. [63]Also, of the priests: the sons of Hobaiah, the sons of Hakkoz, the sons of Barzillai (who had taken a wife of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by their name). [64]These sought their registration among those enrolled in the genealogies, but it was not found there, so they were excluded from the priesthood as unclean. [65] [p] The [q] governor told them that they were not to partake of the most holy food until a priest with Urim and Thummim should arise.

Totals of People and Gifts

[66]The whole assembly together was 42,360, [67]besides their male and female servants, of whom there were 7,337. And they had 245 singers, male and female. [68]Their horses were 736, their mules 245, [1] [69]their camels 435, and their donkeys 6,720.

[70]Now some of the heads of fathers' houses gave to the work. The [q] governor gave to the treasury 1,000 darics [2] of gold, 50 basins, 30 priests' garments and 500 minas [3] of silver. [4] [71]And some of the heads of fathers' houses gave into the treasury of the work 20,000 darics of gold and 2,200 minas of silver. [72] [r] And what the rest of the people gave was 20,000 darics of gold, 2,000 minas of silver, and 67 priests' garments.

[73][†]So the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, some of the people, the temple servants, and all Israel, lived in their towns.

[s] And when the seventh month had come, the people of Israel were in their towns.

Ezra Reads the Law

NEHEMIAH 8 [†]And all the people gathered as one man into the square before [t]the Water Gate. And they told [u]Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses that the LORD had commanded Israel. [2][†]So Ezra the priest [v]brought the Law before the assembly, both men and women and all who could understand what they heard, [w]on the first day of the seventh month. [3][^][†][x]And he read from it facing the square before the Water Gate from early morning until midday, in the presence of the men and the women and those who could understand. And the ears of all the people were attentive to the Book of the Law. [4][†]And Ezra the scribe stood on a wooden platform that they had made for the purpose. And beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah on his right hand, and Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam on his left hand. [5][†]And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was above all the people, and as he opened it all the people stood. [6]And Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God, and all the people answered, [y]"Amen, Amen," [z]lifting up their hands. [a]And they bowed their heads and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground. [7][†][b]Also Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, the Levites, [1] [c]helped the people to understand the Law, [d]while the people remained in their places. [8][†]They read from the book, from the Law of God, clearly, [2] and they gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading.

This Day Is Holy

[9][†]And Nehemiah, who was [e]the governor, and Ezra [f]the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, [g]"This day is holy to the LORD your God; [h]do not mourn or weep." For all the people wept as they heard the words of the Law. [10][†]Then he said to them, "Go your way. Eat the fat and drink sweet wine and [i]send portions to anyone who has nothing ready, for this day is holy to our Lord. And do not be grieved, for the joy of the LORD is your strength." [11]So the Levites calmed all the people, saying, "Be quiet, for this day is holy; do not be grieved." [12][†]And all the people went their way to eat and drink and to send portions and to make great rejoicing, because [j] they had understood the words that were declared to them.

Feast of Booths Celebrated

[13][†]On the second day the heads of fathers' houses of all the people, with the priests and the Levites, came together to Ezra the scribe in order to study the words of the Law. [14]And they found it written in the Law that the Lord had commanded by Moses [k] that the people of Israel should dwell in booths [3] during the feast of the seventh month, [15][†]and that they should proclaim it and [l] publish it in all their towns and [m] in Jerusalem, "Go out to the hills and bring [n] branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make booths, as it is written." [16]So the people went out and brought them and made booths for themselves, each [o] on his roof, and in their courts and in the courts of the house of God, and in the square at [p] the Water Gate and in the square at [q] the Gate of Ephraim. [17][†]And all the assembly of those who had returned from the captivity made booths and lived in the booths, for from the days of Jeshua the son of Nun to that day [r] the people of Israel had not done so. And there was [s] very great rejoicing. [18][†]And day by day, from the first day to the last day, [t] he read from the Book of the Law of God. They kept the feast seven days, and [u] on the eighth day there was a solemn assembly, according to the rule.

The People of Israel Confess Their Sin

NEHEMIAH 9 [†]Now on the twenty-fourth day of [v] this month the people of Israel were assembled [w] with fasting [x] and in sackcloth, [y] and with earth on their heads. [2][†] [z] And the Israelites [1] separated themselves from all foreigners and stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their fathers. [3][†] [a] And they stood up in their place and read from the Book of the Law of the Lord their God for a quarter of the day; for another quarter of it they made confession and worshiped the Lord their God. [4][†]On the stairs of the Levites stood [b] Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani; and they cried with a loud voice to the Lord their God. [5]Then the Levites, Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, “Stand up and bless the LORD your God from everlasting to everlasting. [c] Blessed be your glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise.

6[†] [2] [d] “You are the LORD, you alone. [e] You have made heaven, [f] the heaven of heavens, [g] with all their host, [e] the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them; [h] and you preserve all of them; and the host of heaven worships you. 7[†]You are the LORD, the God [i] who chose Abram and brought him out of [j] Ur of the Chaldeans [k] and gave him the name Abraham. 8[^][†] [l] You found his heart faithful before you, [m] and made with him the covenant to give to his offspring [n] the land of the Canaanite, the Hittite, the Amorite, the Perizzite, the Jebusite, and the Girgashite. [o] And you have kept your promise, for you are righteous.

9[†] [p] “And you saw the affliction of our fathers in Egypt and heard [q] their cry at the Red Sea, 10 [r] and performed signs and wonders against Pharaoh and all his servants and all the people of his land, for you knew that [s] they acted arrogantly against our fathers. And [t] you made a name for yourself, as it is to this day. 11 [u] And you divided the sea before them, so that they went through the midst of the sea on dry land, and you cast their pursuers into the depths, [v] as a stone into mighty waters. 12[†]By [w] a pillar of cloud you led them in the day, and by a pillar of fire in the night to light for them the way in which they should go. 13[†] [x] You came down on Mount Sinai [y] and spoke with them from heaven and gave them [z] right rules and true laws, good statutes and commandments, 14 [a] and you made known to them your holy Sabbath and commanded them commandments and statutes and a law by Moses your servant. 15[†] [b] You gave them bread from heaven for their hunger and [c] brought water for them out of the rock for their thirst, and you [d] told them to go in to possess the land that you had sworn to give them.

16[†]“But they and our fathers [e] acted presumptuously and stiffened their neck and did not obey your commandments. 17They refused to obey [f] and were not mindful of the wonders that you performed among them, but they stiffened their neck and appointed a leader to return to their slavery in Egypt. But you are a God ready to forgive, [g] gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love, and did not forsake them. 18Even [h] when they had made for themselves a golden [3] calf and said, ‘This is your God who brought you up out of Egypt,’ [i] and had committed great blasphemies, [19][†]you [j] in your great mercies did not forsake them in the wilderness. [k] The pillar of cloud to lead them in the way did not depart from them by day, [k] nor the pillar of fire by night to light for them the way by which they should go. [20] [l] You gave your good Spirit to instruct them [m] and did not withhold your manna from their mouth and gave them water for their thirst. [21][†] [n] Forty years you sustained them in the wilderness, and they lacked nothing. Their clothes did not wear out and their feet did not swell.

[22][†]“And you gave them kingdoms and peoples and allotted to them every corner. [o] So they took possession of the land of Sihon king of Heshbon [p] and the land of Og king of Bashan. [23]You multiplied their children [q] as the stars of heaven, and you brought them into the land that you had told their fathers to enter and possess. [24] [r] So the descendants went in and possessed the land, [s] and you subdued before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gave them into their hand, with their kings and the peoples of the land, that they might do with them as they would.
[25][†]And they captured [t] fortified cities and [u] a rich land, and took possession of [v] houses full of all good things, cisterns already hewn, vineyards, olive orchards and fruit trees in abundance. So they ate and were filled [w] and became fat and delighted themselves in [x] your great goodness.

[26][†] [y] “Nevertheless, they were disobedient and rebelled against you [z] and cast your law behind their back [a] and killed your prophets, who [b] had warned them in order to turn them back to you, [c] and they committed great blasphemies. [27] [d] Therefore you gave them into the hand of their enemies, who made them suffer. [e] And in the time of their suffering they cried out to you and you heard them from heaven, and according to your great mercies you gave them [f] saviors who saved them from the hand of their enemies.
[28] [g] But after they had rest they did evil again before you, and you abandoned them to the hand of their enemies, so that they had dominion over them. Yet when they turned and cried to you, you heard from heaven, [h] and many times you delivered them according to your mercies. [29][†] [b] And you warned them in order to turn them back to your law. Yet [i] they acted presumptuously and did not obey your commandments, but sinned against your rules, [j] which if a person does them, he shall live by them, [k] and they turned a stubborn shoulder [l] and stiffened their neck and would not obey. 30[†]Many years [m] you bore with them [n] and warned them [o] by your Spirit through your prophets. [p] Yet they would not give ear. [q] Therefore you gave them into the hand of the peoples of the lands. 31[†]Nevertheless, [r] in your great mercies [s] you did not make an end of them or forsake them, [t] for you are a gracious and merciful God.

32[†]“Now, therefore, our God, [u] the great, the mighty, and the awesome God, who keeps covenant and steadfast love, let not all the hardship seem little to you that has come upon us, upon our kings, our princes, our priests, our prophets, our fathers, and all your people, [v] since the time of the kings of Assyria until this day. 33 [w] Yet you have been righteous in all that has come upon us, for you have dealt faithfully [x] and we have acted wickedly. 34[†]Our kings, our princes, our priests, and our fathers have not kept your law or paid attention to your commandments and your warnings that you gave them. 35Even in their own kingdom, [y] and amid your great goodness that you gave them, and in the large and [y] rich land that you set before them, [z] they did not serve you or turn from their wicked works. 36[†]Behold, [a] we are slaves this day; in the land that you gave to our fathers to enjoy its fruit and its good gifts, behold, we are slaves. 37 [b] And its rich yield goes to the kings whom you have set over us because of our sins. They rule over our bodies and over our livestock as they please, and we are in great distress.

38[^][†] [4] “Because of all this [c] we make a firm covenant in writing; on [d] the sealed document are the names of [5] our princes, our Levites, and our priests.

The People Who Sealed the Covenant

NEHEMIAH 10 [†] [1] [e] “On the seals are the names of [2] Nehemiah [f] the governor, [g] the son of Hacaliah, Zedekiah, 2 [h] Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, 3Pashhur, Amariah, Malchijah, 4 [i] Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, 5Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah, 6Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, 7Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin, 8Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah; these are the priests. 9And the Levites: [j] Jeshua the son of Azaniah, Binnui of the sons of [k] Henadad, Kadmiel; [10]and their brothers, Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan, [11]Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, [12]Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, [13]Hodiah, Bani, Beninu. [14]The chiefs of the people: [l]Parosh, Pahath-moab, Elam, Zattu, Bani, [15]Bunni, Azgad, Bebai, [16]Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, [17]Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur, [18]Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai, [19]Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai, [20]Magpiash, Meshullam, Hezir, [21]Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua, [22]Pelatiah, Hanan, Anaiah, [23]Hoshea, Hananiah, Hasshub, [24]Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, [25]Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah, [26]Ahiah, Hanan, Anan, [27]Malluch, Harim, Baanah.

The Obligations of the Covenant

[28][†] [m]“The rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the temple servants, [n]and all who have separated themselves from the peoples of the lands to the Law of God, their wives, their sons, their daughters, all who have knowledge and understanding, [29][^][†]join with their brothers, their nobles, [o]and enter into a curse and an oath [p]to walk in God’s Law that was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of the LORD our Lord and his rules and his statutes. [30][†] [q]We will not give our daughters to the peoples of the land or take their daughters for our sons. [31][†] [r]And if the peoples of the land bring in goods or any grain on the Sabbath day to sell, we will not buy from them on the Sabbath or on a holy day. And we will forego the crops of the [s]seventh year and the [t]exaction of every debt.

[32][†]“We also take on ourselves the obligation to give yearly [u]a third part of a shekel [3] for the service of the house of our God: [33][†] [v]for the showbread, [w]the regular grain offering, [w]the regular burnt offering, the Sabbaths, the new moons, the appointed feasts, the holy things, and the sin offerings to make atonement for Israel, and for all the work of the house of our God. [34][†] [x]We, the priests, the Levites, and the people, have likewise cast lots [y]for the wood offering, to bring it into the house of our God, according to our fathers’ houses, at times appointed, year by year, to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, [z]as it is written in the Law. [35][†]We obligate ourselves [a]to bring the firstfruits of our ground and the firstfruits of all fruit of every tree, year by year, to the house of the LORD; [36][†]also to bring to the house of our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God, the firstborn of our sons and of our cattle, [b]as it is written in the Law, and the firstborn of our herds and of our flocks; [37][†] [c]and to bring the first of our dough, and our contributions, the fruit of every tree, the wine and the oil, to the priests, [d]to the chambers of the house of our God; and to bring to the Levites the tithes from our ground, for it is the Levites who collect the tithes in all our towns where we labor. [38][†]And the priest, the son of Aaron, shall be with the Levites when the Levites receive the tithes. And the Levites shall bring up the tithe of the tithes to the house of our God, to the chambers of [e]the storehouse. [39][†]For the people of Israel and the sons of Levi [f]shall bring the contribution of grain, wine, and oil to the chambers, where the vessels of the sanctuary are, as well as the priests who minister, and the gatekeepers and the singers. [g]We will not neglect the house of our God."

The Leaders in Jerusalem

NEHEMIAH 11 [†]Now the leaders of the people [h]lived in Jerusalem. And the rest of the people [i]cast lots to bring one out of ten to live in Jerusalem [j]the holy city, while nine out of ten [1] remained in the other towns. [2][†]And the people blessed all the men [k]who willingly offered to live in Jerusalem.

[3][†] [l]These are the chiefs of the province who lived in Jerusalem; but in the towns of Judah [m]everyone lived on his property in their towns: Israel, the priests, the Levites, [n]the temple servants, [o]and the descendants of Solomon's servants. [4][^][†]And in Jerusalem lived certain of the sons of Judah and of the sons of Benjamin. Of the sons of Judah: Athaiah the son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalalel, of the sons of [p]Perez; [5]and Maaseiah the son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Hazaiah, son of Adaiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, son of the Shilonite. [6]All the sons of Perez who lived in Jerusalem were 468 valiant men.

[7]And these are the sons of Benjamin: Sallu the son of Meshullam, son of Joed, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolaiah, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Jeshaiah, [8]and his brothers, men of valor, 928. [2] [9][†]Joel the son of Zichri was their overseer; and Judah the son of Hassenuah was second over the city.

[10]Of the priests: Jedaiah the son of Joiarib, Jachin, [11][†]Seraiah the son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, ruler of the house of God, [12][†]and their brothers who did the work of the house, 822; and Adaiah the son of Jeroham, son of Pelaliah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah, [13]and his brothers, heads of fathers' houses, 242; and Amashsai, the son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer, [14]and their brothers, mighty men of valor, 128; their overseer was Zabdiel the son of Haggedolim.

[15]And of the Levites: Shemaiah the son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; [16][†]and Shabbethai and [q] Jozabad, of the chiefs of the Levites, who were over [r] the outside work of the house of God; [17]and [s] Mattaniah the son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, who was the leader of the praise, [3] who gave thanks, and Bakbukiah, the second among his brothers; and Abda the son of Shammua, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. [18]All the Levites in [t] the holy city were 284.

[19]The gatekeepers, Akkub, Talmon and their brothers, who kept watch at the gates, were 172. [20][†]And the rest of Israel, and of the priests and the Levites, were in all the towns of Judah, [u] every one in his inheritance. [21] [v] But the temple servants lived on Ophel; and Ziha and Gishpa were over the temple servants.

[22]The overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi the son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica, of the sons of Asaph, the singers, over the work of the house of God. [23][†] [w] For there was a command from the king concerning them, and a fixed provision for the singers, [x] as every day required. [24]And Pethahiah the son of Meshezabel, of the sons of Zerah the son of Judah, was at the king's side [4] in all matters concerning the people.

Villages Outside Jerusalem

[25][†]And as for the villages, with their fields, some of the people of Judah lived in [y] Kiriath-arba and its villages, and in Dibon and its villages, and in Jekabzeel and its villages, [26]and in Jeshua and in Moladah and Beth-pelet, 27in Hazar-shual, in Beersheba and its villages, 28in Ziklag, in Meconah and its villages, 29in En-rimmon, in Zorah, in Jarmuth, 30[†]Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages, Lachish and its fields, and Azekah and its villages. So they encamped from Beersheba to [z] the Valley of Hinnom. 31[†]The people of Benjamin also lived from Geba onward, at Michmash, Aija, Bethel and its villages, 32Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, 33Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, 34Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat, 35Lod, and [a] Ono, the valley of craftsmen. 36[†]And certain divisions of the Levites in Judah were assigned to Benjamin.

Priests and Levites

NEHEMIAH 12 [†]These are [b] the priests and the Levites who came up with [c] Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and [d] Jeshua: [e] Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, 2Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, 3Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth, 4Iddo, Ginnethoi, Abijah, 5Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, 6Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, 7Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedaiah. These were the chiefs of the priests and of their brothers in the days of Jeshua.

8And the Levites: Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah, who with his brothers was [f] in charge of the songs of thanksgiving. 9And Bakbukiah and Unni and their brothers stood opposite them [g] in the service. 10And Jeshua was the father of Joiakim, Joiakim the father of Eliashib, Eliashib the father of Joiada, 11Joiada the father of Jonathan, and Jonathan the father of Jaddua.

12[†] [h] And in the days of Joiakim were priests, heads of fathers' houses: of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Hananiah; 13of Ezra, Meshullam; of Amariah, Jehohanan; 14of Malluchi, Jonathan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; 15of Harim, Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; 16of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; 17of Abijah, Zichri; of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai; 18of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; 19of Joiarib, Mattenai; of Jedaiah, Uzzi; 20of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; 21of Hilkiah, Hashabiah; of Jedaiah, Nethanel.

22[†]In the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, the Levites were recorded as heads of fathers' houses; so too were the priests in the reign of Darius the Persian. 23[†]As for the sons of Levi, their heads of fathers' houses [i]were written in the Book of the Chronicles until the days of Johanan the son of Eliashib. [24][†]And the chiefs of the Levites: Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and [j]Jeshua the son of Kadmiel, with their brothers who stood opposite them, [k]to praise and to give thanks, [l]according to the commandment of David [m]the man of God, [n]watch by watch. [25]Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers standing guard at [o]the storehouses of the gates. [26]These were in the days of Joiakim the son of Jeshua son of Jozadak, and in the days of [p]Nehemiah the governor and of [p]Ezra, the priest and scribe.

Dedication of the Wall

[27][^][†]And at [q]the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites in all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem to celebrate the dedication with gladness, with thanksgivings and with singing, [r]with cymbals, harps, and lyres. [28][†]And the sons of the singers gathered together from the district surrounding Jerusalem and from the villages of the Netophathites; [29]also from Beth-gilgal and from the region of Geba and Azmaveth, for the singers had built for themselves villages around Jerusalem. [30][†]And the priests and the Levites [s]purified themselves, and they purified the people and the gates and the wall.

[31][†]Then I brought the leaders of Judah up onto the wall and appointed two great choirs that gave thanks. [t]One went to the south on the wall to [u]the Dung Gate. [32]And after them went Hoshaiah and half of the leaders of Judah, [33]and Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, [34]Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, and Jeremiah, [35]and certain of the priests' sons [v]with trumpets: Zechariah the son of Jonathan, son of Shemaiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Micaiah, son of Zaccur, son of Asaph; [36]and his relatives, Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, [w]with the musical instruments of David [x]the man of God. And Ezra the scribe went before them. [37]At [y]the Fountain Gate they went up straight before them by [z]the stairs of the city of David, at the ascent of the wall, above the house of David, to [a]the Water Gate on the east.

[38][†][b]The other choir of those who gave thanks went to the north, and I followed them with half of the people, on the wall, above [c]the Tower of the Ovens, to [d]the Broad Wall, [39]and above [e]the Gate of Ephraim, and by [f]the Gate of Yeshanah, [1] and by [g]the Fish Gate and [h]the Tower of Hananel and [h]the Tower of the Hundred, to [i]the Sheep Gate; and they came to a halt at [j]the Gate of the Guard. [40][†]So both choirs of those who gave thanks stood in the house of God, and I and half of the officials with me; [41]and the priests Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah, [k]with trumpets; [42]and Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchijah, Elam, and Ezer. And the singers sang with Jezrahiah as their leader. [43][†]And they offered great sacrifices that day and rejoiced, for God had made them rejoice with great joy; the women and children also rejoiced. And the joy of Jerusalem was heard far away.

Service at the Temple

[44][†] [l]On that day men were appointed over the storerooms, the contributions, the firstfruits, and the tithes, to gather into them the portions required by the Law for the priests and for the Levites according to the fields of the towns, for Judah rejoiced over the priests and the Levites who ministered. [45][†]And they performed the service of their God and the service of purification, as did the singers and the gatekeepers, [m]according to the command of David and his son Solomon. [46]For long ago in the days of David and [n]Asaph there were directors of the singers, and there were songs [2] of praise and thanksgiving to God. [47]And all Israel in the days of Zerubbabel and in the days of Nehemiah gave the [o]daily portions for the singers and the gatekeepers; [p]and they set apart that which was for the Levites; [q]and the Levites set apart that which was for the sons of Aaron.

Nehemiah’s Final Reforms

NEHEMIAH 13 [†]On that day [r]they read from the Book of Moses in the hearing of the people. And in it was found written [s]that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter the assembly of God, [2]for they did not meet the people of Israel with bread and water, but hired Balaam against them to curse them—yet our God turned the curse into a blessing. [3][^][†]As soon as the people heard the law, [t] they separated from Israel all [u] those of foreign descent.

[4][‡]Now before this, [v] Eliashib the priest, who [w] was appointed over the chambers of the house of our God, and who was related to [x] Tobiah, [5]prepared for Tobiah a large chamber where they had previously put the grain offering, the frankincense, the vessels, and the tithes of grain, wine, and oil, [y] which were given by commandment to the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers, and the contributions for the priests. [6][‡]While this was taking place, I was not in Jerusalem, for [z] in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes [a] king of Babylon I went to the king. And after some time I asked leave of the king [7]and came to Jerusalem, and I then discovered the evil that Eliashib had done for Tobiah, [b] preparing for him a chamber in the courts of the house of God. [8]And I was very angry, and I threw all the household furniture of Tobiah out of the chamber. [9][‡]Then I gave orders, and they [c] cleansed the chambers, and I brought back there the vessels of the house of God, with the grain offering and the frankincense.

[10][‡]I also found out that [d] the portions of the Levites had not been given to them, so that the Levites and the singers, who did the work, had fled each [e] to his field. [11][‡][f] So I confronted the officials and said, [g] "Why is the house of God forsaken?" And I gathered them together and set them in their stations. [12]Then all Judah brought [h] the tithe of the grain, wine, and oil into the storehouses. [13]And [i] I appointed as treasurers over the storehouses Shelemiah the priest, Zadok the scribe, and Pedaiah of the Levites, and as their assistant Hanan the son of Zaccur, son of Mattaniah, [j] for they were considered reliable, and their duty was to distribute to their brothers. [14][‡] [k] Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and do not wipe out my good deeds that I have done for the house of my God and for his service.

[15][^][‡]In those days I saw in Judah people treading winepresses [l] on the Sabbath, and bringing in heaps of grain and loading them on donkeys, and also wine, grapes, figs, and all kinds of loads, [m] which they brought into Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. And [n] I warned them on the day when they sold food. [16]Tyrians also, who lived in the city, brought in fish and all kinds of goods and sold them on the Sabbath to the people of Judah, in Jerusalem itself! [17] [o] Then I confronted the nobles of Judah and said to them, "What is this evil thing that you are doing, [p]profaning the Sabbath day? 18[†] [q]Did not your fathers act in this way, and did not our God bring all this disaster [1] on us and on this city? Now you are bringing more wrath on Israel by profaning the Sabbath."

19[†]As soon as it [r]began to grow dark at the gates of Jerusalem before the Sabbath, I commanded that the doors should be shut and gave orders that they should not be opened until after the Sabbath. And I stationed some of my servants at the gates, that no load might be brought in on the Sabbath day. 20Then the merchants and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside Jerusalem once or twice. 21 [s]But I warned them and said to them, "Why do you lodge outside the wall? If you do so again, I will lay hands on you." From that time on they did not come on the Sabbath. 22[†]Then I commanded the Levites [t]that they should purify themselves and come and guard the gates, to keep the Sabbath day holy. [u]Remember this also in my favor, O my God, and spare me according to the greatness of your steadfast love.

23[^][†]In those days also I saw the Jews [v]who had married women [w]of Ashdod, [x]Ammon, and [x]Moab. 24And half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod, and they could not speak the language of Judah, but only the language of each people. 25[†] [o]And I confronted them and cursed them and beat some of them and pulled out their hair. [y]And I made them take an oath in the name of God, saying, "You shall not give your daughters to their sons, or take their daughters for your sons or for yourselves. 26 [z]Did not Solomon king of Israel sin on account of such women? [a]Among the many nations there was no king like him, and he was [b]beloved by his God, and God made him king over all Israel. Nevertheless, foreign women made even him to sin. 27Shall we then listen to you and do all this great evil and [c]act treacherously against our God by marrying foreign women?"

28[†]And one of the sons of [d]Jehoiada, the son of [e]Eliashib the high priest, was the son-in-law of [f]Sanballat the Horonite. Therefore I chased him from me. 29[†] [g]Remember them, O my God, because they have desecrated the priesthood [h]and the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites.

[30][†] [i] Thus I cleansed them from everything foreign, and I established the duties of the priests and Levites, each in his work; [31][†]and I provided [j] for the wood offering [k] at appointed times, and for the firstfruits.

[l] Remember me, O my God, for good.

Study Notes for Nehemiah

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:1–2:20 Nehemiah Returns to Jerusalem to Rebuild Its Walls. This section recounts Nehemiah's burden for and first efforts in rebuilding Jerusalem. He learns of Jerusalem's decrepit condition (1:1–11), gains permission to rebuild the city, inspects its walls (2:1–16), and endures the first wave of opposition (2:17–20).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:1–11 Nehemiah Learns of Jerusalem's Dilapidation. Nehemiah hears of the distress of Jerusalem and Judah (vv. 1–3) and prays for God's favor toward them (vv. 4–11).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:1 Nehemiah the son of Hacaliah. Nehemiah's name means "Yahweh has comforted." The twentieth year is that of Artaxerxes' reign, 445 B.C., 13 years after Ezra's arrival in Jerusalem (see Ezra 7:7). Chislev is the ninth month (November/December), in the winter (see Ezra 10:9). Susa the citadel, or "fortress," was one of the royal seats. Ecbatana (Ezra 6:2) was a royal summer home, and Susa was a winter residence.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:2–3 Hanani, one of my brothers. See also 7:2. came with certain men. It is not known whether these men were residents of Jerusalem or of Persia, nor is the nature of their mission known. the Jews who escaped, who had survived the exile. This, along with the remnant, refers to the returned exiles living in Jerusalem and Judah (see note on Ezra 9:8). The report about the wall of Jerusalem might mean that the wall had never been successfully rebuilt since the first return of exiles, or that an attempt to rebuild it had been thwarted, perhaps by command of the reigning king, Artaxerxes (see note on Ezra 4:20).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:4 wept and mourned. Compare the reaction of Ezra when he discovered sin in the community (Ezra 9:4–5; 10:1). God of heaven was a way of referring to God in international contexts (cf. Ezra 1:2; 5:12).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:5 O LORD God of heaven. This combination of names means that the God of Israel (Ex. 3:13–15) is the only God. keeps covenant and steadfast love with those who love him and keep his commandments. Cf. Deut. 7:9. Steadfast love is the quality of God’s faithfulness to Israel in his covenant with them. Such covenant faithfulness requires Israel’s love in return (see also Deut. 6:5). This love also includes faithfulness, and is made evident in keeping God’s law as given to Moses; obedience is the proper response to God’s love, not the precondition of it.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:6 Nehemiah’s prayer begins with a confession recalling all the past sins of Israel, as well as those of Nehemiah himself and of his family. Such confession is generally the right beginning in prayer, but Nehemiah especially acknowledges that Israel’s sin has led to the present deplorable situation in Jerusalem. Israel has not responded to God’s gracious covenant in the way outlined in v. 5. Nehemiah’s prayer also recalls Solomon’s when he dedicated the first temple (1 Kings 8:28–30). His use of the term “servant” for himself (your servant) and Israel (your servants) is significant since he is also a servant of King Artaxerxes. Ezra used a form of the same word (Hb. ‘ebed) to speak of “slavery” to Persia (Ezra 9:9). Nehemiah’s prayer raises the question of who is the real Lord of Israel.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:7 the commandments, the statutes, and the rules. See note on Ezra 7:10.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:8–9 Remember. Moses also called on God to remember his promises when Israel was suffering his judgment because of sin (Ex. 32:13; Deut. 9:27). Nehemiah now recalls God’s words about the essential choice placed before Israel in the covenant, in which disobedience would lead to scattering, or exile, among the peoples (Lev. 26:27–33; Deut. 4:25–27; 28:64), while obedience would bring blessing (Lev. 26:3–13; Deut. 28:1–14). if you return to me. In Nehemiah’s perspective, however, the threatened exile did indeed happen; so he now appeals to God’s old promise that even then, if Israel repented, he would restore them to the land and prosperity (Lev. 26:40–42; Deut. 4:29–31; 30:1–6). The restoration has happened in one sense, for many of God’s people have returned from exile, but it remains incomplete because the land is not yet secure. the place that I have chosen, to make my name dwell there. Again, the reference is to the old promise to bring Israel into its land (Deut. 12:5). The “place” in question was primarily the city where the Lord’s sanctuary would be, which was finally Jerusalem (2 Kings 21:4). The dwelling of the “name” meant the Lord’s claiming of the place as his own, in contrast to the claims of other gods or rulers.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:10 redeemed by your great power and by your strong hand. The reference, both here and in Deut. 4:34, is to (1) the deliverance of Israel from slavery in Egypt, (2) the miraculous signs in the afflictions of Egypt, and (3) the defeat of Egypt in the Red Sea (Exodus 7–15).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 1:11 fear your name. On fearing God, see note on Prov. 1:7 and other verses mentioned there. To “fear God’s name” is essentially the same as fearing God himself, since the “name” of God here represents God’s character and all that he is (cf. Deut. 10:20; 28:58). mercy in the sight of this man (i.e., Artaxerxes). Nehemiah knows that God can move powerful people to act in ways that accord with his own plans, and in favor of his people (see Ezra 6:22). But he may also know that Artaxerxes has already decreed that work on rebuilding Jerusalem should stop (see note on Neh. 1:2–3; see also Ezra 4:23). Therefore, Nehemiah’s petition may bring danger to him. The position of cupbearer to the king was a high office and involved regular access to the king.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:1–16 Nehemiah Gains Permission to Return and Inspects Jerusalem’s Walls. Nehemiah makes his petition to the king and is allowed to go to Jerusalem (vv. 1–8). He surveys the walls, finding them in very poor condition (vv. 9–16).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:1 The date, Nisan, in the twentieth year (i.e., March/April of 445 B.C.), is surprising because Nisan is the first month, and yet the earlier events of ch. 1 took place in Chislev, the ninth month (December). Of various proposed solutions, the best is perhaps that the author counts the years of Artaxerxes’ reign from the actual month of his accession (which is not precisely known), so that his “twentieth year” might span two calendar years (446–445 B.C.). In that case, this incident in the month of Nisan would be four months after the news about Jerusalem came to Nehemiah.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:2 Nehemiah’s expression of sadness is the prelude to his request. Nehemiah did not show his grief immediately (i.e., during the four months since 1:1), perhaps because it was part of his duty to be positive and encouraging. But now he has decided to speak. The king’s diagnosis of sadness of the heart perceives some discontentment as the cause. Nehemiah was very much afraid because he was about to say something that the king might take as disloyalty.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:3 Let the king live forever! Nehemiah first shows his loyalty and explains the reason for his grief, without yet making his request. my fathers' graves. He may think that this way of speaking about Jerusalem will make the king sympathetic.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:4 The king then invites a request. So I prayed. Nehemiah had prayed a great deal, of course (see 1:4), but here he quickly speaks to God (probably silently) before he answers the king.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:5–6 Continuing in great deference, Nehemiah makes his request (v. 5). The king agrees without deliberation, apart perhaps from a glance at the queen sitting beside him, and demands only that Nehemiah commit to a date when he will return to Susa.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:7–8 Nehemiah, emboldened, now asks for specific authority to show letters to the governors of the province Beyond the River, who no doubt included the very people who had previously persuaded Artaxerxes to halt the rebuilding of the city (Ezra 4:7–9). He goes further, however, requesting timber from the king's forest for specific projects. The location of this forest is unknown. It might refer to Lebanon, or to some area nearer Jerusalem. At that time the land in general was more forested than in modern times. The name Asaph suggests that he was a Jewish royal official. The fortress of the temple was a special defense of the temple, probably on the northern, most vulnerable side, where later the Roman Antonia Fortress stood. It may have included the towers mentioned in Neh. 3:1. For the wall of the city the wood would have been needed mainly for the gates. Finally Nehemiah asks for wood to repair his own house, possibly an existing house passed down in his own family. Artaxerxes agrees, following his own previous generosity to the project in Jerusalem (Ezra 7:21–24), and also that of his predecessors, Cyrus (Ezra 1:4) and Darius (Ezra 6:8–12).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:8 for the good hand of my God was upon me. See note on v. 18.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:9 Nehemiah's imperial authority is visible in the officers and horsemen sent with him.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:10 Sanballat the Horonite is known from other sources to have been governor of Samaria at a later time, and may be so already. His Babylonian name does not necessarily mean that he was Babylonian; he probably came from Upper or Lower Beth-horon near Jerusalem (Josh. 16:3, 5). Tobiah is a Jewish name, yet as an Ammonite he belongs to a people that was one of Israel's historic enemies (2 Sam. 10:1–11). The term servant here may mean that he is an official, also from Samaria. These Samarians apparently wanted to assert their authority in Judah.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:11–12 three days. Ezra 8:32 speaks of a similar length of time. in the night. Nehemiah aims to keep his mission secret from potential enemies as long as possible, but also from his own people till his plans are fully formed (see also Neh. 2:16).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:13–15 Nehemiah surveys the walls chiefly on the southern and eastern sides, i.e., the so-called city of David and the Kidron Valley. The Valley Gate was probably on the southwestern side of the city of David, and the Dung Gate, leading to the city dump, at its southern tip. The Dragon Spring, Fountain Gate, and King's Pool are unidentified, but were no doubt on the east where the Kidron Valley's water sources were. The valley is the Kidron Valley, to which Nehemiah has had to descend because he cannot pass close to the walls higher up, since the rubble from their destruction has made passage impossible. He returns by the Valley Gate, having apparently made only a partial circuit.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:17–20 First Signs of Opposition. Nehemiah now exhorts his countrymen. They are willing to work, but opposition quickly emerges, as vv. 9–10 have already hinted.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:17 Come, let us build the wall of Jerusalem. His own heart having been stirred up for the Lord's work, Nehemiah calls on others to join him. suffer derision. A direct reference to the shame brought upon Jerusalem by God's former judgment on it (Jer. 24:9).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:18 the hand of my God. See also 1:10; 2:8; Ezra 7:6, 9, 28; 8:18, 22, 31, and chart. This recurring expression recognizes that God was orchestrating blessing for his people. The people had to see that their bad situation was not irreversible because God could change things.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:19 The opponents of the people allege that they are rebelling against the king, an extremely serious charge, one that Artaxerxes had previously believed (Ezra 4:12–13, 19–22). The opponents now include Geshem the Arab, perhaps from Kedar in Arabia; Kedarites had settled close to Judah, east and south (see Isa. 21:16–17; Jer. 49:28–33).

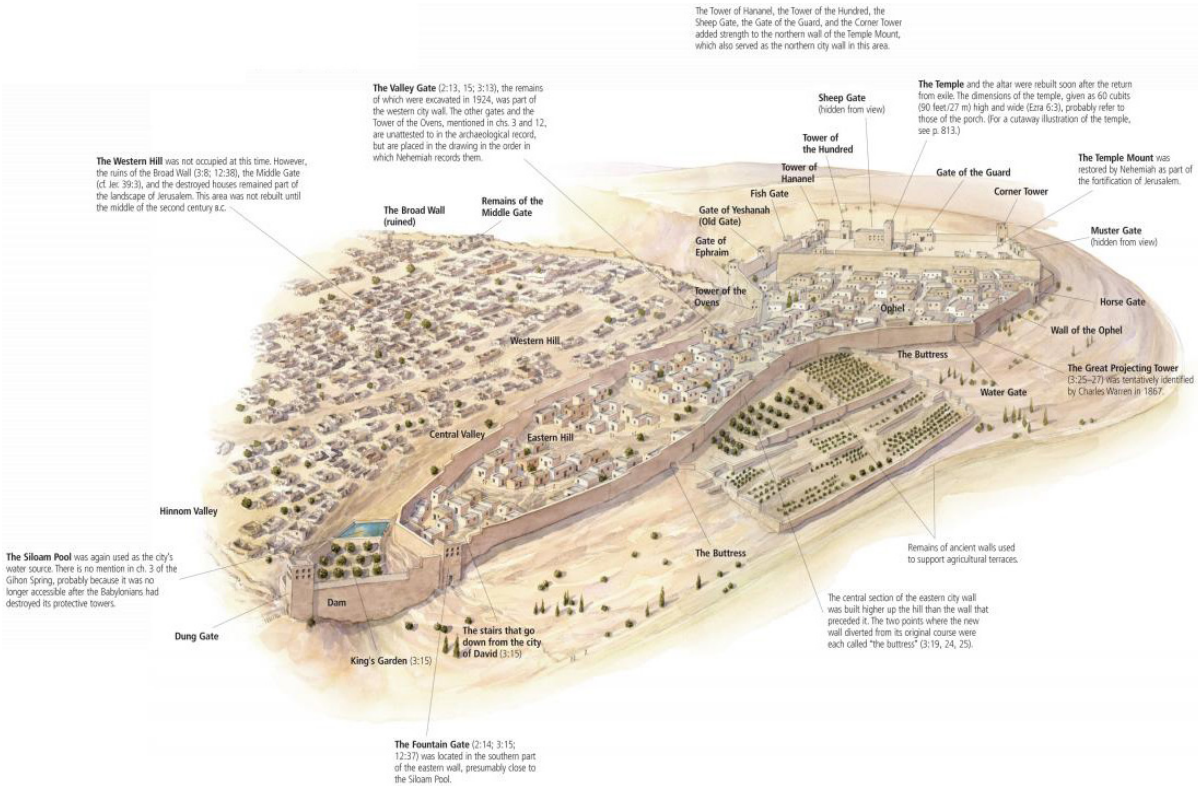
NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 2:20 Nehemiah knows that the king is on his side, but he attributes his authority to the God of heaven. but you have no portion or right or claim in Jerusalem. Nehemiah clearly distinguishes between God's people and the enemies of God who oppose the work. Once he is convinced that they are opposing the work of the Lord, he makes no effort to include them or even to pursue further discussions with them. A "portion" is an allocated share, as given to the tribes by Joshua (Josh. 18:5–6; 19:9); it is also used metaphorically of belonging (2 Sam. 20:1). "Right" is entitlement, and "claim" is literally "memorial," i.e., a claim based in ancient tradition, and possibly referring to the right to worship in Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:1–7:4 The Wall Is Built, Despite Difficulties. This section records the building and repairing of the walls by all the people of Judah, despite the efforts of certain groups to stop them. Excavations on the Ophel hill of Jerusalem have uncovered remains of Nehemiah's wall system. This wall system apparently incorporated walls from previous ages. It was not strongly built, and it reflects Jerusalem's diminutive size at the time (see illustration).

Jerusalem in the Time of Nehemiah (c. 444–420? B.C.)

Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. Upon their return from exile in 536 B.C., the Jews, under the leadership of Zerubbabel and Jeshua, first restored the altar and then laid the foundation of the temple. Twenty years later, in 516 B.C., the temple was rebuilt. This time period is referred to as the Second Temple period.

Later on, and under very difficult circumstances, Nehemiah restored the city wall. This is described in great detail in ch. 3. There is ample archaeological evidence, both positive and negative, to show that only the Eastern Hill of Jerusalem was fortified at that time and that the eastern wall of the city was built higher up the slope than the previous wall, so that the city was smaller than that of Solomon.



The Tower of Hananel, the Tower of the Hundred, the Sheep Gate, the Gate of the Guard, and the Corner Tower added strength to the northern wall of the Temple Mount, which also served as the northern city wall in this area.

The Valley Gate (2:13, 15; 3:13), the remains of which were excavated in 1924, was part of the western city wall. The other gates and the Tower of the Ovens, mentioned in chs. 3 and 12, are unattested to in the archaeological record, but are placed in the drawing in the order in which Nehemiah records them.

The Temple and the altar were rebuilt soon after the return from exile. The dimensions of the temple, given as 60 cubits (90 feet/27 m) high and wide (Ezra 6:3), probably refer to those of the porch. (For a cutaway illustration of the temple, see p. 813.)

The Western Hill was not occupied at this time. However, the ruins of the Broad Wall (3:8; 12:38), the Middle Gate (cf. Jer. 39:3), and the destroyed houses remained part of the landscape of Jerusalem. This area was not rebuilt until the middle of the second century B.C.

The Temple Mount was restored by Nehemiah as part of the fortification of Jerusalem.

The Great Projecting Tower (3:25–27) was tentatively identified by Charles Warren in 1867.

The Siloam Pool was again used as the city's water source. There is no mention in ch. 3 of the Gihon Spring, probably because it was no longer accessible after the Babylonians had destroyed its protective towers.

Remains of ancient walls used to support agricultural terraces.

The central section of the eastern city wall was built higher up the hill than the wall that preceded it. The two points where the new wall diverted from its original course were each called "the buttress" (3:19, 24, 25).

The stairs that go down from the city of David (3:15)

King's Garden (3:15)

The Fountain Gate (2:14; 3:15; 12:37) was located in the southern part of the eastern wall, presumably close to the Siloam Pool.

Jerusalem at the Time of Nehemiah

c. 445 B.C.

Though Nehemiah gives a careful listing of the sections of Jerusalem's walls that were rebuilt, it is difficult to be certain exactly which walls and gates he was referring to. The city had extended beyond the city of David and the Temple Mount by the time of Hezekiah, but it appears that only the Temple Mount and the city of David were enclosed within Nehemiah's walls. An ambitious project nonetheless, it was completed in only 52 days, providing Jerusalem with some measure of protection from its enemies.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:1–32 The People Work Systematically on the Walls. The building work is described, and the workers are named, section by section. The point of this account is to show that the people as a whole responded to Nehemiah's challenge and believed that God would give them success. The description of the work demonstrates the concerted effort of the people.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:1–2 Eliashib the high priest was the grandson of Jeshua, the priest in Zerubbabel's time (see 12:10; Ezra 5:2). with his brothers. The work was allocated to groups within the community, identified mainly by family and sometimes by where they lived. It began and ended at the Sheep Gate, on the northern side of the city (Neh. 3:32; see map). This was near the temple, and possibly was so named because sheep were brought through it for sacrifice (see also John 5:2). It may also be why the priests worked here, and why they consecrated the gate. The direction of the work on the wall was counterclockwise. Tower of the Hundred. See note on Neh. 2:7–8. The precise line of the walls followed by Nehemiah cannot be completely reconstructed. Regarding many of the features mentioned, little is known.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:3 The Fish Gate may have been at the northwest corner.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:4 repaired. The work is sometimes "building" and sometimes "repairing," suggesting that the parts of the walls were in various states of dilapidation.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:5 the Tekoites … their nobles. The leading people of Tekoa, not far south of Jerusalem, may have resented Nehemiah's leadership. The Hebrew translated their Lord has the form of a plural (see esv footnote), but the plural form is often used to express respect to a single master: for this construction in relation to God, see 8:10; 10:29; cf. Deut. 10:17 ("Lord of lords"); Ps. 8:1; 135:5; 136:3; in relation to a man, see Gen. 42:33; Judg. 3:25. In view of the use in Nehemiah, this probably refers to God; but perhaps the form, which could refer to Nehemiah, is used to convey the notion that one properly serves God by obeying Nehemiah.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:7 Mizpah was an important administrative center after the fall of Jerusalem (Jer. 41:1). Apparently the Samarian governor of Beyond the River continued to hold sessions there.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:8 goldsmiths … perfumers. Many workers in the community were organized in guilds. The Broad Wall enclosed part of the western city (some of which has been excavated).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:9 ruler of half the district of Jerusalem. Similar expressions occur six times in vv. 12–18, referring to an administrative system that divided the province into perhaps six sections.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:13 Valley Gate … Dung Gate. See note on 2:13–15; and map. a thousand cubits. About 500 yards (457 m).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:15 Fountain Gate. See note on 2:13–15. city of David. The part of the city originally occupied by David, extending south of what is now the Temple Mount.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:16 On the eastern side of the city, Nehemiah has to build a new line of wall, rather than simply repair the old one, because the preexilic wall was so badly destroyed here. The line of the new wall is now described in relation to a variety of features of the city, most of which can no longer be certainly located. It is positioned higher up the slope of the Kidron Valley than the old one. After him. The regular way of describing each successive group of builders in this section. Nehemiah the son of Azbuk. This is a different Nehemiah, of course. ruler of half the district. See note on v. 9.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:23 opposite their house. This shows one factor in deciding who would build each section (see also vv. 28–29).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:26 temple servants. See note on Ezra 2:43–54. Ophel. A name for the whole southeastern hill. The Water Gate, in the old wall, had probably opened onto the Gihon Spring, the main water source outside the city wall.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:29 The East Gate may have been a gate into the temple rather than a gate in the wall.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 3:32 Sheep Gate. See note on vv. 1–2.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:1–23 Opposition Intensifies, but the People Continue Watchfully. While the building continues, Sanballat and his allies resort to direct action in order to stop it, but their plot is foiled.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:1–2 Sanballat. See 2:9–10. (The name of a later Sanballat appears on a 4th-century-B.C. papyrus from Wadi edh-Dhaliyeh, where fragmentary scrolls were found in a cave in the highlands near Samaria. In one of these scrolls a certain Sanballat administers the country.) Sanballat was angry and greatly enraged because of the challenge to his authority. he jeered (4:1). He is clearly worried by the Jews' action, but expresses it in mockery, no doubt to encourage his brothers (or allies) to join him in resisting. army of Samaria. It is not clear whether Sanballat really had the authority to command an army. Will they restore it for themselves? Ironically, the answer to this and Sanballat's subsequent mocking questions will be yes.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:4–5 Nehemiah interjects in his own voice a prayer similar to certain prayers for deliverance from enemies in the Psalms (e.g., Psalm 74; 79). He prays that what his enemies wish for him would return on their own heads; indeed, he prays that they would suffer captivity such as the Jews had recently experienced. The motive is not mere revenge but rather the honor of God, who is the real object of the enemies' insults and whose purposes they do not understand.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:6 half its height. At this point, the project could still be thwarted. Yet the commitment of the people is a sign of likely success, since it is based on faith in God. for the people had a mind to work. One aspect of God's blessing on this project was that he gave the people a deep desire to do the work, and he sustained that desire throughout the time that the wall was being built.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:7 Arabs … Ammonites … Ashdodites. Geshem was an Arab, and Tobiah an Ammonite (2:19; see also note on 2:10). It looks as though they belonged to certain groups in Judah who were strongly opposed to the project. Ashdod was formerly a Philistine city on the west (Mediterranean) coast, but it became the name of the entire province, first under Assyria, then under Persia. The people groups named here suggest that the Jewish community is surrounded on three sides—east, west, and south. This plot runs counter to the clear authorization that Nehemiah received from the Persian king, so it is hard to judge how successful it could hope to be. Yet surely it was intimidating, since Susa was about 1,100 miles (1,770 km) away, a journey of approximately 55 days (averaging 20 miles or 32 km per day). they were very angry. Probably because their own plans were failing.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:9 And we prayed to our God and set a guard. Nehemiah has prayed before in a threatening situation (2:4). Along with his prayers, he takes prudent action.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:10–12 These verses tell of the same action described in v. 9 but spell it out at greater length and focus on the danger to the project. The task itself is massive and discouraging (v. 10); the enemies have terrified the people with the threat of a deadly night attack (v. 11); and the friends and families of people who have come in from the villages to work on the walls try to persuade them to come home because of the danger (v. 12).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:13 Nehemiah again sets a guard (see v. 9).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:14 Do not be afraid is both a command and an exhortation, rooted in the call to believe that God can overcome his enemies (see also Deut. 1:21, 29; Josh. 1:9), as he has in the past (in the exodus from Egypt and the capture of Canaan).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:15 God had frustrated their plan. From now on the immediate threat is apparently over, but the work continues with half the people's attention given to defense.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:16 my servants. A group that was especially close to Nehemiah, and perhaps specially trained.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:17 each labored on the work with one hand and held his weapon with the other. Though Nehemiah and the people prayed and trusted God for protection (see vv. 4, 9, 14, 20), they also kept their weapons close at hand (see vv. 16, 18, 23), ready to defend themselves from attack; God often accomplishes his purposes through ordinary human means.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:20 With the people spread out all around the wall, they were potentially vulnerable at every point (v. 19). Nehemiah addresses this problem by his plan to let the sound of the trumpet be heard, a well-established call to arms (cf. Judg. 3:27; 1 Sam. 13:3). Our God will fight for us. Cf. Ex. 14:14; Deut. 1:30.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:21–22 A final picture of watchfulness, both day and night. Nehemiah may have feared losing some of his workforce at night, so he kept them in the city (Jerusalem; v. 22).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 4:23 my servants. Nehemiah's immediate associates (see v. 16). In not taking off their clothes, they remained prepared for engagement with the enemy, if need be.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:1–19 Nehemiah Deals with Injustices in the Community; Nehemiah's Personal Contribution to the Project. Nehemiah takes measures to end the exploitation of the weak in the community by its powerful members, who are ignoring God's commandments.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:1 Nehemiah's story of the restoration is not triumphalistic, for it tells of serious shortcomings in the community. great outcry. This is typical language of protest under oppression (see Ex. 2:23). The people are the rank and file of the Jews. And of their wives adds to the picture of families made desperate by hunger. Jewish brothers shows the strong bond among all Israelites, such that, by Mosaic law, none should permanently enslave or exploit another (see Deut. 15:1–18).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:2 Several kinds of complaints emerge in vv. 2–5, each concerning some cause of hardship, all made worse by the preoccupation with the walls, and apparently by a bad harvest. let us get grain. This cry, perhaps coming especially from the women, probably arises because the men who are fully engaged on the building project are not able to do their usual work and are therefore unable to feed their families.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:3–4 We are mortgaging, that is, raising money by temporarily forfeiting the use and fruit of their property, which means that they also risk becoming insolvent. Some are borrowing to pay the heavy tax on produce levied by the Persians.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:5 our flesh … our brothers. The complaint emphasizes the close relationship among Israelites (see note on v. 1). forcing our sons and our daughters to be slaves. Temporary debt-slavery (but not permanent chattel-slavery) was permitted in Mosaic law among Israelites, and was often the only way a debt could be paid, either after six years (Deut. 15:12) or at the Year of Jubilee (Lev. 25:39–40). But even this practice might hit families hard in the current situation; there is also a suggestion that those taken into debt-slavery are not being treated properly.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:7 The nobles and the officials within the Jewish community are accused of oppressing their own people, showing that the danger to the community comes not only from outside but also from within. Oppression of the weak by the strong had been one of the reasons for God’s anger that had brought about the exile (see Isa. 5:7, 8–10; Amos 2:6–8). exacting interest. While property might be taken in pledge, pending repayment of a loan, taking interest from a fellow Israelite who borrowed out of poverty and need was forbidden (Deut. 23:19–20).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:8 our Jewish brothers. See vv. 1, 5. Nehemiah stresses this kinship in order to drive home the people’s neglect of this great principle underlying the law. sold … sell … sold. In his anger, Nehemiah brings out the irony of the Jews being redeemed from exile only to be sold into slavery by their own brothers.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:9 fear of our God. See note on 1:11. taunts. See 4:1–4.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:10 Nehemiah admits that he and his closest associates are implicated in the injustice and therefore presents his moral challenge as something to which he himself must respond.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:11–12 Return … their fields. This appeal not only commands a return of the interest that was illegitimately seized, but is apparently a general amnesty, occasioned by the crisis and going beyond the provisions for debt-release (Deut. 15:1–11) or jubilee (Leviticus 25), since it is to be done without delay. The people agree, and solemnly undertake to keep their word.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:13 shook out the fold. A symbolic action matching the words of the curse that follow. So may God shake out. This type of curse-formula was a solemn, conventional way of compelling commitment to a course of action. By saying Amen, the whole assembly took upon itself the terms of Nehemiah's curse.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:14 governor. This is the first indication that Nehemiah held this official post in the province of Yehud (i.e., Judea), within the larger province of Beyond the River, and indeed that others had done so before him. twentieth … thirty-second year. 445 to 433 B.C. food allowance of the governor. Governors apparently had the right to raise taxes for their own use, but Nehemiah has not taken this due.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:15 former governors. Nehemiah's predecessors, however, had used the people for the enrichment of themselves and their servants. fear of God. Nehemiah might mean that he respects God's law requiring all Jews to regard themselves as "brothers" (see vv. 1, 5, 8).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:16 I also persevered. Nehemiah has put himself on a par with his fellow Jews, laboring with them and not using his position for gain.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:17 at my table. This seems to refer to obligations that fell to Nehemiah by virtue of his position as governor. Those who came … from the nations may have been diplomatic visitors.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:18 This heavy burden (v. 17) makes Nehemiah's self-sacrifice concerning the food allowance all the more remarkable. He does not wish to live comfortably while his people are in need.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 5:19 Remember. See note on 1:8–9. This is the first of Nehemiah's prayers for God to remember: asking God to remember Nehemiah and his deeds, cf. 13:14, 22, 31; and to remember his opponents, cf. 6:14; 13:29. These prayers reflect the awareness that a merely human judgment might not achieve full justice. Nehemiah's deeds demonstrate his sincere faith, while the schemes of the opponents demonstrate their opposition to the well-being of God's people.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:1–7:4 A Conspiracy against Nehemiah, but the Wall Is Finished. Nehemiah's enemies try to scare him into ceasing the work, but he is not deterred and the wall is finished.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:1 With the wall almost complete, Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem, and the rest of our enemies (see 2:10, 19) turn in desperation to trickery, knowing that they cannot overcome the Jews by direct assault.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:2 Hakkephirim in the plain of Ono. This unknown place is presumably near the town of Ono (see Ezra 2:33), north of Jerusalem, perhaps serving as a kind of neutral ground. Nehemiah sees it as a conspiracy against him, since he knows they want to frustrate his work.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:3 I am doing a great work and I cannot come down. Nehemiah would not divert time and effort from the Lord's work for discussions with his enemies that he knew would be fruitless at best and probably dangerous to him as well.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:4 Nehemiah follows diplomatic protocol in the exchange of letters. Sanballat was, after all, the governor of Samaria, and relations with him would ultimately be important.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:5–7 Sanballat's fifth attempt was an open letter (v. 5), its public nature intended to exert extra pressure on Nehemiah, perhaps by creating fear within his own community that his actions could lead to disaster.

In the letter, Sanballat takes up the old allegation of rebellion against Persia (see Ezra 4:12–13) and claims to have testimony to it among the nations (Neh. 6:6), i.e., in the surrounding Persian provinces. you wish to become their king. … There is a king in Judah (vv. 6–7). If this charge were true, it would certainly inflame the Persians. And there was truth, of course, in the Jewish expectation of a coming Davidic king, based on prophetic promises (see Isa. 9:6–7; Jer. 23:5–6). A century earlier, Zerubbabel may have excited messianic expectations (see note on Ezra 2:2a). Sanballat portrays himself as loyal to Persia and also as the Jews' friend, offering to defuse the danger posed by these alleged rumors. the (Persian) king will hear (Neh. 6:7). This is, of course, a veiled threat.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:6 you and the Jews intend to rebel; that is why you are building the wall. … you wish to become their king. These are lies and false accusations.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:8 Nehemiah flatly denies the accusations (vv. 6–7). While he may have held long-term messianic hopes, as many no doubt did, he remained a loyal servant of Artaxerxes. Nehemiah had no aspirations to kingship—nor indeed a claim to it, since there is no reason to think he was of the Davidic line.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:9 they all wanted to frighten us. Nehemiah sees the real intention of Sanballat's maneuvering and expresses the issue at stake: the work cannot be prevented by the schemes of enemies—that had been settled from the start, because the favor of the king himself had been secured by God's providence. Nehemiah acknowledges this fact by another prayer interjected into his narrative (see 2:4; 4:4–5; cf. note on 5:19).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:10 Shemaiah is not otherwise known, but may have been a priest, which explains his proposal for a meeting in the temple (perhaps a second meeting from the one mentioned here). confined to his home. This possible translation of a difficult Hebrew word tries to explain why Nehemiah went to this man's house. It is not clear why he had been confined to his home: perhaps it was meant as a prophetic symbolic act suggesting that Jerusalem was surrounded by enemies. within the temple … for they are coming to kill you. This "warning" suggests a plot by Sanballat and other enemies. Shemaiah proposes that Nehemiah simply take refuge in the temple.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:11 Nehemiah responds that such an act would be cowardly, and possibly sacrilegious.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:12 God had not sent him. Shemaiah was pretending to speak with prophetic authority, but Nehemiah sees that his prophecy was false.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:13 To be afraid would be in this case the opposite of having faith, and hence sin (see Deut. 1:28–33, also notes on Ezra 3:3; Neh. 4:14). This sort of unbelief would enable his enemies to taunt Nehemiah (see 5:9) and thus undermine his authority.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:14 Nehemiah thinks again of prayer, calling on God to remember those who had tried to turn him (and therefore also his fellow Jews) from faith (cf. Matt. 18:6). This “remember” is typical of Nehemiah’s prayers (Neh. 1:8; see note on 5:19), which always seek God’s justice, whether for blessing or for judgment. Tobiah is placed first again here, but the circle of Nehemiah’s enemies, including the prophetess Noadiah and other prophets, must have been considerable. Perhaps there were many incidents such as the one recorded here.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:15–16 Elul was the sixth month (August–September), so it has been less than six months since Nehemiah spoke to the king. No doubt the speed of the building work itself contributed to the fear now felt by the enemies. Those enemies among the nations around us surely include Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem, and their peoples (see 4:7). they perceived that this work had been accomplished with the help of our God. If God had helped the people of Judah so remarkably in this way, the nations feared that this same God would turn Judah into a powerful nation that would be a threat to them.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:17 The complicity of the nobles of Judah with Tobiah now strongly emerges; it is an alliance based on the marriages of Tobiah, an “Ammonite” (2:10), and his son into families of the Jewish nobility. It is ironic that Tobiah is so highly regarded among the Israelites, in view of the measures Ezra had taken against intermarriage (Ezra 9–10). This perhaps explains Tobiah’s hostility to Nehemiah’s work, which was seen as being in continuity with Ezra’s work.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 6:18 bound by oath to him. It is not clear in what way they were bound. But there was clearly a powerful lobby in Jerusalem committed to Tobiah and opposed to Nehemiah.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:1 Gatekeepers, singers, Levites is a typical grouping of worship officials (see Ezra 2:40–42), so it is surprising to find them in connection with guarding the walls. Yet the guarding of the city was ultimately related to establishing the worship of Yahweh in his temple.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:2 On Hanani, see 1:2. He and Hananiah (7:2) may possibly replace the "rulers" named in 3:9, 12.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:3 Caution is still necessary. The guards are appointed from among those who live in the city and thus are most committed to it.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:4 Apparently the people are relatively few in number. The building of houses has taken second place to reconstructing the walls.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:5–73 A Record of Those Who Returned from Exile. Nehemiah lists the returned exiles from the time of Zerubbabel.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:5 my God put it into my heart. Cf. 2:12. Nehemiah maintains a close relationship with God, as evidenced by his frequent prayers and his clear convictions about God's guidance. He now decides to make a census of the people, and is helped by the discovery of the book of the genealogy of the first returnees.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:6–73 This list is virtually identical to the one in Ezra 2 (see notes there). Therefore, its purpose is not to give new information but to highlight Nehemiah's next concern after completing the walls, namely, to repopulate Jerusalem (see Neh. 7:4). He may have had in mind such prophecies as Isaiah 62. Regarding the discrepancies in exact numbers between the list of returning exiles in Ezra 2:1–67 and Neh. 7:6–66, various solutions have been proposed, and several factors may have contributed to the differences. Since Nehemiah was reading from a copy of an older list (either the list in Ezra or an official list that both of them consulted), the list may have been updated and corrected to allow for a number of births and deaths that occurred shortly after the exiles returned, and perhaps in some cases people were counted or grouped differently or in different categories. Either or both lists may also have been corrected and supplemented by a number of relatives who had been delayed on the journey by illness or for other reasons, and were added later. Some of the differences may also be due to copying errors.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 7:73b This half of the verse is an addition to Ezra 2:70. It brings the perspective of the narrative back to Nehemiah's time. The reference to the seventh month (September/October)—a festival month including the Day of Atonement—leads into the covenant renewal that follows.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:1–10:39 The Reading of the Law and Covenant Renewal. In this long section, the Book of the Law is solemnly read, the Feast of Booths is kept, and a great act of covenant renewal is performed. For the first time in this book, Ezra enters the narrative. This section shows the unity of his and Nehemiah's projects. With the walls securely in place, the centrality of the Mosaic law is once again made prominent, since it is not security alone that is essential to the life of the community, nor even the temple, but trust in God and obedience to God's Word as revealed through Moses. The whole passage has Leviticus 23 especially in mind.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:1–8 The Law Is Read. Ezra reads the Book of the Law to all the people, and the Levites ensure that everyone has understood it.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:1 The Water Gate. See note on 3:26. The people could have gathered either inside or outside the gate. the Book of the Law of Moses. The phrase presumably refers here to all or most of what is known as the Pentateuch, though in Deuteronomy similar expressions apparently refer to that book in particular (Deut. 28:58, 61; 31:9; see also 2 Kings 22:8).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:2 priest. Ezra had authorization from Artaxerxes (Ezra 7:25–26), but more importantly, from the Mosaic law itself (Deut. 33:10). the assembly. The people of Israel gathered for worship. The inclusion of both men and women is stressed, since the strict keeping of the great Jerusalem feasts was expected of men only (Deut. 16:16–17). all who could understand. "Understanding" is a key theme in this chapter, since it was vital that all should be able to know and learn God's ways as revealed to Israel. The reading and teaching of the law may have been neglected in the generations since the first return from Babylon. The first day of the seventh month was a day of "solemn rest," like a Sabbath, in the month in which the Day of Atonement was kept and the Feast of Booths was celebrated (see Lev. 23:24–25, 27, 34). Remarkably, the Day of Atonement is apparently not observed on this occasion, or at least its observance is not recorded.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:3 from early morning until midday. The book was lengthy, and there may have been frequent pauses for explanation of the text (see note on v. 7).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:4 The platform, together with the group of leading men standing with Ezra, emphasized the solemnity of the reading, and allowed all the people to see and hear Ezra.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:5 opened the book. The act of reading, in this carefully organized setting, is also a corporate act of worship.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:7 The Levites presumably moved among the crowd, ensuring that all could understand what was being read. Such interpretation was one of their special tasks (see also Deut. 33:10; 2 Chron. 17:7–9). In order to facilitate this teaching, the law may have been read in manageable sections. The kind of understanding meant is primarily spiritual, though there could also have been problems with basic concepts and even language and audibility.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:8 They read. The verse sums up vv. 3–7 and combines the reading and interpreting, though the primary reading was done by Ezra.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:9–12 The People Are to Be Joyful. Though sorrow for sin was a positive response, joy at renewed relationship with God was the teaching's ultimate purpose.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:9 Nehemiah and Ezra together decide that this holy day (Lev. 23:24) should be one of joy, though the reading has led many to sense the need to repent of their sins.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:10 the joy of the LORD is your strength. As the people rejoiced in God and delighted in his presence, he would show himself strong to help them and defend them. "Joy" was a keynote because God had saved Israel, in both the remote and the recent past, and this story of salvation would have been told again in the reading of the Book of the Law.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:12 eat … drink … send portions. These are important themes of worship in Deuteronomy, where worship was associated with God's rich gifts and the privilege of sharing them (Deut. 12:12; 14:23, 26, 27–29).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:13–18 The People Keep the Feast of Booths. This family-oriented festival highlighted God's protection of Israel in the desert before the conquest.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:13–14 The following day, the leaders of the community, taking up their responsibility for studying the Law, realize that they are in the month of the Feast of Booths, or the feast of the seventh month (Lev. 23:33–43).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:15 The people kept this feast by living in temporary dwellings made from branches to commemorate how they had lived in booths in the wilderness after God had brought them out of Egypt (Lev. 23:43).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:17 from the days of Jeshua the son of Nun. "Jeshua" is another form of "Joshua." had not done so. Although the Feast of Booths had been celebrated on occasion (cf. 1 Kings 8:65; 2 Chron. 7:9; Ezra 3:4), it had apparently not been celebrated in this way (with such overwhelming joy, or in such unsettled conditions, or with all the people participating).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 8:18 seven days. See Lev. 23:34. For the reading of the law at the Feast of Booths (every seven years), see Deut. 31:10–11.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:1–38 A Prayer of Confession, Penitence, and Covenant Commitment. The next phase in the great act of covenant renewal is a prayer of praise, confession, and petition.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:1 the twenty-fourth day. It is still the seventh month, after the seven days of the Feast of Booths and an eighth day of solemn assembly (8:18).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:2 separated themselves from all foreigners. This is in line with the measures described in Ezra 9–10. Here it refers not just to marriage but to the integrity of the community in general. iniquities of their fathers. That is, of all previous generations, as in the prayer that follows (Neh. 9:6–37).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:3 Book of the Law. See note on 8:1.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:4–5 Some of these leading Levites were among those who interpreted the law while Ezra read it (8:7–8). They now lead in prayer. Ezra himself has fallen into the background. Yet some translations have "And Ezra said" at the beginning of 9:6, following the ancient Greek text (see esv footnote), not the Hebrew.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:6–37 The prayer resembles in part Ezra's prayer of confession upon his discovery of the problem of mixed marriages (Ezra 9:6–15). It has even more in common with certain psalms of confession (such as Psalm 78; 105–106), which interweave confession with memories of God's grace, and notes of petition. The prayer follows the biblical story as told in Genesis–Kings.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:6–8 The Levites' prayer begins with Genesis: the universal God of creation chose Abram and brought his descendants into the land he promised to them.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:6 You are the LORD, you alone. The uniqueness of Israel's God was proclaimed in the story of creation. heaven … the earth. Together these sum up the whole creation (see Gen. 1:1; Ex. 20:11). All their host could refer to either angels or stars.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:7 Ur of the Chaldeans is in southern Mesopotamia (see Gen. 11:31). the name Abraham. See Gen. 17:5.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:8 the covenant. God promised Abraham both descendants and land when he made a covenant with him. This was essentially a covenant of promise (Gen. 15:18–21; 17:4–8). The promise to drive out other nations has particular overtones in this period of restoration to the land. you are righteous. This is one of God's essential characteristics (Deut. 32:4; Ps. 119:137), shown here in his faithfulness to his promises.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:9–15 The prayer now recalls God's deliverance of Israel in the exodus from Egypt, as told in the book of Exodus.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:9–11 heard their cry at the Red Sea. This telescopes the whole story from Exodus 2–15 (see Ex. 2:23–25; 14:1–15:27). signs and wonders … divided the sea. This phrase refers to the miracles done against Pharaoh to compel him to release the Israelites (Exodus 7–15).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:12 The pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire provided God's guidance (see Ex. 13:21–22).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:13–14 Mount Sinai is the place of the Mosaic covenant, where God gave the Ten Commandments and other rules, laws, statutes, and commandments, i.e., detailed instructions applying the force of the Ten Commandments to many cases in life. Law codes are found in Ex. 20:22–23:19; Leviticus; Deuteronomy 12–26.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:15 bread from heaven … water. Cf. Ex. 16:14–15; 17:6.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:16–18 Israel has often rebelled against God and must rely on his grace (see Deut. 9:4–6). appointed a leader. See Num. 14:4. The people must have gone ahead and chosen a different leader, though Numbers 14 contains no record of the actual appointment. Golden calf refers to the apostasy committed while the covenant was still being made at Sinai (Exodus 32; Deut. 9:7–21). Yet God was ready to forgive, gracious and merciful (Neh. 9:17). See Ex. 34:6–7. God immediately made a new covenant and promised his continued presence, despite Israel's sin.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:19–21 The Levites' confession continues to recount God's goodness in the wilderness.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:21 Forty years. See Deut. 2:7. Their clothes did not wear out and their feet did not swell. From Deut. 8:4, recounting God's extraordinary preservation.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:22–25 At this point the prayer retells in brief the story of the occupation of the land. It covers the events of the book of Joshua, using the language of Deuteronomy. Sihon … Og. See Deut. 2:26–3:11. stars of heaven. See Deut. 1:10.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:25 a rich land. See Deut. 6:10–11; 8:7–10. The prospect of a plentiful land was accompanied in Deuteronomy by warnings that wealth could lead to abandonment of God (Deut. 6:12–15; 8:11–20). This is precisely what happened.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:26–28 This pattern of sin, judgment, repentance, and deliverance is typical of the book of Judges. killed your prophets. Cf. Matt. 23:31; Acts 7:52.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:29–31 The idea of God's long patience with the Israelites' sin, calling them back by the prophets but ending finally in judgment, is the story of 1–2 Kings (see 2 Kings 17).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:30 into the hand of the peoples. For the northern kingdom this meant Assyria (2 Kings 17), while for Judah it meant Babylon (2 Kings 24–25).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:31 you did not make an end of them. Second Chronicles 36:22–23 and the books of Ezra and Nehemiah demonstrate this.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:32–33 All the hardship refers to the sufferings of both exiles (Assyrian and Babylonian). The people have suffered greatly, yet God has been righteous (v. 33) in his judgment (see note on v. 8).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:34–35 The prayer acknowledges again that the people sinned amid God's blessing.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:36–37 we are slaves. This sinfulness explains why the people are not yet entirely free and why the blessings of the land are not yet fully enjoyed under Persian rule, even though that rule is somewhat gentler than was the rule of Assyria and Babylon.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 9:38 To mend the situation, the people will now enter a solemn covenant (Hb. 'amanah). The word used is not the usual word for "covenant," which is berit, but a rarer one that emphasizes faithfulness; the people pledge to keep faithfully what they now undertake.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:1–39 Signatories and Specific Commitments. Many of the people agree to the covenant, and they accept the responsibility of funding the temple's activities.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:1–27 The long list of those who put their names to the covenant is designed to show that the entire community—priests, Levites, and lay leaders—was wholeheartedly behind it. These are prominent people in the community; many of their names have appeared before in Nehemiah (esp. in vv. 20–27; see also ch. 3).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:28–39 The people essentially undertake to keep the entire Mosaic law. The enumeration of laws is selective, however, highlighting major issues of their day.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:28–29 The range of those who solemnly agreed to the covenant is now widened to include all groups in the community.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:29 a curse and an oath. The two expressions convey together the people's serious intention to keep their commitment. The "curse" refers to some terrible penalty, perhaps performed as a ritual, that they accept as their due if they fail (see 1 Kings 19:2; Jer. 34:18). commandments … rules … statutes. See note on Neh. 9:13–14.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:30 The Mosaic prohibition of intermarriage with the peoples of the land (as worshipers of other gods) is in the forefront because it was such a problem in the recent past (Ezra 9–10).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:31 The Sabbath commandment (Ex. 20:8–11; Deut. 5:12–15) was no doubt important as a key marker of Israel's identity compared with the surrounding groups of people who did not acknowledge Yahweh as their God. Trading with these people on the Sabbath must have been a temptation (see Neh. 13:16–22). crops of the seventh year. The Sabbath idea extended to the seventh year, when the normal work of cultivation was prohibited (Lev. 25:2–7).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:32 third part of a shekel. No Pentateuchal law requires this tax, so it is a new commitment. (See, however, Moses' particular levy in Ex. 30:11–16.) The purpose is to support the service of the house of our God; God's people must be true to their calling as a worshiping community.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:33 This is intended as a comprehensive list of the offerings and occasions of temple worship. showbread. See Lev. 24:5–9.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:34 wood offering. Again, no specific law requires this tax, but the need for it is implied in Lev. 6:12–13; for this reason it is said, it is written in the Law.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:35–37 These verses summarize the agricultural offerings made to supply the temple personnel, as specified in various Pentateuchal laws (e.g., Ex. 23:19; 34:26; Num. 18:12–13; Deut. 26:1–11). These offerings were not always paid (see Neh. 13:10).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:36 firstborn of our sons. In fact, these were "redeemed" by sacrifice (Ex. 13:13; 34:20). herds … flocks. See Num. 18:15–18 and Deut. 15:19–23.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:37 first of our dough. See Num. 15:20–21 and Deut. 18:4. Tithes are due to the Levites according to Num. 18:21–24, though the laity participates in a celebration of the tithe at the sanctuary in Deut. 14:22–27.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:38 the Levites shall bring up the tithe of the tithes to the house of our God. This refers to the Levites' offering of part of the tithe to the priests (Num. 18:25–32). Even those who serve in the temple were responsible to give to God from what they received.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 10:39 not neglect the house of our God. To maintain the temple personnel is at the same time to care for the temple and to honor God, and thus to foster covenant faithfulness.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:1–12:43 The Population of Jerusalem and the Villages; Priests and Levites. These chapters depict the people's efforts to populate Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:1–36 Those Who Lived in Jerusalem and the Villages of Judah. This chapter addresses the need to maintain a proportion of the population in Jerusalem, and records the names of leaders who lived there. Populated villages of Judah are also named.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:1 The leaders of the community are concentrated in Jerusalem, but the picture of an underpopulated city is reinforced here (see also 7:4). The people in the provincial towns cast lots to decide who should relocate to the capital. one out of ten. It is not said how the people decided on this plan.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:2 the men who willingly offered. Perhaps this implies that there were not enough of them to make up the required one in 10 (v. 1), but another interpretation is that this is simply another way of describing those who were chosen to go to Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:3 The temple servants, along with gatekeepers and singers (vv. 19, 21–22), were classes of Levites (see Ezra 2:40–43). the descendants of Solomon's servants. See note on Ezra 2:55–58.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:4 sons of Judah … sons of Benjamin. These were the two tribes of the southern kingdom (see 1 Kings 12:21–23) that had composed the exiles in Babylon, and now compose the community that has been restored.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:9 second over the city. See also 3:9, 12. It is not made clear how these offices relate.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:11 The ruler of the house of God is the high priest.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:12 of the house. This probably means inside the temple; contrast v. 16.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:16 the outside work of the house of God. This is a lesser role than that of the priests in v. 12, befitting the Levites' lower rank.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:20–21 the rest of Israel. That is, after a tenth of the population had been resettled in Jerusalem (v. 1). His inheritance refers to one's ancestral property (see note on Ezra 2:59–63–63). Ophel. See note on Neh. 3:26.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:23–24 command from the king. This must mean the Persian king (rather than King David, who had originally organized the Levitical singers; 1 Chronicles 25), since the note about Pethahiah as being at the king's side must mean that this person was responsible for Jewish affairs at the royal court. He may have taken over in this role from Ezra for reasons unknown.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:25–36 This list of villages is prompted by the allusion to the population in the province as opposed to Jerusalem (see v. 1). A number of the place-names in Judah occur also in Josh. 15:20–63. For the villages of Benjamin, see also Ezra 2:26–33. See map.

Judea under Persian Rule

538–332 B.C.

Under Persian rule, the lands of Israel (now called Samaria) and Judah (now called Judea) were minor provinces within the satrapy called Beyond the River. Returning Judeans settled mostly in the province of Judea, but a few settled in the plain of Ono and Idumea as well. The fact that the plain of Ono lay outside the jurisdiction of Judea may explain why Nehemiah suspected that the other local governors intended to do him harm there.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:30 from Beersheba to the Valley of Hinnom. The people of Judah lived in the area south of Jerusalem. Beersheba was in the far south of the territory, and the Valley of Hinnom was on the southern edge of Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:31–35 The villages of Benjamin lie mainly to the north and west of Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 11:36 The Levites were in effect a third tribe in the restored community, for they originally had settlements throughout the land (see Joshua 21). This verse simply records that since the restored community did not consist of Judah alone, the Levites did not relate only to that tribe.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:1–26 High Priests and Leading Levites since the Time of Zerubbabel. This section records the priests and Levites from the time of Zerubbabel (c. 538–535 B.C.) to Nehemiah. The aim is to show that the Levitical service was sustained during a very difficult era in Israel’s history.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:1b–9 A list of priests in the time of Zerubbabel is listed, followed by a list of Levites from the same time.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:1a Zerubbabel … and Jeshua. Zerubbabel was the first leader of the exiles who returned to Judah following the decree of King Cyrus in 538 B.C., and Jeshua was the high priest who returned with him. This was about a century before Nehemiah (see note on Ezra 2:2a).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:12–21 Joiakim was high priest in succession to Jeshua (cf. v. 10), so this list now gives the priests in his day. It includes Ezra (v. 13), so Joiakim was evidently still high priest when Ezra came to Jerusalem. heads of fathers' houses (v. 12). The list proceeds by family names: thus, Meraiah was priest in the (priestly) family of Seraiah. Some of the family names occur in vv. 1–7.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:22–23 The Levites are now recorded by family. The period from the high priesthoods of Eliashib to Jaddua corresponds approximately to that in vv. 10–11. As with the priests, a record was kept according to families.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:22 Darius the Persian is a reference to Darius I (522–486 B.C.), king of Persia at the time of Zerubbabel and the building of the temple (see Ezra 4:5, 24; 5:1–17; 6:1–22).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:23 Book of the Chronicles. This is not the biblical book of that name, but simply a record of names, perhaps kept by the priests.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:24–26 This is a similar record (see v. 23) for the time of Joiakim and later (see v. 10). David the man of God. That is, David as a prophet as recorded in v. 36; 1 Chron. 25:2; 2 Chron. 8:14. In each of these texts his prophetic ministry was in connection with the organization of the priests and Levites for the temple service. Joiakim was high priest in Ezra's time (see Neh. 12:12), though by Nehemiah's time apparently Eliashib held that office (3:1). But the whole period of Ezra and Nehemiah is here regarded as unified and associated with Joiakim.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:27–43 Dedication of the Walls. This section describes the Levites' role at the dedication of the completed city wall. Two great choirs precede the leaders in two companies on the wall, north and south.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:27 Gladness … singing is reminiscent of the joy at the completion of the temple (Ezra 3:10–13). Joy is the right attitude at all feasts of celebration before the Lord (see Deut. 12:18; 16:14; Neh. 8:9–12).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:28–29 Families of Levitical singers had settled in villages around Jerusalem to be near the place of their work. The Netophathites were from Netophah, near Bethlehem. Beth-gilgal is presumably the same as Gilgal, near Jericho (see Josh. 4:19). Geba and Azmaveth were to the north of Jerusalem.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:30 They had purified themselves, as in readiness for a solemn act of worship (see Ex. 19:10, 14–15), perhaps by certain ritual acts such as washing clothes (Num. 8:5–7).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:31–37 Two great choirs symbolically enclose the whole city for the purpose of the dedication. Ezra goes with the southern group, accompanied by half the leaders of Judah and priests playing instruments. Dung Gate (v. 31). See note on 2:13–15. Fountain Gate … Water Gate (12:37). See notes on 3:15; 3:26; and map.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:38–43 Nehemiah goes with the group on the northern wall. The pattern is the same as for the southern wall.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:38–39 For the topographical details, see 2:11–16 and 3:1–32.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:40 Both processions continue into the temple area, where they meet for the culmination of the ceremony.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:43 joy of Jerusalem. See note on v. 27.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:44–13:31 Nehemiah Deals with Problems in the Community. This section records problems that arose in the administration and practice of storing contributions for the temple and its personnel. It also describes Nehemiah’s ongoing problems with his people and his opponents.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:44–47 The Administration of Offerings for the Temple. The purpose of this section is to recall that the work of the priests and Levites had been put in place from ancient times, and that since the days of Zerubbabel (a century before Nehemiah) they had been duly provided for.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:44 On that day. Arrangements for overseeing the proper collection of tithes and other offerings are made afresh at the time of the dedication of the wall. For the offerings themselves, see notes on 10:35–37; 10:38; 10:39. portions required by the Law. The Pentateuchal requirement (Lev. 7:33) applied only to the priests, but here it is widened to include all the Levites (an adaptation to the needs of the postexilic community; 2 Chron. 31:19 probably records a similar adaptation).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 12:45–46 The roles of the various branches of Levites are recapitulated. command of David. See v. 24.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:1–9 Ejection of Tobiah the Ammonite from the Temple. Nehemiah's opponents were as resilient as he was. His absences led to setbacks. Still in connection with the ceremony of dedication, a new resolution is made in respect to protecting the community from foreign religion.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:1–2 On that day. See 12:44. no Ammonite or Moabite. This text closely follows Deut. 23:3–5, which expressly excluded Moabites and Ammonites from the religious assembly of Israel (for several generations) because of their historical enmity against Israel and their infectious idolatry (see Numbers 22–25).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:3 separated … foreign descent. This resembles the measures taken by Ezra a decade or so earlier (Ezra 9–10), but there is no sign here of compulsory divorce. Note Ezra 6:21, which allowed foreigners to join Israel if they embraced the Jewish religion, as in the book of Ruth (who was a Moabite).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:4–9 The connection of these verses with vv. 1–3 lies in the fact that Tobiah, already known to be an enemy of the community (2:10; 4:7–8), was an Ammonite. Eliashib's offense is also related to the theme of the proper administration of tithes and offerings (12:44), because Tobiah has been given a room in the temple reserved for these.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:4 Now before this. The time is unspecified.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:6 I was not in Jerusalem. When Nehemiah was given leave of absence, the king had required him to name a time for his return (2:6). It is not clear whether he had traveled more than once between Jerusalem and the royal court. In any case, he is now called back in the thirty-second year (433 B.C.; cf. 1:1) for an unspecified time. The journey to Susa took about 55 days to travel the 1,100 miles (1,770 km), and another 55 days to return (averaging 20 miles or 32 km per day). Eliashib (see 12:10) may have been opposed to Nehemiah's policy of strict separation from the community's neighbors, and thus may have taken advantage of his perhaps lengthy absence. king of Babylon. An unexpected name for the Persian Artaxerxes; but see Ezra 5:13 and 6:22, where Persian kings are called king of Babylon and Assyria, respectively. This is because the successive empires in some sense took on the identity of their predecessors. In addition, Artaxerxes might actually have been holding court in Babylon at the time. Nehemiah's return to Jerusalem must have been before Artaxerxes' death in 423 B.C.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:9 Cleansed, that is, purified in a ritual sense. Nehemiah sees the misuse of the temple as a desecration. He restores the polluted area to its proper use.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:10–14 Dealing with Neglect of the Offerings. The incident in the temple was not isolated, for the provision for the clergy had effectively lapsed, and as a result the worship itself had suffered because the clergy had to leave Jerusalem, which was disastrous for the community. Contrast the commitments made by the people in 10:32–39. Nehemiah once again puts the administration of the offerings on a firm footing, so that the restored community can actually live out its covenant privilege.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:11 I confronted the officials. Note Nehemiah's fearless action (see also v. 17).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:14 Remember me. This prayer, asking in typical idiom (see 1:8; 5:19; 6:14) that God should take note of his faithful actions, somewhat resembles certain psalms, in which the psalmist pleads his righteousness in the context of praise (e.g., Psalm 7; 17; see also Neh. 13:22, 29–30).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:15–22 Dealing with Sabbath Breaking. The community once again sins, this time by breaking the Sabbath, which leads Nehemiah to rebuke the people.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:15–16 The people of Judah break the Sabbath by trading. Tyrians. Foreigners would not be bound by the Sabbath law, of course, but they find a ready market among the Jews.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:18 Did not your fathers act in this way … ? Sabbath breach was a telling aspect of previous generations' lax attitude toward the Torah (see Jer. 17:19–27; Amos 8:4–6). Here the exile is attributed to it.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:19–22 Nehemiah still has enough personal authority and resources to enforce his reforms (though it is not clear whether he is still governor at this point).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:22 the Levites … purify themselves. Implicitly, through negligence, the gatekeeper Levites had been failing in their duties and needed to be ritually purified again for their task.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:23–29 The Problem of Intermarriage Again. Ignoring covenantal commitments (like Sabbath keeping) that should have sustained Israelite identity had led to intermarriage with persons of other religions.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:23–27 Ezra's measures (Ezra 9–10) apparently had little lasting effect. The real problem of mixed marriages is illustrated vividly here, as the children of these unions, in losing the language of Judah (Neh. 13:24), were in effect losing their entire religious heritage.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:25–27 In his violent but symbolically powerful reaction, Nehemiah calls the people back to the Mosaic law (Deut. 7:1–5) and points to the example of Solomon, who was turned from faithfulness to the Lord by his foreign wives (1 Kings 11).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:28 The spiritual adulteration through intermarriage has even affected the family of the high priest Eliashib, who once more appears on the side of religious laxity.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:29 Remember them. See also 6:14. covenant of the priesthood. A reference to the special obligations laid on the priests and Levites, for the sake of the whole people (cf. 1 Sam. 2:27–36; Mal. 2:4–9).

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:30–31 Summary of Nehemiah's Temple Reforms. These verses highlight all that Nehemiah has done to ensure pure worship in the temple and to establish proper support for the priests.

NEHEMIAH—NOTE ON 13:31 wood offering. See 10:34. Remember me. See 13:14. This prayer stands alone, and may be taken as a general prayer that God should keep in view all of Nehemiah's work, from start to finish.

Introduction to Esther

Author and Title

Like many OT books, Esther is an anonymous work. The only hints of its origin are the references it contains to some of the key events of the story being committed to writing in either official court records (2:23; 6:1) or edicts issued by the king or his representatives (3:12–15; 8:8–14). It is possible that the author was someone like Mordecai, who had access to such material and a keen interest in Jewish affairs. His familiarity with Persian customs of the time suggests that he lived not long after the events described.

However, certain features of the book have troubled both Jewish and Christian readers: it does not mention God, it promotes a festival not prescribed in the Law of Moses, and it has an apparently vindictive spirit that some have found offensive. As late as the Reformation, Martin Luther criticized it on the grounds that it was too aggressively Jewish and had no gospel content. Nevertheless, it was recognized as Scripture by the Jews well before the time of Christ—a long tradition clearly evident in Jewish writings just after the NT. For example, Josephus says that the Jewish Scriptures were written from the time of Moses “until Artaxerxes” (Against Apion 1.40–41), and elsewhere he identifies this Artaxerxes as “Ahasuerus” in the book of Esther (Jewish Antiquities 11.184). Therefore he apparently counts Esther as the last book to be written in the Jewish canon. And the Mishnah has an entire tractate (Megillah) that discusses the time and manner of reading Esther publicly on the Feast of Purim. The Jewish scholar Aquila included Esther in his translation of the Hebrew Bible into Greek around A.D. 130. In the Christian church, Esther was listed among the books of the OT canon at the Council of Carthage in A.D. 397 but was widely and perhaps universally accepted in the Western church before that time (though doubts about its canonicity had persisted among some in the Eastern church).

Date

Since the book of Esther is anonymous, it cannot be dated by the years of its author. However, it matches well the time period in which it is set (the reign of Ahasuerus, 486–464 B.C.); hence it is probably from this time or soon thereafter.

Theme

The book of Esther tells how a Jewish girl became the queen of Persia and saved her people from a plot to destroy them. She is assisted in this by Mordecai, her cousin and guardian. It also explains how a special festival, called Purim, was established to recall and celebrate the deliverance that the Jews had experienced.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

As its content makes clear, Esther was written to explain the origin of the Feast of Purim and to ensure that it would be observed by all future generations of the Jewish people (9:28). It is also clear that it has achieved this purpose, since Jews have continued to observe Purim to the present day, with the book of Esther being read as part of the festivities.

The word Purim is derived from the Persian word pur (“lot”) and recalls how Haman, the enemy of the Jews, cast lots to determine the best day to carry out his plan to exterminate them (3:7). Of all the Jewish festivals, Purim is the most secular in flavor, and one of the most joyful. These days it is normally celebrated on only one day, the fourteenth of Adar (in February/March), preceded by a day of fasting. Children are given gragers (rattles) so that, when the story of Esther is read, they can make a loud noise to drown out the name of the wicked Haman whenever it occurs. Other festivities include exchanging presents, giving food parcels to the poor, performing Purim plays, and wearing costumes. In Israel, a Purim carnival is held. It has become a celebration, not just of the deliverance experienced in the days of Esther and Mordecai, but of the amazing survival of the Jewish people for thousands of years in spite of persecution and hardship.

In terms of biblical history, Esther belongs to the period after the Babylonian exile, when Persia had replaced Babylon as the ruling power.

The story is set in Susa, the Persian capital, during the reign of King Ahasuerus, better known by his Greek name, Xerxes I (486–464 B.C.). Some Jews had returned to Jerusalem, where they enjoyed a reasonable amount of control over their own affairs as described in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah. Others, like Esther and Mordecai, were still in exile. As a minority group, the Jews were viewed with suspicion and sometimes faced threats to their existence from people in a position to harm them. In this respect Esther and Mordecai's situation was similar to that of Daniel and his friends a century or so earlier.

Apart from the book of Esther itself, the main sources of information about Persia in the relevant period are the writings of the Greek historian Herodotus (c. 485–425 B.C.) and a limited amount of relevant archaeological evidence from Susa and elsewhere. Esther herself is not mentioned in these sources, and Herodotus gives the name of Xerxes' wife as Amestris. However, Xerxes may have had more than one wife, and it was Esther who was of special interest to the biblical author. In other respects the details of the book agree with what is known of the period from other sources (e.g., see notes on 1:1; 1:2–3; 1:4; 2:5; 2:6; 2:7; 2:15; 2:16; 2:18).

Key Themes

Esther does much more than explain the origin of Purim. It is a most entertaining story, and it communicates some important truths about how and why the Jews survived such an overwhelming threat. This message can be summarized under three headings:

1. Divine providence. While God is never mentioned in the book, there are many hints of his presence. The downfall of Vashti (1:10–22), the decision to hold an elaborate "beauty contest" as a way of replacing her (2:1–18), and Mordecai's overhearing of a plot against the king (2:19–23) all conspire to move Esther and Mordecai into positions of power before the threat posed by Haman emerges (3:1–3). Once it does, the perfect timing of apparently fortuitous events again and again tips the balance in favor of the Jews and against their enemies. The king's insomnia on the night before Mordecai's execution (6:1–3), Haman's entry at the moment Ahasuerus is wondering how to reward Mordecai (6:6), and the king's return just when Haman is falling on Esther's couch (7:8) all significantly affect the eventual outcome, but none is knowingly caused by any of the human characters.

Moreover, the characters themselves seem to be aware that something more than chance is shaping events. Mordecai is sure the Jews will be delivered in some way or other and suspects that Esther has "come to the kingdom for such a time as this" (4:14). Even Haman's wife knows that if Mordecai is a Jew, then Haman is destined to fall before him (6:13), and Esther's calling of a fast before approaching the king can hardly be anything other than an appeal for divine help (4:16).

The deliverance experienced here in Esther is very different from the exodus from Egypt in the time of Moses. There are no signs and wonders, no special revelations, no prophet like Moses—and no one even mentions God! Yet the way the story is told makes it clear that, even when God is most hidden, he is still present and working to protect and deliver his chosen people.

2. Human responsibility. Although the story shows that the outcome is a divine gift rather than a human achievement, Esther and Mordecai do show great initiative and courage, and their actions are obviously significant. A little over a century earlier, the prophet Jeremiah had written to the exiles in Babylon about the responsibilities and benefits of good citizenship, especially under foreign rule: "Thus says the Lord … seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile, and pray to the Lord on its behalf, for in its welfare you will find your welfare" (Jer. 29:4–7).

Esther and Mordecai are not unambiguously noble in the way that Daniel and his friends were. Nevertheless, Mordecai's action when he discovers a plot to harm the king (Est. 2:19–23) is a good example of someone behaving as Jeremiah had advised, and it shows the benefits that this can bring. Furthermore, Esther's careful planning, along with her willingness to put her own life at risk to save her people, is especially heroic (4:16). Esther and Mordecai both illustrate the fact that divine providence does not negate the responsibility of people to act with courage and resolve when circumstances require it.

3. The absurdity of wickedness. Ahasuerus and Haman were important people who wielded considerable power. But the story of Esther again and again evokes laughter at their expense. Ahasuerus rules over 127 provinces but cannot control his wife (Queen Vashti), and his so-called "wise men" are no better (1:12–13). But the most telling humor is at the expense of Haman. The reader is clearly meant to laugh at the way his vanity traps him into having to publicly honor the very man he intended to kill (6:6–11), and his death on the gallows he had prepared for Mordecai (7:8–10) is a classic case of a villain falling into his own pit (cf. Ps. 7:15). This is all obviously meant to teach that the arrogant of this world are not nearly as powerful as they think they are, and that when they oppose God's people (and therefore God himself) they only succeed in bringing about their own destruction. God laughs at such people (Ps. 2:4), and the story of Esther invites us to laugh with him.

Relevance for Christians Today

Esther is part of a much larger story that runs all the way from Abraham to Christ and, through him, to the church. If Haman had succeeded, the Jewish people as a whole would have been destroyed, and the story of God's saving work in and through Abraham's descendants would have come to an end. There would have been no fulfillment in Christ, and therefore no gospel and no Christian church. Nothing less than that was at stake. That is why Christians should read the book of Esther, not just as a story about the Jews but as part of their own heritage. It is because of this fundamental connection between God's purposes in the OT and NT that Christians are to value and learn from the whole Bible as the Word of God (see 1 Cor. 10:11). This side of the cross, Jews and Gentiles have been made one new people in Christ (Eph. 2:11–16). Christians are not obliged to observe the Feast of Purim, but they are to take to heart the truth that God providentially watches over his own, and that no power leveled against them can ultimately prevail (Rom. 8:28).

Sadly, the evil of anti-Semitism still exists, and it would be foolish to think that Christians are immune from it. The history of the church indicates otherwise, and, as part of the Christian Canon, the book of Esther still warns against it. But the only real solution to it is the gospel, and the transformation God brings about in the hearts of those who believe it. That is a beginning, however, not an end, and Christians are called to live in a world with some striking resemblances to the one Esther and Mordecai lived in. Governing authorities are often indifferent and sometimes even hostile to the faith of believers, and especially in the West, events often take their normal course with little or no evidence of the miraculous. But the book of Esther, like the NT, teaches how to live in that world with courage and integrity, carrying out responsibilities to the best of one's ability and trusting God in his providence to protect and provide.

History of Salvation Summary

For each following generation of Jews, the book of Esther answers the question, "How is it that we are still here?" by pointing to God's often hidden purpose. In the larger story of the Canon, it shows how God has preserved the offspring of Abraham for his purpose of bringing blessing to the whole world through them by raising up the Messiah and by including Gentile believers in his people. Thus Gentile Christians own this as their story too. (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

The book of Esther is a story par excellence. It has virtually all the ingredients that people through the ages have most loved in a story—a beautiful and courageous heroine, a romantic love thread, a dire threat to the good characters, a thoroughly evil villain, suspense, dramatic irony, evocative descriptions of exotic places, sudden reversal of action, poetic justice, and a happy ending.

The specific type of story represented by the book of Esther is hero story, as the action is constructed around the engaging central figure of a heroine whose Persian name Esther means "star." But the story is also a patriotic story of national history—a rescue story in which a whole nation is delivered from destruction. The U-shaped descent into potential tragedy and ascent to a happy ending is a plot pattern known as comedy.

The heroine Esther is a developing character, not a character who displays admirable qualities right from the start. In her early days in the harem, she fits right in with the pagan lifestyle that prevails among the young women who spend a whole year beautifying themselves in a spa. People in the harem do not even know that Esther is a religious person. She has two names, hinting at the identity crisis that she undergoes when she rises to the highest level of Persian society. But Esther becomes heroic when she is transformed by the ordeal of needing to save her nation.

There is satire (the exposure of vice or folly) in the book, focused especially on the character of Haman, who is both narcissistic and vengeful.

The Persian Empire at the Time of Esther

c. 479 B.C.

Long before Esther's time, the people of Israel and Judah (later called Jews) had been dispersed throughout the Near East by the Assyrians and the Babylonians. Eventually the Persians absorbed nearly all of these lands into their empire, which reached its greatest extent during the time of Esther. Thus Haman's plot to exterminate all Jews throughout the Persian Empire would have annihilated virtually all of the Jewish people, and Esther's daring actions saved them from complete destruction.

Esther

The King’s Banquets

ESTHER 1 [†]Now in the days of Ahasuerus, the Ahasuerus who reigned [a] from India to Ethiopia over [b] 127 provinces, [2][†]in those days when King Ahasuerus [c] sat on his royal throne in [d] Susa, the citadel, [3]in the third year of his reign [e] he gave a feast for all his officials and servants. The army of Persia and Media and the nobles and governors of the provinces were before him, [4][†]while he showed the riches of his royal glory and the splendor and pomp of his greatness for many days, 180 days. [5][†]And when these days were completed, the king gave for all the people present in Susa the citadel, both great and small, a feast lasting for seven days in the court of [f] the garden of the king’s palace. [6][†]There were white cotton curtains and violet hangings fastened with cords of fine linen and purple to silver rods [1] and marble pillars, and also [g] couches of gold and silver on a mosaic pavement of porphyry, marble, mother-of-pearl and precious stones. [7]Drinks were served in golden vessels, vessels of different kinds, and the royal wine was lavished according to the bounty of the king. [8]And drinking was according to this edict: “There is no compulsion.” For the king had given orders to all the staff of his palace to do as each man desired. [9][†]Queen Vashti also gave a feast for the women in the palace that belonged to King Ahasuerus.

Queen Vashti’s Refusal

[10][†]On the seventh day, [h] when the heart of the king was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, [i] Harbona, [j] Bigtha and Abagtha, Zethar and Carkas, the seven eunuchs who served in the presence of King Ahasuerus, [11]to bring Queen Vashti before the king with [k] her royal crown, [2] in order to show the peoples and the princes her beauty, for she was lovely to look at. [12][^][†]But Queen Vashti refused to come at the king’s command delivered by the eunuchs. At this the king became enraged, and his anger burned within him.

[13][†]Then the king said to [l]the wise men [m]who knew the times (for this was the king’s procedure toward all who were versed in law and judgment, [14][†]the men next to him being Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and [n]Memucan, [o]the seven princes of Persia and Media, [p]who saw the king’s face, and sat first in the kingdom): [15][†]“According to the law, what is to be done to Queen Vashti, because she has not performed the command of King Ahasuerus delivered by the eunuchs?” [16]Then Memucan said in the presence of the king and the officials, “Not only against the king has Queen Vashti done wrong, but also against all the officials and all the peoples who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. [17]For the queen’s behavior will be made known to all women, causing them to look at their husbands with contempt, since they will say, ‘King Ahasuerus commanded Queen Vashti to be brought before him, and she did not come.’ [18]This very day the noble women of Persia and Media who have heard of the queen’s behavior will say the same to all the king’s officials, and there will be contempt and wrath in plenty. [19][†]If it please the king, let a royal order go out from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes so [q]that it may not be repealed, that Vashti is never again to come before King Ahasuerus. And let the king give her royal position to another who is better than she. [20]So when the decree made by the king is proclaimed throughout all his kingdom, for it is vast, [r]all women will give honor to their husbands, high and low alike.” [21][†]This advice pleased the king and the princes, and the king did as Memucan proposed. [22]He sent letters to all the royal provinces, [s]to every province in its own script and to every people in its own language, that every man be master in his own household and speak according to the language of his people.

Esther Chosen Queen

ESTHER 2 [†]After these things, [t]when the anger of King Ahasuerus had abated, he remembered Vashti [u]and what she had done and what had been decreed against her. [2]Then the king’s young men who attended him said, “Let beautiful young virgins be sought out for the king. [3]And let the king appoint officers in all the provinces of his kingdom to gather all the beautiful young virgins to the harem in Susa the citadel, under custody of [v]Hegai, the king’s eunuch, who is in charge of the women. [w]Let their cosmetics be given them. [4]And let the young woman who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti.” This pleased the king, and he did so.

[5][†]Now there was a Jew in Susa the citadel whose name was [x]Mordecai, the son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, a Benjaminite, [6][†][y]who had been carried away from Jerusalem among the captives carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had carried away. [7][†]He was bringing up Hadassah, that is Esther, [z]the daughter of his uncle, for she had neither father nor mother. The young woman had a beautiful figure and was lovely to look at, and when her father and her mother died, Mordecai took her as his own daughter. [8][†]So when the king’s order and his edict were proclaimed, and [a]when many young women were gathered in Susa the citadel in custody of [b]Hegai, Esther also was taken into the king’s palace and put in custody of Hegai, who had charge of the women. [9]And the young woman pleased him and won his favor. And he quickly provided her [c]with her cosmetics and her portion of food, and with seven chosen young women from the king’s palace, and advanced her and her young women to the best place in the harem. [10][†][d]Esther had not made known her people or kindred, for Mordecai had commanded her not to make it known. [11]And every day Mordecai walked in front of the court of the harem to learn how Esther was and what was happening to her.

[12][†]Now when the turn came for each young woman to go in to King Ahasuerus, after being twelve months under the regulations for the women, since this was the regular period of their beautifying, six months with oil of myrrh and six months with spices and ointments for women— [13]when the young woman went in to the king in this way, she was given whatever she desired to take with her from the harem to the king’s palace. [14]In the evening she would go in, and in the morning she would return to the second harem in custody of Shaashgaz, the king’s eunuch, who was in charge of the concubines. She would not go in to the king again, unless the king delighted in her and she was summoned by name.

[15][^][†]When the turn came for Esther [e]the daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai, who had taken her as his own daughter, to go in to the king, she asked for nothing except what [f]Hegai the king's eunuch, who had charge of the women, advised. Now Esther was winning favor in the eyes of all who saw her. [16][‡]And when Esther was taken to King Ahasuerus, into his royal palace, in the tenth month, which is the month of Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign, [17]the king loved Esther more than all the women, and she won grace and favor in his sight more than all the virgins, so that he set [g] the royal crown [1] on her head and made her queen instead of Vashti.

[18][‡]Then the king [h] gave a great feast for all his officials and servants; it was Esther's feast. He also granted a remission of taxes to the provinces and gave gifts with royal generosity.

Mordecai Discovers a Plot

[19][‡]Now when the virgins were gathered together [i] the second time, Mordecai was sitting [j] at the king's gate. 20 [k] Esther had not made known her kindred or her people, as Mordecai had commanded her, for Esther obeyed Mordecai just [l] as when she was brought up by him. [21][‡]In those days, as Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate, [m] Bigthan and [n] Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, became angry and sought to lay hands on King Ahasuerus. [22][^][‡]And this came to the knowledge of Mordecai, [o] and he told it to Queen Esther, and Esther told the king in the name of Mordecai. [23]When the affair was investigated and found to be so, the men were both hanged on the gallows. [2] And it was recorded in [p] the book of the chronicles in the presence of the king.

Haman Plots Against the Jews

ESTHER 3 [‡]After these things King Ahasuerus [q] promoted Haman [r] the Agagite, the son of Hammedatha, [s] and advanced him and set his throne above all the officials who were with him. [2][‡]And all the king's servants who were at the king's gate bowed down and paid homage to Haman, for the king had so commanded concerning him. [t] But Mordecai did not bow down or pay homage. [3]Then the king's servants who were [u] at the king's gate said to Mordecai, "Why do you transgress [v] the king's command?"
[4]And when they spoke to him day after day and he would not listen to them, they told Haman, in order to see whether Mordecai’s words would stand, for he had told them that he was a Jew. [5][†]And when Haman saw that [t]Mordecai did not bow down or pay homage to him, Haman was [w]filled with fury. [6][^]But he disdained to lay hands on Mordecai alone. So, as they had made known to him the people of Mordecai, Haman sought to destroy all the Jews, the people of Mordecai, throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus.

[7][†]In the first month, which is the month of Nisan, in the twelfth year of King Ahasuerus, [x]they cast Pur (that is, they cast lots) before Haman day after day; and they cast it month after month till the twelfth month, which is [y]the month of Adar. [8][†]Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, “There is a certain people scattered abroad and dispersed among the peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom. [z]Their laws are different from those of every other people, and they do not keep the king’s laws, so that it is not to the king’s profit to tolerate them. [9][†]If it please the king, let it be decreed that they be destroyed, and I will pay 10,000 talents [1] of silver into the hands of those who have charge of the king’s business, that they may put it into the king’s treasuries.” [10][†] [a]So the king took his signet ring from his hand and gave it to Haman [b]the Agagite, the son of Hammedatha, [c]the enemy of the Jews. [11][†]And the king said to Haman, “The money is given to you, the people also, to do with them as it seems good to you.”

[12][†] [d]Then the king’s scribes were summoned on the thirteenth day of the first month, and an edict, according to all that Haman commanded, was written to the king’s [e]satraps and to the governors over all the provinces and to the officials of all the peoples, [f]to every province in its own script and every people in its own language. It was written [g]in the name of King Ahasuerus [h]and sealed with the king’s signet ring. [13][†]Letters were sent [i]by couriers to all the king’s provinces with instruction [j]to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate all Jews, young and old, women and children, [k]in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, [l]and to plunder their goods. [14] [m]A copy of the document was to be issued as a decree in every province by proclamation to all the peoples to be ready for that day. [15][†] [i]The couriers went out hurriedly by order of the king, and the decree was issued in Susa the citadel. And the king and Haman sat down to drink, [n] but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

Esther Agrees to Help the Jews

ESTHER 4 [†]When Mordecai learned all that had been done, Mordecai tore his clothes [o] and put on sackcloth and ashes, and went out into the midst of the city, and he cried out with a loud and bitter cry. [2]He went up to the entrance of the king's gate, for no one was allowed to enter the king's gate clothed in sackcloth. [3]And in every province, wherever the king's command and his decree reached, there was great mourning among the Jews, [p] with fasting and weeping and lamenting, and many of them [q] lay in sackcloth and ashes.

[4][†]When Esther's young women and her eunuchs came and told her, the queen was deeply distressed. She sent garments to clothe Mordecai, so that he might take off his sackcloth, but he would not accept them. [5]Then Esther called for Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs, who had been appointed to attend her, and ordered him to go to Mordecai to learn what this was and why it was. [6]Hathach went out to Mordecai in the open square of the city in front of the king's gate, [7]and Mordecai told him all that had happened to him, [r] and the exact sum of money that Haman had promised to pay into the king's treasuries for the destruction of the Jews. [8]Mordecai also gave him [s] a copy of the written decree issued in Susa for their destruction, that he might show it to Esther and explain it to her and command her to go to the king to beg his favor and plead with him on behalf of her people. [9]And Hathach went and told Esther what Mordecai had said. [10]Then Esther spoke to Hathach and commanded him to go to Mordecai and say, [11][†]"All the king's servants and the people of the king's provinces know that if any man or woman goes to the king inside [t] the inner court without being called, [u] there is but one law—to be put to death, except the one [v] to whom the king holds out the golden scepter so that he may live. But as for me, I have not been called to come in to the king these thirty days."

[12]And they told Mordecai what Esther had said. [13]Then Mordecai told them to reply to Esther, "Do not think to yourself that in the king's palace you will escape any more than all the other Jews. [14][†]For if you keep silent at this time, relief and deliverance will rise for the Jews from another place, but you and your father's house will perish. And who knows whether you have not come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" 15Then Esther told them to reply to Mordecai, 16[^][†]"Go, gather all the Jews to be found in Susa, and hold a fast on my behalf, and do not eat or drink for [w] three days, night or day. I and my young women will also fast as you do. Then I will go to the king, though it is against the law, [x] and if I perish, I perish." 17Mordecai then went away and did everything as Esther had ordered him.

Esther Prepares a Banquet

ESTHER 5 [†][y] On the third day Esther put on her royal robes and stood in [z] the inner court of the king's palace, in front of the king's quarters, while the king was sitting on his royal throne inside the throne room opposite the entrance to the palace. 2[^]And when the king saw Queen Esther standing in the court, [a] she won favor in his sight, [b] and he held out to Esther the golden scepter that was in his hand. Then Esther approached and touched the tip of the scepter. 3[†]And the king said to her, "What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? It shall be given you, even [c] to the half of my kingdom." 4[†]And Esther said, "If it please the king, let the king and Haman come today to a feast that I have prepared for the king." 5Then the king said, "Bring Haman quickly, so that we may do as Esther has asked." So the king and Haman came to the feast that Esther had prepared. 6[d] And as they were drinking wine after the feast, the king said to Esther, [e] "What is your wish? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? [c] Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled." 7Then Esther answered, "My wish and my request is: 8[†][f] If I have found favor in the sight of the king, and if it please the king to grant my wish and fulfill my request, let the king and Haman come to [g] the feast that I will prepare for them, and tomorrow I will do as the king has said."

Haman Plans to Hang Mordecai

9[†]And Haman went out that day [h] joyful and glad of heart. But when Haman saw Mordecai [i] in the king's gate, [j] that he neither rose nor trembled before him, he was filled with wrath against Mordecai. [10]Nevertheless, Haman restrained himself and went home, and he sent and brought his friends and [k]his wife Zeresh. [11][^]And Haman recounted to them the splendor of his riches, [l]the number of his sons, all the promotions with which [m]the king had honored him, and how he had advanced him above the officials and the servants of the king. [12]Then Haman said, "Even Queen Esther let no one but me come with the king to the feast she prepared. And tomorrow also I am invited by her together with the king. [13]Yet all this is worth nothing to me, so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting [i]at the king's gate." [14][†]Then [k]his wife Zeresh and all his friends said to him, [n]"Let a gallows [1] fifty cubits [2] high be made, and in the morning tell the king to have Mordecai hanged upon it. Then go joyfully with the king to the feast." This idea pleased Haman, and he had the gallows made.

The King Honors Mordecai

ESTHER 6 [†]On that night the king could not sleep. And he gave orders to bring [o]the book of memorable deeds, the chronicles, and they were read before the king. [2]And it was found written how [p]Mordecai had told about [q]Bigthana [1] and [r]Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, and who had sought to lay hands on King Ahasuerus. [3]And the king said, "What honor or distinction has been bestowed on Mordecai for this?" The king's young men who attended him said, "Nothing has been done for him." [4]And the king said, "Who is in the court?" Now Haman had just entered [s]the outer court of the king's palace to speak to the king about having Mordecai hanged on [t]the gallows [2] that he had prepared for him. [5][†]And the king's young men told him, "Haman is there, standing in the court." And the king said, "Let him come in." [6][†]So Haman came in, and the king said to him, "What should be done to the man [u]whom the king delights to honor?" And Haman said to himself, "Whom would the king delight to honor more than me?" [7][†]And Haman said to the king, "For the man whom the king delights to honor, [8]let royal robes be brought, which the king has worn, [v]and the horse that the king has ridden, and on whose head [w]a royal crown [3] is set. [9]And let the robes and the horse be handed over to one of the king's most noble officials. Let them dress the man whom the king delights to honor, and let them lead him on the horse through the square of the city, [x]proclaiming before him: 'Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delights to honor.'" [10][‡]Then the king said to Haman, "Hurry; take the robes and the horse, as you have said, and do so to Mordecai the Jew, who sits [y]at the king's gate. Leave out nothing that you have mentioned." [11]So Haman took the robes and the horse, and he dressed Mordecai and led him through the square of the city, proclaiming before him, "Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delights to honor."

[12][‡]Then Mordecai returned to the king's gate. But Haman hurried to his house, mourning [z]and with his head covered. [13]And Haman told [a]his wife Zeresh and all his friends everything that had happened to him. Then his wise men and his wife Zeresh said to him, "If Mordecai, before whom you have begun to fall, is of the Jewish people, you will not overcome him but will surely fall before him."

Esther Reveals Haman's Plot

[14][‡]While they were yet talking with him, the king's eunuchs arrived and hurried to bring Haman [b]to the feast that Esther had prepared.

ESTHER 7 So the king and Haman went in to feast with Queen Esther. [2][‡]And on the second day, as they were drinking wine after the feast, the king again said to Esther, [c]"What is your wish, Queen Esther? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? [d]Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled." [3]Then Queen Esther answered, [e]"If I have found favor in your sight, O king, and if it please the king, let my life be granted me for my wish, and my people for my request. [4][‡][f]For we have been sold, I and my people, [g]to be destroyed, to be killed, and to be annihilated. If we had been sold merely as slaves, men and women, I would have been silent, for our affliction is not to be compared with the loss to the king." [5]Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther, "Who is he, and where is he, who has dared [1] to do this?" [6]And Esther said, [h]"A foe and enemy! This wicked Haman!" Then Haman was terrified before the king and the queen.

Haman Is Hanged

[7][†]And the king arose in his wrath from the wine-drinking and went into [i]the palace garden, but Haman stayed to beg for his life from Queen Esther, for he saw that harm was determined against him by the king. [8][†]And the king returned from [i]the palace garden to the place where they were drinking wine, as Haman was falling on [j]the couch where Esther was. And the king said, “Will he even assault the queen in my presence, in my own house?” As the word left the mouth of the king, they covered Haman’s face. [9]Then [k]Harbona, one of the eunuchs in attendance on the king, said, “Moreover, [l]the gallows [2] that Haman has prepared for Mordecai, [m]whose word saved the king, is standing at Haman’s house, fifty cubits [3] high.” [10][^][†]And the king said, “Hang him on that.” [n]So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. [o]Then the wrath of the king abated.

Esther Saves the Jews

ESTHER 8 [†]On that day King Ahasuerus gave to Queen Esther the house of Haman, [h]the enemy of the Jews. And Mordecai came before the king, for Esther had told [p]what he was to her. [2] [q]And the king took off his signet ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it to Mordecai. And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

[3][†]Then Esther spoke again to the king. She fell at his feet and wept and pleaded with him to avert the evil plan of Haman [r]the Agagite and the plot that he had devised against the Jews. [4] [s]When the king held out the golden scepter to Esther, [5]Esther rose and stood before the king. And she said, “If it please the king, [t]and if I have found favor in his sight, and if the thing seems right before the king, and I am pleasing in his eyes, let an order be written to revoke [u]the letters devised by Haman [r]the Agagite, the son of Hammedatha, which he wrote to destroy the Jews who are in all the provinces of the king. [6]For how can I bear [v]to see the calamity that is coming to my people? Or how can I bear to see the destruction of my kindred?” [7]Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther and to Mordecai the Jew, “Behold, [w]I have given Esther the house of Haman, and they have hanged him on the gallows, [1] because he intended to lay hands on the Jews. 8[^]But you may write as you please with regard to the Jews, in the name of the king, [x]and seal it with the king's ring, for an edict written in the name of the king and sealed with the king's ring [y]cannot be revoked."

9[†][z]The king's scribes were summoned at that time, in the third month, which is the month of Sivan, on the twenty-third day. And an edict was written, according to all that Mordecai commanded concerning the Jews, to [a]the satraps and the governors and the officials of the provinces [b]from India to Ethiopia, [b]127 provinces, [c]to each province in its own script and to each people in its own language, and also to the Jews in their script and their language. 10[d]And he wrote in the name of King Ahasuerus [e]and sealed it with the king's signet ring. Then he sent the letters by mounted couriers riding on [f]swift horses that were used in the king's service, bred from the royal stud, 11[†]saying that the king allowed the Jews who were in every city [g]to gather and defend their lives, [h]to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate any armed force of any people or province that might attack them, children and women included, [i]and to plunder their goods, 12[†][j]on one day throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar. 13[†][k]A copy of what was written was to be issued as a decree in every province, being publicly displayed to all peoples, and the Jews were to be ready on that day to take vengeance on their enemies. 14So the couriers, mounted on their [f]swift horses that were used in the king's service, rode out hurriedly, urged by the king's command. And the decree was issued in Susa the citadel.

15[†]Then Mordecai went out from the presence of the king [l]in royal robes of blue and white, with a great golden crown [2] and [m]a robe of fine linen and purple, [n]and the city of Susa shouted and rejoiced. 16[†]The Jews had [o]light and gladness and joy and honor. 17[†]And in every province and in every city, wherever the king's command and his edict reached, there was gladness and joy among the Jews, a feast and [p]a holiday. [q]And many from the peoples of the country declared themselves Jews, [r]for fear of the Jews had fallen on them.

The Jews Destroy Their Enemies

ESTHER 9 [†] [s] Now in the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, [t] on the thirteenth day of the same, [u] when the king’s command and edict were about to be carried out, [j] on the very day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to gain the mastery over them, the reverse occurred: the Jews gained mastery over those who hated them. [2] [v] The Jews gathered in their cities throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus to lay hands on those who sought their harm. And no one could stand against them, [w] for the fear of them had fallen on all peoples. [3]All the officials of the provinces and [x] the satraps and the governors and the royal agents also helped the Jews, for the fear of Mordecai had fallen on them. [4]For Mordecai was great in the king’s house, and his fame spread throughout all the provinces, for the man Mordecai grew [y] more and more powerful. [5]The Jews struck all their enemies with the sword, killing and destroying them, and did as they pleased to those who hated them. [6]In Susa the citadel itself the Jews killed and destroyed 500 men, [7]and also killed Parshandatha and Dalphon and Aspatha [8]and Poratha and Adalia and Aridatha [9]and Parmashta and Arisai and Aridai and Vaizatha, [10] [z] the ten sons of Haman the son of Hammedatha, [a] the enemy of the Jews, [b] but they laid no hand on the plunder.

[11][†]That very day the number of those killed in Susa the citadel was reported to the king. [12]And the king said to Queen Esther, “In Susa the citadel the Jews have killed and destroyed 500 men and also the ten sons of Haman. What then have they done in the rest of the king’s provinces! [c] Now what is your wish? It shall be granted you. And what further is your request? It shall be fulfilled.” [13]And Esther said, “If it please the king, let the Jews who are in Susa be allowed [d] tomorrow also to do according to this day’s edict. And let the ten sons of Haman be hanged on the gallows.” [1] [14]So the king commanded this to be done. A decree was issued in Susa, and the ten sons of Haman were hanged. [15]The Jews who were in Susa gathered also on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar and they killed 300 men in Susa, but they laid no hands on the plunder.

[16][†] [e] Now the rest of the Jews who were in the king’s provinces also [f] gathered to defend their lives, and got relief from their enemies and killed 75,000 of those who hated them, but they laid no hands on the plunder.

[17]This was [g] on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, and on the fourteenth day they rested and made that a day of feasting and gladness. [18]But the Jews who were in Susa gathered [g] on the thirteenth day and on the fourteenth, and rested [h] on the fifteenth day, making that a day of feasting and gladness. [19]Therefore the Jews of the villages, who live in [i] the rural towns, hold the fourteenth day of the month of Adar as a day for gladness and feasting, as [j] a holiday, and [k] as a day on which they send gifts of food to one another.

The Feast of Purim Inaugurated

[20][†]And Mordecai recorded these things and sent letters to all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, both near and far, [21]obliging them to keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar and also the fifteenth day of the same, year by year, [22]as the days on which the Jews got relief from their enemies, and as the month that had been turned for them from sorrow into gladness and from mourning into [j] a holiday; that they should make them days of feasting and gladness, days for sending gifts of food to one another and gifts to the poor.

[23][†]So the Jews accepted what they had started to do, and what Mordecai had written to them. [24]For Haman the Agagite, the son of Hammedatha, [l] the enemy of all the Jews, [m] had plotted against the Jews to destroy them, and [n] had cast Pur (that is, cast lots), to crush and to destroy them. [25]But when it came before the king, he gave orders in writing [o] that his evil plan that he had devised against the Jews [p] should return on his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows. [2] [26]Therefore they called these days Purim, after the term [n] Pur. Therefore, because of all that was written in [q] this letter, and of what they had faced in this matter, and of what had happened to them, [27]the Jews firmly obligated themselves and their offspring and [r] all who joined them, that without fail they would keep [s] these two days according to what was written and at the time appointed every year, [28]that these days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, in every clan, province, and city, and that these days of Purim should never fall into disuse among the Jews, nor should the commemoration of these days cease among their descendants.

[29]Then Queen Esther, [t]the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai the Jew gave full written authority, confirming [u]this second letter about Purim. [30]Letters were sent to all the Jews, [v]to the 127 provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, in words of peace and truth, [31]that these days of Purim should be observed at their appointed seasons, as Mordecai the Jew and Queen Esther obligated them, and as they had obligated themselves and their offspring, with regard to [w]their fasts and their lamenting. [32]The command of Queen Esther confirmed these practices of [x]Purim, and it was recorded in writing.

The Greatness of Mordecai

ESTHER 10 [†]King Ahasuerus imposed tax on the land and on [y]the coastlands of the sea. [2][†]And all the acts of his power and might, and the full account of the high honor of Mordecai, [z]to which the king advanced him, are they not written in [a]the Book of the Chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia? [3][^][†]For Mordecai the Jew was [b]second in rank to King Ahasuerus, and he was great among the Jews and popular with the multitude of his brothers, for he [c]sought the welfare of his people and spoke peace to all his people.

Study Notes for Esther

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:1–2:23 Introduction. In this opening section the author sets the scene by describing Queen Vashti's downfall (1:1–22), her replacement by Esther (2:1–18), and how Mordecai foils a plot against the king (2:19–23). This situates Esther and Mordecai for the roles they will play in the main action that follows.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:1–22 Queen Vashti's Downfall. This is a mini-story in its own right. The scene is set by a description of two banquets, hosted by the king and queen respectively (vv. 1–8, 9). Vashti's defiance of the king and its consequences follow.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:1 Ahasuerus, better known by his Greek name, Xerxes I, was king of Persia from 486–464 B.C. India. The land around the Indus Valley (now Pakistan). Ethiopia. The land just south of Egypt (now northern Sudan).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:2–3 Susa, in western Persia (the city is now called Shush, in the southwestern part of modern Iran), was one of Persia's four capital cities (see Neh. 1:1; Dan. 8:2). Media. Northwestern Persia, near the Caspian Sea. Once a separate nation, it was conquered c. 550 B.C. by Cyrus the Great, who founded the Persian Empire. The time (483 B.C., the third year of Xerxes' reign), and the presence of the army, suggest that Xerxes may have been building support for his invasion of Greece (preparations c. 483–480; the Battle of Thermopylae took place in 480).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:4 The 180 days were presumably not spent in continuous feasting but in festivities punctuated by sumptuous meals.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:5 Susa the citadel refers to the fortified palace complex. The feast lasting for seven days was probably the climax of the 180 days of festivities (v. 4). court of the garden. An enclosed courtyard for entertaining in the summer months (see 7:7).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:6–8 no compulsion. King Ahasuerus set aside the custom that everyone had to drink whenever the king drank.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:9 A separate feast for the women was another departure from normal Persian practice (cf. v. 8; 5:5–6), perhaps because of the large number of guests.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:10 eunuchs. Castrated men who, among other duties, served in the royal harem.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:12 The author does not explain why Vashti refused to come, probably because the reasons were irrelevant: even the queen was expected to obey the king absolutely.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:13 wise men. Official advisers to the king (cf. Gen. 41:8; Ex. 7:11; Jer. 50:35; Dan. 2:48). the times. The most favorable times for particular actions (see Est. 3:7). versed in law and judgment. Trained to make decisions in accordance with the law (see Dan. 1:3–4; Acts 7:22).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:14 the seven princes. The inner circle of the king's advisers. Media. See note on vv. 2–3.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:15–18 officials. Senior male civil servants appointed by the king. noble women. Wives of the officials. Memucan predicts that these women will show contempt for their husbands, and that the men, like the king, will be full of wrath toward their wives. Moreover, this will not be limited to one stratum of society. Memucan repeatedly uses all to impress on the king the danger of a total breakdown of proper domestic order.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:19–20 The absolute authority of the Persian king is expressed in laws which, once written, may not be repealed (see Dan. 6:8). This legal convention will give rise to a difficult situation later in the story: what if the king changes his mind? (See Est. 8:5–8; cf. Dan. 6:14–18.) Paradoxically, Vashti is to be punished by being forbidden to do what she has already refused to do: come to the king. But never again implies divorce and the end of her queenship.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 1:21–22 The way in which the wise men resort to law to try to control their wives suggests that they must already have thought this was a widespread domestic problem—a problem, however, that would certainly not have been easily rectified simply by issuing a legal edict. The command that local household leaders should each speak according to the language of his people is probably intended to ensure that the substance of the edict is understood by all family members everywhere.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:1–18 Esther's Rise to the Throne. Esther finds favor with the king and is chosen to replace Vashti.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:1–4 In a more sober mood, the king apparently regrets dismissing his beautiful queen. But a solution is at hand. In contrast to the wise men of ch. 1, the young men were probably the king's personal household servants (see 6:3). Their suggestion that beautiful young virgins should be gathered for the king's appraisal immediately attracts his interest and approval, creating the opportunity for Esther to make her appearance. In line with normal practice, a eunuch (see 1:10–11) is in charge of the king's women (his harem). Hegai may be the same officer of Xerxes (Ahasuerus) that Herodotus refers to in Greek as "Hegias."

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:5 The name Mordecai occurs in Persian treasury records of the period as the name of a government official, but whether he was this Mordecai is not known. The Mordecai of the book of Esther has a genealogy that links him to King Saul, who lived 500 years earlier. He belongs to the same tribe (a Benjaminite), and his great-grandfather, Kish, has the same name as Saul's father (1 Sam. 9:1–2). For the significance of this, see note on Est. 3:1.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:6 Jeconiah, also known as Jehoiachin, was the second-to-last king of Judah. He was deported to Babylon in 597 B.C. (2 Kings 24:10–15), 114 years before the present events. So the clause who had been carried away from Jerusalem cannot refer to Mordecai himself (it would make him about 120 years old) but to Kish, his great-grandfather, mentioned in Est. 2:5.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:7 Hadassah ("myrtle") is the Hebrew name of Mordecai's cousin; Esther ("star") is her Persian name. The reference to her great beauty prepares the reader for what follows.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:8–9 It was presumably an honor to be chosen for the harem, though it is unclear from the word taken whether she went willingly or unwillingly. Given the king's order, she presumably had no choice in the matter. Once there, however, she appears to have been fully compliant, quickly winning the favor of Hegai, who provided her with the finest of everything and promoted her to the best place in the harem. The seven chosen young women, her personal maids-in-waiting, already hint at her royal bearing and destiny.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:10–11 Mordecai's instruction to Esther not to reveal her people or kindred is the first hint of the anti-Semitism that will surface in ch. 3. See note on 3:15.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:12–14 Both the time involved and the cosmetics used indicate the elaborate nature of the beauty treatment the chosen women received. the regulations for the women. This further indication of the strict regimen of the Persian court shows how difficult, and potentially costly, it was for women like Vashti and Esther to assert their independence. myrrh. An expensive perfume obtained from trees native to Africa and southern Asia (cf. Prov. 7:17; Song 1:13; Matt. 2:11; John 19:39). Concubines, women officially recognized as the king's mistresses, were housed separately (in the second harem), having a lower status than his wife or wives. Shaashgaz corresponds to Hegai, who was in charge of the first harem (see note on Est. 2:1–4). Each woman's first night with the king was her initiation as a concubine. For some, there would be no other such night.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:15 Abihail. The uncle referred to in v. 7. By taking nothing except what Hegai … advised, Esther shows her trust in his experience and goodwill toward her. The fact that Esther was winning favor in the eyes of all who saw her bodes well for her success on this, her night of nights.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:16 Tebeth, in midwinter, was the tenth month of the Jewish religious calendar. seventh year. Four years after the events recounted in ch. 1 (see 1:3; and chart).

Chronology in Esther

The events of Esther unfold over a period of 10 years.

Reference	Event	Month	Day	Year of Ahasuerus's Reign	Year
1:3	Ahasuerus holds his banquets			3	483 B.C.
2:16	Esther goes to Ahasuerus	10		7	479
3:7	Haman casts his lots	1		12	474
3:12	Haman issues his decree	1	13	13	474
3:13	Date planned for annihilation of the Jews	12	13	13	473
8:9	Mordecai issues his decree	3	23	13	474
8:12; 9:1	Day upon which Jews could defend themselves from attack	12	13	13	473
9:6–10, 20–22	Ten sons of Haman executed; Feast of Purim celebrated	12	14, 15	13	473

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:18 Esther's feast. A feast in her honor as the new queen (cf. 1:3, 5, 9). remission of taxes. A customary form of celebration referred to by Herodotus in his history of the Persian Empire. gifts with royal generosity. Probably in the form of food given to the poor, so that all could share in the celebrations (see 9:22; Jer. 40:5).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:19–23 Mordecai's Success in Foiling a Plot against the King. Mordecai, entirely without intent, is in the right place at the right time to serve King Ahasuerus. This is one of many examples where readers are meant to recognize God's hidden direction of events, though God is never explicitly named (see Introduction: Key Themes).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:19 the second time. The meaning of this is uncertain. It possibly refers to a second gathering of all the virgins of v. 2 for a ceremonial parade to complete the celebration of Esther's coronation. the king's gate. A place where justice was dispensed by officials appointed by the king (2 Sam. 15:2–6; cf. Ruth 4:1–11).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:21 Mordecai was sitting. Probably as an official, because of Esther's new influence with the king. the threshold. The door to the king's private quarters.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 2:22–23 hanged on the gallows. A practice known from ancient records. Cf. Ezra 6:11. the chronicles. A record of significant events in the king's reign (e.g., 1 Kings 14:29).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:1–9:19 Main Action. This is the heart of the story, where the main events take place. A plot to destroy the Jews (3:1–15) is foiled by a series of courageous actions by Esther and Mordecai (4:1–8:17), culminating in complete victory for the Jews (9:1–19).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:1–15 Haman Plots to Kill the Jews. This complication sets the key events of the story in motion.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:1 the Agagite. A descendant of Agag, king of the Amalekites, the ancient enemies of Israel (Ex. 17:8–16). Agag was defeated by King Saul and killed by the prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 15:1–33). The conflict between Haman and Mordecai mirrors the earlier conflict between their ancestors, Saul and Agag (see note on Est. 2:5).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:2–4 bowed down and paid homage. According to Herodotus, bowing to superiors was a normal part of Persian court etiquette rather than an act of worship (cf. Gen. 23:7; 1 Kings 1:16). Mordecai did not bow because "he was a Jew." The text does not give any more reason for Mordecai's refusal to bow, but given Haman's ancestry and animosity to the Jews, Mordecai apparently felt he could not bow to him without compromising his identity as a Jew. It is also possible that Haman was claiming some kind of divine status and Mordecai refused to give him that kind of honor. he had told them that he was a Jew. Mordecai did the very thing he had told Esther not to do in her situation (Est. 2:10, 20).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:5–6 Haman … disdained to lay hands on Mordecai alone. Mordecai's refusal to bow gave Haman the opportunity to reveal his hatred of the Jews by setting out to destroy them all. the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus. This included Jerusalem and the surrounding area with its mainly Jewish population (see 1:1; cf. Neh. 1:1–3).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:7 Nisan. The first month of the Jewish religious calendar, which began in spring with the Passover (Ex. 12:1–2). While the Jews prepared to celebrate their deliverance from Egypt, Haman plotted their destruction. the twelfth year. Cf. Est. 2:16; Haman has been biding his time for five years. Pur. The Persian word for "lot," from which the term purim ("lots") is derived (9:26). cast lots. A traditional way of seeking divine guidance (Josh. 18:6; Prov. 16:33) or, as here, finding the most opportune time to do something.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:8 they do not keep the king’s laws. An allusion to Mordecai’s refusal to bow (v. 2), with the (false) implication that all Jews behave similarly. not to the king’s profit. A clever tactic by Haman. The remission of taxes (2:18) and the unsuccessful war with Greece (see note on 1:2–3) may have left the royal treasury low on funds.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:9 Haman offers to pay 10,000 talents of silver, a huge sum (on the order of 12 million ounces; see esv footnote).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:10 signet ring. A ring used to seal official documents (Jer. 22:24). Haman is empowered to act with royal authority.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:11 The money is given to you. Ahasuerus authorizes Haman to use as much of the 10,000 talents of silver as he needs to implement his plan.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:12 the first month. Presumably of the following (13th) year of Ahasuerus’s reign (see v. 7).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:13 the twelfth month. Because of the extent of the empire, it took almost 12 months to notify and prepare all of those responsible for putting the edict into effect.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 3:15 sat down to drink. Haman and the king callously celebrate the forthcoming massacre. but … Susa was thrown into confusion. Reassuring evidence that many of Susa’s citizens did not share Haman’s intense hatred of the Jews.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:1–17 Mordecai and Esther Plan to Save Their People. Esther and Mordecai respond to Haman’s plan with a counterplan of their own.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:1–3 sackcloth and ashes … fasting and weeping. Traditional ways of expressing grief in the ancient Near East, including Israel (Gen. 37:34; 2 Sam. 1:11; Job 1:20; Isa. 15:1–3; Jonah 3:6). The ban on such behavior in the king’s gate (see note on Est. 2:19) is understandable, given its unseemly character and the strict court etiquette reflected elsewhere in the book (see 1:8; 3:12; 4:11; cf. Neh. 2:1).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:4 garments to clothe Mordecai. Given the ban of v. 2, Esther probably feared for Mordecai's safety.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:11 one law. The law in this matter was absolute, without any qualifications or exceptions. The strict court etiquette shows the king's total power over the lives of his subjects (cf. v. 2). not been called … these thirty days. An indication that the king's love for Esther may have begun to wane, making Esther's task even more difficult (see 2:14, 17).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:14 deliverance will rise. Despite his emotional turmoil (v. 4), deep down Mordecai is sure that the Jews will survive. This reflects his faith that God will protect his people, though the text does not make this explicit. from another place. Mordecai does not seem to know what other source of help would appear, but he expresses confidence that God will somehow rescue his people. your father's house. Esther's family on her father's side. Since Mordecai is sure the Jews will be delivered, his statement that Esther and her family will perish presumably means that they will be punished for Esther's refusal to act. God is apparently the one who will punish them, though again, this is not explicitly said. you have … come … for such a time as this. The strongest hint yet of Mordecai's belief in divine providence.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 4:16 hold a fast. This is not a spontaneous outpouring of grief as in v. 3, but an organized activity aimed at increasing Esther's chances of success, through earnest prayer—the strongest indication yet of Esther's (and Mordecai's) faith in God (cf. Ezra 9:5; Neh. 1:4). if I perish, I perish. Esther realizes that God cannot be manipulated, even by fasting (cf. Dan. 3:17–18).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:1–8 Esther Is Favorably Received by the King and Prepares to Expose Haman. Esther takes advantage of her renewed influence with the king to begin to implement her own plan to defeat Haman's plot.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:1–2 the third day. At the end of the three days of fasting (4:16). the inner court. Esther stands where Ahasuerus can see her and waits for him either to reject or receive her. This is a very tense moment, for she is risking her life. the golden scepter. See 4:11.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:3 even … half of my kingdom. The Greek historian Herodotus describes Xerxes (Ahasuerus) as making such an offer, though on a different occasion. Esther rightly understands it as a traditional, grand gesture rather than one the king expects to be taken seriously (cf. Mark 6:23, where Herod makes a similar offer).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:4 a feast that I have prepared. Esther had carefully planned what she would do if she was received favorably. By inviting Haman too, she flatters him and sets him up for a colossal fall.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:8 the feast that I will prepare. Another feast, on the following day. Esther bides her time, as Haman had done. She puts Haman further off guard and makes sure the king is in the best possible mood before revealing what she wants.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:9–14 Haman Prepares to Hang Mordecai. A dangerous development. Events may be moving too swiftly for Mordecai to be saved.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:9–13 joyful … filled with wrath. Haman is elated at how he has been treated by the king and queen, but again becomes incensed by Mordecai’s refusal to bow to him. He won’t be able to enjoy the (second) feast until he has dealt with Mordecai.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 5:14 a gallows. There was a gallows in 2:23, but this is another gallows, to be erected especially for hanging Mordecai. Its enormous height (75 feet/23 m) reflects Haman’s “towering” rage; it is probably intended to make a public spectacle of Mordecai. tell the king. Zeresh assumes that Haman’s influence is now so great that he can virtually order the king to hang Mordecai. Mordecai’s fate now seems to depend on whose influence over Ahasuerus will prevail—Haman’s or Esther’s. This idea pleased Haman, and he had the gallows made. Haman, who is just as much under the influence of his wife and friends as Ahasuerus is under the influence of Haman and Esther, unwittingly builds the means for his own demise.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:1–13 Mordecai Is Honored and Haman Is Humiliated. Events now move so tellingly in favor of Esther and Mordecai that a presumption of God’s providential involvement becomes unavoidable.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:1 that night the king could not sleep. The timing of this episode of royal insomnia is exquisite—another strong indication that something more than chance is involved (cf. Dan. 6:18). the book of memorable deeds, the chronicles. See note on Est. 2:22–23. Again, the request for this book and the reading of the passage about Mordecai can hardly be mere good luck.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:5 Haman is there. Haman now waits as Esther had done in 5:1. Again, the timing is perfect. Invisibly, and without explicit comment in the text, God is at work to protect his people.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:6 What should be done to the man … the king delights to honor? Neither Ahasuerus nor Haman is aware of the heavy irony involved in the question. The events now unfolding are completely out of their control.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:7–9 Haman's response shows both the extent of his vanity and his total unawareness of the trap he is walking into. the horse that the king has ridden … a royal crown. Even greater honors than those bestowed on Joseph (Gen. 41:42–43).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:10–11 do so to Mordecai the Jew. Haman belatedly realizes the fate he has brought on himself.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:12–13 mourning and with his head covered. See 4:1–3. Now it is Haman's turn to do as his intended victims had done when the decree of destruction was first published. wise men. These are normally associated with kings (see note on 1:13) and therefore serve as a subtle reminder of the heights from which Haman has begun to fall. If Mordecai … is of the Jewish people, you … will surely fall before him. Even Haman's wife and advisers sense that an irresistible power or person protects the Jewish people.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 6:14–7:10 Esther Brings About Haman's Destruction. This is the dramatic heart of the story, where Esther risks all to save her people.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 7:2 Even … half of my kingdom. See note on 5:3.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 7:4 I and my people. Esther reveals that she is a Jew and that Ahasuerus has been tricked into ordering the death of the queen he loves. we have been sold. Haman had "bought" the king's agreement to his plan (3:9). our affliction is not to be compared with the loss to the king. With this exaggerated comparison, Esther, like Haman, appeals to the king's self-interest. If he reduced the Jews to slavery, he would at least have the benefit of their free labor. By killing them, he will lose a valuable asset.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 7:7 the palace garden. See 1:5. Ahasuerus withdraws briefly to compose himself.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 7:8 falling on the couch. Haman was probably kneeling, perhaps with his hands or arms on the couch (probably to seek mercy from Esther), but the king's perception is distorted by his anger (taking Haman's move as an assault on Esther). they covered Haman's face. Covering the head of a condemned prisoner is a custom well known in both ancient and modern times.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 7:10 Hang him on that. A gruesome piece of poetic justice that completes the "fall" Haman's wife had predicted (see 5:13; 6:13).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:1–17 Esther Wins the Right of the Jews to Defend Themselves. In this section Esther solves the apparently unsolvable problem: how can something unchangeable (the king's edict) be changed?

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:1–2 Ahasuerus gave … Esther the house of Haman. The property of condemned criminals was forfeited to the crown. Esther … told what he (Mordecai) was to her. Previously Esther had revealed only that she was a Jew. his signet ring. See note on 3:10.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:3–8 Haman was dead, but the edict of destruction he had issued with the king's authority was still in force, for an edict … cannot be revoked (v. 8; cf. Dan. 6:8). Given this state of affairs, the only way a decree could be countered was by issuing another one that made it difficult or impossible to implement the first.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:9 Sivan. The third month of the Jewish religious calendar, in late spring (around May–June).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:11 any armed force. The Jews are only permitted to defend themselves by destroying armed enemies who attack them. (It is possible, but not certain, that the wording of 9:5 is broader, indicating that they also attacked known enemies who would have done them harm but who simply refrained from attacking them on that day.) children and women included. Any children and women who participated in the attack upon them.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:12 the thirteenth day of … Adar. See 3:13.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:13 take vengeance on their enemies. Defend themselves by killing all who tried to kill them (see note on v. 11).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:15 Susa … rejoiced (cf. 3:15). This is further evidence that Haman's attitude to the Jews was not typical.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:16 The Jews had … honor. Probably because people saw that the king himself now favored them.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 8:17 joy among the Jews. They rightly saw that they were already as good as saved because their enemies would now be afraid to attack them. many … declared themselves Jews. Tried to pass themselves off as Jews. fear of the Jews. Because of the power now wielded by Mordecai (v. 15; 9:3–4).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:1–19 The Jews Completely Destroy Their Enemies. This is the climax of the story, where the tables are completely turned and the enemies of the Jews get what they deserve.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:1–10 The Jews … did as they pleased (v. 5). In context, this cannot mean that they cast off all restraint, but that they gave full vent to their (understandable) desire to destroy their attackers, as they were allowed to do (see notes on 8:11; 9:11–15). laid no hand on the plunder (also in vv. 15–16). They were allowed to take plunder (8:11), but they did only what was necessary to defend themselves.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:11–15 tomorrow also. Probably because there were still armed men in Susa committed to carrying out the first edict. the ten sons of Haman were hanged. In keeping with Persian royal practice, the king wipes out the conspirator's family publicly, to deter other would-be plotters against himself and the Jews.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:16–19 These verses explain why two different dates arose for celebrating the deliverance of the Jews. In rural areas the fighting was completed on the thirteenth day of Adar, so they celebrated on the fourteenth. But in Susa it did not finish until the fourteenth, so they celebrated on the fifteenth—as they were still doing when Esther was written (v. 19).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:20–10:3 Conclusion. The story ends by showing what came about as a result of the deliverance the Jews experienced.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:20–32 The Establishment of the Feast of Purim. These verses show how the spontaneous celebrations of vv. 16–19 gave way to a properly organized, annual festival.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:20–22 the fourteenth … and also the fifteenth. The days on which the rural and the urban Jews (respectively) had spontaneously begun to celebrate their deliverance (see note on vv. 16–19). Mordecai avoids any difficulties this might cause by ordering that both days be observed. gifts of food. This would enable all alike to share in the feasting, including the poor (cf. Deut. 16:11; Neh. 8:10, 12; note on Est. 2:18).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 9:23–32 Purim. This is the Hebrew plural of Pur (see note on 3:7). Jews still keep the Feast of Purim today. This second letter suggests that the differences between rural and urban Jews, referred to in 9:9–16, had persisted to some extent in spite of the first letter (vv. 20–22). Both were distributed in the form of many letters, carried by many messengers but with the same basic content. words of peace and truth. A conventional, formal opening for Jewish letters (even today), but with added significance here. The intention of this letter was to bring peace between different Jewish communities by establishing the one true (correct) manner of observing the festival. as … with regard to their fasts and their lamenting. The Jews were to take their obligation to observe the joyful Feast of Purim just as seriously as they had already accepted their obligation to observe days of fasting and weeping (Lev. 16:29–31; Zech. 7:3; 8:19).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 10:1–3 Mordecai’s High Rank and Beneficent Rule. After all the turmoil of the preceding chapters, the story at last arrives at a state of peace.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 10:1 imposed tax. Reversing the (temporary) remission of 2:18. If the coastlands of the sea are remote parts of Ahasuerus’s empire (bordering the eastern Mediterranean), taxing them shows the impressive extent of his power (1:1; 10:2).

ESTHER—NOTE ON 10:2 the Chronicles. See note on 2:22–23. Media and Persia. See note on 1:2–3.

ESTHER—NOTE ON 10:3 second in rank to King Ahasuerus. Cf. Joseph (Gen. 41:40). brothers. Fellow Jews. welfare, peace. Under Mordecai as the king’s chief officer, the Jews experienced exactly the opposite of what they had experienced under Haman.

Introduction to Job

Author

While Job is one of the most profound books of the Bible, its anonymous author can be known only through reading between its lines. Certainly he can be numbered among “the wise” (cf. Prov. 24:23), given his fondness for proverbs, which he quotes to develop a point: “those who plow iniquity and sow trouble reap the same” (Job 4:8); “man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward” (5:7); “a stupid man will get understanding when a wild donkey’s colt is born a man!” (11:12).

Though the story of Job has its setting outside Israel to the east and south (Uz is related to Edom, which may be the setting of the book, cf. 2:11; 6:19; Lam. 4:21), the author of Job is a Hebrew, thoroughly immersed in the Hebrew Scriptures (see below).

The author of Job was a well-traveled individual who could draw on a wealth of knowledge and experience. He knew the constellations (Job 9:9; 38:31), could discuss meteorology (38:22–38) or describe a sophisticated mining operation (28:1–11). He could refer to skiffs of papyrus reed plying the waters (9:26), or the plants that grew in the marshes (8:11–19). He had observed ostriches, eagles, mountain goats, hippopotamuses, crocodiles, and war horses (chs. 39–41). As was true of all the wise, he made extensive use of nature analogies to explain and defend moral truths.

Etymologically the name Job could be related to the Hebrew word for “enemy,” with reference to either Job’s attitude to God or his response to suffering. The name might also be a contracted form of “Where is my father?” But it is difficult to know, because its actual meaning was already lost to the earliest rabbinic commentators. However, the name is known outside the Bible. It is the name of the prince of Ashtaroth in Bashan in the Amarna tablets (c. 1350 B.C.), and the name of a Palestinian chief in an Egyptian text (c. 2000 B.C.). At Ugarit a version of the name appears in a list of palace personnel.

Date

There are no historical allusions in the book to determine its time or circumstances. From ancient times there has been much discussion about the occasion for writing Job. The Babylonian Talmud records a variety of opinions as to the author of the book, ranging from someone in the time of the patriarchs, to Moses, to one of those who returned from the Babylonian captivity (Baba Bathra 15a). The hero of the book is given a patriarchal setting, authentic in detail and coloring, which has led some interpreters to suggest an early date, perhaps as early as the time of Abraham.

The earliest reference to Job outside the book itself is in Ezekiel. The prophet names three paragons of virtue: Noah, Daniel, and Job (Ezek. 14:14, 20). It is not certain whether Ezekiel knew of these men from the biblical narrative or from other traditions; this is particularly true for Daniel, a book that could not have been complete in Ezekiel's day. If Ezekiel knew of Job through the biblical book, then it would be preexilic.

Attempts have been made to date Job on the basis of theological development within the Scriptures. Job has been viewed as an elaborate midrash (type of commentary) on Deuteronomy 28, or as an effort to apply a discussion of the problem of suffering for the nation (such as that depicted in Isaiah) to the individual. Arguments based on "theological development," however, are difficult to sustain, because they presuppose that one can actually describe how such themes developed over time.

The author of Job makes direct allusion to the Hebrew Scriptures (e.g., Ps. 8:4; cf. Job 7:17–18), and at times quotes lines directly (e.g., Ps. 107:40; cf. Job 12:21, 24). Such precise repetition of phrases and reapplication of biblical thought indicates that the poet had access to these writings, though again it cannot be certain in what form they existed.

Some have suggested, therefore, that the theological questions addressed in Job, and the use of Scripture in the book, indicate a time for the composition approximating Ezekiel's, but confidence in such a conclusion is hard to come by. The author uses a lot of vocabulary with meanings known in later Hebrew. This does not confirm a more precise dating but may favor a date that is exilic (587 to 538 B.C.) or postexilic (after 538).

Theological Themes

The book of Job concerns itself with the question of faith in a sovereign God. Can God be trusted? Is he good and just in his rule of the world? Job will declare outright that God has wronged him (19:6–7). At the same time, Job is certain that his "enemy" is actually his advocate and will vindicate him.

The book sets out from the beginning to show that the reasons for human suffering often remain a secret to human beings. Indeed, Job's sufferings come upon him because Satan accused him in the heavenly courts, and the reader never learns whether these reasons were explained to Job. Probably they were not. There is irony in the book of Job, due to the fact that God seems both too close and too far away. On the one hand, Job complains that God is watching him every moment so that he cannot even swallow his spit (7:19). On the other hand, Job finds God elusive, feeling that he cannot be found (9:11). Though God is intensely concerned about humans, he does not always answer their most agonizing questions.

At the same time, Job's friends offer no real help. They come to "comfort" him (2:11), but Job ends up declaring them "miserable comforters" who would "comfort" him "with empty nothings" (21:34). These friends represent an oversimplified "orthodoxy," based on a misreading of the wisdom tradition to the effect that all troubles are punishments for wrongdoing. Their "comfort" consists largely of applying this message to Job, urging him to identify his sin and repent of it. In so doing, these friends serve as a mirror for all readers who might be inclined to say similar things to people in distress.

Astonishingly, the Lord does not take Job to task over his words, instead calling them "right" (42:7). The book as a whole illustrates that a full understanding of God's reasons for events is not a prerequisite for faithfulness amid terrible suffering. Further, Job's deep perplexity and questioning are not a provocation to God.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

The book of Job addresses a universal problem for all people of all faith perspectives, even for those who believe that the world is the result of impersonal forces operating in a predetermined manner. The author of Job specifically addresses those who believe in a personal Creator, known by the name Yahweh (the Lord), according to his self-revelation. His work is simply about God and man; it was written to those who struggle with the justice of a sovereign God in a world filled with suffering.

The author does not provide a theodicy in the sense of defending the justice of God. Job's friends serve as a foil to that end. Their wisdom is a human effort to resolve this dilemma, but as far as the author is concerned, these efforts fail. God also declares that the friends are in the wrong (42:8). Elihu's intervention probes further, but neither is he the intermediary whom Job seeks. The author is concerned about the triumph of faith in a time of suffering. To this end his hero succeeds. Job can triumphantly declare, "I know that my Redeemer lives" (19:25). Job's resolve to love and trust the one who seems to attack him as an enemy is evident throughout.

The problem of suffering is timeless, whether national or individual. It is therefore not helpful to infer specific national settings that might have inspired the book of Job, whatever proposed relationships may be observed to books such as Deuteronomy and Isaiah. The author is careful not to allow his reflections to be limited by a particular set of circumstances.

The wisdom writers of Israel worked within their own context of thought and worldview. Though they did use sayings and works from other cultures, particularly Egypt, they wrote to articulate their own faith for their people, who were the primary readers. At the same time, they considered their thoughts applicable to all people of all times: "Hear this, all peoples! Give ear, all inhabitants of the world, both low and high, rich and poor together! My mouth shall speak wisdom; the meditation of my heart shall be understanding" (Ps. 49:1–3). A universal and timeless perspective is deliberately conveyed by the selection of a non-Israelite hero, the intentional avoidance of the Israelite name for God in the poetic section (from ch. 3 on) until God speaks (except for the reference to Isa. 41:20 in Job 12:9), and the relative absence of any specific historical allusions.

Job and His Setting

As already indicated, the Israelite author presents Job as a person living in Uz, which is outside the borders of Israel itself. His piety (1:1) exemplifies the ideal in Israelite wisdom, and he invokes the name of Yahweh (1:21). At the same time, his relationship to Abraham's offspring remains a mystery.

The events of the book seem to be set in the times of the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The way Ezekiel 14:14, 20 (see note there) refer to Job along with two others apparently from ancient times enhances this impression. So do the favorite names for the deity, "God" (Hb. 'Eloah, the singular of 'Elohim) and "the Almighty" (Hb. Shadday), which seem more suited to the days before Exodus 3:14; 6:3 (the name Yahweh, the LORD, appears only in Job 1–2, and 38–42, with one lone exception in the middle of the book, 12:9).

The prophet Ezekiel mentions Job along with Noah and Daniel, and this seems to imply that he took Job as a real person. This is also the implication of James 5:11: "Behold, we consider those blessed who remained steadfast. You have heard of the steadfastness of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful." At the same time, the author has supplied many details for the sake of his literary presentation: the question of whether Job and his friends actually spoke exalted poetry to each other is not important to the author's purposes.

History of Salvation Summary

In the history of God's dealings with his people, the question of the apparently undeserved suffering of faithful individuals recurs again and again. The book of Job reminds God's people that they have an enemy who will denounce them (Satan), and, through the ignorance of Job's friends, it helps the faithful to remember at all times how small a part of any situation is the fragment that they see. This equips believers to trust and obey amid life's perplexities, and it enables the faithful to support and encourage one another in a spirit of tenderness and humility (Rom. 12:15). The death and resurrection of Jesus have not removed this perplexity. They have, however, given a firm foundation to Job's hope in his "Redeemer" (Job 19:25–27). (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

A prose account of the fall and restoration of the pious Job frames the book as a whole (1:1–2:13; 42:7–17). Here readers meet a blameless man, whose peace and prosperity are tragically disrupted when—unknown to him—God points him out to Satan (see note on 1:6). The question posed in 1:9, "Does Job fear God for no reason?" appears to be the leading concern of the prose, and it receives a full and satisfactory answer by the book's conclusion.

Within those prose bookends, though, a dramatic poetic dialogue unfolds as readers listen to the main protagonists in the story. Job's soliloquies (chs. 3; 28; 29–31) bracket three rounds of impassioned debate (chs. 4–14; 15–21; 22–27) with his "friends"—Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar (cf. 2:11). Their dialogue descends from intuitive integrity in Job (cf. 3:23–25; 6:4) and sympathy from his friends (4:2–5) at the beginning, to embittered self-justification in Job (ch. 27) and outrageous accusation from his friends (ch. 22) at the end. Throughout, the main concern seems to be a question Eliphaz voiced: "Can mortal man be in the right before God? Can a man be pure before his Maker?" (4:17; cf. Job at 9:2; 31:6; Bildad at 25:4). Consequently, Job himself comes under increasing scrutiny as he mounts an increasingly bold defense of his innocence in the face of the simplistic ethical onslaught of his friends.

Job longs for divine vindication, and for an intermediary who can bring this about (cf. 9:33; 16:19–21; 19:25–27). The reader, who has had a privileged glimpse into the heavenly mysteries behind Job's suffering, is prepared by the end of the dialogues for God to declare to the disputants their errors and relieve Job of his misery. It is not to be, however—at least not yet.

Instead, a new character makes an entrance, one who alone in the book bears a Hebrew name: Elihu ("he is God" or possibly "Yahweh is God") son of Barachel ("may God bless" or "God has blessed"; cf. 32:6). Through five uninterrupted chapters (chs. 32–37) he rebukes both Job and his friends—but how are readers to understand his intervention? Commentators vary dramatically in their assessments. From the text itself, certain factors stand out. (1) Elihu provides in small measure the "intermediary" for whom Job hoped. Elihu himself is not the answer to Job's quest, but he does point in the right direction. (2) The dialogues to this point appeal to tradition and observation; Elihu introduces the notion of inspiration (32:8, 18–20). Some see here an overtly prophetic response to the wisdom discussion. (3) Elihu cites and finds wanting both sides of the debate (33:1; 34:2). Again, Elihu anticipates the stance that God himself will take (chs. 38–42). (4) Perhaps most important, Elihu reorients the entire debate. The focus slowly but surely swings away from Job and the problem of human morality, urging attention to God alone as the grounds of certainty and hope (cf. 36:22–23; 37:14–24).

At the same time, Elihu may be overestimating his own contribution (32:6–10). He knows no more of the actual reasons for the events (chs. 1–2) than the three friends do, and some of his arguments overlap theirs. Further, when the Lord finally speaks (38:1), he seems to ignore Elihu entirely (cf. also 42:7). Elihu may be asserting some true things at the core of his argument, but how he applies these things and the conclusions he draws about Job contrast significantly with the Lord's speech to Job. On a literary level, Elihu's speech builds suspense by delaying the final outcome.

Finally, the Lord appears in the whirlwind (38:1; 40:6)—as Job had suspected he might (cf. 9:17a). The "Yahweh speeches" (chs. 38–41) do not directly engage Job's questions but point rather to the reality of the God behind, and now clearly within, his suffering.

The reader's insight into the "true" state of affairs comes by the prose introduction (chs. 1–2), which helps both to nuance the content of the dialogues and to explain the outcomes in the book's conclusion. While Job's assertions of innocence have some justification, his character develops throughout the speeches. On the other hand, the friends may claim some kernel of truth, but despite their "orthodoxy," the reader can make an informed judgment about how their accusations apply to Job. Thus, the Lord's commendation of Job and instruction to the friends to beg Job's intercession on their behalf (42:7–9) is in part explained by the context set in the opening two chapters.

The most important key word in the book is the term "comfort"; the book shows where true comfort is to be found. In 2:11 Job's three friends come to comfort him; in 6:10 Job takes comfort in not having denied the words of the Holy One; in 7:13 Job claims that God will not allow his bed to comfort him. In 15:11 Eliphaz claims to be offering the comforts of God, while in 16:2 Job calls his friends miserable comforters, and in 21:34 he declares they are trying to comfort him with empty nothings. In 21:2 Job sarcastically offers to his friends the "comfort" of hearing him out. The key comes in 42:6 (if the reading of the esv footnote is followed; see note there): now that God has spoken, Job can say that he is "comforted in dust and ashes." When Job's relatives and friends come to comfort him in 42:11, this is probably ironic: Job found the comfort he needed in the vision of God’s unsearchable wisdom.

Job

Job’s Character and Wealth

JOB 1 [†]There was a man in the land of [a]Uz whose name was [b]Job, and that man was [c]blameless and upright, one who [d]feared God and [e]turned away from evil. [2][†]There were born to him [f]seven sons and three daughters. [3]He possessed 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 yoke of oxen, and 500 female donkeys, and very many servants, so that this man was the greatest of all [g]the people of the east. [4]His sons used to go and hold a feast in the house of each one on his day, and they would send and invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. [5][†]And when the days of the feast had run their course, Job would send and [h]consecrate them, and he would rise early in the morning and [i]offer burnt offerings according to the number of them all. For Job said, “It may be that my children have sinned, and [j]cursed [1] God in their hearts.” Thus Job did continually.

Satan Allowed to Test Job

[6][†]Now there was a day when [k]the sons of God came to present themselves before the LORD, and [l]Satan [2] also came among them. [7]The LORD said to Satan, “From where have you come?” Satan answered the LORD and said, “From [m]going to and fro on the earth, and from walking up and down on it.” [8]And the LORD said to Satan, “Have you [n]considered my [o]servant Job, that there is none like him on the earth, [p]a blameless and upright man, who fears God and turns away from evil?” [9][†]Then Satan answered the LORD and said, “Does Job fear God for no reason? [10]Have you not put [q]a hedge around him and his house and all that he has, on every side? You have [r]blessed the work of his hands, and his possessions have increased in the land. [11][^]But [s]stretch out your hand and [t]touch all that he has, and he will [u]curse you [v]to your face.” [12][†]And the LORD said to Satan, “Behold, all that he has is in your hand. Only against him do not stretch out your hand.” So Satan went out from the presence of the LORD.

Satan Takes Job’s Property and Children

[13][[†]]Now there was a day when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their oldest brother’s house, [14]and there came a messenger to Job and said, “The oxen were plowing and the donkeys feeding beside them, [15]and [w]the Sabeans fell upon them and took them and struck down the servants [3] with the edge of the sword, and I alone have escaped to tell you.” [16]While he was yet speaking, there came another and said, [x]“The fire of God fell from heaven and burned up the sheep and the servants and consumed them, and I alone have escaped to tell you.” [17]While he was yet speaking, there came another and said, [y]“The Chaldeans formed [z]three groups and made a raid on the camels and took them and struck down the servants with the edge of the sword, and I alone have escaped to tell you.” [18]While he was yet speaking, there came another and said, [a]“Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their oldest brother’s house, [19]and behold, a great wind came across [b]the wilderness and struck the four corners of the house, and it fell upon the young people, and they are dead, and I alone have escaped to tell you.”

[20][[†]]Then Job arose and [c]tore his [d]robe and [e]shaved his head [f]and fell on the ground and worshiped. [21][[^]][[†]]And he said, [g]“Naked I came from my mother’s womb, and naked shall I [h]return. The LORD [i]gave, and the LORD has taken away; [j]blessed be the name of the LORD.”

[22] [k]In all this Job did not sin or charge God with [l]wrong.

Satan Attacks Job’s Health

JOB 2 [[†]]Again [m]there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan also came among them to present himself before the LORD. [2]And the LORD said to Satan, “From where have you come?” Satan answered the LORD and said, “From going to and fro on the earth, and from walking up and down on it.” [3][[†]]And the LORD said to Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job, that there is none like him on the earth, a blameless and upright man, who fears God and turns away from evil? He still [n]holds fast his integrity, although you incited me against him to destroy him [o]without reason.” [4][[†]]Then Satan answered the LORD and said, “Skin for skin! All that a man has he will give for his life. [5]But

[p] stretch out your hand and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will [q] curse you to your face.” [6][^][†]And the LORD said to Satan, “Behold, he is in your hand; only spare his life.”

[7][†]So Satan went out from the presence of the LORD and struck Job with loathsome [r] sores from [s] the sole of his foot to the crown of his head. [8]And he took [t] a piece of broken pottery with which to scrape himself while he sat in [u] the ashes.

[9][†]Then his wife said to him, “Do you still [v] hold fast your integrity? [q] Curse God and die.” [10][†]But he said to her, “You speak as one of the [w] foolish women would speak. [x] Shall we receive good from God, and shall we not receive evil?” [1] [y] In all this Job did not [z] sin with his lips.

Job’s Three Friends

[11][†]Now when Job’s three [a] friends heard of all this evil that had come upon him, they came each from his own place, Eliphaz [b] the Temanite, Bildad [c] the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite. They made an appointment together to come to [d] show him sympathy and comfort him. [12][†]And when they saw him from a distance, they did not recognize him. And they raised their voices and wept, and they [e] tore their robes and sprinkled [f] dust on their heads toward heaven. [13][†]And they sat with him on the ground [g] seven days and seven nights, and no one spoke a word to him, for they saw that his suffering was very great.

Job Laments His Birth

JOB 3 [†]After this Job [h] opened his mouth and cursed the day of his birth. [2]And Job said:

[3][^][†] [i] “Let the day perish on which I was born, and the night that said,
‘A man is conceived.’
[4] Let that day be darkness!
May God above not seek it,
nor light shine upon it.

[5] Let gloom and [j] deep darkness claim it.
Let clouds dwell upon it;
let the blackness of the day terrify it.
[6] That night—let thick darkness seize it!
Let it not rejoice among the days of the year;
let it not come into the number of the months.
[7] Behold, let that night be barren;
let no joyful cry enter it.
[8][†] Let those curse it who curse the day, who are ready to rouse up [k] Leviathan.
[9] Let the stars of its dawn be dark;
let it hope for light, but have none,
nor see [l] the eyelids of the morning, [10] because it did not shut the doors of my mother's womb, nor hide trouble from my eyes.

[11][†] "Why [m] did I not die at birth, come out from the womb and expire?
[12] Why did [n] the knees receive me?
Or why the breasts, that I should nurse?
[13][†] For then I would have lain down and been quiet;
I would have slept; then I would have been at rest, [14] with kings and counselors of the earth who [o] rebuilt ruins for themselves, [15] or with princes who had gold, who filled their houses with silver.
[16] Or why was I not as a hidden [p] stillborn child, as infants who never see the light?
[17] There the wicked cease from troubling, and there the weary are at [q] rest.
[18] There the prisoners are at ease together;
they hear not the voice of [r] the taskmaster.
[19] The small and the great are there, and the slave is free from his master.

20[†] “Why is light given to him who is in misery, and life to [s]the bitter in soul, 21 who [t]long for death, but it comes not,
and dig for it more than for [u]hidden treasures, 22 who rejoice exceedingly and are glad when they find the grave?
23[†] Why is light given to a man whose [v]way is hidden, whom God has [w]hedged in?
24 For my sighing comes [x]instead of[1] my bread, and my [y]groanings are poured out like water.
25 [z]For the thing that I fear comes upon me, and what I dread befalls me.
26 I am not at ease, nor am I quiet;
I have no rest, but trouble comes.”

Eliphaz Speaks: The Innocent Prosper

JOB 4 [†]Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:

2 “If one ventures a word with you, will you be impatient?
Yet who can keep from speaking?
3 Behold, you have instructed many,
and you have [a]strengthened the weak hands.
4 Your words have upheld him who was stumbling, and you have [a]made firm the feeble knees.
5 But now it has come to you, and you are impatient;
it touches you, and you are dismayed.
6 [b]Is not your fear of God[1] your [c]confidence, and the integrity of your ways your hope?

7[^] “Remember: [d]who that was innocent ever perished?
Or where were the upright cut off?
8[†] As I have seen, those who [e]plow iniquity and sow trouble reap the same.
9 By [f]the breath of God they perish, and by [g] the blast of his anger they are consumed.

10[†] The roar of the lion, the voice of the fierce lion, [h] the teeth of the young lions are broken.
11 The strong lion perishes for lack of prey, and the cubs of the lioness are scattered.

12[†] “Now a word was brought to me stealthily;
my ear received [i] the whisper of it.
13 Amid [j] thoughts from [k] visions of the night, when [k] deep sleep falls on men, 14 dread came upon me, and trembling, which made all my bones shake.
15[^] A spirit glided past my face;
the hair of my flesh stood up.
16 It stood still,
but I could not discern its appearance.
[l] A form was before my eyes;
there was silence, then I heard [m] a voice:
17[^][†] [n] ‘Can mortal man be in the right before [2] God?
Can a man be pure before his Maker?
18 Even in his servants [o] he puts no trust, and his angels he charges with error;
19[†] how much more those who dwell in houses of [p] clay, whose foundation is in [q] the dust,
who are crushed like [r] the moth.
20 Between [s] morning and evening they are beaten to pieces;
they perish forever [t] without anyone regarding it.
21 Is not their tent-cord plucked up within them,
[u] do they not die, and that without wisdom?’

JOB 5 [†] “Call now; is there anyone who will answer you?
To which of [v] the holy ones will you turn?
2 Surely vexation kills the fool, and jealousy slays the simple.

3 [w] I have seen the fool taking root, but suddenly I cursed his dwelling.
4 His children are [x] far from safety;
they are crushed in [y] the gate,
and there is no one to deliver them.
5 The hungry eat his harvest, and he takes it even out of thorns,[1]
and the thirsty pant[2] after his[3] wealth.
6[†] For affliction does not come from the dust, nor does trouble sprout from the ground, 7 but man is [z] born to trouble
as the sparks fly upward.

8 “As for me, I would seek God, and to God would I commit my cause,
9 who [a] does great things and [b] unsearchable,
[c] marvelous things without number:
10 he gives [d] rain on the earth and sends waters on the fields; 11 he [e] sets on high those who are lowly,
and those who mourn are lifted to safety.
12 He [f] frustrates the devices of the crafty, so that their hands achieve no success.
13[^] He [g] catches the wise in their own craftiness, and the schemes of the wily are brought to a quick end.
14 They meet with darkness in the daytime and [h] grope at noonday as in the night.
15 But he [i] saves the needy from the sword of their mouth and from the hand of the mighty.
16[†] So the poor have hope, and [j] injustice shuts her mouth.

17 “Behold, [k] blessed is the one whom God reproves;
therefore [l] despise not the discipline of the [m] Almighty.
18[^] For he wounds, but he [n] binds up;

he [o] shatters, but his hands heal.
[19] He will [p] deliver you from six troubles;
in seven no [q] evil [4] shall touch you.
[20] [r] In famine he will redeem you from death, and in war from the power of the sword.
[21][‡] You shall be [s] hidden from the lash of the tongue, and shall not fear destruction when it comes.
[22] At destruction and famine you shall laugh, and shall not fear [t] the beasts of the earth.
[23] For you shall be in league with the stones of the field, and the beasts of the field shall be at peace with you.
[24] You shall know that your [u] tent is at peace, and you shall inspect your fold and miss nothing.
[25] You shall know also that your [v] offspring shall be many,
and your descendants as [w] the grass of the earth.
[26] You shall come to your grave in [x] ripe old age, like a sheaf gathered up in its season.
[27] Behold, this we have [y] searched out; it is true.
Hear, and know it for your good.” [5]

Job Replies: My Complaint Is Just

JOB 6 [‡]Then Job answered and said:

[2] “Oh that my vexation were weighed,
and all my calamity laid in the balances!
[3] For then it would be heavier than [z] the sand of the sea;
therefore my words have been rash.
[4] For [a] the arrows of the Almighty are in me;
my spirit drinks their poison;
the terrors of God are arrayed against me.
[5] Does the wild donkey bray when he has grass, or the ox low over his fodder?
[6] Can that which is tasteless be eaten without salt, or is there any taste in the juice of the mallow? [1]

[7] My appetite refuses to touch them;
they are as food that is loathsome to me. [2]

[8][†] “Oh that I might have my request, and that God would fulfill my hope, [9] that it would [b] please God to crush me, that he would let loose his hand and cut me off!
[10][†] This would be my comfort;
I would even exult [3] in pain [c] unsparing, for I have not denied the words of [d] the Holy One.
[11] What is my strength, that I should wait?
And what is my end, that I should be patient?
[12] Is my strength the strength of stones, or is my flesh bronze?
[13] Have I any help in me, when resource is driven from me?

[14][†] “He who [e] withholds [4] kindness from a [f] friend forsakes the fear of the Almighty.
[15][^][†] My [g] brothers are [h] treacherous as a torrent-bed, as torrential [i] streams that pass away, [16] which are dark with ice, and where the snow hides itself.
[17] When they melt, they disappear;
when it is hot, they vanish from their place.
[18] The caravans turn aside from their course;
they go up into [j] the waste and perish.
[19][†] The caravans of [k] Tema look,
the travelers of [l] Sheba hope.
[20] They are [m] ashamed because they were confident;
they come there and are [m] disappointed.
[21] For you have now become nothing;
you see my calamity and are afraid.
[22] Have I said, ‘Make me a gift’?
Or, ‘From your wealth offer a bribe for me’?
[23] Or, ‘Deliver me from the adversary’s hand’?

Or, ‘Redeem me from the hand of [n] the ruthless’?

24 “Teach me, and I will be silent;
make me understand how I have gone astray.
25[†] How forceful are upright words!
But what does reproof from you reprove?
26 Do you think that you can reprove words, when the speech of a despairing man is [o] wind?
27 You would even [p] cast lots over the fatherless, and bargain over your friend.

28[†] “But now, be pleased to look at me, for I will not lie to your face.
29 [q] Please turn; let no injustice be done.
Turn now; my vindication is at stake.
30 Is there any injustice on my tongue?
Cannot my palate discern the cause of calamity?

Job Continues: My Life Has No Hope

JOB 7 “Has not man [r] a hard service on earth, and are not his [s] days like the days of a hired hand?
2 Like a slave who longs for [t] the shadow, and like [u] a hired hand who looks for his [v] wages,
3 so I am allotted months of [w] emptiness,
[x] and nights of misery are apportioned to me.
4 [y] When I lie down I say, ‘When shall I arise?’
But the night is long,
and I am full of tossing till the dawn.
5 My flesh is clothed with [z] worms and [a] dirt;
my skin hardens, then [b] breaks out afresh.
6 My days are [c] swifter than [d] a weaver’s shuttle and come to their end without hope.

7 “Remember that my life is a [e] breath;

my eye will never again see good.
[8] [f] The eye of him who sees me will behold me no more;
while your eyes are on me, [g] I shall be gone.
[9] As [h] the cloud fades and vanishes, so he who [i] goes down to Sheol does not come up; [10] he [j] returns no more to his house, nor does his [k] place know him anymore.

[11][†] “Therefore I will not [l] restrain my mouth;
I will speak in the anguish of my spirit;
I will [m] complain in [n] the bitterness of my soul.
[12][†] Am I the sea, or [o] a sea monster, that you set a guard over me?
[13] [p] When I say, ‘My bed will comfort me, my couch will ease my complaint,’ [14] then you scare me with dreams and terrify me with visions, [15] so that I would choose strangling and death rather than my [q] bones.
[16][†] I [r] loathe my life; I would not live forever.
[s] Leave me alone, for my days are [t] a breath.
[17][^][†] [u] What is man, that you make so much of him, and that you set your heart on him, [18] [v] visit him every morning and [w] test him every moment?
[19] How long will you not [x] look away from me, nor leave me alone till I swallow my spit?
[20] If I sin, what do I do to you, you watcher of mankind?
Why have you made me [y] your mark?
Why have I become a burden to you?
[21] Why do you not pardon my transgression and take away my iniquity?
For now I shall lie in [z] the earth;
you will [a] seek me, [b] but I shall not be.”

Bildad Speaks: Job Should Repent

JOB 8 [†]Then [c]Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

[2] “How long will you say these things, and the words of your mouth be a [d]great wind?
[3][^] [e]Does God pervert justice?
Or does the Almighty pervert the right?
[4][†] If your [f]children have sinned against him, he has delivered them into the hand of their transgression.
[5] If you will seek God and [g]plead with the Almighty for mercy, [6] if you are pure and upright, surely then he will [h]rouse himself for you and [i]restore your rightful habitation.
[7] And though your beginning was small,
[j]your latter days will be very great.

[8][†] “For [k]inquire, please, of bygone ages, and consider what [l]the fathers have searched out.
[9] For we are but of yesterday and know nothing, for our days on earth are [m]a shadow.
[10] Will they not teach you and tell you and utter words out of their understanding?

[11][†] “Can papyrus grow where there is no marsh?
Can reeds flourish where there is no water?
[12] While yet in flower and not cut down, they [n]wither before any other plant.
[13] Such are the paths of all who [o]forget God;
[p]the hope of [q]the godless shall perish.
[14] His confidence is severed, and his trust is [r]a spider’s web. [1] [15] He leans against his [s]house, but it does not stand;
he lays hold of it, but it does not endure.

16 He is a lush plant before the sun, and his [t] shoots spread over his garden.
17 His roots entwine the stone heap;
he looks upon a house of stones.
18 If he is destroyed from his [u] place, then it will deny him, saying, ‘I have never [v] seen you.’ 19 Behold, this is the joy of his way, and out of [w] the soil others will spring.

20[†] “Behold, God will not reject a blameless man, nor take the hand of evildoers.
21 He will yet [x] fill your mouth with laughter, and your lips with shouting.
22 Those who hate you will be [y] clothed with shame, and the tent of the wicked will be no more.”

Job Replies: There Is No Arbiter

JOB 9 [†]Then Job answered and said:

2[^] “Truly I know that it is so:
But how can a man be [z] in the right before God?
3[†] If one wished to [a] contend with him, one could not answer him once in a thousand times.
4 He is [b] wise in heart and mighty in strength —who has [c] hardened himself against him, and succeeded?— 5 he who removes mountains, and they know it not, when he overturns them in his anger, 6 who [d] shakes the earth out of its place, and [e] its pillars tremble;
7 who commands the sun, and it does not rise;
who seals up the stars;
8 who alone [f] stretched out the heavens and trampled the waves of the sea; 9 who [g] made [h] the Bear and [i] Orion, the Pleiades [j] and the chambers of the south; [10] who does [k] great things beyond searching out, and marvelous things beyond number.

[11] Behold, he passes by me, and I [l] see him not;
he moves on, but I do not perceive him.
[12] Behold, he snatches away; [m] who can turn him back?
[n] Who will say to him, ‘What are you doing?’

[13][†] “God will not turn back his anger;
beneath him bowed the helpers of [o] Rahab.
[14][^] [p] How then can I [q] answer him, choosing my words with him?
[15][†] [r] Though I am in the right, I cannot answer him;
I must [s] appeal for mercy to my accuser. [1]
[16] If I summoned him and he answered me,
I would not believe that he was listening to my voice.
[17] For he crushes me with a tempest and multiplies my wounds [t] without cause; [18] he will not let me get my breath,
but fills me with bitterness.
[19] If it is a contest of [u] strength, behold, he is mighty!
If it is a matter of justice, who can [v] summon him? [2] [20][†] Though I am in the right, [w] my own mouth would condemn me;
though I am blameless, he would prove me perverse.
[21][†] I am [x] blameless; I regard not myself;
I [y] loathe my life.
[22][†] It is all one; therefore I say,
‘He [z] destroys both the blameless and the wicked.’
[23] When [a] disaster brings sudden death, he mocks at the calamity [3] of the innocent.
[24][^] [b] The earth is given into the hand of the wicked;
he [c] covers the faces of its judges—
[d] if it is not he, who then is it?

25 “My [e] days are swifter than [f] a runner;
they flee away; they see no good.
26 They go by like [g] skiffs of reed, like [h] an eagle swooping on the prey.
27 If I say, [i] ‘I will forget my complaint,
I will put off my sad face, and [j] be of good cheer,’ 28 I become [k] afraid of all my suffering, for I know you will not [l] hold me innocent.
29 I shall be [m] condemned;
why then do I labor in vain?
30[^] If I wash myself with snow and [n] cleanse my hands with lye, 31 yet you will plunge me into a pit, and my own clothes will [o] abhor me.
32[†] For he is not a man, as I am, that I might answer him, that we should [p] come to trial together.
33[^] [q] There is no [4] arbiter between us, who might lay his hand on us both.
34 [r] Let him take his [s] rod away from me,
and let [t] not dread of him terrify me.
35 Then I would speak without fear of him, for I am not so in myself.

Job Continues: A Plea to God

JOB 10 [†] “I [u] loathe my life;
I will give free utterance to my [v] complaint;
I will speak in [w] the bitterness of my soul.
2 I will say to God, Do not [x] condemn me;
let me know why you [y] contend against me.
3[†] [z] Does it seem good to you to oppress, to despise [a] the work of your hands
[b] and favor the designs of the wicked?
4[^] Have you [c] eyes of flesh?

[d] Do you see as man sees?
[5] Are your days as the days of man, or your [e] years as a man’s years, [6] that you [f] seek out my iniquity and search for my sin,
[7] although you [g] know that I am not guilty, and there is [h] none to deliver out of your hand?
[8][†] [i] Your hands fashioned and made me,
and now you have destroyed me altogether.
[9] Remember that you have made me like [j] clay;
and will you return me to the [k] dust?
[10] Did you not pour me out like milk and curdle me like cheese?
[11][^] You clothed me with skin and flesh, and knit me together with bones and sinews.
[12] You have granted me life and steadfast love, and your care has preserved my spirit.
[13] Yet these things you hid in your heart;
I know that [l] this was your purpose.
[14] If I sin, you [m] watch me and do not [n] acquit me of my iniquity.
[15][†] [o] If I am guilty, woe to me!
If I am [p] in the right, I cannot lift up my head, for I am filled with disgrace and [q] look on my affliction.
[16] And were my head lifted up, [1] you would hunt me like [r] a lion and again work [s] wonders against me.
[17] You renew your [t] witnesses against me and increase your vexation toward me;
you [u] bring fresh troops against me.

[18][†] [v] “Why did you bring me out from the womb?
Would that I had died before any eye had seen me [19] [w] and were as though I had not been, carried from the womb to the grave.

20 [x] Are not my days few?
[y] Then cease, and leave me alone, [z] that I may find a little cheer
21[‡] before I go—and [a] I shall not return—to the land of [b] darkness and [c] deep shadow, 22 the land of gloom like thick darkness, like deep shadow without any order,
where light is as thick darkness.”

Zophar Speaks: You Deserve Worse

JOB 11 [‡]Then [d] Zophar the Naamathite answered and said:

2 “Should [e] a multitude of words go unanswered, and a man full of talk be judged right?
3 Should your babble silence men, and when you mock, shall no one shame you?
4 For [f] you say, ‘My [g] doctrine is pure, and I am clean in God’s [1] eyes.’
5[‡] But oh, that God would speak and open his lips to you,
6 and that he would tell you the secrets of wisdom!
For he is manifold in [h] understanding. [2]
Know then that God [i] exacts of you less than your guilt deserves.

7[‡] [j] “Can you find out the deep things of God?
Can you find out the limit of the Almighty?
8 It is [k] higher than heaven [3]—what can you do?
Deeper than Sheol—what can you know?
9 Its measure is longer than the earth and broader than the sea.
10 If he [l] passes through and [m] imprisons and summons the court, who can [n] turn him back?
11 For he knows [o] worthless men;
when he sees iniquity, will he not consider it?

12[†] But a stupid man will get understanding when [p] a wild donkey’s colt is [q] born a man!

13 “If you [r] prepare your heart,
you will [s] stretch out your hands toward him.
14 If iniquity is in your hand, put it far away,
and let not injustice dwell in your tents.
15 Surely then you will [t] lift up your face without [u] blemish;
you will be secure and will not fear.
16 You will [v] forget your misery;
you will remember it as waters that have passed away.
17[^] And your life will be [w] brighter than the noonday;
its darkness will be like the morning.
18 And you will feel secure, because there is hope; you will look around and [x] take your rest in security.
19 You will [x] lie down, and none will make you afraid;
many will [y] court your favor.
20[†] But [z] the eyes of the wicked will fail;
all way of escape will be lost to them, and their hope is [a] to breathe their last.”

Job Replies: The LORD Has Done This

JOB 12 [†]Then Job answered and said:

2[†] “No doubt you are the people, and wisdom will die with you.
3[^] But I have [b] understanding as well as you;
I am not inferior to you.
Who does not know [c] such things as these?
4[†] I am [d] a laughingstock to my friends;
I, who [e] called to God and he answered me,
a just and blameless man, am a laughingstock.
5 In the thought of one who is [f] at ease there is contempt for misfortune;
it is ready for those whose feet slip.

6[†] [g] The tents of robbers are at peace, and those who provoke God are secure, who bring their god in their hand. [1]

7[†] "But ask the beasts, and they will teach you;
the birds of the heavens, and they will tell you;
8 or the bushes of the earth, [2] and they will teach you;
and the fish of the sea will declare to you.
9[†] Who among all these does not know that [h] the hand of the LORD has done this?
10 In [i] his hand is the life of every living thing and the breath of all mankind.
11 Does not [j] the ear test words
as the palate tastes food?
12 Wisdom is with [k] the aged,
and understanding in length of days.

13[†] [l] "With God [3] are wisdom and might;
he has counsel and understanding.
14 If he tears down, none can rebuild;
if he [m] shuts a man in, none can open.
15 If he [n] withholds the waters, they dry up;
if he [o] sends them out, they overwhelm the land.
16 With him are strength and [p] sound wisdom;
the deceived and the deceiver are his.
17[†] He leads [q] counselors away stripped,
and [r] judges he makes fools.
18[†] He [s] looses the bonds of kings and binds a waistcloth on their hips.
19 He leads priests away stripped and overthrows the mighty.
20 He deprives of speech those who are trusted
[t] and takes away the discernment of the elders.
21[†] He [u] pours contempt on princes and loosens the belt of the strong.

[22] He [v] uncovers the deeps out of darkness and brings [w] deep darkness to light.
[23][†] He [x] makes nations great, and he destroys them;
he enlarges nations, and [y] leads them away.
[24] He takes away understanding from the chiefs of the people of the earth and [z] makes them wander in a trackless waste.
[25] They [a] grope in the dark without light, and he makes them [b] stagger like a drunken man.

Job Continues: Still I Will Hope in God

JOB 13 “Behold, my eye has seen all this, my ear has heard and understood it.
[2] [c] What you know, I also know;
I am not inferior to you.
[3][^][†] [d] But I would speak to the Almighty, and I desire to [e] argue my case with God.
[4][†] As for you, [f] you whitewash with lies;
[g] worthless physicians are you all.
[5] Oh that you would [h] keep silent, and it would be your wisdom!
[6][†] Hear now my argument and listen to the pleadings of my lips.
[7] Will you [i] speak falsely for God and speak [i] deceitfully for him?
[8] Will you show partiality toward him?
Will you [j] plead the case for God?
[9] Will it be well with you when he [k] searches you out?
Or [l] can you deceive him, as one deceives a man?
[10] He will surely rebuke you if in secret you show partiality.
[11][†] Will not his [m] majesty terrify you, and the dread of him fall upon you?

12 Your maxims are proverbs of [n] ashes;
your defenses are defenses of clay.

13 “Let me have silence, and I will speak, and let come on me what may.
14 Why should I take my flesh in my teeth and [o] put my life in my hand?
15[^][†] [p] Though he slay me, I will [q] hope in him; [1] yet I will [r] argue my ways to his face.
16[†] This will be my salvation, that the godless shall not come before him.
17 [s] Keep listening to my words, and let my declaration be in your ears.
18 Behold, I have [t] prepared my case;
I know that I shall be in the right.
19 [u] Who is there who will contend with me?
For then I would be silent and die.
20[†] Only grant me two things,
then I will not [v] hide myself from your face:
21 [w] withdraw your hand far from me,
and let not [x] dread of you terrify me.
22 [y] Then call, and I will answer;
or let me speak, and you reply to me.
23 How many are my iniquities and my sins?
[z] Make me know my transgression and my sin.
24 Why [a] do you hide your face and [b] count me as your enemy?
25 Will you frighten [c] a driven leaf and pursue dry [d] chaff?
26[†] For you [e] write bitter things against me and make me inherit [f] the iniquities of my youth.
27[†] You put my feet in [g] the stocks and [h] watch all my paths;
you set a limit for [2] the soles of my feet.

28[†] Man[3] wastes away like [i] a rotten thing, like a garment that is [j] moth-eaten.

Job Continues: Death Comes Soon to All

JOB 14 “Man who is [k] born of a woman is [l] few of days and [m] full of trouble.
2 He comes out like [n] a flower and [o] withers;
he flees like [p] a shadow and continues not.
3 And do you [q] open your eyes on such a one and [r] bring me into judgment with you?
4[†] Who can bring [s] a clean thing out of an unclean?
There is not one.
5 Since his [t] days are determined, and [u] the number of his months is with you,
and you have appointed his limits that he cannot pass, 6 [v] look away from him and leave him alone,[1] that he may enjoy, like [w] a hired hand, his day.

7[†] “For there is hope for a tree,
if it be cut down, that it will sprout again,
and that its shoots will not cease.
8 Though its root grow old in the earth, and [x] its stump die in the soil, 9 yet at the scent of water it will bud and put out [y] branches like a young plant.
10[†] But a man dies and is laid low;
man breathes his last, and [z] where is he?
11 [a] As waters fail from a lake and a river wastes away and dries up, 12 so a man lies down and rises not again;
till [b] the heavens are no more he will not awake or be [c] roused out of his sleep.
13 Oh that you would [d] hide me in [e] Sheol, that you would [d] conceal me [f] until your wrath be past, that you would appoint me a set time, and remember me!

[14][^] If a man dies, shall he live again?
All the days of my [g] service I would [h] wait, till my renewal [2] should come.
[15][†] You would [i] call, and I would answer you;
you would long for the [j] work of your hands.
[16] For then you would [k] number my steps;
you would not keep [l] watch over my sin;
[17][^] my transgression would be [m] sealed up in a bag, and you would cover over my iniquity.

[18] “But the mountain falls and [n] crumbles away, and [o] the rock is removed from its place; [19][†] the waters wear away the stones;
the torrents wash away the soil of the earth;
so you destroy the hope of man.
[20] You prevail forever against him, and he passes;
you change his countenance, and send him away.
[21] His sons come to honor, and he [p] does not know it;
they are brought low, and he perceives it not.
[22] He feels only the pain of his own body, and he mourns only for himself.”

Eliphaz Accuses: Job Does Not Fear God

JOB 15 [†]Then [q] Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:

[2][†] “Should [r] a wise man answer with [s] windy knowledge, and fill his [t] belly with [u] the east wind?
[3] Should he argue in unprofitable talk, or in words with which he can do no good?
[4][†] But you are doing away with the fear of God [1] and hindering meditation before God.
[5] For your iniquity teaches your mouth, and you choose the tongue of the crafty.

6 Your [v] own mouth condemns you, and not I;
[w] your own lips testify against you.

7 [x] “Are you the first man who was born?
Or [y] were you brought forth [z] before the hills?
8[†] Have you listened in [a] the council of God?
And do you limit wisdom to yourself?
9[^] [b] What do you know that we do not know?
What do you understand that is not clear to us?
10 [c] Both the gray-haired and the aged are among us, older than your father.
11 Are the comforts of God too small for you, or the word that deals gently with you?
12 Why does your heart carry you away,
and why do your eyes flash, 13 that you turn your [d] spirit against God and bring such words out of your mouth?
14[^][†] [e] What is man, [f] that he can be pure?
Or he who is [g] born of a woman, that he can be righteous?
15 Behold, God [2] [h] puts no trust in his [i] holy ones, and the heavens are not pure in his sight; 16 [j] how much less one who is abominable and [k] corrupt, a man who [l] drinks injustice like water!

17 “I will show you; hear me, and what I have seen I will declare 18 (what wise men have told,
without hiding it [m] from their fathers, 19 to whom alone the land was given,
and no [n] stranger passed among them).
20[†] The wicked man writhes in pain all his days, through all the [o] years that are laid up for [p] the ruthless.
21 [q] Dreadful sounds are in his ears;
in [r] prosperity the destroyer will come upon him.

22 He does not believe that he will return out of darkness, and he is marked for the sword.
23 He [s] wanders abroad for bread, saying, ‘Where is it?’
He knows that a day of darkness is ready at his hand;
24 distress and anguish terrify him;
they [t] prevail against him, like a king ready for battle.
25 Because he has stretched out his hand against God and defies the Almighty, 26 [u] running [v] stubbornly against him with a thickly bossed shield;
27[†] because he has [w] covered his face with his fat and gathered fat upon his waist 28 and has lived in desolate cities, in houses that none should inhabit, which were ready to become heaps of ruins; 29 he will not be rich, and his wealth will not endure, nor will his possessions spread over the earth; [3] 30 he will not depart from darkness;
the flame will dry up his shoots, and by [x] the breath of his mouth he will depart.
31[†] Let him not [y] trust in emptiness, deceiving himself, for emptiness will be his payment.
32 It will be paid in full [z] before his time, and his branch will not be green.
33 He will shake off his unripe grape like the vine, and cast off his blossom like the olive tree.
34 For [a] the company of the godless is barren, and [b] fire consumes the tents of bribery.
35 They [c] conceive trouble and give birth to evil, and their [d] womb prepares deceit.”

Job Replies: Miserable Comforters Are You

JOB 16 [†]Then Job answered and said:

[2] “I have heard [e] many such things;
[f] miserable comforters are you all.
[3] Shall [g] windy words have an end?
Or what provokes you that you answer?
[4][†] I also could speak as you do, if you were in my place;
I could join words together against you and [h] shake my head at you.
[5] I could strengthen you with my mouth, and the solace of my lips would assuage your pain.

[6] “If I speak, my pain is not assuaged, and if I forbear, how much of it leaves me?
[7] Surely now God has worn me out;
[i] he has [1] made desolate all my company.
[8][†] And he has shriveled me up, which is [j] a witness against me,
and my [k] leanness has risen up against me;
it testifies to my face.
[9] He has [l] torn me in his wrath [m] and hated me;
he has [n] gnashed his teeth at me;
my adversary sharpens his eyes against me.
[10] Men have [o] gaped at me with their mouth;
they have [p] struck me insolently on the cheek;
they [q] mass themselves together against me.
[11][^] God gives me up to the ungodly and casts me into the hands of the wicked.
[12][†] I was at ease, and he broke me apart;
he seized me by the neck and dashed me to pieces;
he set me up as his [r] target;
[13] his [s] archers surround me.
He slashes open my kidneys [t] and does not spare;
he [u] pours out my gall on the ground.
[14] He breaks me with [v] breach upon breach;

he [w] runs upon me like a warrior.
15[†] I have sewed [x] sackcloth upon my skin and have laid [y] my strength [z] in the dust.
16[†] My face is red with weeping, and on my eyelids is [a] deep darkness, 17[^] although there is no [b] violence in my hands, and my prayer is pure.

18 “O earth, [c] cover not my blood, and let my [d] cry find no resting place.
19[^][†] Even now, behold, my [e] witness is in heaven, and he who testifies for me is [f] on high.
20 My friends [g] scorn me;
my eye pours out tears to God, 21[^] that he would [h] argue the case of a man with God, as [2] a son of man does with his neighbor.
22 For when a few years have come
I shall go the way [i] from which I shall not return.

Job Continues: Where Then Is My Hope?

JOB 17 “My spirit is broken; my days are [j] extinct;
[k] the graveyard is ready for me.
2 Surely there are mockers about me, and my eye dwells on their [l] provocation.

3 “Lay down a pledge for me with you;
who is there who will put up [m] security for me?
4 Since you have closed their hearts to understanding, therefore you will not let them triumph.
5[†] He who informs against his friends to get a share of their property
the [n] eyes of his children will fail.

6[^] “He has made me [o] a byword of the peoples, and I am one before whom men spit.

[7][‡] My [p] eye has grown dim from vexation, and all my members are like [q] a shadow.
[8] The upright are [r] appalled at this,
and the innocent stirs himself up against the godless.
[9] Yet the righteous holds to his way, and he who has [s] clean hands grows stronger and stronger.
[10][‡] But you, [t] come on again, all of you, and I shall not find a wise man among you.
[11] My [u] days are past; my plans are broken off,
the desires of my heart.
[12] They [v] make night into day:
‘The light,’ they say, ‘is near to the darkness.’ [1] [13] If I hope for [w] Sheol as [x] my house, if I make my bed in darkness,
[14] if I say to the pit, ‘You are my father,’ and to the worm, ‘My mother,’ or ‘My sister,’ [15] where then is my hope?
Who will see my hope?
[16] Will it go down to the bars of [w] Sheol?
Shall we [y] descend together [z] into the dust?”

Bildad Speaks: God Punishes the Wicked

JOB 18 [‡]Then [a] Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

[2] “How long will you [b] hunt for words?
Consider, and then we will speak.
[3] Why are we counted as [c] cattle?
Why are we stupid in your sight?
[4] You who [d] tear yourself in your anger, shall the earth be forsaken for you,
or [e] the rock be removed out of its place?

[5][‡] “Indeed, [f] the light of the wicked is put out, and the flame of his fire does not shine.

[6] The light is [g]dark in his tent, and his lamp above him is put out.
[7][†] His strong steps are shortened, and his [h]own schemes throw him down.
[8] For he is cast into a net by his own feet,
and he walks on its mesh.
[9] [i]A trap seizes him by the heel;
a snare lays hold of him.
[10] A rope is hidden for him in the ground,
a trap for him in the path.
[11][†] [j]Terrors frighten him on every side, and chase him at his heels.
[12] His strength is famished, and calamity is [k]ready for his stumbling.
[13] It consumes the parts of his skin;
[l]the firstborn of death consumes his limbs.
[14][†] He is torn from the tent in which he trusted and is brought to [m]the king of terrors.
[15] In his tent dwells that which is none of his;
[n]sulfur is scattered over his habitation.
[16] His [o]roots dry up beneath, and his branches [p]wither above.
[17] His [q]memory perishes from the earth, and he has no name in the street.
[18] [r]He is thrust from light into darkness, and driven out of the world.
[19] He has no [s]posterity or progeny among his people, and no survivor where he used to live.
[20] They of the west are appalled at his [t]day, and [u]horror seizes them of the east.
[21][^] Surely such are the dwellings of the unrighteous, such is the place of him who [v]knows not God.”

Job Replies: My Redeemer Lives

JOB 19 [†]Then Job answered and said:

[2][†] “How long will you torment me and break me in pieces with words?
[3][†] These [w]ten times you have cast reproach upon me;
are you not ashamed to wrong me?
[4] And even if it be true that I have erred, my error remains with myself.
[5] If indeed you [x]magnify yourselves against me and make my disgrace an argument against me, [6][†] know then that God has [y]put me in the wrong and closed his net about me.
[7][^][†] Behold, I [z]cry out, ‘Violence!’ but I am not answered;
I call for help, but there is no justice.
[8][†] He has [a]walled up my way, so that I cannot pass, and he has set darkness upon my paths.
[9] He has [b]stripped from me my glory and taken the [c]crown from my head.
[10] He breaks me down on every side, and I [d]am gone, and my hope has he pulled up like a tree.
[11] He has kindled his wrath against me and [e]counts me as his adversary.
[12] His [f]troops come on together; they have [g]cast up their siege ramp [1] against me and encamp around my tent.

[13][†] “He has put my [h]brothers far from me, and [i]those who knew me are wholly estranged from me.
[14] My relatives [j]have failed me, my close [k]friends have forgotten me.
[15] The guests [l]in my house and my maidservants count me as a stranger;
I have become a foreigner in their eyes.
[16] I call to my servant, but he gives me no answer;

I must plead with him with my mouth for mercy.
17 My breath is strange to my [m] wife, and I am a stench to the children of [n] my own mother.
18 Even young [o] children despise me;
when I rise they talk against me.
19[^] All my [p] intimate friends abhor me,
and those whom I loved have turned against me.
20[†] My [q] bones stick to my skin and to my flesh, and I have escaped by the skin of my teeth.
21 Have mercy on me, have mercy on me, O you my friends, for the hand of God has [r] touched me!
22[†] Why do you, like God, [s] pursue me?
Why are you not satisfied with my flesh?

23[†] "Oh that my words were written!
Oh that they were [t] inscribed in a book!
24 Oh that with an iron [u] pen and lead they were engraved in the rock forever!
25[^][†] For I [v] know that my [w] Redeemer lives, and at the last he will stand upon the [x] earth. [2] 26[^] And after my skin has been thus destroyed, yet in [3] my flesh I shall [y] see God, 27 whom I shall see for myself, and my eyes shall behold, and not [z] another.
My heart [a] faints within me!
28[†] If you say, 'How we will [s] pursue him!'
and, 'The root of the matter is found in him,' 29[†] be afraid of the sword, for wrath brings the punishment of the sword, that you may know there is [b] a judgment."

Zophar Speaks: The Wicked Will Suffer

JOB 20 [†]Then [c] Zophar the Naamathite answered and said:

[2] “Therefore my [d]thoughts answer me, because of my haste within me.
[3][‡] I hear censure that insults me,
and out of my understanding a spirit answers me.
[4] Do you not know this from of old,
[e]since man was placed on earth,
[5] [f]that the exulting of the wicked is short,
and the joy of the godless but for a moment?
[6][‡] [g]Though his height mount up to the heavens, and his head reach to the clouds, [7] he will perish forever like his own [h]dung;
those who have seen him will say, [i]‘Where is he?’
[8] He will fly away like [j]a dream and not be found;
he will be chased away like a vision of the night.
[9] [k]The eye that saw him will see him no more, nor will his place any more behold him.
[10][‡] His children will seek the favor of the poor, and his hands will [l]give back his wealth.
[11] His bones are full of his [m]youthful vigor, but it will lie [n]down with him in the dust.

[12] “Though evil is sweet in his mouth, though he hides it [o]under his tongue, [13] though he is loath to let it go and holds it in his mouth, [14] yet his food is turned in his stomach;
it is the venom of [p]cobras within him.
[15] He swallows down riches and vomits them up again;
God casts them out of his belly.
[16] He will suck the poison of cobras;
[q]the tongue of a viper will kill him.
[17] He will not look upon [r]the rivers,
the streams flowing with [s]honey and [t]curds.
[18] He will [u]give back the fruit of his toil and will not [v] swallow it down; from the profit of his trading

he will get no enjoyment.
19 For he has crushed and abandoned the poor;
he has seized a house that he did not build.

20 “Because he [w] knew no [x] contentment in his belly,
[y] he will not let anything in which he delights escape him.
21 There was nothing left after he had eaten;
therefore his prosperity will not endure.
22 In the fullness of his sufficiency he will be in distress;
the hand of everyone in misery will come against him.
23[†] To fill his belly to the full,
God [1] will send his burning anger against him and rain it upon him [z] into his body.
24 [a] He will flee from an iron weapon;
[b] a bronze arrow will strike [c] him through.
25 It [d] is drawn forth and comes out of his body;
[e] the glittering point comes out of his [f] gallbladder;
[g] terrors come upon him.
26 Utter darkness is laid up for his treasures;
[h] a fire not fanned will devour him;
what is left in his tent will be consumed.
27[†] [i] The heavens will reveal his iniquity, and the earth will rise up against him.
28 The possessions of his house will be carried away, dragged off in the day of God’s [2] wrath.
29[^] [j] This is the wicked man’s portion from God,
[j] the heritage decreed for him by God.”

Job Replies: The Wicked Do Prosper

JOB 21 [†]Then Job answered and said:

2 [k]“Keep listening to my words, and let this be your comfort.
3 Bear with me, and I will speak, and after I have spoken, [l]mock on.
4 As for me, is my [m]complaint against man?
Why should I not be impatient?
5 Look at me and be appalled, and [n]lay your hand over your mouth.
6 When I remember, I am dismayed, and shuddering seizes my flesh.
7[^][†] [o]Why do the wicked live, reach old age, and grow mighty in power?
8 Their [p]offspring are established in their presence, and their descendants before their eyes.
9 Their houses are [q]safe from fear, and [r]no rod of God is upon them.
10 Their bull breeds without fail;
their cow calves and [s]does not miscarry.
11 They send out their [t]little boys like a flock, and their children dance.
12 They sing to [u]the tambourine and [v]the lyre and rejoice to the sound of [v]the pipe.
13 They [w]spend their days in prosperity, and in [x]peace they go down to [y]Sheol.
14 They say to God, [z]‘Depart from us!
We do not desire the knowledge of your ways.
15 [a]What is the Almighty, that we should serve him?
And what [b]profit do we get if we pray to him?’
16 Behold, is not their prosperity in their hand?
[c]The counsel of the wicked is far from me.

17[†] “How often is it that [d]the lamp of the wicked is put out?
That their calamity comes upon them?
That God [1] distributes pains in his anger?
18 That they are like [e]straw before the wind, and like [f]chaff that the storm carries away?
19 You say, ‘God [g]stores up their iniquity for their [h]children.’
Let him pay it out to them, that they may [i]know it.
20 Let their own eyes see their destruction, and let them [j]drink of the wrath of the Almighty.
21 For what do they care for their houses after them, when [k]the number of their months is cut off?
22[†] [l]Will any teach God knowledge, seeing that he [m]judges those who are on high?
23 One dies in his full vigor, being wholly at ease and secure, 24 his pails [2] full of milk and [n]the marrow of his bones moist.
25 Another dies in [o]bitterness of soul, never having tasted of prosperity.
26 They [p]lie down alike in the dust, and [q]the worms cover them.

27 “Behold, I know your thoughts and your schemes to wrong me.
28 For you say, [r]‘Where is the house of the prince?
Where is [s]the tent in which the wicked lived?’
29 Have you not asked those who travel the roads, and do you not accept their testimony 30 that [t]the evil man is spared in the day of calamity, that he is rescued in the day of wrath?
31 Who declares his way [u]to his face, and who [v]repays him for what he has done?
32 When he is [w]carried to the grave, watch is kept over his tomb.

33[‡] [x] The clods of the valley are sweet to him;
[y] all mankind follows after him, and those who go before him are innumerable.
34 How then will you comfort me with empty nothings?
There is nothing left of your answers but falsehood.”

Eliphaz Speaks: Job’s Wickedness Is Great

JOB 22 [‡]Then [z] Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:

2[‡] [a] “Can a man be profitable to God?
Surely he who is wise is profitable to himself.
3 Is it any pleasure to the Almighty if you are in the right, or is it gain to him if you [b] make your ways blameless?
4 Is it for your fear of him that he reproves you and [c] enters into judgment with you?
5[‡] Is not your evil abundant?
There is no end to your iniquities.
6[‡] For you have [d] exacted pledges of your brothers for nothing [e] and stripped the naked of their clothing.
7 You have given no water to the weary to drink, and you have [f] withheld bread from the hungry.
8[^] [g] The man with power possessed the land, and [h] the favored man lived in it.
9[‡] You have [i] sent widows away empty, and [j] the arms of [k] the fatherless were crushed.
10 Therefore [l] snares are all around you,
and sudden terror overwhelms you, 11 or [m] darkness, so that you cannot see,
and a [n] flood of [o] water covers you.

12 “Is not God high in the heavens?
See [p] the highest stars, how lofty they are!
13[‡] But you say, [q] ‘What does God know?
Can he judge through [r] the deep darkness?

14 [s] Thick clouds veil him, so that he does not see,
and he walks on the vault of heaven.’
15 Will you keep to the old way that wicked men have trod?
16 They were snatched away [t] before their time;
their foundation was washed away.
17[†] They said to God, [u] ‘Depart from us,’ and [v] ‘What can the Almighty do to us?’ [1] 18 Yet he filled their houses with good things—but [w] the counsel of the wicked is far from me.
19 [x] The righteous see it and are glad;
the innocent one [y] mocks at them, 20 saying, ‘Surely our adversaries are cut off, and what they left [z] the fire has consumed.’

21[†] [a] “Agree with God, and [b] be at peace; thereby good will come to you.
22 Receive instruction from [c] his mouth, and [d] lay up his words in your heart.
23 If you [e] return to the Almighty you will be [f] built up;
if you [g] remove injustice far from your tents, 24 if you lay gold in [h] the dust, and gold of [i] Ophir among the stones of the torrent-bed, 25 then the Almighty will be your gold and your precious silver.
26 For then you [j] will delight yourself in the Almighty and [k] lift up your face to God.
27 You will [l] make your prayer to him, and he will hear you, and you will [m] pay your vows.
28 You will decide on a matter, and it will be established for you, and [n] light will shine on your ways.
29 For when they are humbled you say, ‘It is because of pride’; [2] but he saves [o] the lowly.
30[†] He [p] delivers even the one who is not innocent, who will be delivered through [q] the cleanness of your hands.”

Job Replies: Where Is God?

JOB 23 [†]Then Job answered and said:

2[†] “Today also my [r] complaint is bitter; [1]
my [s] hand is heavy on account of my groaning.
3[†] Oh, [t] that I knew where I might find him, that I might come even to his [u] seat!
4 I would [v] lay my case before him and fill my mouth with arguments.
5 I would know what he would answer me and understand what he would say to me.
6 Would he [w] contend with me in the greatness of his power?
No; he would pay attention to me.
7[^] There an upright man could argue with him, and I would be acquitted forever by my judge.

8 “Behold, [x] I go forward, but he is not there, and backward, but I do not perceive him;
9 on the left hand when he is working, I do not behold him;
he turns to the right hand, but I do not see him.
10[†] But he [y] knows [z] the way that I [a] take;
when he has [b] tried me, I shall come out as gold.
11 My foot [c] has held fast to his steps;
I have kept his way and have [d] not turned aside.
12 I have not departed from the commandment of his lips;
I have [e] treasured the words of his mouth more than my [f] portion of food.
13[†] But he is unchangeable, [2] and [g] who can turn him back?
What he [h] desires, that he does.
14 For he will complete what he [i] appoints for me, and many such things are [j] in his mind.
15 Therefore I am terrified at his presence;

when I consider, I am in dread of him.
[16] God has made my [k] heart faint;
the Almighty has terrified me;
[17] yet I am not silenced because of the darkness, nor because thick darkness covers my face.

JOB 24 [†] “Why are [l] not times of judgment [m] kept by the Almighty, and why do those who know him never see his [n] days?
[2][†] Some move [o] landmarks;
they seize flocks and pasture them.
[3] They drive away the donkey of the fatherless;
they [p] take the widow’s ox for a pledge.
[4] They [q] thrust the poor off the road;
the poor of the earth [r] all hide themselves.
[5] Behold, like wild donkeys in the desert the poor [1] [s] go out to their toil, [t] seeking game;
the wasteland yields food for their children.
[6] They gather their [2] fodder in the field, and they glean the vineyard of the wicked man.
[7] They [u] lie all night naked, without clothing, and have no covering in the cold.
[8] They are wet with the rain of the mountains and [v] cling to the rock for lack of shelter.
[9][†] (There are those who snatch the fatherless child from the breast, and they take a pledge against the poor.)
[10] They go about naked, without clothing; hungry, they [w] carry the sheaves;
[11] among the olive rows of the wicked [3] they make oil;
they tread the winepresses, but suffer thirst.
[12][^] From out of the city the dying groan, and the soul of [x] the wounded cries for help;
yet God charges no one with [y] wrong.

[13][†] “There are those who rebel [z] against the light, who are not acquainted with its ways,

and do not stay in its paths.
[14] The murderer rises before it is light, that he [a] may kill the poor and needy,
and in the night he is like a thief.
[15] The eye of the adulterer also waits for [b] the twilight, saying, ‘No [c] eye will see me’;
and he veils his face.
[16] In the dark they [d] dig through houses;
by day they shut themselves up;
they do not know the light.
[17] For [e] deep darkness is morning to all of them;
for they are friends with the terrors of deep darkness.

[18][†] “You say, [f]‘Swift are they on the face of the waters;
their portion is cursed in the land;
no treader turns toward their vineyards.
[19] Drought and heat snatch away the snow waters;
so does [g] Sheol those who have sinned.
[20] The womb forgets them;
the worm finds them sweet;
they are [h] no longer remembered,
so wickedness is broken like [i] a tree.’

[21][†] “They wrong the barren, childless woman, and do no good to the widow.
[22] Yet God [4] prolongs the life of the mighty by his power;
they rise up when they despair of life.
[23] He gives them security, and they are supported, and his [j] eyes are upon their ways.
[24] They are exalted [k] a little while, and then [l] are gone;
they are brought low and gathered up like all others;
they are [m] cut off like the heads of grain.
[25] If it is [n] not so, who will prove me a liar and show that there is nothing in what I say?”

Bildad Speaks: Man Cannot Be Righteous

JOB 25 [†]Then [o] Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

2 “Dominion and fear are with God; [1]
he makes peace in his high heaven.
3 Is there any number to his [p] armies?
Upon whom does his [q] light not arise?
4[^][†] How then can man be [r] in the right before God?
How can he who is [s] born of woman be [t] pure?
5 Behold, even the moon is not bright, and the stars are not pure in his eyes; 6 [u] how much less man, who is [v] a maggot, and [w] the son of man, who is a worm!”

Job Replies: God’s Majesty Is Unsearchable

JOB 26 [†]Then Job answered and said:

2[†] “How you have [x] helped him who has no power!
How you have saved [y] the arm that has no strength!
3 How you have [z] counseled him who has no wisdom, and plentifully declared sound knowledge!
4[†] With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath [a] has come out from you?
5[†] The [b] dead tremble
under the waters and their inhabitants.
6 Sheol is [c] naked before God, [1] and [d] Abaddon has no covering.
7 He [e] stretches out the north over [f] the void and hangs the earth on nothing.
8 He [g] binds up the waters in his thick clouds, and the cloud is not split open under them.
9[†] He covers the face of the full moon [2] and [h] spreads over it his cloud.
10 He has inscribed [i] a circle on the face of the waters at the boundary between light and darkness.

11[†] [j] The pillars of heaven tremble and are astounded at his [k] rebuke.
12 By his power he [l] stilled the sea;
by his understanding he shattered [m] Rahab.
13[^] [n] By his wind the heavens were made fair;
his hand pierced [o] the fleeing serpent.
14 Behold, these are but the outskirts of his [p] ways, and how small [q] a whisper do we hear of him!
But the thunder of his power who can understand?”

Job Continues: I Will Maintain My Integrity

JOB 27 [†]And Job again [r] took up his discourse, and said:

2 “As God lives, who has [s] taken away my right, and the Almighty, who has [t] made my soul bitter, 3 as long as my breath is in me,
and [u] the spirit of God is in my nostrils, 4 my lips will not speak [v] falsehood, and my tongue will not utter [v] deceit.
5[^][†] Far be it from me to say that you are right;
till I die I will not put away my [w] integrity from me.
6[†] I [x] hold fast my righteousness and will not let it go;
my heart does not [y] reproach me for any of my days.

7[†] “Let my enemy be as the wicked, and let him who rises up against me be as the unrighteous.
8 [z] For what is the hope of the godless [a] when God cuts him off, when God takes away his life?
9 [b] Will God hear his cry
when distress comes upon him?
10 Will he [c] take delight in the Almighty?
Will he call upon God at all times?
11[†] I will teach you concerning the hand of God;

[d] what is with the Almighty I will not conceal.
12 Behold, all of you have seen it yourselves;
why then have you become altogether vain?

13[†] [e] “This is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the heritage that [f] oppressors receive from the Almighty: 14 If his [g] children are multiplied, it is for [h] the sword, and his descendants have not enough bread.
15 Those who survive him the pestilence buries, and his [i] widows do not weep.
16 Though he [j] heap up silver like dust, and pile up clothing like clay, 17 he may pile it up, but the righteous will wear it,
and [k] the innocent will divide the silver.
18 He builds his [l] house like a moth’s, like [m] a booth that [n] a watchman makes.
19 He goes to bed rich, but will [o] do so no more;
he opens his eyes, and [p] his wealth is gone.
20 [q] Terrors overtake him like [r] a flood;
in the night a whirlwind [s] carries him off.
21 [t] The east wind lifts him up and he is gone;
it [u] sweeps him out of his place.
22 It [1] hurls at him [v] without pity;
he flees from its [2] power in headlong flight.
23 It [w] claps its hands at him and [x] hisses at him from its place.

Job Continues: Where Is Wisdom?

JOB 28 [†] “Surely there is a mine for silver, and a place for gold that they [y] refine.
2 Iron is taken out of the earth, and copper is smelted from the ore.
3[†] Man puts an end to darkness and searches out to the farthest limit the ore in [z] gloom and [a] deep darkness.

4[†] He opens shafts in a valley away from where anyone lives;
they are forgotten by travelers;
they hang in the air, far away from mankind; they swing to and fro.
5 As for the earth, [b] out of it comes bread, but underneath it is turned up as by fire.
6 Its stones are the place of [c] sapphires, [1]
and it has dust of gold.

7[†] “That path no bird of prey knows, and the falcon’s eye has not seen it.
8 [d] The proud beasts have not trodden it;
[e] the lion has not passed over it.

9 “Man puts his hand to [f] the flinty rock and overturns mountains by the roots.
10 He cuts out channels in the rocks, and his eye sees every precious thing.
11[†] He dams up the streams so that they do not trickle, and the thing that is hidden he brings out to light.

12[^][†] [g] “But where shall wisdom be found?
And where is the place of understanding?
13 Man does not know its worth, and it is not found in [h] the land of the living.
14 [i] The deep says, ‘It is not in me,’ and the sea says, ‘It is not with me.’
15[†] It [j] cannot be bought for gold, and silver cannot be weighed as its price.
16 It cannot be valued in [k] the gold of [l] Ophir, in precious [m] onyx or [n] sapphire.
17 Gold and glass cannot equal it, nor can it be exchanged for jewels of fine gold.
18 No mention shall be made of [o] coral or of crystal;

the price of wisdom is above [o] [p] pearls.
[19] [q] The topaz of Ethiopia cannot equal it, nor can it be valued in pure gold.

[20] “From where, then, does wisdom come?
And where is the place of understanding?
[21][†] It is hidden from the eyes of [r] all living and concealed from the birds of the air.
[22][†] [s] Abaddon and Death say,
‘We have heard a rumor of it with our ears.’

[23][†] [t] “God understands the way to it, and he knows its place.
[24] For he [u] looks to the ends of the earth and sees everything under the heavens.
[25] When he [v] gave to the wind its weight and apportioned the waters by measure, [26] when he made a decree for the rain and [w] a way for the lightning of the thunder, [27][^] then he saw it and declared it;
he established it, and searched it out.
[28][^] And he said to man,
‘Behold, [x] the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom, and to [y] turn away from evil is understanding.’”

Job’s Summary Defense

JOB 29 [†]And Job again [z] took up his discourse, and said:

[2][†] “Oh, that I were as in the months of old,
as in the days when God watched over me, [3][^] when his [a] lamp shone upon my head, and by his light I walked through darkness, [4] as I was in my prime, [1]
when the [b] friendship of God was upon my tent,

[5] when the Almighty was yet with me, when my [c]children were all around me, [6][†] when my steps were [d]washed with [e]butter, and [f]the rock poured out for me streams of [g]oil!
[7][†] When I went out to [h]the gate of the city, when I prepared my seat in the square, [8] the young men saw me and withdrew,
and the aged rose and stood;
[9] the princes refrained from talking and [i]laid their hand on their mouth; [10] the voice of the nobles was hushed, and their [j]tongue stuck to the roof of their mouth.
[11][†] When the ear heard, it called me blessed,
and when the eye saw, it approved, [12] because I [k]delivered the poor who cried for help, and the fatherless who had none to help him.
[13] [l]The blessing of him who was [m]about to perish came upon me, and I caused [n]the widow’s heart to sing for joy.
[14][†] I [o]put on righteousness, and it clothed me;
my justice was like a robe and [p]a turban.
[15] I was [q]eyes to the blind and feet to the lame.
[16][†] I was a father to the needy, and I searched out [r]the cause of him whom I did not know.
[17][†] I [s]broke [t]the fangs of the unrighteous and made him drop his prey from his teeth.
[18] [u]Then I thought, ‘I shall die in my [v]nest, and I shall multiply my days as [w]the sand, [19] my [x]roots spread out to [y]the waters, with the dew all night on my [z]branches, [20][†] my glory fresh with me, and my [a]bow ever [b]new in my hand.’

[21] “Men listened to me and waited and kept silence for my counsel.

[22] After I spoke they did not speak again, and my word [c] dropped upon them.
[23] They waited for me as for the rain, and they [d] opened their mouths as for the [e] spring rain.
[24][†] I smiled on them when they had no confidence, and [f] the light of my [g] face they did not cast down.
[25][†] I chose their way and sat as chief,
and I lived like [h] a king among his troops,
like one who comforts mourners.

JOB 30 [†] "But now they [i] laugh at me, men who are [j] younger than I,
whose fathers I would have disdained to set with the dogs of my flock.
[2] What could I gain from the strength of their hands,
[k] men whose [l] vigor is gone?
[3] Through want and hard hunger they [m] gnaw [n] the dry ground by night in [o] waste and desolation; [4][†] they pick saltwort and the leaves of bushes, and the roots of the broom tree for their food. [1] [5] [p] They are driven out from human company; they shout after them as after a thief.
[6] In the gullies of the torrents they must dwell, in holes of the earth and of [q] the rocks.
[7] Among the bushes they [r] bray;
under [s] the nettles they huddle together.
[8][†] A senseless, a nameless brood, they have been whipped out of the land.

[9][†] "And now I have become their [t] song;
I am [u] a byword to them.
[10][^] They [v] abhor me; they keep aloof from me;
they do not hesitate to [w] spit at the sight of me.

11[†] Because God has loosed my cord and humbled me, they have cast off restraint [2] in my presence.
12 On my [x] right hand the rabble rise;
they push away my feet;
they [y] cast up against me their ways of destruction.
13 They break up my path;
they promote my [z] calamity;
they need no one to help them.
14[†] As through a wide [a] breach they come;
amid the crash they roll on.
15 [b] Terrors are turned upon me;
my honor is pursued as by the wind, and my prosperity has passed away like [c] a cloud.

16[†] “And now my soul is [d] poured out within me;
days of affliction have taken hold of me.
17 [e] The night [f] racks my bones, and the pain that [g] gnaws me takes no rest.
18[†] With great force my garment is [h] disfigured;
it binds me about like the collar of my tunic.
19 God [3] has cast me into the mire, and I have become like [i] dust and ashes.
20[^][†] I cry to you for help and you do not answer me;
I stand, and you only look at me.
21 You have [j] turned cruel to me;
with the might of your hand you [k] persecute me.
22 [l] You lift me up on the wind; you make me ride on it, and you toss me about in the roar of the storm.
23 [m] For I know that you will bring me to death and to the house appointed for [n] all living.

24[†] “Yet does not one in a [o] heap of ruins stretch out his hand, and in his disaster cry for help? [4]
25 Did not I [p] weep for him whose day was hard?
Was not my soul grieved for the needy?

26 But [q] when I hoped for good, evil came,
and when I waited for light, [r] darkness came.
27 My inward parts are in turmoil and never still;
days of affliction [s] come to meet me.
28 I [t] go about darkened, but not by the sun;
I stand up in [u] the assembly and cry for help.
29 I am a brother of [v] jackals and a companion of [w] ostriches.
30 My [x] skin turns black and falls from me, and my [y] bones burn with heat.
31 My [z] lyre is [a] turned to mourning, and my [z] pipe to the voice of those who weep.

Job's Final Appeal

JOB 31 [†] "I have made a covenant with my [b] eyes;
how then could I gaze at a virgin?
2 What would be [c] my portion from God above and [c] my heritage from the Almighty on high?
3 Is not calamity for the unrighteous, and disaster for the workers of iniquity?
4 [d] Does not he see my ways and [e] number all my steps?

5[†] "If I have walked with falsehood and my foot has hastened to deceit;
6 (Let me be [f] weighed in a just balance, and let God know my integrity!)
7 if my step has turned aside from the way and [g] my heart has gone after my eyes, and if any [h] spot has stuck to my hands, 8 then let me [i] sow, and another eat, and let what grows for me [1] be rooted out.

9 "If my heart has been enticed toward a woman, and I have [j] lain in wait at my neighbor's door, 10 then let my wife [k] grind for another,

and let others [l] bow down on her.
11[†] For that would be a heinous crime;
that would be an iniquity [m] to be punished by the judges; 12 for that would be a fire [n] that consumes as far as Abaddon, and it would burn to the root all my increase.

13[†] "If I have rejected the cause of my manservant or my maidservant, when they brought a complaint against me, 14 what then shall I do when God rises up?
When he [o] makes inquiry, what shall I answer him?
15 Did [p] not he who made me in the womb make him?
And did not one fashion us in the womb?

16[†] "If I have [q] withheld anything that the poor desired, or have [r] caused the eyes of the widow to fail, 17 or have eaten my morsel alone, and the fatherless has not eaten of it 18 (for from my youth the fatherless [2] grew up with me as with a father, and from my mother's womb I guided the widow [3]), 19 if I have seen anyone [s] perish for [t] lack of clothing, or the needy without [t] covering, 20 if his body has not [u] blessed me, [4] and if he was not warmed with the fleece of my sheep, 21 if I have raised my hand against [v] the fatherless, because I saw my help in [w] the gate, 22 then let my shoulder blade fall from my shoulder, and let my arm be broken from its socket.
23 For I was [x] in terror of calamity from God, and I could not have faced his [x] majesty.

24[†] [y] "If I have made gold my [z] trust or called [a] fine gold my confidence,

[25] if I have [b] rejoiced because my wealth was abundant or because [c] my hand had found much, [26] [d] if I have looked at the sun [5] when it shone, or [e] the moon moving in splendor, [27] and my heart has been secretly enticed, and my mouth has kissed my hand, [28] this also would be [f] an iniquity to be punished by the judges, for I would have been false to God above.

[29] “If I have [g] rejoiced at the ruin of him who hated me, or exulted when evil overtook him [30] ([h] I have not let my mouth sin by asking for his life with a curse), [31][†] if the men of my tent have not said,
‘Who is there that has not been filled with his [i] meat?’
[32] ([j] the sojourner has not lodged in the street;
I have opened my doors to the traveler), [33][†] if I [k] have concealed my transgressions [l] as others do [6] by hiding my iniquity in my heart, [34] because I stood in great fear of [m] the multitude, and the contempt of families terrified me, so that I kept silence, and did not go out of doors—[35][†] Oh, that I had one to hear me!
(Here is my signature! Let the Almighty [n] answer me!)
Oh, that I had [o] the indictment written by my adversary!
[36] Surely I would carry it on my [p] shoulder;
I would [q] bind it on me as [r] a crown;
[37] I would give him an account of all my steps;
like a prince I would approach him.

[38] “If my land has cried out against me and its furrows have wept together, [39] [s] if I have eaten its yield without payment and made its owners [t] breathe their last, [40] let [u] thorns grow instead of wheat, and foul weeds instead of barley.”

The words of Job are ended.

Elihu Rebukes Job’s Three Friends

JOB 32 [†]So these three men ceased to answer Job, because he was [v]righteous in his own eyes. [2][†]Then Elihu the son of Barachel [w]the Buzite, of the family of Ram, burned with anger. He burned with anger at Job because he justified himself [x]rather than God. [3][†]He burned with anger also at Job’s three friends because they had found no answer, although they had [y]declared Job to be in the wrong. [4]Now Elihu had waited to speak to Job because they were older than he. [5]And when Elihu saw that there was no answer in the mouth of these three men, he burned with anger.

[6][†]And Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite answered and said:

“I am young in years,
and you are [z]aged;
therefore I was timid and afraid to declare my opinion to you.
[7] I said, ‘Let days speak, and many years teach wisdom.’
[8][†] But it is [a]the spirit in man,
[b]the breath of the Almighty, that makes him [c]understand.
[9] [d]It is not the old [1] who are wise, nor the aged who understand what is right.
[10] Therefore I say, ‘Listen to me;
let me also declare my opinion.’

[11] “Behold, I waited for your words,
I listened for your wise sayings,
while you searched out what to say.
[12][^] I gave you my attention, and, behold, there was none among you who refuted Job or who answered his words.
[13] Beware [e]lest you say, ‘We have found wisdom;

God may vanquish him, not a man.’
[14] He has not directed his words against me, and I will not answer him with your speeches.

[15] “They are dismayed; they answer no more;
they have not a word to say.
[16] And shall I wait, because they do not speak, because they stand there, and answer no more?
[17] I also will answer with my share;
I also will declare my opinion.
[18][†] For I am full of words;
the spirit within me constrains me.
[19] Behold, my belly is like wine that has no vent;
like new [f] wineskins ready to burst.
[20] [g] I must speak, that I may find [h] relief;
I must open my lips and answer.
[21] I will not [i] show partiality to any man or use flattery toward any person.
[22] For I do not know how to flatter, else my Maker would soon take me away.

Elihu Rebukes Job

JOB 33 [†] “But now, hear my speech, O Job, and listen to all my words.
[2][†] Behold, I [j] open my mouth;
the tongue in my mouth speaks.
[3] My words declare the uprightness of my heart, and what my lips know they speak sincerely.
[4] [k] The Spirit of God has made me,
and [l] the breath of the Almighty gives me life.
[5] [m] Answer me, if you can;
[n] set your words in order before me; take your stand.
[6] Behold, I am toward God as you are;
I too was pinched off from a piece of [o] clay.

7 Behold, no [p] fear of me need terrify you;
my [q] pressure will not be heavy upon you.

8 “Surely you have spoken in my ears, and I have heard the sound of your words.
9[†] You say, ‘I am [r] pure, without [s] transgression;
I am clean, and there is no iniquity in me.
10 Behold, he finds occasions against me,
he [t] counts me as his enemy, 11[†] he [u] puts my feet in the stocks and [v] watches all my paths.’

12 “Behold, in this you are not right. I will answer you, for God is greater than man.
13 Why do you [w] contend against him, saying, ‘He [x] will answer none of man’s [1] words’? [2] 14[†] For God [y] speaks in one way, [z] and in two, though man [a] does not perceive it.
15 In [b] a dream, in [c] a vision of [d] the night, when [c] deep sleep falls on men,
while they slumber on their beds, 16 then he [e] opens the ears of men and terrifies them with warnings, 17 that he may turn man aside from his [f] deed and conceal pride from a man; 18[†] he keeps back his soul from the pit,
his life from [g] perishing by the sword.

19[†] “Man is also rebuked with pain on his bed and with continual strife in his [h] bones, 20 so that his [i] life loathes bread, and his appetite [j] the choicest food.
21 His flesh is so wasted away that it cannot be seen, and his bones that were not seen [k] stick out.

[22] His soul draws near [l] the pit, and his life to [m] those who bring death.
[23][^][†] If there be for him [n] an angel, [o] a mediator, [p] one of the thousand,
to declare to man what is [q] right for him, [24] and he is merciful to him, and says,
‘Deliver him from going down into the pit;
I have found [r] a ransom;
[25] let his flesh [s] become fresh with youth;
let him return to the days of his youthful vigor’;
[26] then man [3] [t] prays to God, and he accepts him;
he [u] sees his face with a shout of joy,
and he [v] restores to man his righteousness.
[27] He sings before men and says:
‘I [w] sinned and perverted what was right, and it was not repaid to me.
[28] He has redeemed my [x] soul from going down [y] into the pit, and my life shall [z] look upon the light.’

[29] “Behold, God does all these things, twice, [a] three times, with a man, [30] to bring back his soul from the pit, that he may be lighted with [b] the light of life.
[31] Pay attention, O Job, listen to me;
be silent, and I will speak.
[32] If you have any words, [c] answer me;
[d] speak, for I desire to justify you.
[33] If not, [e] listen to me;
be silent, and I will teach you wisdom.”

Elihu Asserts God’s Justice

JOB 34 [†]Then Elihu answered and said:

[2] “Hear my words, you wise men, and give ear to me, you who know;

3[†] for [g] the ear tests words
as the palate tastes food.
4[†] Let us choose [h] what is right;
let us know among ourselves what is good.
5 For Job has said, 'I am [i] in the right, and [j] God has taken away my right;
6 in spite of my right I am counted a liar;
my wound is incurable, though I am [k] without transgression.'
7 What man is like Job,
who [l] drinks up scoffing like water, 8[†] who travels in company with evildoers and walks [m] with wicked men?
9[†] For [n] he has said, 'It profits a man nothing that he should take delight in God.'

10[†] "Therefore, hear me, you men of understanding:
far be it from God that he should [o] do wickedness,
and from the Almighty that he should do wrong.
11[^] For according to [p] the work of a man he will repay him, and [q] according to his ways he will make it befall him.
12 Of a truth, God will not do wickedly, and [r] the Almighty will not pervert justice.
13 Who gave him charge over the earth, and who [s] laid on him [1] the whole world?
14 If he should [t] set his heart to it and [u] gather to himself his [v] spirit and his breath, 15 all flesh would perish together, and man would [w] return to dust.

16 "If you have understanding, hear this;
listen to what I say.
17 [x] Shall one who hates justice govern?
Will you condemn him who is righteous and mighty,

[18] who [y] says to a king, ‘Worthless one,’
and to nobles, ‘Wicked man,’ [19] who [z] shows no partiality to princes, nor regards the rich [a] more than the poor,
for [b] they are all the work of his hands?
[20] In a moment [c] they die;
at [d] midnight the people are shaken and pass away, and the mighty are taken away by [e] no human hand.

[21] “For his eyes are on [f] the ways of a man, and he sees all his [f] steps.
[22] There is no [g] gloom or [h] deep darkness where evildoers may hide themselves.
[23][†] For God [2] has no need to consider a man further, that he should go before God in [i] judgment.
[24] He [j] shatters the mighty without investigation and sets [l] others in their place.
[25] Thus, knowing their works, he [m] overturns them in the night, and they are crushed.
[26][†] He strikes them for their wickedness in a place for all to see, [27] because they turned aside from [n] following him and had no regard for any of his ways, [28] so that they [o] caused the cry of the poor to come to him, and he [p] heard the cry of the afflicted—[29] When he is quiet, who can condemn?
When he hides his face, who can behold him, whether it be a nation or a man?— [30] that a godless man should not reign, that he should not ensnare the people.

[31] “For has anyone said to God,
‘I have borne punishment; I will not offend any more;
[32] [r] teach me what I do not see;
if I have done iniquity, I will do it no more’?

33 Will he then make repayment to suit you, because you reject it?
For you must choose, and not I;
therefore [s] declare what you know. [3] 34[†] Men of understanding will say to me, and the wise man who hears me will say:
35 ‘Job [t] speaks without knowledge;
his words are without insight.’
36 Would that Job were tried to the end, because he answers like wicked men.
37 For he adds rebellion to his sin;
he [u] claps his hands among us and multiplies his words against God.”

Elihu Condemns Job

JOB 35 [†]And Elihu answered and said:

2[^][†] “Do you think this to be just?
Do you say, [v] ‘It is my right before God,’
3 that you ask, [w] ‘What advantage have I?
How am I better off than if I had sinned?’
4 I will answer you and [x] your friends with you.
5 [y] Look at the heavens, and see;
and behold the clouds, which are higher than you.
6[†] If you have sinned, [z] what do you accomplish against him?
And if your transgressions are multiplied, what do you do to him?
7 [a] If you are righteous, what do you give to him?
Or what does he receive from your hand?
8 Your wickedness concerns a man like yourself, and your righteousness [b] a son of man.

9 “Because of the multitude of [c] oppressions people [d] cry out;
they call for help because of the arm of [e] the mighty. [1]

10 But none says, 'Where is God my [f] Maker, who gives [g] songs in the night, 11 who teaches us [h] more than the beasts of the earth and makes us wiser than the birds of the heavens?'
12[†] There they [i] cry out, but he does not answer, because of the pride of evil men.
13 Surely God does not hear an empty cry, nor does the Almighty regard it.
14[†] How much less when you say that you [j] do not see him, that the case is before him, and you are [k] waiting for him!
15 And now, because [l] his anger does not punish, and he does not take much note of transgression, [2] 16 Job opens his mouth in empty talk;
he [m] multiplies words [n] without knowledge."

Elihu Extols God's Greatness

JOB 36 [†]And Elihu continued, and said:

2[†] "Bear with me a little, and I will show you, for I have yet something to say on God's behalf.
3 I will get my knowledge from [o] afar and ascribe [p] righteousness to my [q] Maker.
4 For truly my words are not false;
one who is [r] perfect in knowledge is with you.

5[†] "Behold, God is mighty, and [s] does not despise any;
he is [t] mighty in strength of understanding.
6[†] He does not keep the wicked alive, but gives [u] the afflicted their right.
7 He does not withdraw his [v] eyes from the righteous, but with [w] kings on the throne
he sets them forever, and they are [x] exalted.
8[†] And if they are [y] bound in chains and caught in the cords of affliction,

9 then he declares to them their work and their transgressions, that they are [z] behaving arrogantly.
10[†] He [a] opens their ears to instruction and commands that they [b] return from iniquity.
11 [c] If they listen and serve him, they [d] complete their days in prosperity,
and their years in pleasantness.
12 But if they do not listen, they [e] perish by the sword and die [f] without knowledge.

13[†] “The [g] godless in heart cherish anger; they do not cry for help when he [h] binds them.
14 They [i] die in youth,
and their life ends among the cult prostitutes.
15 He delivers [j] the afflicted by their affliction and [k] opens their ear by adversity.
16[†] He also allured you out of distress into [l] a broad place where there was no cramping, and what was set on your [m] table was full of [n] fatness.

17 “But you are full of the judgment on the wicked;
judgment and justice seize you.
18[†] Beware lest wrath entice you into scoffing, and let not the greatness of [o] the ransom turn you aside.
19 Will your [p] cry for help avail to keep you from distress, or all the force of your strength?
20 Do not long for [q] the night, when peoples vanish [r] in their place.
21 Take care; [s] do not turn to iniquity, for this you have chosen rather than affliction.
22[†] Behold, God is exalted in his power;
who is [t] a teacher like him?
23 Who has [u] prescribed for him his way, or who can say, [v] ‘You have done wrong’?

24 “Remember to [w] extol his work, of which men have [x] sung.
25 All mankind has looked on it;
man beholds it from afar.
26 Behold, God is great, and we [y] know him not;
the number of his [z] years is unsearchable.
27 For he draws up the drops of water;
they distill his [a] mist in [b] rain, 28 which [c] the skies pour down and drop on mankind abundantly.
29 Can anyone understand [d] the spreading of the clouds, the thunderings of his [e] pavilion?
30[‡] Behold, he scatters his lightning about him and covers the roots of the sea.
31[‡] For by these he [f] judges peoples;
he gives [g] food in abundance.
32[‡] He covers his [h] hands with the lightning and commands it to strike the mark.
33 Its crashing declares his presence; [1]
the cattle also declare that he rises.

Elihu Proclaims God’s Majesty

JOB 37 “At this also my heart trembles and leaps out of its place.
2[‡] Keep listening to the thunder of his voice and the rumbling that comes from his mouth.
3 Under the whole heaven he lets it go, and his [i] lightning to the [j] corners of the earth.
4 After it [k] his voice roars;
[l] he thunders with his majestic voice, and he does not restrain the lightnings [1] when his voice is heard.
5[^] God thunders wondrously with his voice;
he does [m] great things that we cannot [n] comprehend.

[6] For to [o]the snow he says, ‘Fall on the earth,’ likewise to the downpour, his mighty downpour.
[7][‡] He [p]seals up the hand of every man, that all men whom he made may [q]know it.
[8] Then the beasts go into their [r]lairs, and remain in their [s]dens.
[9] From [t]its chamber [u]comes the whirlwind, and [v]cold from the scattering winds.
[10] By the breath of God [w]ice is given,
and [x]the broad waters are frozen fast.
[11] He loads the thick cloud with moisture;
the clouds scatter his lightning.
[12] They [y]turn around and around by his [z]guidance, [z]to accomplish all that he commands them on the face of [a]the habitable world.
[13][‡] Whether for [b]correction or for his [c]land or for [d]love, he causes it to happen.

[14][‡] “Hear this, O Job;
stop and [e]consider the wondrous works of God.
[15] Do you know how God lays his command upon them and causes the lightning of his cloud to shine?
[16][‡] Do you know the balancings [2] of the clouds, the wondrous works of him who is [f]perfect in knowledge, [17] you whose garments are hot when the earth is still because of the south wind?
[18] Can you, like him, [g]spread out the skies, hard as a cast metal [h]mirror?
[19] Teach us what we shall say to him;
we cannot draw up our case because of [i]darkness.
[20] Shall it be told him that I would speak?
Did a man ever wish that he would be swallowed up?

[21][‡] “And now no one looks on the light when it is bright in the skies, when the wind has passed and cleared them.

22 Out of the north comes golden splendor;
God is clothed with [j] awesome majesty.
23 The Almighty—we [k] cannot find him;
he is [l] great in power;
[m] justice and abundant righteousness he will not [n] violate.
24[^][‡] Therefore men [o] fear him;
he does not regard any who are [p] wise in their own conceit.” [3]

The LORD Answers Job

JOB 38 [‡]Then the LORD [q] answered Job out of the whirlwind and said:

2[‡] “Who is this that [r] darkens counsel by words [s] without knowledge?
3 [t] Dress for action [1] like a man;
I will question you, and you make it known to me.

4[^][‡] “Where were you when I [u] laid the foundation of the earth?
Tell me, if you have understanding.
5 Who determined its measurements—surely you know!
Or who stretched the line upon it?
6 On what were its bases sunk, or who laid its cornerstone,
7[‡] when the morning stars [v] sang together and all [w] the sons of God [x] shouted for joy?

8 “Or who [y] shut in the sea with doors when it burst out from the womb, 9 when I made clouds its garment and [z] thick darkness its swaddling band, 10 and prescribed [a] limits for it and set bars and doors, 11 and said, ‘Thus far shall you come, and no farther, and here shall your [b] proud waves be stayed’?

[12][†] “Have you [c]commanded the morning since your days began,
and caused the dawn to know its place, [13][†] that it might take hold of [d]the skirts of the earth, and the wicked be [e]shaken out of it?
[14][†] It is changed like clay under the seal, and its features stand out like a garment.
[15] From the wicked their [f]light is withheld, and [g]their uplifted arm is broken.

[16] “Have you [h]entered into the springs of the sea, or walked in the recesses of the deep?
[17][^] Have [i]the gates of death been revealed to you, or have you seen the gates of [j]deep darkness?
[18] Have you comprehended the expanse of the earth?
Declare, if you know all this.

[19] “Where is the way to the dwelling of light, and where is the place of darkness, [20] that you may take it to its territory and that you may discern [k]the paths to its home?
[21] You know, for [l]you were born then,
and the number of your days is great!

[22][†] “Have you entered [m]the storehouses of the snow, or have you seen [m]the storehouses of the hail, [23] which I have reserved [n]for the time of trouble,
[n]for the day of battle and war?
[24] What is the way to the place where the light is distributed, or where the east wind is scattered upon the earth?

[25] “Who has cleft a channel for the torrents of rain and [o]a way for the thunderbolt, [26] to bring rain on [p]a land where no man is,
on [q]the desert in which there is no man, [27] to satisfy the waste and desolate land, and to make the ground sprout with [r]grass?

28 “Has [s]the rain a father, or who has begotten the drops of dew?
29 From whose womb did [t]the ice come forth, and who has given birth to [t]the frost of heaven?
30 The waters become hard like stone, and the face of the deep is [u]frozen.

31 “Can you bind the chains of [v]the Pleiades or loose the cords of [v]Orion?
32[†] Can you lead forth the Mazzaroth [2] in their season, or can you guide [v]the Bear with its children?
33 Do you know [w]the ordinances of the heavens?
Can you establish their rule on the earth?

34 “Can you lift up your voice to the clouds, that [x]a flood of waters may cover you?
35 Can you send forth lightnings, that they may go and say to you, ‘Here we are’?
36[†] Who has [y]put wisdom in [z]the inward parts [3] or given understanding to the mind? [4] 37 Who can number the clouds by wisdom?
Or who can tilt the waterskins of the heavens, 38 when the dust runs into a mass and [a]the clods stick fast together?

39[†] “Can you hunt the prey for the lion, or [b]satisfy the appetite of the young lions, 40 when they crouch in their [c]dens or lie in wait [d]in their thicket?
41 Who provides for [e]the raven its prey, when its young ones cry to God for help, and wander about for lack of food?

JOB 39 “Do you know when [f] the mountain goats give birth?
Do you observe [g] the calving of the does?
[2] Can you number the months that they fulfill,
and do you know the time when they give birth, [3] when they [h] crouch, bring forth their offspring, and are delivered of their young?
[4] Their young ones become strong; they grow up in the open;
they go out and [i] do not return to them.

[5] “Who has let the wild donkey go free?
Who has [j] loosed the bonds of the swift donkey,
[6] to whom I have given [k] the arid plain for his home and [l] the salt land for his dwelling place?
[7] He scorns the tumult of the city;
he hears not the shouts of the driver.
[8] He ranges the mountains as his pasture, and he searches after every green thing.

[9][^][†] “Is [m] the wild ox willing to serve you?
Will he spend the night at your [n] manger?
[10] Can you bind [m] him in the furrow with ropes, or will he harrow the valleys after you?
[11] Will you depend on him because his strength is great,
and will you leave to him your labor?
[12] Do you have faith in him that he will return your grain and gather it to your threshing floor?

[13] “The wings of the ostrich wave proudly, but are they the pinions and plumage of love? [1] [14] For she leaves her eggs to the earth and lets them be warmed on the ground, [15][†] forgetting that a foot may crush them and that the wild beast may trample them.
[16] She [o] deals cruelly with her young, as if they were not hers;
though her [p] labor be in vain, yet she has no fear,

[17] because God has made her forget wisdom and [q] given her no share in understanding.
[18][†] When she rouses herself to flee, [2]
she laughs at the horse and his rider.

[19] “Do you give the horse his might?
Do you clothe his neck with a mane?
[20] Do you make him leap like the locust?
His majestic [r] snorting is terrifying.
[21] He paws [3] in the valley and exults in his strength;
he [s] goes out to meet the weapons.
[22] He laughs at fear and is not dismayed;
he does not turn back from the sword.
[23] Upon him rattle the quiver,
the flashing spear, and the javelin.
[24] With fierceness and rage he swallows the ground;
he cannot stand still at [t] the sound of the trumpet.
[25] When the trumpet sounds, he says ‘Aha!’
He smells the battle from afar, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting.

[26] “Is it by your understanding that the hawk soars and spreads his wings toward the south?
[27] Is it at your command that the eagle mounts up and makes his [u] nest on high?
[28] On the rock he dwells and makes his home, on [v] the rocky crag and stronghold.
[29] From there he spies out the prey;
his eyes behold it from far away.
[30] His young ones suck up blood, and [w] where the slain are, there is he.”

JOB 40 [†]And the LORD [x] said to Job:

[2] “Shall a faultfinder [y] contend with the Almighty?

He who argues with God, let him answer it.”

Job Promises Silence

3[‡]Then Job answered the LORD and said:

4 “Behold, I am [z] of small account; what shall I answer you?
[a] I lay my hand on my mouth.
5 I have spoken [b] once, and I will not answer;
[b] twice, but I will proceed no further.”

The LORD Challenges Job

6[‡]Then the LORD [c] answered Job out of the whirlwind and said:

7 [d] “Dress for action [1] like a man;
[e] I will question you, and you make it known to me.
8[^] Will you even put me in the wrong?
Will you condemn me that [f] you may be in the right?
9 Have you [g] an arm like God, and can you thunder with [h] a voice like his?

10 “Adorn yourself with majesty and dignity;
[i] clothe yourself with glory and splendor.
11 Pour out the overflowings of your anger, and look on everyone who is [j] proud and abase him.
12 Look on everyone who is proud and bring him low and [k] tread down the wicked [l] where they stand.
13[‡] [m] Hide them all in [n] the dust together;
bind their faces in the world below. [2] 14[^] Then will I also acknowledge to you that your own [o] right hand can save you.

15[‡] “Behold, Behemoth, [3] which I made as I made you;
he eats [p] grass like an ox.

[16] Behold, his strength in his loins, and his power in the muscles of his belly.
[17][‡] He makes his tail stiff like a cedar;
the sinews of his thighs are knit together.
[18] His bones are tubes of bronze, his limbs like bars of iron.

[19] “He is [q] the first of [r] the works [4] of God;
let him who made him bring near his sword!
[20] For the mountains yield food for him where all the wild beasts play.
[21] Under the lotus plants he lies, in the shelter of [s] the reeds and in the marsh.
[22] For his shade the lotus trees cover him;
the willows of the brook surround him.
[23] Behold, if the river is turbulent he is not frightened;
he is confident though Jordan rushes against his mouth.
[24] Can one take him by his eyes, [5] or pierce his nose with a snare?

JOB 41 [‡] [1] “Can you draw out [u] Leviathan [2] with a fishhook or press down his tongue with a cord?
[2] Can you put [v] a rope in his nose or pierce his jaw with [v] a hook?
[3] Will he make many pleas to you?
Will he speak to you soft words?
[4] Will he make a covenant with you to take him for [w] your servant forever?
[5] Will you play with him as with a bird, or will you put him on a leash for your girls?
[6] Will traders bargain over him?
Will they divide him up among the merchants?
[7] Can you fill his skin with harpoons or his head with fishing spears?
[8] Lay your hands on him;

remember the battle—you will not do it again!
9[†] [3] Behold, the hope of a man is false;
he is laid low even at the sight of him.
10 No one is so fierce that he dares to stir him up.
Who then is he who can stand before me?
11 [x] Who has first given to me, that I should repay him?
[y] Whatever is under the whole heaven is mine.

12 “I will not keep silence concerning his limbs, or his mighty strength, or his goodly frame.
13 Who can strip off his outer garment?
Who would come near him with a bridle?
14 Who can open the doors of his face?
Around his teeth is terror.
15 His back is made of [4] rows of shields, shut up closely as with a seal.
16 One is so near to another that no air can come between them.
17 They are [z] joined one to another;
they clasp each other and cannot be separated.
18 His sneezings flash forth light, and his eyes are like [a] the eyelids of the dawn.
19 Out of his mouth go flaming torches;
sparks of fire leap forth.
20 Out of his nostrils comes forth smoke,
as from a boiling pot and burning rushes.
21 His breath [b] kindles coals, and a flame comes forth from his mouth.
22 In his neck abides strength, and terror dances before him.
23 The folds of his flesh [c] stick together, firmly cast on him and immovable.
24[†] His heart is hard as a stone, hard as the lower millstone.
25 When he raises himself up the mighty [5] are afraid;

at the crashing they are beside themselves.
[26] Though the sword reaches him, it does not avail, nor the spear, the dart, or the javelin.
[27] He counts iron as straw, and bronze as rotten wood.
[28] The arrow cannot make him flee;
for him sling stones are turned to stubble.
[29] Clubs are counted as stubble;
he laughs at the rattle of javelins.
[30] His underparts are like sharp [d]potsherds;
he spreads himself like [e]a threshing sledge on the mire.
[31] He makes the deep boil like a pot;
he makes the sea like a pot of ointment.
[32] Behind him he leaves a shining wake;
one would think the deep to be white-haired.
[33] [f]On earth there is not his like,
a creature without fear.
[34] He sees everything that is high;
he is king over all the [g]sons of pride.”

Job’s Confession and Repentance

JOB 42 [†]Then Job answered the LORD and said:

[2] “I know that you can [h]do all things, and that no purpose of yours can be thwarted.
[3][^][†] [i]‘Who is this that hides counsel without knowledge?’
Therefore I have uttered what I did not understand, things [j]too wonderful for me, which I did not know.
[4] ‘Hear, and I will speak;
[k]I will question you, and you make it known to me.’
[5] I had heard of you by the hearing of the ear, but now my eye sees you;
[6][†] therefore I despise myself, and repent [1] in [l]dust and ashes.”

The LORD Rebukes Job’s Friends

[7][†]After the LORD had spoken these words to Job, the LORD said to Eliphaz [m]the Temanite: “My anger burns against you and against your two friends, for you have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has. [8][†]Now therefore take [n]seven bulls and seven rams and go to my servant Job and [o]offer up a burnt offering for yourselves. And my servant Job shall [p]pray for you, for I will accept his prayer not to deal with you according to your folly. For you have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has.” [9][q]So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went and did what the LORD had told them, and the LORD accepted Job’s prayer.

The LORD Restores Job’s Fortunes

[10][^][†]And the LORD [r]restored the fortunes of Job, when he had prayed for his friends. And the LORD gave Job [s]twice as much as he had before. [11][†]Then came to him all his [t]brothers and sisters and all who had [t]known him before, and ate bread with him in his house. And they [u]showed him sympathy and comforted him for all the evil [2] that the LORD had brought upon him. And each of them gave him [v]a piece of money [3] and [w]a ring of gold.

[12]And the LORD blessed [x]the latter days of Job more than his beginning. And he had [y]14,000 sheep, 6,000 camels, 1,000 yoke of oxen, and 1,000 female donkeys. [13]He had also [z]seven sons and three daughters. [14][†]And he called the name of the first daughter Jemimah, and the name of the second Keziah, and the name of the third Keren-happuch. [15]And in all the land there were no women so beautiful as Job’s daughters. And their father gave them an inheritance [a]among their brothers. [16][†]And after this Job lived 140 years, and [b]saw his sons, and his sons’ sons, four generations. [17]And Job died, an old man, and [c]full of days.

Study Notes for Job

JOB—NOTE ON 1:1–2:13 Prologue: Job's Character and the Circumstances of His Test. The prologue opens by introducing Job as a man who was blameless and upright in character, blessed in family and possessions, and whose life embodied the fear of God both for himself and on behalf of his family (1:1–5). The second section details the heavenly conversations and earthly actions related to Satan's two-stage request to test Job's character by afflicting him (1:6–2:10). The final section describes how Job's three friends hear of his suffering and come to offer sympathy and comfort, which creates the context for the rest of the book (2:11–13). The narration of the prologue is integrally important for the interpretation of the book as a whole because it describes for the hearer/reader something that the three friends will continually address: To what extent do the circumstances of Job's life on earth reveal what is true about him before God? The three friends (as well as Elihu, in his own way) assume that Job's circumstances reveal some hidden sin or wayward path in Job's character that has provoked God's displeasure, correction, or judgment. Job's friends will continually argue that his circumstances necessarily represent a choice that he has to make: either repent and agree with God, or continue as you are and receive the full punishment signified in your suffering. In responding to his friends, Job insists both that he is right before God and that it is ultimately God who has brought about his circumstances. Throughout the dialogue, Job tries to maintain that he is in the right while also arguing God's character back to him in lament about why his righteousness and justice do not appear to be borne out in events on earth. In the end, God will reprove Job for the extent of his conclusions about what circumstances on earth might mean for God's governance and justice (38:1–41:34). However, God will also vindicate Job before his friends, judge them with respect to their words, and call Job to intercede on their behalf (42:7–17).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:1–5 The Integrity of Job. The prologue opens with a brief description of Job's character and circumstances, which become the context for the subsequent tests.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:1 the land of Uz. The location of this land to the east is unknown, but it may be related to Aram in the north (Gen. 10:22–23), where Abraham’s nephew and family lived (Gen. 22:21), or to a descendant of Seir who lived alongside the sons of Esau in the land also referred to as Edom (Gen. 36:28). The faithfulness of Job is stated at the outset (and affirmed again in Job 1:8; 2:3): he is blameless and upright (a phrase also used in reference to Noah in Gen. 6:9 and to Abraham in Gen. 17:1) and one who feared God and turned away from evil (which echoes the characteristics of one who is “wise” in Proverbs; see Prov. 3:7; 14:16; 16:6). This description represents a gap between what the reader has been told and what the three friends come to assume about Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:2–4 The large numbers of children, livestock, and servants, together with the feasting, suggest the enormous prosperity of Job’s life at this point. on his day. Cf. 18:20.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:5 cursed God in their hearts. The Hebrew reads literally “blessed God in their hearts” (see esv footnote), but the context indicates that the opposite sense “to curse” is intended (the same verb is also used with this inferred sense in 1:11; 2:5, 9; 1 Kings 21:10, 13). This construction is undoubtedly a euphemism (i.e., using inference rather than explicit vocabulary to refer to someone “cursing God”). This play on the word “bless” in the description and dialogues of the prologue creates irony with the conclusion of the epilogue (Job 42:7–17), where Job’s three friends are instructed that they are the ones in need of Job’s intercessory prayer because they had spoken foolishly about God (see 42:7–8).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:6–22 The First Test. This section presents the occasion, dialogue, and events of Job’s first test.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:6–12 The Challenge in Heaven. With Job now introduced, the scene switches to the heavenly court. The Lord draws Satan’s attention to Job, thus initiating the chain of events that occupy the rest of the book. The earthly protagonists remain oblivious to these heavenly deliberations.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:6 Sons of God refers to heavenly beings gathered before God like a council before a king (see 15:8; Ps. 29:1; Isa. 6:1–8). The Hebrew idiom “sons of” can be used of a group that is led by a figure referred to as their “father” (e.g., the “father” of a band of prophets in 1 Sam. 10:12). Satan. The Hebrew noun satan is commonly used to refer to someone generally as an adversary (e.g., 1 Sam. 29:4; 1 Kings 11:14) but here refers to a specific individual (“the Accuser” or “the Adversary,” esv footnote) who does not appear to be one of the company but who also came among them. The dialogue that follows reveals the character of this figure to be consistent with that of the serpent in Genesis 3, a character who is also referred to by the use of this noun as the proper name, “Satan” (e.g., 1 Chron. 21:1; see also Rev. 12:9).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:9–11 Satan suggests that the elements of prosperity in Job’s life cast doubt on the sincerity of his fear of God; he contends that if God will only remove the protection of these things, Job will curse (lit., “bless”; see note on v. 5) him outright.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:12 The fact that Satan has to ask permission to test Job (see also 2:6) indicates that the extent of his authority falls ultimately under the sovereign governance of God—something that Job also refers to, but without knowledge of or reference to the heavenly dialogue and its relation to his troubles (1:21; 2:10).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:13–19 The Loss of Family and Possessions. Job’s troubles are described as coming from multiple directions. The Sabeans come from the south (v. 15), the fire from heaven (v. 16), the Chaldeans from the north (v. 17), and the sirocco wind from the east (v. 19). The narrative presents each of the tragedies in rapid succession, giving the reader a feeling described well by Job’s later words, “he will not let me get my breath” (9:18).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:20–22 Job’s Confession and Confidence. Distraught with grief at the calamities that have crushed the household (introduced in vv. 2–4), Job turns to God in lament-laden worship.

JOB—NOTE ON 1:20 In the wake of his loss, Job embodies both grief (Job … tore his robe and shaved his head) and trust in the Lord (and fell on the ground and worshiped).

JOB—NOTE ON 1:21 In contrast to what Satan suggests will happen (vv. 9–11), Job cries out from a posture of grief and worship, "blessed be the name of the LORD."

JOB—NOTE ON 2:1–10 The Second Test. This section presents the setting, dialogue, and events relating to Job's second test, which parallel the description and extend the sphere of the first test (1:6–22).

JOB—NOTE ON 2:1–6 The Challenge in Heaven. The second glimpse of the heavenly court (Again, v. 1) deliberately echoes the first (cf. 1:6–12). Taking ultimate responsibility for Job's calamities, the Lord again fixes Satan's attention on Job's blameless and God-honoring character (2:3). Satan responds by seeking permission to attack Job himself, urging that this will reveal the insincerity of Job's devotion to God (vv. 4–5; cf. 1:9).

JOB—NOTE ON 2:3 The Lord points out to Satan that even after all that has happened to him, Job still holds fast his integrity, a description referring to the whole of his grief, worship, and profession in 1:20–21 as a faithful response.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:4–5 Skin for skin! It is possible that the metaphor refers to the further test Satan is about to request, namely, the permission to afflict Job's own body. However, the structure of vv. 4–5 suggests that it and the following phrase (All that a man has he will give for his life) are referring primarily to what has already happened. Satan is crassly suggesting that Job maintained his integrity because it cost him only the "skin" of his livestock and family, which he was happy to trade for his own. The next phrase begins with an explicit adversative in Hebrew (But), which contains Satan's final plea: afflict Job in his bone and his flesh and then he will surely curse God outright.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:6 only spare his life. The sparing of Job's life is not a mercy, and not merely a concession necessary to the test, but is integral to the test. The most difficult of life's sorrows are sometimes found when even the mercy of death is denied (cf. 3:20–23; 6:9). This was the ultimate test of faith.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:7–10 Job's Affliction and Confession. Already in a physical and emotional posture of grief (see 1:20), Job is struck with sores

(2:7) and his wife’s question (v. 9), to which he responds further in grief (v. 8) and trust in God (v. 10).

JOB—NOTE ON 2:9 Although the reference to Job’s wife is very brief, the content of her speech is significant for how it relates to the heavenly dialogue and for what this connection reveals about the nature of her comments. Her rhetorical question doubts the sensibility of the very thing God finds commendable about Job (Do you still hold fast your integrity? see v. 3), and her suggested response advises Job to take the action Satan was looking to provoke (Curse God and die; see 1:11; 2:4).

JOB—NOTE ON 2:10 Job responds to his wife with a measured rebuke: he does not presume to know her heart fully, but warns her against speaking like one of the foolish women.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:11–13 Job’s Comforters. After hearing about his troubles, Job’s three friends come together to show him sympathy and to mourn with him.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:11 The three friends of Job all have southern origins known in the OT. Eliphaz is from Teman, an important city in Edom (Gen. 36:11, 15; Ezek. 25:13; Amos 1:11–12), which was apparently known for its wisdom (Jer. 49:7). Bildad is from Shuah, a name of one of the sons of Abraham from his marriage to Keturah, whose brother was Midian and whose nephews were Sheba and Dedan (Gen. 25:2; 1 Chron. 1:32), the latter being the name of a place in Edom or Arabia. Zophar is from Naamah, which is the name of a woman listed in the genealogy of Cain (Gen. 4:22), from whom the Kenites were descendants (Gen. 4:22). The Kenites are also mentioned in connection with the Midianites in the Sinai and Arabian deserts (Num. 10:29; Judg. 4:11). comfort. On this key word in Job, see Introduction: Literary Features.

JOB—NOTE ON 2:12 It is likely that Job’s friends did not recognize him because, in addition to his sores, Job bore the external effects of both the emotional weight and physical manifestations of his grief (see 1:20; 2:7–8).

JOB—NOTE ON 2:13 The silence over a period of seven days and seven nights signifies a complete time of mourning in response to the suffering of Job. Ezekiel exhibited a similar response upon meeting the exiles in Babylon (see Ezek. 3:15).

JOB—NOTE ON 3:1–42:6 Dialogue: Job, His Suffering, and His Standing before God. Between the brief narrative sections of the prologue (1:1–2:13) and epilogue (42:7–17), the large central section of the book consists of dialogue in poetic form (except for the narrative introduction of Elihu in 32:1–5) that focuses on the question of what Job's suffering reveals both about him and about God's governing of the world. This section progresses in five main parts: Job's opening lament (3:1–26), a lengthy section of interchanges between the three friends and Job (4:1–25:6), Job's closing monologue (26:1–31:40), Elihu's response (32:1–37:24), and the Lord's appearance to and interaction with Job (38:1–42:6).

JOB—NOTE ON 3:1–26 Job: Despair for the Day of His Birth. After the prose introduction (vv. 1–2), Job curses the day of his birth (vv. 3–10), expanding on this theme with two sequences of "why?" questions: the first expresses longing for rest (vv. 11–19); the second laments his anxious suffering (vv. 20–26). Job's opening lament plays off the vocabulary of light and darkness in relation to both questions of the section: "Why did I not die at birth?" (v. 11) and "Why is light given to a man whose way is hidden, whom God has hedged in?" (v. 23). Job is mystified by his current circumstances, and here he wonders whether he would have been better off in the darkness of never being born at all rather than having the light of life result in such suffering and grief. The vocabulary of Job's lament is the beginning of a theme throughout the dialogue with his friends in which darkness and light will be used to refer to both death and life as well as to what is hidden and what is revealed.

JOB—NOTE ON 3:1–2 Introduction. Job cursed the day of his birth because it represented the path of his entire life, which had led to his present distress.

JOB—NOTE ON 3:3–10 Job Curses His Birth. In skillfully crafted poetry, Job rues the moment of his birth—in distinction from the birth itself: he will continue to see life as a divine gift (see note on 10:8–13), and he does not ever appear to be suicidal. Rather, he wishes that reality had been different, and that he would not have seen the light of day.

JOB—NOTE ON 3:8 Aspects of ancient myth are sometimes referenced metaphorically in Scripture, often in images of God's power or authority (cf. 26:12). By referring here to those who set a curse upon a day by calling upon Leviathan (see note on Ps. 74:14), Job calls for their incantations as one more piece of his lament against the day of his birth.

JOB—NOTE ON 3:11–19 Job Longs for Rest. Job's futile curses progress from the day of his birth to the first moments of life. Just as he wishes the day was darkness and time erased, so too he wishes that life had been death (vv. 11–12, 16), for at least that would have brought peace in the company of the dead (vv. 13–15, 17–19).

JOB—NOTE ON 3:13–19 Job describes death as rest from the toil of life by picturing its effect on persons both high and low in society, and wishes he had joined all who were already in this state of rest rather than being born. In vv. 13–15 Job refers to the kings and princes who labored to obtain wealth and build cities but now lay without them in death. In vv. 16–19 Job focuses on the way death removes the constraints of social position, focusing attention particularly on the small and the slave, and those who have been weary or prisoners.

JOB—NOTE ON 3:20–26 Job Laments His Suffering. The final sequence of "why" questions reflects Job's current miserable state, carrying forward the themes of light (vv. 20, 23) and death (vv. 21–22). Musing on those who dig for treasures (v. 21b), Job anticipates the terms in which some of his puzzles will be solved in the poem on "wisdom" (see ch. 28).

JOB—NOTE ON 3:23 In his accusation, Satan argued that Job was upright only because God had put a "hedge" of blessing around him (1:10). Here in the opening lament of the dialogues, Job refers to his sustained life amid inscrutable circumstances of suffering as rendering him one whom God has hedged in. Satan's contention is disproved through Job's continued faithfulness. Job's overall lament of his situation is something which God both reproves (see chs. 38–41) and commends (42:7).

JOB—NOTE ON 4:1–25:6 The Friends and Job: Can Job Be Right before God? The main section of the book contains the dialogue between Job and the three friends that opens with Job's initial lament (3:1–16) and then alternates between speeches by each friend (Eliphaz, Bildad, Zophar) and responses by Job. The dialogue consists of two full cycles containing a speech by each friend and response by Job (4:1–14:22; 15:1–21:34). Job appears to cut off Bildad in the midst of his third speech (22:1–25:6), which is followed by a lengthy section of Job's final argument (26:1–31:40). In his opening response, Eliphaz initiates what will become a recurring question and theme for the speeches of the friends: "Can mortal man be in the right before God?" (4:17; see also 9:2; 15:14; 25:4). The friends assume that both Job's circumstances and his response to them are indications that he is in the wrong before God and needs to acknowledge and repent of his sin. However, Job will insist not only that he is not guilty of some hidden iniquity but that it is God who ultimately has allowed and governed his circumstances.

JOB—NOTE ON 4:1–14:22 First Cycle. Although Eliphaz begins this round of dialogues with a fairly gentle tone (4:3–4), sympathy for Job rapidly fades. The character of Job is consistently probed under the assumption that his moral failures account for his present plight (by Eliphaz in chs. 4–5, Bildad in ch. 8, and Zophar in ch. 11). Job responds in kind: bewildered by his suffering, he angrily argues (chs. 6–7), legally disputes (chs. 9–10), and resolutely rejects (chs. 12–14) the counsel of his friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 4:1–5:27 Eliphaz: Can Mortal Man Be in the Right before God? Eliphaz opens his first response with a brief affirmation of Job's character (4:2–4) before asserting what he knows to be true about how God works (4:7–5:16) and articulating the core of the friends' argument: in light of Job's circumstance, he cannot be in the right before God (see 4:17). In light of his confidence that his description and inferences are correct, Eliphaz suggests that Job accept his circumstance as God's reproof in order that he might be delivered (5:17–27). When the dialogue with the three friends is finished, Elihu will suggest something quite similar to Eliphaz, even if he takes a slightly different approach (see 32:1–37:24; and 36:7–21 in particular).

JOB—NOTE ON 4:8 those who plow iniquity and sow trouble reap the same. At the opening of his speech, Eliphaz states the dictum that the friends will relentlessly defend throughout the dialogue. For them this proverb is unequivocal—it is true in all circumstances in the same way. Character can be judged by circumstances.

JOB—NOTE ON 4:10–11 Typical of wisdom exponents, Eliphaz turns to nature to demonstrate his truth. Even an animal as mighty as the lion is incapable of altering the operation of natural law to protect its own young. A man like Job cannot alter the function of moral law any more than the lion can alter natural law.

JOB—NOTE ON 4:12–21 In his first speech, Eliphaz describes the event (vv. 12–16) and content (vv. 17–21) of a vision. The implied heavenly source of the vision is meant to grant authority to the message, which centers on the opening question: "Can mortal man be in the right before God?" While the vision has been typically read as belonging to Eliphaz, some interpreters have argued that it should be understood as a vision originally reported by Job, which is then quoted by Eliphaz. The primary impetus for interpreting the vision as a quotation is the argument that the recurring question of v. 17 (see 9:2; 15:14; 25:4) is in tension with the theology of Eliphaz and the friends (i.e., they are arguing precisely that a righteous person can be in the right before God). While interpreting the vision as a quotation offers a solution if there is in fact a conflict, it lacks the support of the typical features found in Job that would mark a quotation in the text (e.g., there is no attribution of the speech to Job, nor has Job said anything like this up to this point) and creates other interpretative difficulties. Nevertheless, this view is set out here to present both interpretative options for readers of Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 4:17–18 The opening questions of v. 17 present an interpretative difficulty: what do they mean and what is their function in the dialogue? Are they Eliphaz's way of reminding Job that all creation has been affected by sin? Are they Job's questions (see note on vv. 12–21) asking whether it is possible to live in such a manner as to receive only good things from God? Neither of these possibilities appears fully satisfying: the first because Eliphaz would then be arguing that what has happened to Job is a consequence that should be expected by all people, including himself; the second because it is not the purpose of Job's lament to ask whether it would have been possible so to live as to avoid his circumstances. A literary key for answering the question is found in the function of the prologue. The content of the heavenly dialogues (1:8; 2:3) and the comments of the narrator (1:1–5, 22; 2:10) place the evaluation of Job's character at the forefront for interpreting the book as a whole. In the dialogue of chs. 3–31, the friends are seeking to judge the nature of the very thing to which the reader has been made privy: God's evaluation of Job. The tension of the dialogue begins with Eliphaz's vision, which functions as a response to Job's initial lament (3:1–26): How can you presume that you are in the right? Eliphaz argues that if even angels are found at fault before God, then the fact of compounded and devastating suffering should lead Job, a mortal man, to seek God for help rather than presuming the right to protest against him (see 5:8).

JOB—NOTE ON 4:19–21 Eliphaz follows the opening question to Job with an extended description to illustrate his greater-to-lesser argument. If angels are held guilty (see v. 18), then how much more so are mortals who dwell in houses of clay (v. 19), who perish forever without anyone regarding it (v. 20), and who die … without wisdom (v. 21)?

JOB—NOTE ON 5:1 After Eliphaz presents what he regards as the weight of his vision (see 4:17–21), he asks rhetorically if there are any creatures left on earth (anyone) or in heaven (the holy ones) to whom Job can presume to appeal.

JOB—NOTE ON 5:6–7 Eliphaz reinforces his previous point (see 4:8) by returning to the language of agriculture: affliction and trouble do not grow out of the dust or ground, but out of what is sown from the day a person is born.

JOB—NOTE ON 5:16 The wicked sit in stunned silence at the reversal of their fortune. As is the case in several places in the dialogues, the second line of the verse (injustice shuts her mouth) is similar to a line from the Psalms (see Ps. 107:42, "the wickedness shuts its mouth"). Eliphaz implies in this section (Job 5:8–16) that Job should reconsider the reversal of his circumstances as representing God's just purposes (see v. 17).

JOB—NOTE ON 5:21 The reference to the lash of the tongue is included in a list of troubles that threaten a person's life (vv. 19–26) along with famine, war, danger of wild beasts, and anything that might endanger the peace of flocks, family, or person (e.g., disease, disaster, etc.). Eliphaz uses the numerical saying ("from six … in seven") to draw particular attention to the final element: if Job will accept his situation as God’s discipline, he will be spared from his trouble and brought to “a ripe old age” (v. 26).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:1–7:21 Job: Life Is Futile. In his first response, Job longs that his life would be cut off (6:9) so that he could rest from his suffering, knowing that he had not denied God (6:10). Job found his life unbearable on account of the empty comfort offered by his friends (6:14–30) and what he describes as the continued watchfulness of God (7:11–21). The speech as a whole shows a remarkable progression. Job moves from first-person soliloquy in 6:2–13 (continuing his introspective mode from ch. 3), shifting to second-person (plural) address to speak directly to the friends (for the first time) so as to question the nature of their “comfort” (6:14–30). Then Job relapses into first-person reflection on the futility of his life (7:1–6), before a transitional movement (7:7–10) now in second person singular (to Eliphaz himself). Finally, the pivotal 7:11 introduces Job’s first direct address to God (7:12–21).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:8–9 Although Job lamented his birth (in ch. 3), only now does he express a hope for death (at God’s hand, not his own) to alleviate his suffering.

JOB—NOTE ON 6:10 When Job says, “I have not denied the words of the Holy One,” he is referring, at least in part, to the fact that he has not concealed something that is out of accord with what God desires of his servants—something that Eliphaz had implied in his first response (see 5:17).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:14 After Eliphaz suggests that Job should consider his suffering as an indication that he has been a fool (see 5:3ff.), Job argues that one who withholds kindness from a friend is himself acting out of accord with wisdom (i.e., forsakes the fear of the Almighty).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:15 A torrent-bed is a wadi, a depression or rift in the rocks that gathers water from cloudbursts or melting ice, which races down the slope. Desert travelers could not carry sufficient water; they depended on rains or melting snow, which quickly dried up in the hot sun.

JOB—NOTE ON 6:19 Both Tema and Sheba continue the southeastern setting of the book (cf. 2:11).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:25–26 If upright words are used properly, they can function to reprove a person, discouraging him from taking a foolish path (v. 25). However, Job argues that as a despairing man he is pouring out his complaint before God and that his friends assume wrongly that his words (v. 26) reveal something in need of their rebuke. As the dialogue progresses, Job will increasingly argue that the aim of his friends' rebuke misses him entirely. Bildad will echo Job's reference to his own speech as wind in the opening lines of the response that follows (see 8:2).

JOB—NOTE ON 6:28–30 For the first time, Job directly asserts before God his innocence, which requires his vindication. Although this claim is directed to the friends, Job will soon repeat it to God—by implication in 7:20, and then throughout his speeches with ever-increasing insistence (cf. 10:5–7; 13:16–18; 27:1–6; 29:1–25; 31:1–40).

JOB—NOTE ON 7:11 In the initial response to each friend, Job primarily addresses his friends first (6:1–7:10) before turning to offer further lament and complaint to God (vv. 12–21). The three parallel statements of this verse (I will …) mark the transition from Job's response to Eliphaz to his response to God. That transition is also represented by the change in reference to God from the third person (e.g., "he" in 6:9) to the second (e.g., "you" in 7:12). Similar statements mark the major transition in Job's initial responses to Bildad (10:1–2) and Zophar (13:13–17).

JOB—NOTE ON 7:12 Job asks whether God considers him to be something as large or powerful as the sea or a sea monster because he feels his suffering is disproportionate to the weight of his being. In the literature of the ancient Near East, the sea is often described or personified as a threat to the created order that needs to be contained or conquered (see 26:12; 38:8–11). "Sea" (Yam) and "sea monster" (Tannin) are both known figures from Canaanite religion: Yam as the power contesting supremacy with Baal, and Tannin as one of the chaos monsters (cf. Ps. 74:13; Isa. 51:9).

JOB—NOTE ON 7:16 I loathe my life. Job will declare his rejection of his life again with the same verb in 9:21. When Job is fully confronted with the mystery of God, he will reject his words using the same verb ("I despise myself," 42:6). The verb is repeated across these verses to contrast Job's changed attitude as he comes to recognize that he had given up on understanding what his own life and circumstances meant in a manner that assumed more than he could possibly see or know.

JOB—NOTE ON 7:17–18 The opening line of v. 17 (What is man, that you make so much of him) echoes the thought of Ps. 8:4 ("what is man that you are mindful of him"). However, where Psalm 8 marvels at how humanity has been crowned with glory by God, Job laments what he describes as the burdensome weight of God's watchful presence crushing him as a mortal being (Job 7:20).

JOB—NOTE ON 8:1–22 Bildad: The Wisdom of the Sages. Bildad immediately begins with a stern rebuke: Job's words are a tempestuous wind (see 6:26), and whatever has come upon his children or upon Job himself has to be right, because God does not pervert justice (8:1–7). If Job will simply listen to the wisdom to which Bildad is pointing him, he will remember that the wicked do not endure (vv. 8–19), and that God will surely restore Job if he is truly blameless (vv. 20–22).

JOB—NOTE ON 8:4–6 After the rhetorical questions of v. 3, Bildad presents two conditional statements to Job that are meant to represent the necessary consequences of God's justice. The first (v. 4), though set as a conditional, assumes that Job's children have suffered because of their sin. The second is then meant to call Job to remember that if he will repent (v. 5) and if he is blameless (v. 6), then God will spare him from the end that his children have suffered.

JOB—NOTE ON 8:8–10 If Eliphaz based his counsel on the night vision (see note on 4:12–21), here Bildad appeals instead to the tradition of the fathers.

JOB—NOTE ON 8:11–19 Typical of wisdom literature, Bildad uses an analogy from nature to illustrate his point regarding the vulnerability of the wicked. Papyrus and reeds grow quickly in the wetlands to a height of 15 feet (4.6 m) or more, but are also the most vulnerable of plants, dependent on a constant supply of water. Other plants are deeply rooted in rocky soil, but they can be uprooted, leaving no trace of their presence. The way of the wicked is precarious and futile.

JOB—NOTE ON 8:20–22 In his conclusion, Bildad asserts two things: if Job were a blameless man God would not have rejected him (v. 20); and the tent of the wicked will not stand for long (v. 22). Job will question the truth of each assertion: If a man were blameless, how could he show himself to be right before the God of justice (see 9:2)? And if shame and disaster are the fate of the wicked, how is it that the wicked so often appear to prosper in relative safety (see 12:6; 21:7)?

JOB—NOTE ON 9:1–10:22 Job: How Can a Mortal Be Just before God? Job accepts the truth of both God's justice and his promises to the upright (9:2), but in light of his friends' suggested accusations, he feels caught. Job wonders how he could plead his case before God when there is no one who would be able to arbitrate the case (9:3–35). Here Job's speech is relentlessly legal: ch. 9 is framed by the term contend (Hb. rib, 9:3; 10:2), and legal terms are liberally sprinkled throughout the chapter (e.g., 9:2, 3, 14, 19, 20, 32, 33). Thus Job laments before God the weight of suffering in his life (10:1–22).

JOB—NOTE ON 9:1–2 When Job says, "I know that it is so" (v. 2), he is most likely affirming that he also believes what is at the core of Bildad's response: God is just, and he will not reject the upright (8:3, 20). However, given these truths and how the friends have interpreted his circumstances, Job slightly modifies the original question of Eliphaz's dream and asks, But how can a man be in the right before God? If God is just and Job is in fact innocent of the foolishness or wickedness his friends suggest, how can he go about arguing his case?

JOB—NOTE ON 9:3–10 Job does not respond further to the specifics of Bildad's argument but instead describes the difficulty of anyone arguing a case before God (vv. 3–4), given his power and strength (vv. 5–10). The form of the Hebrew verse is significant: it is a "participial hymn." The name of such poems derives from the Hebrew verb form used in vv. 5–10; they typically offer praise to God for his mighty acts in creation (e.g., Psalm 136; Jer. 10:12–13; Amos 4:13; 5:8–9; 9:5–6). Here, however, like the inversion of Psalm 8 in Job 7:11, Job uses the form to declare what he perceives as God's *un*creative power (see also 12:13–25). Verse 10 of ch. 9 repeats yet another line from Eliphaz (see 5:9), but Job uses it to reinforce the seeming futility of attempting to contend with God.

JOB—NOTE ON 9:13 Rahab, like Leviathan (see 3:8; cf. 7:12), is the name of a beast from the myths of the non-Israelite peoples. Here the name seems to represent specifically the forces of chaos (see note on Isa. 30:6–7). Earlier Job had asked that those ready to demolish Leviathan would remove his day from the universe (cf. Job 3:8). Only God is able to vanquish such powers, as Job here confesses. Job cannot hope to contest God, however just Job may judge his case to be.

JOB—NOTE ON 9:15 Though I am in the right, I cannot answer him. Job states here (and again in v. 20) his contention that his friends have applied their theology to him and his circumstances in a way that traps him. Job's friends have argued that God is just, that he does not reject the blameless, and that Job's circumstances indicate he is hiding something for which he ought to repent. Job agrees that God is just, but feels there is no room for him to make the case that he is innocent of what his friends presume.

JOB—NOTE ON 9:20 The form of the verb translated would prove me perverse makes it possible for the subject to be either he (referring to God) or "it" (referring to Job's mouth). For either possibility, the point is the same. If his mouth would prove him to be in the wrong, it is because Job thinks that God would find his words wanting. When Job says, "I am blameless" (also in v. 21), he unknowingly echoes God's description of him in the prologue (1:8; 2:3).

JOB—NOTE ON 9:21 I regard not myself. Job seems to be saying that he does not care whether he lives or dies. He is prepared to risk his life to find justice (13:14).

JOB—NOTE ON 9:22–24 While Job's friends have assumed that his suffering is evidence of some hidden wickedness, Job argues that from what is observable, both the blameless and the wicked are destroyed (v. 22), fall prey to disaster (v. 23), and suffer from the perversion of justice (v. 24)—and that all of these things are governed, ultimately, by God (if it is not he, who then is it?).

JOB—NOTE ON 9:32–35 When Job says, "there is no arbiter" in v. 33 (or wishes that there were one, see esv footnote), his words are partially an indictment against his friends, who have not served him well as comforters (while upholding both the character of God and the integrity of Job). In light of his friends’ failure, Job longs for someone who could hear his case impartially, and for the removal of the threat of further suffering (v. 34), so that he could speak freely (v. 35).

JOB—NOTE ON 10:1–2 As in 7:11, Job explicitly announces his turn to address his Creator directly.

JOB—NOTE ON 10:3 Job’s awareness that he is the work of God’s hands provides the theme for the verses that follow.

JOB—NOTE ON 10:8–13 Through a sequence of vivid metaphors, Job describes his own conception and gestation as an act of God’s creation. Job shares the wonder of the psalmist (Ps. 139:14) and the insight given to the prophet (Jer. 1:5a), but he employs it here to press his claim of innocence before God.

JOB—NOTE ON 10:15–17 Job states both sides of the dilemma he faces: if he is guilty of what his friends have inferred, it will not be good for him (v. 15, woe to me!); if he is in the right (v. 15; see also 9:15, 20), he feels he has no strength to walk upright because of the weight of his suffering (10:15) and the threat of further affliction (vv. 16–17).

JOB—NOTE ON 10:18–19 Why did you bring me out from the womb? Job caps the argument begun in v. 3 and returns to his earlier sentiments. He should have been stillborn (3:10); if he had to be born, he should have been left alone and allowed to die in peace (7:16–17). Why should God make so much of humans that he would continually watch over them in such misery?

JOB—NOTE ON 10:21–22 The repetition of the terms darkness and shadow and the adjectives used to modify them (thick, deep) in Job’s description of death underscore his plea for a reprieve from suffering while he still has days left in the light of life.

JOB—NOTE ON 11:1–20 Zophar: Repent. Like Bildad (see 8:1–22), Zophar responds with a sharp challenge to what he sees as empty words and presumption in Job (11:2–12). He then calls Job to prayer and repentance, promising that God will transform Job’s circumstances if he will simply step back from his pride (vv. 13–20). Zophar's indignant speech makes an implicit connection between moral standing and knowledge of God: since Job's situation marks him out as morally corrupt (cf. vv. 5–6, 11, 14), he cannot know God rightly.

JOB—NOTE ON 11:5–6 Zophar shares Job's longing that Job might have a direct audience with God, but for exactly the opposite purpose. Job longs for vindication; Zophar is certain that Job would be condemned.

JOB—NOTE ON 11:7 There is irony in this verse that will be revealed to Zophar only in the events of the epilogue (see 42:7–9). Although he accusingly asks Job whether he is able to discover the depth and extent of God's work, it is Zophar who presumes that God's purposes in Job's suffering are transparent enough to rebuke Job and call him to repent.

JOB—NOTE ON 11:12 Although there is a question about how the second line of this proverb relates to the first (i.e., whether the first line is being compared to the impossibility in the second of a wild donkey giving birth either to a man or to a domesticated colt), the function of the proverb in Zophar's speech is clear. He is calling Job to stop insisting on foolishness, because, like the path of the stupid man, it will never lead to understanding. Zophar calls Job instead to turn away from the insistence that he is in the right and to seek God in prayer and repentance (vv. 13–20).

JOB—NOTE ON 11:20 Zophar's final statement about the fate of the wicked stands in stark contrast to what he describes in vv. 13–19 as the benefits God will bestow on Job if he will only repent. Zophar's statement is meant to warn Job against continuing in his current path (see v. 18 and the contrast relating to hope).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:1–14:22 Job: A Challenge to the "Wisdom" of His Friends. In the longest response of the dialogues with the three friends, Job shows his growing frustration with their claims to wisdom (even though he agrees with them about God's supreme power; 12:1–13:2) and with the conclusions they have drawn (13:3–19); then, once again, he addresses his lamentation directly to God (13:20–14:22).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:2–3 Job reveals his frustration through sarcasm. In what may be a rejoinder to Zophar's wish that God would tell Job "the secrets of wisdom” (see 11:5–6), he states, “wisdom will die with you” to make the point that his friends speak as though they alone were wise (12:2). However, says Job, “I am not inferior to you” (v. 3; 13:2), and he sets out to illustrate the lack of depth and breadth in their approach (12:4–25).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:4–6 Job reproves his friends by pointing out that their approach to wisdom seems to ignore the realities of both the suffering of the righteous (like his own, v. 4) and the safety of the wicked (v. 6). Furthermore, his friends have not acted as true wisdom requires, but have instead expressed contempt rather than comfort from their place of being at ease (v. 5; see also 6:14).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:6 The tents of robbers are at peace. With the reference to the image of the “tents” of the wicked, Job may have intended a counterpoint to one or more of his friends’ earlier assertions (see 5:24; 8:22; 11:14).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:7–9 As further reproof, Job suggests that his friends ought to inquire of the animals and plants of creation, which all know that it is ultimately the LORD who governs all of life.

JOB—NOTE ON 12:9 the hand of the LORD has done this? This line is the only occurrence of the name of God (Hb. YHWH) in Job outside of the prologue and chs. 38–42 and is identical to a line in the book of Isaiah (Isa. 41:20).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:13–25 In this section, Job asserts that the scope of God’s providential governing of the world is much more extensive than what his friends assume by their responses. Again as in 9:3–10, Job employs the distinctive form of the “participial hymn” (see note on 9:3–10) in an ironic fashion. Here Job asserts God’s sovereign control over nature and its destructive powers before employing the participial form to survey God’s supreme prerogative over human rulers (12:17–24).

JOB—NOTE ON 12:17–21 The whole of social order and any sphere of leadership within it are subject to God and his purposes: counselors, judges, kings, priests, advisers, elders, princes, and soldiers.

JOB—NOTE ON 12:18 He looses the bonds of kings, i.e., kings lose their thrones. The bond may be thought of as the royal sash or belt, which is replaced by that of an ordinary robe.

JOB—NOTE ON 12:21–24 He pours contempt on princes (v. 21a) and makes them wander in a trackless waste (v. 24b) are identical to the two lines of Ps. 107:40. The psalm speaks of judgment against oppressive rulers; in Job these phrases serve as a part of the description of God's sovereign governing over all social order. Loosens the belt is a common metaphor for disarming a soldier.

JOB—NOTE ON 12:23 he enlarges nations. This may have the negative sense of "disperse" or "scatter," making the second line antithetical to the first. Sometimes God makes nations great and then destroys them, while other times he first scatters a nation and then gives it peace or leads it in an orderly way.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:3–19 Before he turns to God in lament, Job argues that his friends have both misdiagnosed him (he calls his friends "worthless physicians" in v. 4) and misrepresented God (see vv. 7–10).

JOB—NOTE ON 13:4 you whitewash with lies. The image of applying "whitewash" is not itself negative, but refers to the process of repairing something that is cracked or broken (e.g., a pot) by smearing it with a material that would both bond the pieces and seal the cracks. Job's contention with his friends is that they have sought to "whitewash" the situation with what they ought to know is not true about either Job or God.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:6–10 Job uses law and present court language to make his case—he is stating his arguments. The friends are denigrating Job in their arguments and showing favoritism to his divine opponent in making their case for him (v. 8). In the end God does rebuke the friends, exactly as Job had warned (42:7–8).

JOB—NOTE ON 13:11 Will not his majesty terrify you? Job questions whether his friends have taken seriously the glory and power of God in how easily and lightly they have spoken on his behalf. In a later response, Job speaks of his own fear at the thought of facing the majesty of God (31:23).

JOB—NOTE ON 13:15 Job is aware of the force of his own argument in 12:17–25, yet cannot avoid taking the risk that God will slay him. I will hope in him. "Hope" is to wait for something; waiting may or may not be patient, and it may or may not be with a positive expectation. Job is impatient and expects his life will end shortly. Job will not wait; he is willing to risk his life to make his case against God (but cf. 14:19).

JOB—NOTE ON 13:16 the godless shall not come before him. The salvation Job hopes for is that he will yet be able to make the case for his innocence before God. He anticipates that God will yet be his redeemer (see 19:25).

JOB—NOTE ON 13:20 Only grant me two things. Job abruptly shifts from warning his friends to pleading his case with God.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:26 you write bitter things against me. Job is referring to God's accusations against him, not to an indictment to punish him with suffering.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:27 you set a limit for the soles of my feet. The metaphor refers either to confinement ("set a limit for") or to a tracing of movement ("marked"; see esv footnote). Both concepts are present: Job's feet are in the stocks, and God watches everywhere he goes. Both cannot be true at the same time, but both express God's vigilant pursuit of Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:28–14:22 In this section of lament before God, Job moves from referring primarily to his own situation (13:20–27) to focus on the nature of life for any mortal.

JOB—NOTE ON 13:28 Man wastes away. The speech takes another abrupt turn. Job's thoughts on mortality are introduced with a proverb, which uses a pronoun as a generic reference to the human race (see esv footnote).

JOB—NOTE ON 14:4 Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Job describes human life as hard and short, a theme already declared to the friends in 7:1–10, and uses this question and answer to point out that no mortal is able to work outside of the limits that God has set (see also 14:5).

JOB—NOTE ON 14:7–14 Job laments the limits of mortality by contrasting the consequences of cutting down a tree (vv. 7–9) and the death of a man (vv. 10–14). There is hope (v. 7) for a tree that even if root and stump decay (v. 8), it may still grow again (v. 9). However, when a man dies, his life on earth is finished (see vv. 10, 12, 14). Thus, Job says that though a tree may sprout again (v. 7), he must look for renewal (v. 14) within the days of his life on earth (the Hb. words translated as “sprout again” and “renewal” are related).

JOB—NOTE ON 14:10 where is he? Since the focus of this section is mortal life, Job’s question does not specifically pertain to his thoughts on life after death (which he possibly alludes to in v. 12) but to the fact that there is no chance for vindication through restored life on earth after suffering and death.

JOB—NOTE ON 14:15–22 Although Job longs for renewal in which God would secure his path and forgive his sin (vv. 15–17), he concludes that just as the elements wash away rock and soil, so God will wear down a man over the course of his life (vv. 18–22).

JOB—NOTE ON 14:19 Here Job evokes the language of his earlier description: although a tree may have “hope” of renewal (v. 7), God can remove the hope of man through the persistent eroding effect of suffering and difficulty.

JOB—NOTE ON 15:1–21:34 Second Cycle. The positions established by each participant harden in the second round of speeches. Once again Eliphaz (ch. 15), Bildad (ch. 18), and Zophar (ch. 20) align Job’s suffering with the punishment due to the wicked. Job’s responses (chs. 16–17; 19; 21) typically show his refusal to accept responsibility for his situation (e.g., 19:2–6) and characterize the wicked not as sufferers but as those who prosper despite their careless godlessness (e.g., 21:7–16).

JOB—NOTE ON 15:1–35 Eliphaz: Job’s Words Condemn Him. In his second response, which initiates the second round of dialogues, Eliphaz dispenses with his earlier commendation of Job’s character (see 4:3–6) and opens by accusing him of speaking out of iniquity rather than wisdom (15:2–16). The second half of the response is a more aggressive assertion of the content of Eliphaz’s first speech: the consequence of wickedness is suffering, and thus suffering indicates that a person is wicked and should not protest innocence (vv. 17–35).

JOB—NOTE ON 15:2 Should a wise man answer with windy knowledge … ? It is possible that Eliphaz is asking whether he as a wise man should respond to Job, but the contents of vv. 3–6 indicate that the function of this question is to dispute Job's claim to be wise (see 12:3; 13:2). Eliphaz argues that Job's words reveal someone who is full of wind rather than wisdom.

JOB—NOTE ON 15:4 fear of God. As the esv footnote says, the Hebrew lacks the words "of God." However, the reference to God in the second half of the verse and the thrust of vv. 2–6 underscore that this is precisely what Eliphaz is inferring: Job has become careless in his complaint to God and is doing away with the very thing that will bring him relief (namely, repentance and humility before God) and thus is hindering his meditation from being heard.

JOB—NOTE ON 15:8 Have you listened in the council of God? The question ought to appear ironic to the reader, who has been made privy to the conversations represented in the prologue (1:7–12; 2:2–6). Eliphaz is himself guilty of the very sort of presumption for which he criticizes Job: he has concluded wrongly that Job's suffering is a transparent indicator of God's judgment.

JOB—NOTE ON 15:14–16 Eliphaz revisits the central questions of his first response (see 4:17–21): if God does not trust fully even his heavenly servants (15:15), how can Job, as a mere man (v. 14), continue to protest his innocence (v. 16)?

JOB—NOTE ON 15:20–35 In a section intended to function like the description of the foolish man in his first response (see 5:2–5), Eliphaz portrays the wicked man to implicate Job. Central to the portrayal are the images of one who is terrified as judgment comes to him amid his seeming prosperity (see 15:21, 24, 27, 32–33). Eliphaz is hoping that Job will see himself in the images and turn from defending himself to repentance.

JOB—NOTE ON 15:27 The doubled use of fat invokes a well-known image for proud, complacent disregard of God (see Ps. 73:7; 119:70; cf. Job 16:8 and note).

JOB—NOTE ON 15:31–35 These verses contain an example of Job's claim that his friends are "withholding kindness" from him (see 6:14; 12:5). With the presumption that his perspective is clear and right, Eliphaz mercilessly chooses vocabulary that focuses on the loss of Job's offspring as indication of God's judgment: emptiness (15:31), his branch will not be green (v. 32), the early loss of grape or blossom (v. 33), his company is barren (v. 34), and conceive, give birth, and womb (v. 35). Given what the reader knows about Job, this section ought to instill humility on the part of any person who seeks to pursue another with rebuke—and compassion for Job as one who endured not only the loss of his children but also the presumptuous, compounded, and condemning "comfort" of his friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 16:1–17:16 Job: Hope for a Sufferer. Job begins by pointing out that his friends have failed as comforters (16:2–5), even though comfort was their original purpose for coming to him (see 2:11). He then describes the seeming paradox of his situation: God is the one who has brought these things upon him, and although others take this as a sign of his judgment, Job trusts that God can testify on his behalf (16:6–17:9). In the final section Job presents his friends with the consequential dilemma of their words: their condemnation leaves death as Job's only hope, but to long for death is to give up on any possibility of vindication and is no hope at all (17:10–16).

JOB—NOTE ON 16:4–5 Job is not suggesting that he would act like his friends if the roles were reversed. He is trying to get his friends to put themselves in his place so that they will see how little comfort they are offering.

JOB—NOTE ON 16:8 To counter Eliphaz's description of the "fat" wicked person (15:27), Job points to his own shriveled and emaciated state. It testifies that God's hand is against him (cf. Ps. 6:2; 22:17; also linking the motif of hostile stares; see Job 16:10), but not that he is guilty (v. 17).

JOB—NOTE ON 16:12–14 Job uses the imagery of warfare, and what happens to a city and its inhabitants when it is attacked or breached, to express how he feels broken open by God.

JOB—NOTE ON 16:15 sewed sackcloth upon my skin. Job's constant grief is like a coarse cloth stitched to his skin, a reality of acute and unending pain. laid my strength in the dust. Lit., "buried my horn in the ground." The horn of an animal represents strength, power, and nobility. Every semblance of dignity and worth has been taken from Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 16:16 deep darkness. Lit., "shadow of death." Job's gaunt eyes are those of a dying man.

JOB—NOTE ON 16:19 Who is Job's witness … in heaven who testifies on his behalf? One of the "holy ones," derided by Eliphaz (5:1)? Job's tentative plea for an "arbiter" (9:33) grows in confidence here with the knowledge that God alone is the source of his suffering. So too will his realization grow that God alone is his hope for vindication. This may not be clear to Job yet (thus 16:21 distinguishes the "witness" from God), but it will be so eventually; cf. 19:25.

JOB—NOTE ON 17:5 Since vv. 1–4 are likely addressed to God (vv. 3–4 directly), in v. 5 Job may be asking God to remember what his friends have done, warning the friends of the consequences of such actions, or both. Many interpreters think that v. 5 quotes a proverb of the day, which if true bears a message similar to other warnings in the OT against being a false witness (see Deut. 19:18–19; Prov. 19:5, 9).

JOB—NOTE ON 17:7 all my members. Job's entire body is exhausted from grief and pain; this summarizes his theme from 16:7–16.

JOB—NOTE ON 17:10–16 In both lines of v. 12, Job appears to refer to the perspective of his friends: they argue that if he will simply repent, God will restore him and turn his night into day (see 5:17–27; 8:5–7; 11:13–20). However, Job argues that simply accepting the perspective of his friends would be to make his bed in darkness (17:13) because it would be a response void of the faith that trusts that God is both sovereign and just (and thus knows the truth) and of the hope (v. 15) that he will be vindicated by God. Throughout the dialogue in chs. 3–31, Job is essentially arguing God’s character back to God from the belief that he is just. In so doing, Job the sufferer is structuring his lament as ultimately a posture of hope.

JOB—NOTE ON 18:1–21 Bildad: Punishment for the Wicked. Like Eliphaz, Bildad omits any of the appeals to Job in his first response (see 8:5–7) and opens by venting his frustration (18:2–4): Who is Job to maintain his position and criticize the words of his friends? The remainder of Bildad’s response is an unyielding description of the end of the wicked (vv. 5–21) that appears to be motivated as much by his reactive irritation as by any further desire to correct Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 18:5–6 Bildad is likely responding to Job with the repeated images of the light of the wicked (flame, lamp) going dark (put out, does not shine) to make the point that Job ought to take the “darkness” (see 17:12–13) as precisely such a warning (see also 18:18).

JOB—NOTE ON 18:7–10 Bildad uses the vocabulary of a trap (net, snare, rope) in these verses to argue that what Job describes as God breaking him apart (see 16:7–14) is better described as Job suffering the consequences of his own sin (his own schemes throw him down, 18:7).

JOB—NOTE ON 18:11–14 The vocabulary of these verses has led some interpreters to explain the references to the firstborn of death and the king of terrors as allusions to figures in either Babylonian or Ugaritic mythology. While it is difficult to discern whether such an allusion is intended, it is clear that Bildad is personifying the process and finality of death: calamity is wearing the wicked person (i.e., Job) down, which will lead ultimately to the finality of death itself (v. 14). When Bildad uses the phrase “the firstborn of death,” he may be intentionally picking up the familial references from Job’s response and turning them against him (see 17:14).

JOB—NOTE ON 18:14–21 Bildad refers throughout this section to the destruction of both the house (e.g., tent, vv. 14–15; habitation, v. 15; dwellings, place, v. 21) and the household (memory, name, v. 17; posterity, progeny, and survivor, v. 19) of the wicked in order to assert that Job’s circumstances show he is one who knows not God (v. 21).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:1–29 Job: My Redeemer Lives. Job begins by asking his friends how long they will persist in accusing him and why they feel no shame for the manner in which they have done so. Even if he has done wrong, Job maintains that it is God who has brought about his circumstances (vv. 2–6). Job laments that although he cries out for justice, his continued suffering has brought only isolation and indifference from his family and friends (vv. 7–22). Job concludes with the wish that his belief in God's vindication of him would be inscribed in rock as a permanent witness (vv. 23–27) and with a warning to his friends against continuing to pursue him with such anger and certainty that they are right, lest they fall under the very sort of judgment they assume has fallen on Job (vv. 28–29).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:2 How long … ? Job opens by echoing the question from the first line of each of Bildad's speeches (see 8:2; 18:2) to draw attention to how relentless his friends have been in condemning him.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:3 Job uses the phrase ten times as a figure of speech indicating a full measure rather than 10 actual interchanges (see also Gen. 31:7, 41; Num. 14:22).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:6 The verb translated put me in the wrong is the same verb that Bildad used in 8:3 (translated as "to pervert"). Job uses this verb to make his point clear: even in the very protesting of his innocence, Job is affirming his belief that God is just, but he also continues to affirm that his suffering is not because of his sin and that God is the one who has ultimately allowed or brought it about.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:7 I cry out, "Violence!" The prophet Habakkuk opens his oracle with a similar statement and complaint before God (see Hab. 1:2–4).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:8 He has walled up my way. God's fence had at first kept trouble away from Job (1:10), but now it was a wall that gave Job no way of escape (cf. 3:23). The very scale of his suffering is, for Job, a sign of its divine origin.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:13–19 Viewed apart from Job's suffering, these verses are a remarkable register of the social world of the ancient Israelite patriarch. Within Job's anguished state, he takes a complete inventory of his social isolation. An explicit link is also forged between the poetic dialogue and the story told in the prose frame; cf. v. 14 and 42:11.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:20 Although by the skin of my teeth has become an idiomatic expression in English for just barely accomplishing or avoiding something, the intended referent of the Hebrew phrase is not so clear (i.e., what is meant by the “skin” of the teeth is difficult to determine). However, the general sense of the English phrase, which has typically been explained as having its origins from this verse in Job, fits the context well: Job’s body bears the effects of both his emotional and physical suffering and gives witness to the fact that he has narrowly escaped his own death.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:22 Why are you not satisfied with my flesh? If his friends were so convinced that Job had sinned and that his obvious physical suffering represented God’s judgment, he asks them why they continue their relentless pursuit of him. From Job’s perspective, his friends have chosen to use whatever he has left as means to torment him (see v. 2), and he is pleading that they might show him mercy (see v. 21).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:23–24 Job wishes that his words could be recorded as a witness that would remain when he is dead. He refers to two methods of recording that were common in the ancient Near East. inscribed in a book. This process could refer either to writing in a scroll or book or to an inscription on a clay tablet, all of which represent writing materials that would have been more or less portable. engraved in the rock. Job also wishes that his words could be inscribed in a more public and permanent fashion. An example of this type of monument is preserved in the inscription of Darius I at Behistun (modern Bisitun, in western Iran), on which the cuneiform signs were inlaid with lead in order to facilitate the reading of the inscription from the road below. Although it is not commented on explicitly in the book itself, the writing of the book of Job is in many respects a fulfillment of his wish in a way that both includes and extends beyond the purposes Job had in mind.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:25–27 For. Job is stating here the grounds for wishing that his words would be recorded (vv. 23–24). I know that my Redeemer lives (v. 25). The Hebrew noun (go’el) translated “Redeemer” is the same word used frequently in the OT to refer to a “kinsman-redeemer,” who had both rights and responsibilities for vindicating a family member (see Ruth 4:1–6). In the OT, God says that he will “redeem” his people from slavery (Ex. 6:6) and is thus later referred to as “the Redeemer of Israel” (Isa. 43:14; 44:6). For God as an individual’s “Redeemer,” see Gen. 48:16; Ps. 19:14 (and see note on Ps. 25:22). Job’s description of his “Redeemer” as one who “lives” (Job 19:25) and his following reference to “God” (v. 26) indicate he believes that God is the one who ultimately will vindicate him. yet in my flesh I shall see God (v. 26), whom I shall see for myself (v. 27). Because of the content of Job’s earlier laments and the difficulty of the Hebrew in v. 26, interpreters have questioned the likelihood that Job is expressing in these verses a belief that God will redeem him after death. However, while the focus of Job’s dialogue and lament is the desire that what he believes to be true “in heaven” (i.e., before God) would also be shown to be true on earth, such a desire makes sense only if it is grounded in a belief that God is his Redeemer and that he will vindicate Job even in death.

JOB—NOTE ON 19:28–29 Job tells his friends their certainty that the root of the matter is found in him has led them to pursue him in wrath. Job uses the image of the sword to refer to passing judgment and to warn the friends against their presumption that they can understand, and actually wield, the sword of judgment that belongs to God alone. In calling his friends to be careful how they judge him lest they fall under the punishment of the very sword they presume to wield, Job suggests something similar to what Jesus will teach explicitly in the Sermon on the Mount (see Matt. 7:1–5).

JOB—NOTE ON 19:29 wrath brings the punishment of the sword. The wrath of the friends is a “crime of the sword,” a sin deserving of punishment (cf. 31:11, 28). False testimony demands the same penalty that would have been given the accused (Deut. 19:16–19); the accusations of the friends were worthy of death. know there is a judgment. The Hebrew for this line is elliptical; it seems to mean either that there is a judge or that there is a judgment, as the esv renders. The appearance of the Redeemer, says Job, would be bad news for his friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 20:1–29 Zophar: The Wicked Will Die. In his second response, Zophar opens with a brief expression of frustration (vv. 2–3), presumably in response to Job’s insistence that God has brought about his circumstances and Job’s belief that God will yet vindicate him. The remainder of the response is one long description of the short and insufferable life of the wicked, by which Zophar intends to implicate and rebuke Job (vv. 4–29).

JOB—NOTE ON 20:3 censure that insults me. Zophar may be referring to Job’s response to his last speech, in which Job sarcastically criticized his friends and claimed that he was not their inferior (see 12:2–3).

JOB—NOTE ON 20:6–7 Zophar warns Job that whatever height a wicked man may have achieved will not change the fact that, when his end comes, it will be quick and complete. “Where is he?” Zophar may be recasting the question Job asked in 14:10 as what could well be ironically and justifiably spoken about Job if he does not pull back from his insistence that he is innocent.

JOB—NOTE ON 20:10–21 Zophar argues that neither the wicked man (vv. 12–19) nor his offspring (v. 10) will enjoy the benefits of what he has acquired, because he has gained it through the oppression of others (vv. 19–21). Instead, his children will be forced to beg from the poor (v. 10), who were some of the very people their father oppressed to gain his wealth (v. 19). The description also includes several images that describe the way of the wicked as something like gluttony: their hunger for evil is unrestrained and insatiable (vv. 12, 13, 20, 21), which leads to whatever has been gained instead rotting them from the inside out (vv. 14–16).

JOB—NOTE ON 20:23–25 Although Job had referred to his circumstances as equivalent to God attacking and breaking him open (see 16:12–14), Zophar uses similar imagery of sword and arrow to assert that it is God who will indeed strike the wicked with the wrath of his judgment. Zophar is likely hinting that Job ought to take his own description of feeling “broken open” as an indication of God’s impending judgment rather than of any injustice from God.

JOB—NOTE ON 20:27 The heavens … and the earth. Although it is not his purpose, Zophar hints here at the central tension of the book: what is the relationship between what is true before God and what takes place on earth?

The friends wrongly assume that Job's circumstances on earth are a transparent indicator of his guilt before God in heaven. Job has governed his life by a belief that God is indeed just, and his lament reflects his desire that God's justice would be manifested more than it is in his present life on earth. In the end, Zophar will realize that what the heavens will reveal is his own error, not Job's iniquity (see 42:7–9).

JOB—NOTE ON 21:1–34 Job: The Wicked Prosper. Job's response closes the second cycle of the dialogue with his friends by focusing directly on the assertion that the wicked suffer immediate and lasting grief, which is at the heart of the argument of each of his friends and is the thrust of Zophar's most recent response (see ch. 20). Job argues that the wicked do not self-destruct in their greed but rather live in grand style, and are respected and honored in death (21:7–21, 27–34). In the midst of his response, Job questions whether his friends truly understand life on earth; he does this in a manner that makes it seem as if God needs to be instructed (vv. 22–26).

JOB—NOTE ON 21:7–16 Job argues not only that the wicked prosper and their offspring flourish (vv. 7–8), but also that their lives often appear unhindered by any of the signs of judgment that the friends so confidently describe (vv. 9–13)—a perspective that shares much with Psalm 73. Furthermore, Job points out that the evidence for what he is claiming is not even concealed by the wicked themselves, who choose to follow their pursuits with open indifference to and even proclaimed defiance against the Lord (Job 21:14–16).

JOB—NOTE ON 21:17–21 Job challenges Bildad's earlier assertion that the lamp of the wicked is put out (see 18:5–6) by asking how often this is true (21:17–18). Furthermore, Job's friends have argued that God's judgment of the wicked falls also on the children of the wicked (cf. 20:10), but Job replies that, if the wicked person does not see, drink, and know his own punishment, it has little effect as judgment, because he is dead and without care for what happens after him (21:19–21).

JOB—NOTE ON 21:22 In previous speeches, Eliphaz had asked how Job could presume to be in the right when God judges even the heavenly beings (see 4:18; 15:15). Here Job recasts the truth of Eliphaz's assertion so as to question the approach of his friends: their presuming to discern events on earth as transparent indicators of judgment contradicts the facts of experience in such a way as to suggest that God needs to be reminded or instructed in their knowledge. However, since God is the judge of those who are on high and unseen, the friends should be all the more cautious of presuming to discern exhaustively what God's purposes are simply based upon what they see on earth.

JOB—NOTE ON 21:33 all mankind follows after him. In addition to the argument that a person's circumstances are not necessarily a transparent indicator of blessing or judgment, there is an additional warning embedded in Job's description: many people are fooled by the external circumstances of the evil man (who is the subject of this description, see v. 30ff.) into following him in life and honoring him in death.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:1–25:6 Third Cycle. The consistent pattern of the first two cycles unravels in this last dialogue. Eliphaz begins by depicting Job's life as a constant stream of wicked activity (ch. 22), in contrast to the perception Job offered in his first speech (cf. 4:6–7). Job's reply (chs. 23–24) strongly implies that the divine power that has touched him is typically capricious and destructive. Bildad offers the beginning of a reply (ch. 25, only six verses), before Job interrupts with a further assertion of the impenetrable mystery of divine power (ch. 26, beginning Job's final reply to his friends). No room appears in this cycle for a contribution from Zophar. If there was any comfort in the friends' attending to Job, it has entirely evaporated. The two parties have argued themselves increasingly apart, revising earlier judgments as they do so.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:1–30 Eliphaz: Job Is Guilty. In his final speech, launching the uniquely shaped third cycle, Eliphaz revisits earlier themes with renewed fervor and finality: he questions whether Job has any basis to lament before God (vv. 2–4), asserts again that Job's circumstances reveal his abundant evil (vv. 4–11), compares Job's words to those of the wicked (vv. 12–20), and calls him once more to repent so that he might find his ways established by God (vv. 21–30).

JOB—NOTE ON 22:2–4 Eliphaz opens his response with three rhetorical questions that ask Job whether it makes any sense that God would bring suffering on one who is wise (v. 2), blameless (v. 3), or who fears him (v.

4). Eliphaz argues that, since wisdom is profitable for the person and not somehow profitable for God (vv. 2–3), there could be no purpose for suffering other than to indicate judgment and a need to repent (v. 4). In framing his response this way, Eliphaz inverts Job's own earlier reasoning that any sin of his could be of no consequence to so great a God (7:20). He also continues to assert that Job's circumstances on earth are transparent and exhaustive indicators that can and ought to be read only as signs of God's judgment.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:5–11 Eliphaz assumes that Job's circumstances reveal significant evil in his life, and thus he feels justified in describing the likely ways that Job has sinned.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:6 Eliphaz's first accusation evokes the law that a person should not take someone else's life necessities to secure a debt—like a cloak (see Ex. 22:26; Deut. 24:17–18) or a mill or millstone used to grind grain for food (see Deut. 24:6).

JOB—NOTE ON 22:9 In his description of Job's presumed mistreatment of widows and the fatherless, Eliphaz speaks in terms similar to the warnings in the law against such practices (see Ex. 22:22; Deut. 24:17) and to prophetic oracles of judgment (see Isa. 1:17; Jer. 22:3; Ezek. 22:7).

JOB—NOTE ON 22:13 In response to Job's continued insistence that the wicked prosper on earth and that his circumstances are not the consequences of sin, Eliphaz asserts that Job is guilty of implying that God is so high that he is unable to "know" or judge life on earth. A question similar to the one that Eliphaz puts in Job's mouth here (What does God know?) is used of the wicked in Ps. 73:11, but it comes amid a lament over their prosperity and safety that is itself similar to Job's complaint (see Ps. 73:1–17). Eliphaz wrongly equates Job's attitude toward God with that of the wicked.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:17–18 In these verses Eliphaz essentially quotes some of Job's words from 21:14–16. However, where Job was arguing that the wicked prosper in spite of open rebellion, Eliphaz is asserting that their prosperity and rebellion are momentary and that the wicked are "snatched away before their time" (22:16). Thus, when Job said, "the counsel of the wicked is far from me" (21:16b) in order to distance himself from the rebellion and practices of which his friends accused him, Eliphaz uses the same words to cast Job's position on these matters as itself the counsel of the wicked (22:18).

JOB—NOTE ON 22:21 Implicit in the plea for Job to "Agree with God" is Eliphaz's presumption that his interpretation of Job's circumstances is equivalent to God's. In particular, it seems Eliphaz thinks his argument in vv. 17–18 should be a compelling enough reason for Job to relent and finally agree that his suffering is rooted in his wickedness.

JOB—NOTE ON 22:30 This verse is another instance of unintended irony in the words of the friends. Eliphaz is suggesting that Job's repentance would lead to his being able to intercede and bring deliverance even for one who is not innocent. What Eliphaz does not know is that he stands in need of the very deliverance he describes and that it will in fact come through Job's intercession on his behalf (see 42:7–9).

JOB—NOTE ON 23:1–24:25 Job: God Is Hidden. Job is tired of arguing his case before his friends, which is revealed in part by the way he largely ignores the content of Eliphaz's most recent response. Instead, he expresses his longing to be able to come before God directly, because Job trusts that his ways are truly known and would be vindicated by God (23:1–17). In the second part of the speech, Job laments that judgment does not appear to come more evidently on those who oppress the needy for their own gain (24:1–25).

JOB—NOTE ON 23:2 The opening phrase of Job's response is probably directed at his friends more than at God. When he begins with "Today also …" Job is implying that after all of the dialogue with his friends they have neither attended to him well nor persuaded him of his guilt. my hand is heavy. Although it is not typically stated in this manner, the images of the hand "being strengthened" (e.g., Isa. 35:3) or "falling" (e.g., Jer. 6:24) are used in the OT to refer respectively to a person being either encouraged or discouraged.

JOB—NOTE ON 23:3–7 The last time Job used this kind of legal language, he was convinced that God would both ignore and condemn him (cf. 9:3, 16, 19). Here, his convictions are just the opposite: if Job were granted an audience, God would pay attention (23:6), and Job would be acquitted (v. 7).

JOB—NOTE ON 23:10–12 In his wish to present a case before God, Job refers to the manner of his life in vocabulary typical of the wisdom literature. He trusts that God knows the way that he has walked (v. 10): Job has persevered in God's steps, he has not turned aside from his way (v. 11), and he has valued God's commandment and the words of his mouth more than provision for his own physical well-being (v. 12).

JOB—NOTE ON 23:13–17 Although he has carefully considered his way (vv. 10–12), Job believes it is ultimately God who will bring about his purposes through what he appoints (vv. 13–14; for similar statements, see Prov. 16:1, 9; 20:24; Jer. 10:23). Consequently, Job confesses that he is terrified at the thought of God's presence (Job 23:15–16). Still, even in the darkness of not being able to understand his path or God's purposes fully, he is compelled to continue his lament: yet I am not silenced (v. 17).

JOB—NOTE ON 24:1–25 Job has persisted in arguing against his friends' assertion that the wicked are judged transparently and immediately on earth, but he also clings to his belief in the justice of God as the ground for his lament and hope for vindication. In this part of his speech, Job wishes that God's governing of the world would be more apparent (v. 1). He offers a further description of the acts of the wicked (vv. 2–4, 9, 13–17, 21), the consequences on their victims (vv. 5–12), the seeming blindness of his friends to this reality (vv. 18–20), and the lack of any apparent judgment (vv. 22–25). Job does not address God in this response, nor does he seem necessarily to be responding directly to his friends as much as he is speaking exhaustedly in their presence.

JOB—NOTE ON 24:1 Job asks a question that represents two perspectives: Why is it that the wicked do not seem to experience times of judgment and that the righteous never see his days? "The day of the Lord" is a common phrase in the OT that refers to the coming judgment of the Lord on the nations (see Joel 2:1ff.; cf. note on Amos 5:18–20), but also represents the full revealing of God's glory and the restored beauty of his people. A "day of the Lord" is an occasion on which God the Almighty shows his hand.

JOB—NOTE ON 24:2–12 Job's description of the injustices of the wicked (vv. 2–4) and the effects on their victims (vv. 5–12) appears to emphasize the severity and visibility of these things, which ought to be evident to observers on earth as well as to God. The conclusion in v. 12, that God ignores these evils, is precisely opposite the conclusion drawn in a passage with similar concerns, Lam. 3:31–36.

JOB—NOTE ON 24:9 Some interpreters have suggested that the Hebrew word translated "against" in the second line ('al) should be understood instead as "child" ('ul), with the sense "they take the child of the poor as a pledge," because it would be more consistent with the focus on the fatherless child in the first line. However, the translation "against" does not exclude the possibility that the second line may refer to a child being taken as a pledge, neither does it require it as the sole referent. Still, v. 3 and vv. 10–12 seem to suggest that what was taken in pledge was the means by which the poor family could have been clothed and fed (which, of course, would be equivalent in its effects to taking a child from a nursing mother).

JOB—NOTE ON 24:13–17 These verses are linked together by a play on the senses of the word "light" and its related vocabulary. Job begins by describing those who rebel against the light as those who oppose wisdom and righteousness—not knowing its ways or walking in its paths (v. 13). Job then describes how this manner of life is revealed in the light of day and the dark of night: the murderer gets up before it is light to pursue injustice and continues to prowl around at night (v. 14); the adulterer assumes that in the twilight his actions will go unseen (v. 15); thus they each bring ruinous effects on other households at night, while seeking to guard themselves during the day (v. 16). Job implies that their reversal of the typical times of sleep and labor (deep darkness has become morning) is itself a manifestation of the fact that they do not know the light and instead have chosen foolishly to become friends with the terrors of deep darkness (vv. 16–17).

JOB—NOTE ON 24:18–20 The function of these three verses in Job's speech is difficult to determine. The statements seem to be more consistent with the viewpoint of the friends than of Job. It is for this reason that v. 18 begins with "You say," which is not explicit in the Hebrew but is inferred from the content and possible purpose of these verses. If this is Job’s purpose, then he is once again restating the type of assertions that his friends have made. He does so to show that such statements seem to willfully ignore the actual state of affairs on earth (for another example, see 21:28, where “For you say” is explicit in the Hb.). Another possible interpretation is to take the statements following 24:18a as Job’s description of what he wishes would come to pass: e.g., “let their portion be cursed in the land” (v. 18b). If Job’s intention is to express the wish that judgment would be more apparent, then he is possibly taking up the theme of the questions that opened the section (see v. 1).

JOB—NOTE ON 24:18 “Swift are they on the face of the waters” may represent a saying or idiom from the time of the writing, but the referent and meaning of the phrase are not clear. It may be that “swift” refers to the fleeting life of the wicked either described by the friends or desired by Job (see note on vv. 18–20).

JOB—NOTE ON 24:21 Job focuses on the barren, childless woman and the widow to recast once again the truth embedded within his friends’ accusations (see 22:9). The care of widows, orphans, and sojourners is a central theme in the instruction of the law (see Ex. 22:21–27; Deut. 24:17–22). Such care is to be both a priority of faithfulness on the part of God’s people, and, if injustice in these areas went unaddressed, an indicator that Israel had forgotten her own history. Even though justice in these areas is supposed to be what God desires, the obvious existence of injustice seems unhindered by any sign of judgment. If what Job’s friends assert to be true has any merit, judgment ought to be evident on those who exploit widows to their own gain.

JOB—NOTE ON 25:1–6 Bildad: An Unanswered Question. Bildad’s words represent the final speech of the three friends. By returning to the central question from Eliphaz’s initial response (v. 4; see 4:17–19), Bildad reveals the dilemma within which the friends have constrained themselves and the posture they have embodied toward God and Job as a result. Since the friends have argued their theological understanding and application as representing God’s perspective, they have consistently thought of the choice before them as being that either God or Job must be in the wrong. On account of Job’s suffering and their own confidence about being able to interpret it, the friends have never really brought their own viewpoint under scrutiny or given thought to the possibility that they may be wrong in both their defense of God and their pursuit of Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 25:4 How then can man be in the right before God? This question is repeated several times throughout the dialogue between Job and his friends in slightly different forms: it is asked originally by Eliphaz (4:17), recast and used by Job in his second speech (9:2), repeated and reinforced by Eliphaz (15:14), and returned to again here by Bildad in the final speech of the friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 26:1–31:40 Job: The Power of God, Place of Wisdom, and Path of Integrity. The dialogue between Job and his three friends has a pattern in which each speech by Job is followed by responses from the friends in a particular order: Eliphaz, Bildad, and then Zophar. After two full cycles of the dialogue, it appears that Job is tired of the repetitive and relentless nature of his friends' responses. He signals the end of the dialogue by cutting Bildad's third response short (i.e., it is only six verses long) and precluding any third speech from Zophar. Job concludes with a lengthy monologue in which he takes up several subjects related particularly to the theme of what is hidden and what is revealed. The friends' presumed knowledge does not necessarily promote justice nor take into consideration the extent of the mystery of God's ways (26:1–14). Job cannot agree that his suffering reveals wickedness, and he wishes that those who oppose him would be like the wicked when they are finally cut off (27:1–23). Job describes the value, mystery, and place of wisdom (28:1–28). Job also longs for the past (29:1–25), laments the present (30:1–31), and finishes with a plea that the character of his life would be revealed for what it is and judged accordingly (31:1–40). Given the perceived tensions with Job's earlier statements on the wicked in ch. 27, and the apparently independent status of the wisdom "hymn" in ch. 28, some argue that voices other than Job's should be heard speaking these passages. On the other hand, it is possible to follow the text as it is. After all, 31:40 says, "The words of Job are ended," which seems to clearly attribute these speeches to Job. These questions are taken up in context below.

JOB—NOTE ON 26:1–14 The Mystery and Majesty of God's Ways. Job criticizes his friends for what is likely an unintentional but still unacceptable consequence of their approach (vv. 1–4). He questions their certitude by alluding to how much is hidden from human perspective simply in the existence and divine government of the created world (vv. 5–14).

JOB—NOTE ON 26:2–3 How you have helped … saved … counseled … ! With these three statements Job is suggesting that the presumed theological orthodoxy of Bildad (and the other two friends) rings hollow due to its lack of any actual protection for him or reflection on the justice they pronounce. In their defense of God, the friends have neither actively helped the poor and needy (since all they have done is wrongly accuse Job who has been their protector), nor have they bothered to discern the potentially disastrous consequences of their approach (judging the circumstance of those in need to be the result of their own sin).

JOB—NOTE ON 26:4 In light of the implied negative answer to the statements of vv. 2–3, Job asks his friends to examine whose help and whose breath has been behind their words, lest they assume resolutely but wrongly that they have spoken on God's behalf.

JOB—NOTE ON 26:5–14 Job alludes to some obvious areas of knowledge that are open before God but concealed from human perspective, in order to warn his friends against their continued presumption that they know God's purposes in Job's disastrous circumstances.

JOB—NOTE ON 26:5–10 Job uses the repeated vocabulary of this section to emphasize things that are clearly known to God but are hidden from human cognizance. The state or realm of the dead is not visible to humanity (under the waters, Sheol, and Abaddon), but it is naked and has no covering before God (vv. 5–6). Likewise, the description of the creation or existence of the natural world implies that other things may be hidden: the heavens appear perched over the void, and the earth appears to hang on nothing (v. 7); a cloud often binds up, covers, and spreads over another element of the heavens and itself is not split open (vv. 8–9); and it is God who has set the limits for all of these divine artifacts (v. 10).

JOB—NOTE ON 26:9 The Hebrew word for "full moon" (cf. Ps. 81:3) is a homonym (same sound and spelling but different meaning) with the word for “throne” (see esv footnote). If either the latter sense is intended or the author is employing intentional ambiguity in using the word, then the image may refer to the heavens as concealing God in the place of his rule.

JOB—NOTE ON 26:11–14 The images in these verses all focus on God’s power and echo a similar description in Job’s first response to Bildad (see 9:5–13). The created world reveals not only that some things are hidden (26:5–10) but also the vast implications of God’s power as the one who created and governs everything. Rahab (v. 12) and the fleeing serpent (v. 13) refer to the same being and make the point that God is and will be sovereign over any powerful figure opposed to him (note that in Isaiah, God uses “Rahab” as another name for Egypt, see Isa. 30:7). If it is by God’s power and understanding that he rules creation (Job 26:12), Job concludes by asking how it is that, as one who merely hears the thunder of his power, any person could presume to understand it (v. 14).

JOB—NOTE ON 27:1–23 A Claim to Integrity and a Wish for Vindication. Job refuses to agree that his friends are right, and he maintains that his circumstances are not an indication of undisclosed sin (vv. 1–6). In images similar to those his friends have used against him, Job wishes that his adversaries would be considered as the wicked are before God (vv. 7–23).

JOB—NOTE ON 27:1 The first part of Job’s long response is marked with the heading typical of the dialogues, “Then Job answered and said” (see 26:1 and the verse that introduces each response from 4:1ff.). The heading here and in 29:1 (And Job again took up his discourse) helps to bind together the entirety of chs. 26–31 as Job’s final speech of the dialogue, which functions as a closing statement as well as a direct response to his friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 27:5 you. The Hebrew is plural; Job is addressing his friends collectively.

JOB—NOTE ON 27:6 By asserting that he will hold fast to his integrity, Job echoes the Lord’s description of him in the prologue (see 2:3).

JOB—NOTE ON 27:7–23 Because these verses seem more consistent with the speeches of Job’s friends, it has been suggested that they may be misplaced and ought to be interpreted as belonging to Bildad’s speech in ch. 25.

However, the similarity to the speeches of the friends can also be understood to be part of Job’s purpose. Unlike his three friends, Job is not referring solely to what the wicked receive on earth, but wishes that his “enemy” would be like the wicked “when God cuts him off” and “takes away his life” (27:8). If Job is actually blameless before God, then those who have been his adversaries ought to consider how God weighs their own actions in light of the judgment they have described.

JOB—NOTE ON 27:7–8 Job declares that if he is right to maintain his integrity (see vv. 2–6), then he also wishes that his adversaries would be considered as the wicked and unrighteous (v. 7). However, unlike his friends, who assume that judgment on the wicked is generally experienced in life on earth and is transparent to observers, Job says there is no hope for the wicked when God cuts him off and takes away his life (v. 8).

JOB—NOTE ON 27:11 concerning the hand of God. Hand (Hb. yad) is often a metaphor for power, but justice is the question that concerns Job and his friends. Eliphaz claimed to speak for God in correcting Job (cf. 22:26–27). Job in turn has declared that he received revelation from God that he could not deny (6:10); he will not conceal what is with God (27:11), i.e., the thoughts of the Almighty.

JOB—NOTE ON 27:13 The Hebrew phrase translated “with God” is often explained as being better interpreted “from God,” because it would provide a parallel with the second line of the verse. The proposed change is minimal and consists of one letter in the Hebrew text being understood as accidentally appended to this phrase from the word that precedes it. However, since v. 11 has the similar phrase “with the Almighty,” the sense of v. 13 in context does not require the change. The two phrases also appear central to Job’s point: if his integrity is actually what is true “with God,” then Job’s friends ought to consider whether they are the ones who stand in danger of the judgment that they have described.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:1–28 Where Is Wisdom Found? In a magnificent poem that plays on the theme of the dialogues regarding what is hidden and what is revealed, Job reflects on the value, mystery, and place of wisdom. The poem is structured around a question that is repeated with slight variation: “But where shall wisdom be found? And where is the place of understanding?” (vv. 12, 20). Although man has shown great skill in mining the earth for its hidden and valuable resources (vv. 1–11), where is he to look for wisdom, which is beyond measure in its value and outside of the sphere of mere discovery (vv. 12–22)? God is the one who knows its place and by whom wisdom is both given and governed (vv. 23–28). Interpreters have questioned whether ch. 28 is actually Job’s speech, since it might appear to dampen the weight of God’s response in chs. 38–41. However, even though the poem appears to be self-contained, the description of wisdom in the chapter is consistent with the grounds for Job’s lament. It represents what will be shown to be true of him in the end: Job is not reproved because he has promoted folly (unlike his friends) but rather because the inferences he has drawn from wisdom have not properly reflected what he is able to know in light of what he believes to be true.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:1–11 The structure of the Hebrew phrases brings the earth (v. 5) and its valuable treasures into focus in this section. Although it takes considerable effort (indicated by the multifaceted references to darkness in v. 3, far away locations in v. 4, and rock in vv. 9–10), human industry has developed ways to mine the earth for its precious elements (silver, gold, iron, copper, sapphires) or cultivate it (grain for bread). In these realms, whatever is hidden is brought out to light (v. 11).

JOB—NOTE ON 28:3 Job has used the phrase deep darkness in various images throughout the dialogue with his friends (see 3:5; 12:22; 16:16; 24:17; and also 10:22). Here the phrase describes the success of human industry. As the remainder of the chapter makes clear, Job uses the description to question, if not implicitly rebuke, his friends for presuming they have been similarly successful either in discovering wisdom’s place in the world or discerning its presence or absence in the heart of another.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:4 Mining practices in the ancient Near East have been neither fully discovered nor studied enough to determine precisely what is being pictured in this verse. The word translated “shafts” is typically used to refer to the gully of an intermittent stream (just as the word translated “channels” in v. 10 is typically used to refer to either a “river” or as the proper name “the Nile”). Archaeologists have discovered horizontal mining shafts, some examples of which are also intersected by vertical shafts that were likely used to vent mining operations. Whether it is these vertical shafts that hang in the air or not, the purpose of the images is clear: the threefold description of the remote location of the mine (away from where anyone lives, forgotten by travelers, and away from mankind) further indicates the difficulty and effort involved in humanity's pursuit of precious materials.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:7–8 Neither the birds of the sky (represented by the falcon's eye) nor the animals of the earth (represented by the lion) have any knowledge of endeavors like mining. It is a uniquely human accomplishment and application of skill.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:11 Job's description of human industry in vv. 1–11 is summed up well in the second line of this verse: the thing that is hidden he brings out to light.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:12–22 The questions of vv. 12 and 20 frame this section, which describes the value of wisdom and the place of understanding as unknown to mankind. The fact that they are unknown is emphasized by the number of negative statements in vv. 13–19: e.g., not know, not found, not in … with me, cannot be bought … weighed … valued, cannot equal it (twice), nor can it be exchanged … valued.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:15–19 These verses contain multiple references to gold and to other precious stones such as blue sapphire (lapis lazuli), black or white onyx, opaque shiny crystal, bright coral, and yellow chrysolite (topaz). All are expensive and difficult to obtain, yet none are comparable to the value of wisdom.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:21 In contrast to the earlier description about "the paths" of mining and industry (see vv. 7–8), the place of wisdom is hidden from the eyes of all living creatures on the earth, including humans, as well as from the birds of the air.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:22 The reference to Abaddon and Death here is likely playing off Job's earlier description of them as a realm that is also hidden from human observation (see 26:5–6). These two names may be simple personifications, or they may use ideas from pagan myths (e.g., with Death [Hb. mawet] corresponding to the Canaanite deity Mot) to show that these other powers cannot find wisdom.

JOB—NOTE ON 28:23–28 The closing section of the chapter makes it clear that only God understands and knows wisdom and how it is acquired (v. 23). He is the only one before whom both the earth and the heavens (v. 24) are fully revealed because he is the one who created them (vv. 25–27). Wisdom is thus given by God (it came through his speaking) and defined in relation to him (v. 28): the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom (see Prov. 1:7; 9:10) and to turn away from evil is understanding (see Prov. 3:7; 16:6). Job may be rebuking his friends for their treatment of him, implying that they have not acted in a way consistent with the fear of the Lord (cf. the way that the book characterizes Job himself, Job 1:1).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:1–31:40 The Path of Job's Life. Job reflects on his life in the past (29:1–25), the present (30:1–31), and what he wishes would be revealed and vindicated in the future (31:1–40). Much as Job's soliloquy in ch. 3 launched the dialogues with his somber reflection on his origins, so too chs. 29–31 conclude the dialogues with Job's reflections on his current and future state.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:1–25 Job laments the loss of the past, when he felt that he had the presence and protection of God (vv. 1–6) as well as the respect of all those among whom he lived (vv. 7–25), which matched the way he lived his life in pursuit of righteousness and justice (see vv. 12–17).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:1 And Job again took up his discourse. See note on 27:1.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:2–6 Job refers to days in which he felt the presence of God guarding (when God watched over me, v. 2) and guiding him (when his lamp shone upon my head, and by his light I walked, v. 3). Job felt that it was a time when he was in his prime (or with the esv footnote, autumn days, which would be the season of harvest) because the friendship of God (v. 4) was evident on his household (v. 5) as well as his flocks and fields (v. 6).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:6 washed with butter. Job was renowned for his herds of cattle and his olive groves that produced riches from the earth.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:7–25 Job opens and closes this section with a description of the honor that he once received from people in every sphere of influence (vv. 7–10, 21–25). Job's wish is not simply that he would regain his honor but that the grounds for this respect would be remembered (beginning with because in v. 12): he not only spoke in wisdom but also embodied what it required by caring for the poor and fatherless (v. 12), for the one about to perish, and for the widow (v. 13), and by protecting and preserving the needy (vv. 14–17). When Job looks back on what he thought the course of his life would be, he uses several images, including that of a well-rooted tree that would continue to bear fruit, benefiting himself and others (vv. 18–20; for similar images of the benefits of a faithful life, see Ps. 1:3; Prov. 3:18; Jer. 17:7–8).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:11–13 The blessing that Job received from others (v. 13; see also v. 11) signified the blessing he had been to those who had no one to help them and needed to be delivered (v. 12). In the next section, Job will lament his need for someone to deliver him, now that he is the one crying for help (see 30:20, 28; also 30:24).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:14–16 Job had been a person of significant means (see v. 6) who used his possessions and influence as if he were clothed with righteousness and justice (v. 14) to provide what the blind, lame (v. 15), needy, and those he did not know (v. 16) could not do for themselves. Job's actions contrast with how he is treated now that he is in need (see 30:10–15).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:16 searched out the cause. Job took up legal cases even when there could be no possible benefit for him.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:17 The wicked are pictured here as if they hunt for victims like a predator. Job describes his actions on behalf of the needy as equivalent to breaking the fangs of the unrighteous, presumably because he exposed and unraveled the means by which they had snared the poor as their prey.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:20 Job is likely referring to the internal strength (my glory) and the external vigor (my bow) that were the mutual signs of the benefits of a life lived in wisdom.

JOB—NOTE ON 29:24 As one who utilized his means for righteousness and justice (vv. 12–17), the smile and light of Job's face encouraged those without hope and reflected the character and presence of God (see "lamp" and "light" in v. 3).

JOB—NOTE ON 29:25 It is with some irony that Job refers to the past, when some listened for his words and did not speak afterward (vv. 21–22), and also to the way that he formerly lived like one who comforts mourners. His friends originally set out to comfort him (see 2:11) but instead became agitated with his words and ended up acting as his accusers.

JOB—NOTE ON 30:1–31 Job contrasts the honor of his past (29:1–25) with his present circumstances by describing the men who taunt him (30:1–8), their actions against him (vv. 9–15), and his own internal affliction (vv. 16–23) before a concluding section that references both his past acts of compassion and his present lack of hope or help (vv. 24–31).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:1–8 Job describes just how much of a reversal his current situation represents: although he had delivered the truly needy from the oppression of the unrighteous (29:11–17), those who presume to mock him as if he has received the judgment of the unrighteous are themselves needy, because of their own actions and foolishness (see 30:8).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:4 The plants mentioned here represent the food of desperation: saltwort is a low, struggling bush with thick, sour-tasting leaves; the broom tree is a shrub with long, straight branches, small leaves, and poisonous roots. Because the broom tree's roots are both poisonous and known for their heat when burned (see Ps. 120:4), an alternate vocalization of the Hebrew is sometimes followed with the sense "for their warmth" (see esv footnote). However, the known quality of the broom tree's roots may be used here simply to highlight the dire situation of these men.

JOB—NOTE ON 30:8 senseless. The Hebrew is lit., "sons of a fool" and infers further that the men being described are in some way morally responsible for their circumstances (see 2:10; cf. the description of the foolish in Prov. 1:7, 29–32; etc.).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:9–15 Although Job had restrained the unrighteous (see 29:12, 17), he describes those who now presume to deride him, casting off any restraint, as if they are taking advantage of an easy military conquest in which they sing and spit at his downfall (30:9–11) while building siege ramps against him, breaching his defenses, and looting him (vv. 12–15).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:11 In contrast to the past, God has loosed the cord that secured Job's tent (cf. 29:4), and men of low esteem have taken the opportunity to unbridle their tongues (see esv footnote) and embolden their posture in his presence (cf. 30:9–10 with 29:7–11).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:14 amid the crash. The rabble storm upon Job, like a troop of soldiers pouring through a wide breach in a fortification. They continue uninhibited in their plunder.

JOB—NOTE ON 30:16–23 Job laments the isolation in which he now pours out his soul (v. 16) as one who wastes away without help (vv. 17–22) and waits for death (v. 23).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:16 my soul is poured out. An idiom for grief; cf. the psalmist in his longing for worship at the temple (Ps. 42:4).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:18 The description of Job's solitary grief and disfigured clothes contrasts with his earlier image of being clothed with righteousness and justice for the sake of delivering those in need (see 29:14).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:20 Job feels that his present cry for help from God (also v. 28) is unanswered, which contrasts with the descriptions of Job's earlier actions on behalf of others (see 29:12).

JOB—NOTE ON 30:24–31 Job concludes the section by picturing himself as being like one of those whose cries for help he used to answer (vv. 24–25) but who in his own distress has found evil where he hoped for good (v. 26), and isolation and mourning (vv. 27, 29–31) when he has called for help (v. 28).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:1–40 After contrasting the honor of his past (29:1–25) with the disdain he receives because of his circumstances in the present (ch. 30), Job confesses one last time that he has lived his life in the pursuit of righteousness because he believes that is how it should be lived before God, that turning from God's way is without benefit, and that further curses should come on him if these things are not true. Job begins by affirming his commitment to fidelity and questions how he could break it (31:1–4). Sections that follow each open with a conditional statement implying that his life has not been patterned by what is described: stealing or coveting (vv. 5–8, 9–12), neglecting the needs of those both within his household and without (vv. 13–15, 16–18, 19–23, 31–32), trust in or worship of anything other than God (vv. 24–28), concealing hatred or sin (vv. 29–30, 33–34), or improper oversight of his land (vv. 38–40). Embedded in the end of this section is a final wish that the charges would be presented to him so that he could give an account (vv. 35–37).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:1–4 Job believes that his life is lived before and governed by the Almighty (v. 2), who does number all my steps (v. 4). His confidence in this fact is the grounds upon which he uses the same vocabulary to make his final wish that "the Almighty" might answer him (v. 35) and that he could give him "an account of all my steps" (v. 37).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:1 In affirming his moral purity, Job recalls a personal commitment he had made regarding what he would and would not gaze at, what he calls a covenant with my eyes. In particular, he professes purity in avoiding sexual lust: how then could I gaze at a virgin? The faithful reader would recognize the soundness of such a commitment, and Jesus teaches about such purity of desires (Matt. 5:28).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:5–7 Job's references to the way he has walked (v. 5), to where his heart has led him (v. 7), and to whether he has turned aside from the way (v. 7) describe his life in images that evoke the profile of wisdom (e.g., see Prov. 4:10–19, 23–27).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:11–12 Job grounds his own caution against adultery (v. 9) in the warnings of its consequences—both in being punished by the judges (see also v. 28) and in its having ruinous and far-reaching effects like fire (see also Prov. 6:27–29). The reference to Abaddon (Job 31:12) signifies Job's presumption that the way he has walked has consequences beyond the mere extent of all his earthly increase (see Prov. 7:21–27).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:13–15 Job did not reject the needs of his servants (v. 13) lest they should have a complaint against him (v. 14) for which he would have no answer for God (v. 15). Job will use this vocabulary again in his final plea that he would receive an answer from his "adversary" (v. 35; the Hb. term is related to the noun translated "complaint" in v. 14).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:16–23 Care for the poor, widow (v. 16), fatherless (v. 17), needy (v. 19), and sojourner (see vv. 31–32) is prescribed in the Pentateuch (see Ex. 22:21–27; Lev. 19:33; Deut. 24:17–18). Such action shows that someone understands that he or she lives with others before God and is called to fear him alone (Job 31:23). Job lived this way because he believed God weighed his actions, and he understood that calamity was the consequence for the unrighteous (see vv. 2–4).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:24–28 Job has guarded against both the idolatry of trusting the wealth that God has provided rather than trusting God (vv. 24–25), and the idolatry of worshiping what God has created (vv. 26–27). Job's faithfulness in this matter is grounded in the fact that idolatry is to be punished by the judges as an action that is false to God above (see v. 12), as is adultery. This is the emphasis of Job's final appeal: he has consciously lived his life as if it were open before and in service to the God of heaven and earth.

JOB—NOTE ON 31:31 "Who is there that has not been filled with his meat?" The question obviously calls for a negative response; those of Job's household were always well fed. Offering food and lodging was of critical importance to secure strangers from the dangers of the streets at night.

JOB—NOTE ON 31:33 as others do. There may be an allusion here to the Genesis story, where Adam tried to conceal his sin from God (see esv footnote).

JOB—NOTE ON 31:35–37 Job wishes once again for an answer regarding his offenses (v. 35; see vv. 13–15), so that he might give an account of all my steps (v. 37) to the One who numbers them (see v. 4; the Hb. for "numbers" and "account" are related).

JOB—NOTE ON 32:1–37:24 Elihu: Suffering as a Discipline. The opening verses of this section introduce the person and perspective of Elihu (32:1–5) and are followed by an uninterrupted section of his speeches. These include an announcement of his intention to speak (32:6–22) and an initial challenge to Job (ch. 33), a general dispute against what Job has asserted (ch. 34), a description of Job's place before God (35:1–16), and a lengthy section that describes and defends God's majesty (36:1–37:24). Elihu is not addressed in the Lord's speeches that follow immediately after his own (see 38:1–40:2; 40:6–41:34), nor is he referred to in the description either of the prologue (1:1–2:13) or the epilogue (42:7–17). Interpreters have differed on how to understand the function of Elihu's speeches in light of this lack of explicit reference or evaluation. While the Lord's response to Job will include some vocabulary and references that are similar to portions of Elihu's speeches, he does not commend either Elihu's suggested reasons for Job's suffering or his anger against Job (see note on 32:2). See also the discussion of Elihu in the Introduction: Literary Features.

JOB—NOTE ON 32:1–5 Introduction: Elihu and His Anger. The brief narrative section preceding Elihu's speeches indicates that Job's three friends have nothing more to say to Job (v. 1), introduces Elihu (v. 2a), and describes his perspective on what has transpired (vv. 2b–5). The section contains repeated statements that indicate the manner in which Elihu takes up his speech: he "burned with anger" (vv. 2, 3, 5) because no answer had been given to Job (vv. 1, 3, 5).

JOB—NOTE ON 32:2 Elihu's introduction includes a reference to his father and family that is more explicit than that of any of the three friends (see 2:11; and 4:1; 8:1; 11:1). The reference may be included for the way it signifies Elihu's understanding of his role (e.g., Barachel may mean either "may God bless" or "God has blessed") or possibly his need for further introduction in light of his youth.

JOB—NOTE ON 32:3 Although Elihu burned with anger against both Job and his friends (vv. 2–3), when the same phrase is used of the Lord in the epilogue, his anger burns only against the three friends because they had not affirmed what was right about the Lord, as Job had done (see 42:7).

JOB—NOTE ON 32:6–22 The Voice of Youth. Elihu's opening speech is a repetitive declaration of what the opening narrative section has described (see vv. 1–5): Elihu has waited to speak because he is younger than the three friends, but now that it is clear to him that they do not have an answer for Job, he feels compelled to speak. Elihu directs this section primarily at the friends and emphasizes his right and intention to "declare my opinion" (32:6, 10, 11).

JOB—NOTE ON 32:8 Elihu plays on the words spirit and breath in his early speeches (see also 33:4; 34:14) in the way most likely to evoke Job's earlier plea (see 27:2–3) as he asserts his own right to speak.

JOB—NOTE ON 32:18–20 As in v. 8, Elihu claims he is not speaking by choice but by necessity. Elihu may be thinking he is like a prophet, but the reader must judge whether he is right. (On the difficulty of assessing Elihu, see the discussion in the Introduction: Literary Features.)

JOB—NOTE ON 33:1–33 An Arbiter for Job. Elihu opens and closes this section with a call for Job to listen to his words and answer if he is able (vv. 1–7, 31–33). He then presents a summary of Job's contentions regarding himself, his circumstances, and God's seeming silence (vv. 8–13) before suggesting ways that God speaks in order to turn a person from the way that leads to death (vv. 14–30).

JOB—NOTE ON 33:1 Elihu frames his rebuke with a call for Job to listen to his words (also vv. 31, 33), which he likely sees as serving to fill the silence left by Job's friends as well as to explain how God may be speaking on the very points where Job has claimed he is silent.

JOB—NOTE ON 33:2–4 Elihu appears to be evoking Job's earlier statement where he declared that, as long as he had breath, his lips could not speak falsely by agreeing that his friends were right (see 27:2–6). Elihu plays on Job's words (see also 32:8) to assert that what he has to say is equally an upright and sincere declaration.

JOB—NOTE ON 33:9 Elihu summarizes Job’s statements as if Job had argued that he was pure and without transgression. However, it is clear from Job’s regular practice of making burnt offerings that this was not his claim (see 1:5), which was focused instead on denying the suggestion that some hidden sin was at the root of his suffering. By mischaracterizing Job’s plea, Elihu ends up offering a similar argument to that of the three friends: God is greater than man (33:12) and thus he must have intended to warn or rebuke Job (vv. 14–30).

JOB—NOTE ON 33:11 puts my feet in the stocks. Elihu quotes Job verbatim (cf. 13:27). God had made Job his enemy, pursuing him like a leaf driven in the wind (13:24–25).

JOB—NOTE ON 33:14 For God speaks … though man does not perceive it. Elihu is suggesting that Job has not recognized and maybe even has ignored the ways in which God has spoken to him.

JOB—NOTE ON 33:18 Elihu repeatedly states that the purpose of God’s speaking to a person in the way he describes is to keep his soul from the pit (also vv. 22, 24, 28, 30). Thus he implies that Job’s suffering may be a corrective of his overall path rather than simply punishment for some hidden sin. However, given the Lord’s description of Job in the prologue (see 1:8; 2:3), Elihu’s suggestion seems very similar to, if not an even more severe condemnation than, the one offered by the three friends.

JOB—NOTE ON 33:19–22 The images that Elihu employs in this section are surely aimed at encouraging Job to see his similar physical state as signifying that God has spoken mercifully through his circumstances, to keep him from the path he was on (see v. 18).

JOB—NOTE ON 33:23–28 Elihu poses a hypothetical situation in which an angel or mediator might act on behalf of a person to deliver him (vv. 23–25), and he suggests that the appropriate response would be repentance and rejoicing (vv. 26–28). When Elihu tells Job that he should not fail to accept the correction because of the “greatness of the ransom” (36:18), he implies that the loss of all of Job’s possessions and family might be such a ransom for his deliverance (33:24).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:1–37 An Appeal to the Wise. Elihu sets out to dispute Job in a speech structured by its general statements of address. He is calling “wise men” to hear Job’s contention that he is in the right (vv. 2–9) and “men of understanding” to hear Elihu’s disputation of this claim (vv. 10–34), with both groups bracketed together as those who will agree with Elihu against Job (vv. 35–37).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:1–9 Elihu calls those who are wise to weigh Job’s claim that he is right and that God has taken away what he was entitled to (vv. 1–6); he prefigures his conclusion when he says that Job “walks with wicked men” (vv. 7–9; see v. 36).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:3 palate tastes food. Truth is discerned through hearing, just as the quality of food is discerned through tasting. Job used this same proverb earlier to challenge the wisdom of his friends (12:11). Elihu repeats the proverb to challenge his listeners to weigh Job’s words.

JOB—NOTE ON 34:4–6 With the repeated reference to right in these verses, Elihu seems to be playing particularly off Job’s statements in 27:2–6, where he lamented that God had taken his right away and he refused to agree that his friends were right about him.

JOB—NOTE ON 34:8 Elihu describes Job as one who walks with evildoers and wicked men, which is a path that the wise are called to avoid (see Ps. 1:1). He will ground this description in what he feels Job’s assertion about himself and God (Job 34:5) necessarily means (see vv. 11–13).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:9 Although Job had stated that the wicked and the righteous seem to suffer the same fate, in order to argue against his friends’ suggestion that the wicked are always punished, he did not state precisely what Elihu presents here. Job had governed his life by delight in God and his words (see 23:10–12), and he had argued that it was the wicked who live, often in prosperity, as if service to the Almighty profits a man nothing (see 21:15).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:10–37 Although Elihu has already indicated his conclusion about Job (vv. 7–9), he sets out to prove that Job should be condemned for his claims.

JOB—NOTE ON 34:10–12 These verses represent the grounds for Elihu’s argument against Job: since God will repay a man in accord with his work and ways (v. 11), Job’s claim that he is right and that God has taken away his right (see v. 5) would be the same as saying that God has acted in wickedness (v. 10) so as to pervert justice (v. 12). Although it takes a slightly different shape, Elihu’s argument results in the same dilemma that resulted from the arguments of the three friends: either Job is in the right or God is in the right, but it cannot be both (see 8:2–7).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:23 God has no need to consider a man further. The subject of this sentence is “he” in Hebrew (see esv footnote), and just whom that refers to must be inferred from the context. Some interpreters suggest that it refers to “man,” with the sense that a person does not set his own times for judgment, which would require a slight emendation of the Hebrew text. However, understanding God as the subject makes sense in the context of Elihu’s dispute: Job has been calling for some opportunity to present his case before either God or an arbitrator, but Elihu is suggesting that God has already acted and does not need to give further consideration to Job’s or any other person’s case.

JOB—NOTE ON 34:26–28 Although Elihu does not apply the images directly to Job, his description suggests something very similar to what the three friends had already argued (see 22:5–11): Job has been struck for all to see (34:26) because he must have turned aside from following the Lord’s ways (v. 27) by mistreating the poor and afflicted (v. 28).

JOB—NOTE ON 34:34–37 Elihu concludes with the presumption that any who are truly men of understanding or wise would agree with him (v. 34; see vv. 2, 10) that Job speaks like a fool who is without knowledge or insight (v. 35). Furthermore, Elihu wishes boldly that the judgment signified in Job’s suffering would be taken to its logical end (v. 36), because in addition to whatever sin he is ultimately being punished for, Job’s words also express rebellion and arrogance against God (v. 37).

JOB—NOTE ON 35:1–16 What Right Does Job Have Before God? Elihu argues against what he sees as Job’s presumption before God. Where Job said that the wicked and the righteous appear to suffer indiscriminately, Elihu argues that Job is acting as if his righteousness grants him some expectation of favor before God, when neither faithfulness nor wickedness accomplishes anything with or against God (vv. 1–8). Furthermore, where Job had maintained that the oppressed cry out and the wicked are not punished, Elihu argues that they often cry out in pride rather than in prayer to God, and thus God does not regard their cries, much less Job's vain request and foolish words (vv. 9–16).

JOB—NOTE ON 35:2 my right before God. Job was declaring himself right before God. He asserted that God had wronged him (19:6), which in the view of Elihu amounted to claiming that he was right rather than God (32:2).

JOB—NOTE ON 35:6–8 Elihu repeats an aspect of Eliphaz's final argument against Job—that God does not profit from Job's righteousness (see 22:2–3). (However, where Elihu merely mentions wickedness within his comparison [35:8], Eliphaz detailed the likely specifics of Job's evil [see 22:5–9].) Neither Eliphaz nor Elihu understand that the whole impetus for Job's complaint is his desire to see God vindicated on earth in and through the lives of those who are faithful to him.

JOB—NOTE ON 35:12–13 When Elihu says that God does not heed the cry of the oppressed because of the pride of evil men (v. 12b), he does not explicitly indicate whether he is referring to those who cry out or to their oppressors. However, Elihu's repeated emphasis that God does not answer (v. 12a), listen (hear), or regard an empty cry (v. 13) indicates that he is most likely referring to the pride of the oppressed.

JOB—NOTE ON 35:14–16 Elihu argues that if God does not regard the cries of the proud oppressed (vv. 9–13), how can Job expect an answer (v. 14) to what Elihu assumes is the even more obstinate stance of one who takes his own lack of punishment as reason to speak foolishly (vv. 15–16). This is extraordinarily insensitive, considering Job's actual situation. Elihu is revealing a high view of his own importance.

JOB—NOTE ON 36:1–37:24 The Mercy and Majesty of God. Elihu concludes with a lengthy speech that he introduces as being "on God's behalf" (36:2–4). He begins by inferring that Job's situation is an example of God using affliction to deliver the righteous from their sin if they are willing to accept his correction (36:5–21). Elihu then describes God's power and majesty as manifested audibly and visibly in storms, through which God accomplishes whatever purpose he has in mind (36:22–37:13). Finally, he calls Job to consider whether he knows how God does any of these things (37:14–20), to remind him of God's majesty and power (37:21–23)—the reason both that men fear God and that he does not regard those who do not fear him (37:24).
